Italian Army, Navy, Airforce Limited To 297,500 Men

Barred From Possessing Any Aircraft Carriers

By ROBERT HEWETT

Paris, Sept. 3 (AP)— "Big Four" recommendations that the Italian army, navy and airforce be limited to 297,500 men — only a fraction of war-time strength —were approved unanimously today by the military commission of the 21-power peace conference.

Under the approved provisions, Italy is permitted to have an army of 250,000 (including 65,000 Carabinieri), a navy of 22,500 and an airforce of 25,000.

She is barred from possession of aircraft carriers and her land airforce is restricted to 200 fighter and reconnaissance planes with an additional 150 transport and training planes.

Without debate the military commission adopted all but one of the naval limitation articles drafted by the foreign ministers council, including one on Italian possession of aircraft carriers and submarines.

Recommendations Delayed.

Approval of "Big Four" recommendations to limit the Italian fleet to two battleships, four cruisers and four destroyers and restrictions on other smaller warcraft was delayed pending study of a French amendment to qualify the wording of the treaty.

Other provisions of the naval limitation articles which were approved included:

Surplus fleet units—including the battleships Cesare, Italia, and Vitorio Veneto—would be transferred to the government of the United States, Russia, Britain and France within three months after signing of the treaty.

No battleships could be constructed or acquired by Italy.

During the period of post-war minesweeping, Italy would be permitted to employ an additionaly 2,500 officers and men in her navy above the 22,500 total.

Still Enmeshed in Debate

The military commission's unanimous decisions came seven years to the day the Second Great War broke out in Europe, theoretically over the Free City of Danzig on the Baltic. Ironically, the Paris peace makers still were enmeshed in debate over the establishment of another free city, Trieste on the Adriatic.

Danzig was made a free city by the peace makers at Versailles in 1919 to give Poland a port. In similar fashion, the idea in 1946 is to make Trieste a port for Yugoslavia in payment for that country's stand against the Nazis.

Under the treaties now being drafted by 21-power peace conference here, Trieste would be taken away from Italy and made an international zone controlled by the United Nations, as Danzig was a protectorate under the League of Nations.

Trieste Crux of Peace.

Until Monday, nothing much had been said in the course of debate about Trieste, but everyone in authority in Paris agrees that it is the crux of the peace now being written and today's debate may make or break the whole conference.

Other developments at Monday's session included:

Rejection by the Italian Economic Commission, by vote of 13 to 7, of Australia's second attempt to set up a reparations commission for Italy, which would have limited collection of Russian war damage claims;

The filing by the United Kingdom and the British colonies of a reparations claim for $11,520,000,000 against Italy, bringing to $20,149,309,425 the amount Italy will have to dig up if all war damage claims are approved by the conference.

Seamen, Operators Deadlocked On Closed Shop Issue

Ottawa, Sept. 3 (CP)—Resumption of the Canadian Seamen's Union strike which last spring tied up Great Lakes shipping for four weeks was threatened today with heads of three big shipping companies and C.S.U. executives both in Ottawa and deadlocked on the issue of a closed shop.

The scene of the seamen's dispute shifted to the capital after the C.S.U. informed the three shipping concerns that it would meet their representatives here today only if the companies are prepared to sign the agreement already concluded between the union and a number of other shipping firms.

The three companies involved are Canada Steamship Lines, Paterson Steamship Company and Sarnia and Colonial Steamship Lines.

At noon, officials of the three companies announced after a meeting that they were considering proposals which they hoped would be acceptable to the union. It was expected they would be put before the union later today.

Operators Opposed

Meanwhile the operators reiterated their opposition to the closed shop principle on the lake boats. Following a late meeting here last night, they issued a statement declining to accept as part of a contract "anything which detracts from the authority of a ship's master" and said "this must be paramount for purposes of safety."

On this basis, it appeared unlikely there would be any meeting of the union and company officials.

However, J. A. (Pat) Sullivan C.S.U. President Harry Davis, Vice President and T. Gerald McManus, Secretary all left Montreal for Ottawa last night, and it was expected that if no meeting with operators evolved the union men would confer with government officials.

Situation Complicated

Complicating the situation was the statement in Montreal last night of Capt. Joseph Bernier, master of the C.S.L. freighter Beaverton, that C.S.U. men had forced his crew to leave the vessel at Cornwall, early Sunday.

The Beaverton, carrying a load of steel wire from the strike-bound Hamilton Steel Corporation plant, made the trip to Montreal with a crew after the ship's officers cast off the lines at Cornwall. Capt. Bernier said he had been refused assistance by Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Cornwall local police, but the reason for the refusal could not immediately be learned.

Dying Father Testifies Ammunition Left By Troops

Trieste, Sept. 3 (Reuters) —A dying father's testimony won acquittal yesterday for Luigi Sgubbi, charged with illegal possession of 28,000 rounds of ammunition. The court adjourned to the bedside of the ailing father, who had to have three morphine injections before testifying that the ammunition was left by New Zeland troops in May, 1945.

Flintshire Opposes Plan of Chester, Shropshire to Absorb 2 Bits of Wales

Flint, Wales, Sept. 3—(CP) — Flintshire is annoyed. Those audacious English want to take over two bits of Welsh soil.

Chester, just across the border on the river Dee, has told the boundary commissioners it would like to expand into 699 acres of Wales — a bit more than one square mile.

Shropshire has indicated it would like to absorb Overton, part of Flintshire separated from the main section of the county by an arm of Denbighshire. Flintshire Councillor G. O. Williams calls that "robbery" and "plunder."

Both areas have been Welsh since the days of Edward I when English seapower subdued North Wales. They were established as parts of Flintshire by the Statute of Rhuddlan in 1284.

It isn't the first time Chester has cast covetous eyes across the border. In 1931-32 the city sponsored a bill for the absorption of Welsh territory; but it had to be thrown out because Cestrians themselves (many of them Welshmen) voted against it.

Now Flintshire council is setting up a "National Resistance Movement." It is asking all Welsh municipalities and cultural societies to support its demand for territorial integrity.

"The spirits of our ancestors who fought valiantly on Morfa Rhuddlan are hovering around us these days," says councillor Williams.

"Flintshire united calls for a united Wales against the Ahabites of Chester who cover the 'Welsh vineyard.' "

UNION AND STEEL COMPANY NEARER AN AGREEMENT

Quiet Continues On Picket Line as Both Sides Await Further Discussions

Hamilton, Sept. 3 —(CP)— A hint of a possible break in the seven-week strike in Canada's basic steel industry came last night in a statement issued by the United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.) which said the gap had been narrowed between the union's wage demands and the Federal Government's proposals for the settlement of the dispute.

As quiet picketing continued at the huge Steel Company of Canada plant here, the union statement, issued at Toronto after a meeting of the Steelworker's National Advisory Committee, said the organization would ask Labor Minister Mitchell for further discussions before finally deciding on government proposals advanced at Ottawa last week.

In another development with a bearing on the strikes here and at Sault Ste. Marie and Sydney, M. J. Coldwell, national leader of the C.C.F., said in a public address at Sydney that "This is a crucial strike and if it is lost the labor cause will be lost for a long time . . . As far as I am concerned you are going to win."

Speaking at a Labor Day rally of organized labor, Mr. Coldwell charged that "weakness in the administration of the Department of Labor was responsible for the Canadian basic steel strike."

Little more than token picketing took place here yesterday as labor groups celebrated their traditional holiday.

Addressing holiday workers, Murray Cotterill, secretary-treasurer of the Toronto Labor Council, said the Federal Government had infringed on the emergency order-in-council on which it bases police action against Hamilton's Stelco strikers. He declared it did this by permitting Steel Controller F. B. Kilbourn to make arrangements with striking union locals at the Soo and Sydney to maintain vital services in struck steel plants.

Fifty New Cases Of Polio Develop In Three Days

(By The Canadian Press)

One death from poliomyelitis and 50 new cases recorded during the holiday weekend raised to 61 the death total from the disease this year and to 1,092 the number of cases reported.

A Canadian Press survey showed 34 new cases admitted to Montreal hospitals and 11 new cases in Ontario. The death was that of an adult in Prince Edward Island where 37 cases and five deaths have resulted this year and schools and theatres have been closed. Four of the new cases were in Prince Edward Island and one in Manitoba.

Schools in Windsor remained Prince Edward Island, 37 (5); Nova Scotia, 13 (1); New Brunswick, 24 (2); Quebec, 750 (37); Ontario, 187 (9); Manitoba, 24 (1); Saskatchewan, 13 (3); Alberta, 40 (4); British Columbia, 4 (0).

closed today after five new cases were reported in that area during the week-end.

, Approximately 750 cases have occurred in Quebec province with 665 treated in Montreal hospitals, but health authorities said an undisclosed number had been discharged as cured.

Strikes Cost Canada 2,544,581 Man-Days

Ottawa, Sept. 3—(CP)—Time lost through strikes in the first seven months of this year totalled 2,544,581 man-days, compared with 12,208 days in the corresponding period of 1945, Labor Minister Mitchell reported today.

The minister said while time loss in July was exceptionally heavy both the number of workers involved and time loss showed some reduction from June.

Preliminary figures for the first seven months of 1946, showed 145 strikes involving 119,679 workers, with a time loss of 2,544,581 mandays. For the same period last year there were 120 strikes, involving 37,609 workers, with a resulting time loss of 128,208 days.

The numbers of workers involved in strikes in Canada during July was 49,752, compared with 70,688 in June.

The number of strikes and lockouts in effect at one time or another during July totalled 42. There were 23 strikes still in progress at the beginning of August.

The three largest strikes in effect during July were those involving rubber workers, steel workers and textile workers at Montreal and Valleyfield. These three strikes alone accounted for 540,000 days lost in July—almost 60 per cent of the Dominion total of man-working days lost through disputes during that month.

The 10,146 rubber workers of factories at Bowmanville, Hamilton, Kitchener, New Toronto, Oakville, and Toronto, members of the united rubber workers of America (C.I.O.) went out on strike June 23. At the end of July this strike had accounted for a loss of 250,000 man-working days during the month.

On July 15, the steel mill workers of Hamilton, Sault Ste. Marie, and Sydney, N.S., numbering 11,538 went on strike, and at the end of the month the strike had accounted for 170,000 days lost during July. The steel workers are members of the United Steel Workers of America, (C.I.O.)

The strike of the 5,253 textile factory workers of Montreal and Valleyfield, Que., began June 1, and was still in effect at the end of July, accounted for 120,000 work-days lost during that month. These workers are members of the United Textile Workers of America (A.F.L.-T.L.C.).

Other major strikes in effect during July included:

Electrical apparatus factory workers, Hamilton: 4,375 workers; time loss 90,000 man-days, began July 5; United Electrical Workers (C.I.O.)

Motor vehicle factory workers, Chatham and Windsor: 3,440 workers; time loss in July 80,000 man-days; began June 18; United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.)

Metal miners, British Columbia: 2,119 workers; time loss 50,000 man-days; began July 3; International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (C.I.O.)

Metal factory workers, Welland, Ont.: 1,280 workers, time loss 25,000 man-days; began July 8; United Electrical (C.I.O.)

Chemical factory workers, Windsor, Ont.: 467 workers; time loss in July, 10,000 man-days; began June 27; United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.)

MEMBERS LEAVE AS GRUELLING SESSION ENDS

Unless Some Emergency Intervenes Third Session Will Not Begin Till January

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 3—(CP) — The lull of recess dominated Parliament Hill today.

The 5½ months of debate that comprised the second session of the 20th Canadian Parliament was over. Unless some emergency intervenes, the third session will not begin until late January.

The formalities of prorogation brought an end late Saturday afternoon to a session that began March 15.

They ended a period that will go down in legislature history as one studded with the names of the Citizenship Bill and the British loan, of Fred Rose, the Labor-Progressive member who was arrested and convicted of spying, of estimates that towered almost to the $3,000,000,000 mark, of veterans' legislation that required one-quarter of that sum, of reiteration by 71-year-old William Lyon Mackenzie King of his intention to step down as Prime Minister before another election.

The members who were elected in the June 11 election of 1945 could look back upon a busy time as they scattered to their homes in the far reaches of the nation.

Only Few Present

Only a fraction of the members were still in their seats when the end came Saturday. They put in a final day of estimates, sitting from 10 a.m. until three o'clock to complete their studies of sums needed for the Labor Department, the External Affairs Department, the Prime Minister's office and the operation of the Houses of Parliament themselves.

. Traditionally, protests welled up at the speed with which the Commons drove through its final days. Gordon Graydon (PC — Peel) said the House couldn't continue the policy of voting millions of dollars in a rush without "making ourselves ridiculous in the eyes of the public."

Thanked for Co-operation

Then at 2:50 p.m. E.D.T. they were finished. Bill 393 covering supply was introduced, given 1st, second and third readings.

Acting Prime Minister St. Laurent stood up and thanked members for their co-operation. The leaders of the other parties responded. The partisan touch was gone.

Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, Deputy Governor-General, read the Throne Speech during the prorogation ceremony in the Senate Chamber at four o'clock.

The speech said the government was "firmly convinced that the exercise of moderation and restraint by all parties is essential to the satisfactory adjustment of labor disputes and the maintenance of the high level of production without which there cannot be ample opportunities for employment."

ONE THOUSAND JEW IMMIGRANTS ARE INTERCEPTED

Passengers on Ship, Intercepted Off Tel Aviv, to be Sent to Cyprus

Jerusalem, Sept. 3 (CP) — The 400-ton ship Four Freedoms, crowded with 1,000 Jews seeking to enter Palestine illegally, arrived at Haifa early today in tow of a British destroyer which intercepted her last night off Tel Aviv. British authorities immediately prepared to deport the immigrants to Cyprus.

Interception of the ship was accompanied by a brief fight between the immigrants and a naval boarding party during which several British sailors were injured, the British government announced.

Shortly after the vessel dropped anchor between two destroyers just outside the Haifi breakwater naval engineers set up barbed wire runways to the docks for processing the immigrants. Barges swarmed around the anchored craft.

A series of depth charges boomed across the bay for about 15 minutes and Haifa residents expressed belief that the bombs were being dropped "to discourage the ship's passengers from attempting to swim ashore."

The ship was first sighted about 35 miles off Tel Aviv but was not interfered with until she entered Palestine coastal waters.

Fighting developed when the British destroyer Childers dispatched a boarding party to inspect the vessel and the immigrants resisted, the British government announced. During the melee at least a dozen of the immigrants leaped over the side, "apparently with the intention of swimming to shore," the announcement said.

It did not disclose their fate or whether any of the immigrants had been injured in the fighting.

Palestine sources who could not be identified said the ship probably was the first of a new group of vessels now en route to Palestine.

OVER 300 VIOLENT DEATHS

Chicago, Sept. 3—(AP)—More than 300 persons suffered violent deaths as the United States celebrated its final extended holiday weekend of the summer.

Homebound vacationists and tourists jammed most of the country's highways over the 3 - day Labor Day holiday and traffic fatalities surpassed the estimate made by the National Safety Council.

At least 306 persons were killed, including 217 in traffic mishaps. In addition, there were 52 violent deaths for miscellaneous causes, while 37 persons drowned.

CRUSHED UNDER TIMBER

Stroud, Ont., Sept. 3 (CP) — Thomas Bowman, 57, was killed yesterday when he was crushed beneath heavy timbers of a barn he was helping tear down on the farm of his brother, Joseph, near this Simcoe County village.

ALTA. FARMERS UNION STRIKES FOR PRICE BOOST

Will Withhold Produce From Market To Support Demands For Parity Prices

Edmonton, Sept. 3 CP)— The Alberta Farmers' Union, having announced today as the day they will start withholding produce from market, geared today for strike action to support their demands for parity prices for farm products.

The announcement came from Carl J. Stimpfle, A.F.U. president. He said the delivery strike would embrace the 20,000 union members, supported by an estimated 83,000 farmers of the Saskatchewan branch of the United Farmers of Canada.

The strike action, if it comes to that, will occur as Alberta nears the end of the harvest of its best crop since 1942, the work of some 97,000 farmers. It would be the second time this province has been the scene of a farm strike.

But Mr. Stimpfle said the farmers union was making one more attempt for federal action at meeting A.F.O. demands through a new, telegraphed appeal reiterating the farmers' stand and asking reconsideration by federal authorities to avert the threatened tie-up.

Pledged Support

From Saskatoon came a pledge of support from Frank Eliason, secretary of the Saskatchewan section, U.F.C. who said his members would be asked to join the strike, they having already voted overwhelmingly in favor of joining the protesting Alberta farmers.

Both he and Mr. Stimpfle said steps would be taken to see that delivery of milk to hospitals and children continued.

Both Saskatchewan and Alberta have seen similar action in other years. In 1936 the U.F.C., said Mr. Eliason refused to deliver grain and won a 25-cent increase in the price of wheat. A movement to withhold produce from market in Alberta some years ago lasted only a short while, was not widespread.

7 1-2 hour Meeting

The strike announcement followed a 7 1-2 hour meeting of the executive and board of directors of the A.F.U. where dissatisfaction with the Dominion government reaction to proposals for a non-political fact-finding board on parity prices was discussed.

"We regret we have to take this action but see no other course to bring to the attention of the Dominion government the increasing cost of commodities the public has to buy," said Mr. Stimpfle.

Greek Celebrates With Present or Past Members of Forces

New York, Sept. 3 (AP)—Any present or past member of the armed forces who walked nto the Savor Bar on Upper Broadway between 3 p.m. Monday and early hours of this morning got all the free beefsteak, French fries and beer he could put away. Inside, for free, were 600 pounds of tenderloin steak, 35 kegs of beer and 300 cases of bottled brew, plus gallons of cole-slaw and stocks of French fried potatoes. Said the proprietor, John Heroluvim, who served in the Greek army during the First Great War. "I don't want any money. I got too much of it."

1,500 Calories or Less Daily Diet For Many Thru '47 Despite Crops

By JUDSON O'QUINN

Copenhagen, Sept. 3 (AP) — Representatives of 51 countries, advised that the daily diet of many persons in the world would remain at 1,500 calories or lower through 1947 in spite of a substantial improvement in bread grain supplies, grappled today with the monumental fight against hunger.

The 700 delegates, meeting Monday for the second conference of the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, heard a report that favorable weather in some areas during the summer had improved the bread grain supply to such an extent that the indicated gap of 10,000,000 to 11,000,000 tons between needs and probable supplies had been narrowed to 8,000,000 tons.

In spite of this improvement, the report said, a major problem facing the conference was that of making some special financial arrangements for those countries which have a shortage of foreign exchange and therefore are unable to import the necessary food to maintain minimum diets.

Unless such arrangements are made, the report went on, the diet of many in those countries would remain at 1,500 calories or below through 1947.

"Looking beyond 1946-47," the report continued, "there are signs that the world food balance may continue tight for some time, since the world demand will be larger than the pre-war supply of many foods, notably livestock and products which can only expand slowly."

The Russians were conspicuous by their absence at the conference.

81 Persons Killed And 270 Injured In Violent Rioting

Communal Fights Between Hindus and Moslems Flare

Bombay, Sept. 3 —(CP)— A communique said today that 81 persons had been killed and 270 injured since Sunday in violent Hindu-Moslem rioting in this teeming city, where new communal fights flared early this morning.

The city still simmered with the threat of widespread disturbances and strong forces of troops and police were on duty, following pre-dawn outbursts in zones outside the area where a curfew was imposed yesterday.

Police were reported to have opened fire three times during the morning to quell outbreaks, with estimated casualties of 10 killed and 50 injured.

Bus traffic, which was suspended in all parts of Bombay last night, was resumed today in trouble-free sections, but a 48-hour curfew decreed at 5 a.m. yesterday in zones which have been the scenes of disorders remained in effect.

A hospital survey Monday night showed that more than 300 persons have been injured in the two days of intermittent rioting, which began on the eve of the inauguration of India's new interim government in New Delhi.

Ill-feeling between Hindus and Moslems has been intensified by the Moslem League's refusal to participate in the government — set up as a preliminary step in the British plan for Indian independence.

After taking the oath of office Monday as head of the new government, Congress Party President Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru pledged himself to govern the nation "for the Indians" and indicated he was considering a 10-year program to improve their lot.

At the same time, Mohandas K. Gandhi declared at a prayer meeting in New Delhi that the Congress party "could never ally with Britain against the Moslems."

"After all, if the Hindus and Moslems must fight, let them be brave and fight it out amongst themselves," he declared.

Large Meteorite Sighted

Toronto, Sept. 3 (CP)—Sighting a large meteorite in suburban Scarborough was reported to police last night by D. W. Marchant. "My wife and I heard something scream across the sky," he said. "When we got to a window there was a trail of light-colored smoke from the southwest to the northwest. We heard a distinct thud and saw a flash low in the sky. When we got outside, we found neighbors coming from their homes and everybody was asking 'what was it?'"

FALA GETS RESERVATION

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 3—(AP)— An Albany hotel reservation for Fala, the late President Roosevelt's Scottie companion, went begging as Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt arrived alone Monday night. A battery of news photographers, poised about the registration desk awaiting the arrival, were disappointed. The hotel had planned a very doggie reception for Fala. Mrs. Roosevelt is the keynote speaker at the Democrats state convention opening today.

Monty Plans Call On U.S. President

Washington, Sept. 3 (AP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery plans to call on President Truman and make several speeches during a tour of United States army installations this month.

The war department, in announcing the itinerary today, said the chief of the Imperial General Staff of the British army will come to the United States September 10 on the invitation of the General of the Army Eisenhower.

He will visit New York, West Point, Washington, Fort Leavenworth, Maxwell Field, Alabama, and Fort Benning, Georgia, before he leaves September 19 to return by plane to England.

The itinerary:

Sept. 10—Will arrive from Canada at Stewart Field, New York, and motor to West Point, where he will be the guest of Maj.-Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, superintendent of the United States Military Academy, at a luncheon. After an inspection and review of the cadet corps, he will leave by plane for Washington.

Sept. 11—He will visit Arlington National Cemetery and will later address a group of war department officers who served with him in the North African and European campaigns. After a press conference, he will call on President Truman and later will be the guest of War Secretary Patterson at luncheon. He will be the guest of honor that evening at a reception given by Gen. Eisenhower, at Fort Myer, Va.

Sept. 12—He will leave by plane for Fort Leavenworth where he will inspect the Command Staff College and address

Sept. 13—He will leave Fort Leavenworth for Maxwell Field to tour the air university and the air command and staff school and then go to Fort Benning.

Sept. 14—He will inspect the airborne and the infantry schools at Fort Benning and then depart for New York. He will be the overnight guest of Lieut. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway at Fort Totten.

Sept. 15—He will leave Mitchell Field for Washington.

Sept. 16—He will confer with Field Marshal Viscount Wilson of Libya, chief of the British Joint Staff Mission.

Sept. 17—He will fly to New York for a conference with the British military and naval members of the military staff of the United Nations and will return to Washington in the afternoon.

Sept. 18—He will visit the National War College and address the students and faculty.

Sept. 19—After a talk and lunch with Baron Inverchapel, the British Ambassador, he will leave Washington on his return flight to England.

Flying Boat On Mercy Flight Disappears

Prince Rupert, B.C., Sept. 3—(CP) — Smoke signals seen again from the wooded-shores of Chickamin Lake, 15 miles west of Stewart, B.C., were being investigated today as the possible landing place of the missing flying boat Skeena Queen.

The big plane, with a crew of four aboard and three passengers, disappeared Saturday night during a mercy flight from Stewart.

A rescue seaplane, with Provincial Police aboard, left for the lake at dawn, while a land search party was being organized to carry medical supplies to the scene.

Royal Air Force planes, a United States army seaplane, fishing vessels, and Provincial Police searched the Queen Charlotte Islands area and the rugged, isolated coast line during the weekend but failed to find trace of the missing plane.

FISHING BOATS WARNED OF PRACTICE FIRING

The Department of Lands and Forests at Tweed, has warned commercial fishermen and other craft which might be in the vicinity of Point Petre that practice firing will be conducted on September 5th. Arc of fire will be from 90 degrees to 180 degrees with the firing point 550 yards from the Point Petre lighthouse. The practice firing will be for the one day only.

ALBERT COLLEGE TO OPEN SEPTEMBER 11TH.

With its student accommodation crowded to capacity, Albert College will open on Wednesday, September 11, college officials stated today.

The registration of the school is the largest in its history and many students have been turned away during the past two weeks.

Many students who left registration to the proverbial eleventh hour have been disappointed, officials said.

SOME FROST DAMAGE IN NORTHERN AREAS

Although tomato and cucumber vines in the immediate Bay of Quinte area were spared from frost damage Monday night when the official temperature reading at the local pump house was 41 degrees, slight frost damage was felt as far south as Foxboro.

Residents from the above centre attending market Tuesday morning reported white frost in the low-lying hollows and stated that cucumber vines would be damaged. It was not thought the frost at Foxboro was severe enough to damage tomatoes.

Further north in the county, tender garden produce had already felt the effects of early frost with cucumber and pumpkin vines reported touched last week, while corn was frozen sufficiently to warrant cutting.

MEAN TEMPERATURE IN AUGUST LOWER

Although a high temperature of 87 degrees was registered during the month of August, the mean temperature for the month just concluded was three points lower than for the same month last year, it was reported today by local filtration plant officials.

Mean temperature for the last month was 65.5 degrees as compared with 68.5 one year ago, despite the fact the maximum reading this year was two points higher. Low reading for the past month was 41 degrees as compared with 45 last year. Rainfall this August was slightly more this year than last, 1.48 inches as compared with 1.17 inches in August, 1945.

PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICE CLOSED

The public relations department of Military District No. 3 has closed after functioning in Kingston since early in the war.

Press arrangements will in future be handled from the Directorate of Public Relations, Ottawa, Captain Ronald Vale, public relations officer announced today.

ENGLISH TEACHER REPORTS FOR DUTY

One of twenty English teachers who will teach in Ontario schools during the school term which opened Tuesday morning, Miss Norah Dane, of Ilford, England, reported for duty at King George School today, it was reported by Principal Everett Fairman. Miss Dane will teach at King George SSchool in place of Miss Alice Heasemian of Stirling who went to England in the teacher exchange program.

The English teachers reporting for duty in Ontario gave themselves but little time to get accustomed to Canada before starting classes. Miss Dane arrived in the city Monday evening and reported for duty Tuesday morning.

No Unusual Incidents Mar Holiday Weekend

All was comparatively quiet in local police circles over the holiday weekend with the city police department having little more than drunks to deal with, while highway traffic officers reported no serious accidents on the highways.

More than the customary number of weekend inebriates were apprehended by city constables who possibly checked a bit closer on account of the holiday weekend. Police also kept a lookout for traffic violators with several motorists being apprehended for exceeding the city speed limits.

Kingston police requested local officers to be on the lookout for suspects in connection with a safe-breaking job in that city over the weekend. It was believed that the tools used in the safe-breaking job had been stolen.

Obituary

LATE JOHN STANLEY WIMS

The funeral of John Stanley Wims was held Monday morning from his late residence, 36 Gordon Street, to St. Michael's Church where Solemn High Mass of Requiem was celebrated by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, V. G. The Rev. Father C. E. Baker acted as Deacon and the Rev. Father A. L. O'Donnell acted as Sub Deacon. At the close of the Mass Mr. Ed. Brown sang "Pray for the Dead."

Interment took place in the Wims family plot in St. James' Cemetery and the committal prayers were said by the Rev. Father A. L. O'Donnell.

The bearers were Clifford Murphy, William Harris, Bruce Lattimer, Courtland Miller, Frank Cushing and Frank Follwell.

Three Tourists Narrowly Escape Serious Injury

Three American tourists narrowly escaped serious injury on Highway No. 2 one mile west of Trenton on Labor Day when their 1939 Buick convertible roadster turned turtle in a ditch smashing off a telephone pole before it slued to a stop.

The men, who suffered slight scratches and bruises, were Donald Rews, Walter Pappert and Philip Hammond, all of Rochester, New York.

The car, driven by Rews was travelling in an easterly direction in a misting shower of rain. As it attempted to pass another car, it allegedly went out of control as it was crowded off the road and plunged into a deep ditch breaking off the pole before it turned over.

The car suffered extensive damage it was reported. The men were on a holiday motor trip through this part of Ontario.

Holiday Enjoyed Quietly in City

With a great number of people taking advantage of ideal conditions to enjoy the holiday Labor Day in the city was observed very quietly with nothing of an untoward nature breaking the holiday hush.

There was a general exodus as early as Saturday afternoon and Sunday as holiday-seeking residents took advantage of the long weekend to visit camp and cottage, summer resort and other out-of-town vacation spots.

The city yesterday presented a deserted village appearance, with those who stayed at home visiting theatres, attending the "lone" softball games at the Fair Grounds, or enjoying themselves at home, while not a few entertained out-of-town relatives and friends.

Izaak Waltons were out in force trekking to many fishing haunts of the district. While no outstanding records were made reports from various parts of the bay and county waters reveal some fairly good hauls were caught with one resident landing a fourteen pound salmon trout.

Vehicular traffic was fairly heaby in the city during the morning hours but tapered off in the afternoon to resume full volume at night as holiday-makers returned home. Police reports reveal that practically all drivers in and through the city drove carefully with not as much as a scraped fender being noted.

Some of the "boys around town" however gazed on the wine when it was tinged with scarlet and found themselves in the toils of the law with the conventional "ten and costs" being assessed.

The bay was flecked with the white sails of late summer yachting enthusiasts while an occasional speedboat roared down bay leaving a foaming ribbon of wake.

Municipal Band To Play Concert At Fairgrounds

The Municipal Band will give a varied concert of regimental and classical music at the fairgrounds ~~tonight~~. The director, Ross Hunter, has prepared a most interesting program and the public is invited to come out and enjoy this fine musical organization.

The program:
York Rangers Regimental March, "I'm 95."
March, "National Emblem," E. E. Badgley.
"Humoresque," A. Dvorak.
One Step, "At the Mississippi Cabaret," A. Gumkle.
Fox Trot, "Little Old Lady," H. Carmichael.
"Royal Air Force March Past," Sir Walford Davies.
"Serenaise Militaire," F. Chopin.
"Nonsense for Band," E. Reg. Chopin.
"Nonsense for Band, E. Reg. Hinchey.
Overture, "The Veteran," C. F. Thiele.
March, "The Voice of the Guns," Kenneth Alford.
God Save the King.

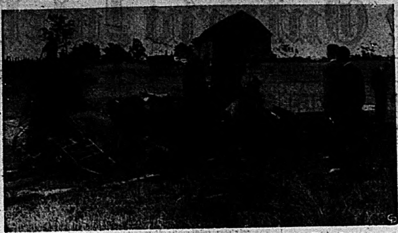
31-Pound 'Musky' Taken in Moira R.

Battling the large fish for nearly an hour with light tackle Floyd Morden, 47 Henry Street, landed a fine 31-pound "musky" in the Moira River near Chisholm's Mills on Labor Day.

Afraid that the struggle would break his line, Mr. Morden staged a crafty battle with the big fellow, finally landing him in the boat. The fish is the second lunge for Morden. A short while ago he hooked and landed one that tipped the scales at 14 pounds.

An unidentified angler landed a twenty-pound lunge in the bay in the vicinity of the bay bridge. Other fishermen report good catches of pike and bass in the regular bay haunts of these fish.

CANADIAN FLIER CRASHES TO DEATH BEFORE EYES OF PARENTS



Sqdn.-Leader Leo J. Taylor, veteran of 11 years' service with the R.C.A.F., crashed to his death on the family farm despite his father's efforts to rescue him. His widow and daughter live in Ottawa. The Taylor home at Derryville, near Cannington, Ont., can be seen in background of this view of the shattered Harvard trainer aircraft. The pilot's parents and brother were watching as the plane circled low, then suddenly dived to the ground. "No one can ever know what a shock it is to see your child die right before your eyes," the flier's grief-stricken mother said.

Registrations Normal in City Schools As Pupils Start Autumn Term

With summer holidays over but not forgotten, it was "back to school" this morning for hundreds of Belleville boys and girls as children answered school bells for the first time in two months.

Registration at all city schools was reported as being normal although heavy first day registrations were reported by some principals. Most school principals stated that their registrations would be larger as pupils late returning from their holidays returned to classes. Heavy kindergarten registration was reported in most of the public schools.

At the Collegiate approximately 750 pupils registered during Tuesday morning, a figure which was termed as being "average." Peak registration last year after all pupils had returned was slightly over 800, it was stated.

At St. Michael's Academy the registration was 502 with 79 of these being newcomers, while at St. Michael's High School there was a total registration of 75 pupils.

Heaviest registration in the city's public schools was at Queen Victoria where a total of 470 reported, including two kindergarten classes numbering 70 newcomers.

Next in line was Queen Alexandra where first morning registration was 465 with 70 newcomers also reporting here. At King George there were 373, including 45 beginners, while at Queen Mary there were also 373 registrations, including 45 newcomers.

Queen Mary registration is down this year as result of one class from this school being transferred to King George School. About 50 pupils are affected in the transfer, it was stated.

Mother of 12 Children and Daughter Are Married in Double Ceremony

Belleville, Sept. 3—Mrs. Maud E. Gaebel, widow of the late William Gaebel, was married yesterday morning to her late husband's brother, Louis Gaebel in a double ceremony in St. Paul's United Church, Bancroft, in which the minister, Rev. Robert McLauchlin, B.A., also married her daughter, Margaret to William Russell O'Leary of Toronto. Mrs. Gaebel is the mother of 12 children, 6 sons and 6 daughters, all of whom were present except one who is serving in the United States' army. Four of her sons served in the armed services. She entered the church on the arm of one of them, Captain Arnold Gaebel of Kingston, Ontario. The younger bride entered the church on the arm of a son of the elder groom.

The Gaebels are a pioneer family in the Bancroft area.

After the ceremony reception dinner was held in Bancroft Town Hall attended by about 75 guests.

Mammoth Parades Signal Labor Day

(By The Canadian Press)

Mammoth parades in principal cities, complete with floats and posters, sports and other activities featured Canadian labor's celebration of Labor Day yesterday. Thousands of workers marched in the parades at Toronto, Montreal, Quebec City and London, Ont.

At Toronto three thousand union men paraded in two rallies to demonstrate labor's solidarity. About 2,000 affiliated with the Canadian Congress of Labor marched a mile from Queen's Park to Riverside Park in Central Toronto while 1,000 American Federation of Labor supporters trudged three miles from Spadina Avenue to Sunnyside at the western city limits.

Slogans and banners carried by the C. C. L. paraders centred around the 40-hour week, the 10-cent maximum wage boost, inflation and the use of police to discipline picket lines.

More than 60 labor unions affiliated with the A.F.L. held their 52nd annual Labor Day parade at Montreal. The two-mile long procession was made in a sharp wind which cut down attendance. The festivities concluded with a giant picnic.

AUSSIE RAPS REDS

In an unprecedented attack on the Soviet Union, J. A. Beasley, of Australia, stood before the Paris peace conference and accused Russia of "lying, bullying, and thrusting its first down the throat of anyone" disagreeing with it. The verbal attack followed accusation by Red delegates that Australia was using delaying tactics.

Cop Walks in Behind Chinese Into Alleged Gambling Den

Toronto, Sept. 3—(CP)—Thirty-five persons found in an alleged Toronto gambling den didn't have a Chinaman's chance last night—when their Chinese lookout could not spot a city detective in a group of his own nationality who walked into the house.

Detective Walter Jarman said he "simply walked in behind a group of Chinese" to an alleged gaming house fronted by a grocery store in the downtown area. He arrested the inmates with the aid of another policeman, charging two with keeping a gaming house and the rest with being found in.

Tractor Plowing Demonstration Held

The tractor plowing demonstration, sponsored by the Hastings County Junior Farmers, held on Friday afternoon, was attended by about sixty Junior Farmers from the various Junior Farmer clubs in Hastings County.

Mr. Winfred Timbers of Stouffville, a former international champion for both horse and tractor plowing, very ably conducted the demonstration which took place on the farm of Mr. Carl Thompson, R. R. No. 1 Corbyville. Mr. Thompson's tractor and plow were used in the demonstration, as was also the equipment of Mr. Joe Bradden.

Mr. Timbers, as well as demonstrating the proper method of starting a crown, setting the plows and finishing, gave the boys many useful hints in the art of match plowing. He said that the most important matter was good equipment, the selection of the most suitable plow for the type of work to be undertaken and seeing that it is properly equipped. He also said that a straightener on the tractor is essential.

A large number of applications for the Hastings County Junior Farmers' Association Home Plowing Competition, which will be judged in late September, were received by Mr. H. L. Fair, Agricultural Representative for Hastings County, and Mr. H. W. Burns, Assistant Agricultural Representative.

Homage Paid To Archbishop At Toronto

Toronto, Aug. 31 (CP)—Clergymen and laymen of the Church of England paid homage today to Most Rev. Geoffrey Francis Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of All England, most recent recipient of an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from Trinity College.

The Archbishop, who arrived here yesterday and received his degree at a special convocation last night, attended by more than 500 leading clergymen and laymen, will remain in Toronto during the weekend and preach a special sermon Sunday.

When he received his degree this pipe-smoking head of the Anglican Communion throughout the world showed he is a man of humor. He had his audience rocking with laughter and astonished everyone with his boast that should he choose he could close up King's College, Halifax.

He said that a few days ago, when he received a similiar honor from King's he discovered that he was a patron of that college.

Great Sense of Power

"And as patron," he continued amid laughter, "it seems I can veto any resolution passed by the college authorities. Consequently I could veto them all and wipe the college out altogether. I confess it gives me a great sense of power."

As pro-chancellor of Trinity College, Rt. Rev. Derwyn T. Owetn, Archbishop and Primate of all Canada, conferred the degree on his ecclesiastical superior.

Earlier, in an interview the Archbishop pronounced himself a profound believer in the separation of the church and state — neither should dominate the other.

"Only by co-operation shall we get back to a more healthy international condition and find a true brotherhood of man," he said. "Our guiding rule must be abedlence to God and reverence for the law."

U.S. Meat Industry Braces Itself For New Ceilings

By STERLING F. GREEN

Washington, Aug. 31 (AP) — Office of Price Administration Controls will go off another batch of American farm and food products late today while the livestock industry makes the shift from free prices to new ceilings effective at midnight.

Following close upon O. P. A.'s announcement of the higher-than-June 30 livestock prices the agriculture department made ready to announce its first list of "agricultural commodities in short supply." All products not on the list automatically go off price control at once.

Indications are that certain canned goods will be decontrolled —O.P.A. already has removed ceilings from soup—and that fats, oils and sugar will be on the scarcity list.

Dairy products also will be listed in short supply, but this does not mean that ceilings will go back on milk and butter. These products are under jurisdiction of the three-man price decontrol board, which exempted them from ceiling Aug. 20.

The meat industry braced itself for the restoration of newly-announced livestock ceilings at midnight, packers' ceilings next Thursday and butcher shop ceilings Sept. 9.

The new ceilings peg beef cattle at $20.25 a hundred pounds at Chicago, compared with $18 on June 30. The hog ceiling will be $16.25 at Chicago, $1.40 more than the old price at most terminal markets. Packers' ceilings on choice and good grades of lamb will be $6.25 higher than the old $25 ceiling.

Police Report Two Accidents

Ernest Kenny, Trenton, miraculously escaped serious injury Friday afternoon when driving west on the Ameliasburg road two miles west of Rednersville his car went out of control and turned over several times. According to Provincial Constable Sam Ervine who investigated the accident the car went into a skid the driver then losing control of the vehicle. The car was badly damaged.

In a second highway accident occuring early Saturday morning seven miles west of Belleville on Highway No. 2 an eastbound car driven by a Corbyville resident was in collision with a westbound transport driven by William Bonin of Toronto. Considerable damages resulted to both vehicles but drivers escaped injury. The accident was investigated by Sam Ervine, highway traffic officer.

THANK YOU for waiting for delivery of your
NEW GENERAL MOTORS CAR

We are doing our best to see that you get your new car as quickly as possible

We want to thank every one of our customers—and every prospective customer as well—for the friendly patience with which you are awaiting your new General Motors car, whether it be a Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick or Cadillac.

That patience will be more than rewarded when we hand you the keys to one of these great new General Motors cars, for here, in our judgment are automobiles ahead of their time — far and away the best in each of their respective classes.

We know how difficult it is to wait even a day for a car of General Motors exceptionally fine quality; but we believe you will understand that we and General Motors are as eager to deliver cars as purchasers are to obtain them. Unfortunately, the cars produced so far this year are far fewer than we and the factory had counted on. General Motors headquarters at Oshawa sums up the situation thus:

> "Even though our rate of production normally exceeds that of any other manufacturer, we have been able to build, up to August 1, only a small percentage of the number of cars we built up to that date in 1941. Our own production, like that of the industry in general, is still far below normal, because of frequent shortages of essential materials and parts. Strike after strike at the plants of our suppliers has seriously impeded our progress toward full production, and the cumulative effect severely hampers both manufacturing and assembly."

While production is restricted, so — in proportion — are shipments of cars to us. As production increases, we are assured of getting our proportionate share of the total number of cars from the factory. But we want you to know that as quickly as these cars are received, we will speed deliveries to our customers.

We thank you, again, for your understanding and patience —confident that when your turn comes to enjoy the brilliant new standards achieved by the new General Motors cars, you will be thankful you waited.

GM-146X

Remember—Our CAR SERVICE is your best CAR-SAVER. Keep your present car in good condition until you get delivery of your new General Motors car, by bringing it to us for skilled service now and at regular intervals.

Campbell Loans
are Life Insured... $20 to $1000

INSURED LOANS

Here's the better, safer way to get ready cash. For your protection, Campbell Loans include Life Insurance to cover the unpaid loan balance. In case of death your family is thus relieved of all obligation for your loan. The complete balance is automatically paid off by the insurance company. Campbell Finance Corporation is the only loan company to provide this valuable protection. And there is NO EXTRA COST for this outstanding feature.

REDUCED RATES

Campbell loan costs are now at the lowest level in our history. Only a few examples are given here, of how practical it is to borrow at Campbell Finance. For details on any amount from $20 to $1000 phone or visit our nearest office. Remember, Life Insurance protection is included in all quotations. It costs you nothing extra. Private interview rooms are always available to allow the greatest freedom for discussion.

LONGER TERMS

For your greater convenience, Campbell Finance allow repayment terms up to 20 and 24 months... On loans $300 and up 20 months are allowed, and 24 months for loans $501 and up. This means that you can repay your loan in nominal monthly amounts on a soundly planned basis. With the high level of taxes and increased cost of living, longer Campbell terms are most helpful in systematic debt reduction. From our many repayment plans a qualified Campbell expert can help you to choose just the right one to fit your special needs.

4 LOAN PLANS

Campbell Finance provides a wider choice for borrowers with four different types of loans. Married couples can borrow money quickly without endorsers. Loans on your signature only (up to $100) are fast and simple to get. Also loans on various common types of security require no endorsers. From our four kinds of loans you can easily select a plan that will fill every requirement. Of all the people in Canada who borrow from licensed lenders, 1 out of every 4 uses Campbell Finance—specialists in personal loans for over 18 years.

Note of Confidence

Field Marshal Montgomery who made a conquest of the hearts of the people in Toronto on Saturday as he has done wherever he has gone in Canada so far during his tour, sounded a note of confidence in the future. He had just been awarded an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from the University of Toronto. "There are declared the future was ahead. "There are some who think that we have nothing to look forward to but another and more dreadful war. I don't agree," he said. "I agree that the problems in front of us are very great, indeed formidable, but those who are tackling them on our behalf are honest men and very able men and I am confident that all these problems will be solved in time. I would say there is no place today in the world for pessimism and despondency — no place at all. Let us all look forward to the future with confidence. In the British Commonwealth of Free Nations we can well afford to do so."

On leadership he said that by a leader "I mean rather the man who is able to dominate the events which surround him who will never let those events get the better of him." The leader must have the determination to achieve the objective, have the drive to get things done and must possess character to inspire confidence. On "discipline" he gave his own interpretation and said that he believed it underlies civilian life as well as military life and the basis of all discipline is self-discipline. Whether from within or without discipline implies self-control and self-restraint. "This conception of discipline underlies the whole of Christian teaching on personal conduct. . . . I maintain that discipline has a moral and social foundation and none of us need be afraid to admit it."

All training must begin at home and then be carried out in school. "All this is terribly important. We have in front of us a great opportunity. . . . We must look forward vision and immagination and see that our boys and younger men are trained for the great future that is there."

He stressed the necessity of training. "We aim at no more war," he said. "We pray it may never occur again. But this will not happen unless we train our youth to give their best to the country in peace as they did in war. . . . I suggest that it is the duty of all of us to devote what time we can to some form of youth training, all directed to one great object and that is to produce men of character who will be of real use to nations in the days that lie ahead. If we do this then I maintain we can look forward to the future with complete and absolute confidence."

Stoves, Furnaces and Pipes

The coming of September brings nearer the time when a little fire in the house will be necessary for comfort. With that comes the necessity of seeing that the heating apparatus is in good condition, the furnace and stope in good shape, the pipes and chimneys cleaned. It is not too early to get these matters settled so that when fire is needed there will not be any chances taken.

Fire records in these past few years have been very distressing. Everyone remembers the tragedies of last winter when the press carried stories of numerous fires which took a heavy toll of human life, many children among the victims and at the same time many persons in the full strength and possession of their powers and faculties.

It is to be hoped that future fall, winter and spring seasons will not repeat such holocausts.

Waste or refuse about a property should be destroyed lest it lead to a fire.

First Radar Controlled Port

Britain is about to have the first radar-controlled port in the world. Liverpool, the great city-port which handles a large part of the Anglo-American sea traffic, is erecting a radar control station that will be able to plot, at any second, the precise position of every ship within 30 miles. In all the seaways approaching the Liverpool Docks, pilots will be kept constantly informed of the position of every vessel in their vicinity. No matter what the weather, ships will be able to berth and set sail in perfect safety. In this way, millions of dollars will be saved every year since it costs an average cargo vessel anything from $800 to $2,000 when a tide is missed. When the idea is extended ot every country, it is expected to speed international traffic considerably; for several other great sea ports of the world—Rotterdam, London, San Francisco, and Southampton — all suffer from the delays of fog and mist. Captains of ships will be able to "come in on the radar beam" and dock safely even though they cannot see the water. New York, the busiest port in the world, will probably be able to speed up its night traffic.

Reception Centres for Hoboes

A new scheme is soon to be put into effect in the United Kingdom to deal with the country's fraternity of tramps, vagabonds and hoboes. Although vagrancy is not a serious problem in Britain at the present time, experience has proved that vagrancy usually increases after a war. Reception centres are to be established mostly in urban districts, where vagrants will be offered food and shelter. While they enjoy this hospitality, each will receive the specialized advice of a psychiatrist and be put through vocational guidance and aptitude tests to determine the type of work for which he is best suited. If a man is too old or too ill to accept employment, arrangements will be made to have him admitted to a home, hospital or institution. The number of these centres will be small to begin with, but should vagrancy increase more rapidly than expected, a complete network will be set up all over the country with the possible addition of reconditioning hostels.

Summer Rain on the Farm

The farmer makes a distinction when it comes to rain. A gentle shower that merely washes the coated dust from the roadside berries is not classified as rain. Nor is the slightly more ambitious drizzle that makes a gaudy show on the grass and in the palms of the greedy leaves. No, to count as rain it must go on a day and a night.

Tourists caught by the rain may grumble a bit, but snapping fires in the lobbies of hotels and camps will largely appease them. And the rain does not drive the farmer entirely indoors, although many a one will catch up on the news in piles of papers he has not had time for hitherto. He will spend more time at the radio; he will become conscious of the pending primaries, and his opinions will have time to shape themselves.

Confining? Not too much so. He is in and out of doors, welcoming the lash of the rain on his face. He will plow through bushes in the pastures saturated with water to bring home the bathed, sleek cows. He will sharpen his tools in the barn, and loaf a bit at the station or the grocery store, knowing that rain is gilt-edged security for his meagre investment.

Newspaper Facts

The morale building qualities of the daily newspapers during the Blitz was illustrated when the Southampton Echo appeared on the street while air raid fires were still burning and was greeted by the firemen with shouts of 'Good Old Echo!'

The city of Nuernberg has sent in a bill to the Allied authorities for four thaler, nine pfennig, the expense being for burial of one Robert Ley who committed suicide on the premises by hanging, says St. Catharines Standard. The bill may be contested. It is possible they will want to know what the nine cents was for.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

LITTLE DREAMER

Curious little fellow, wonder what you think
Standing there and staring; eyes that never blink.
What is it you're dreaming? What is it you see—
That your mind has captured? Tell it all to me.

Curious little fellow, years and years ago,
Oft your doting daddy stood enraptured so;
Gazed into the distance, caught within a spell,
But just what he visioned he would never tell.

Curious little fellow, nearly eight years old,
Having dreams and fancies never to be told;
Now your grandpa asks you what it is you see,
But you keep your secrets hidden deep from me.

Some day in the future, child of yours may stare
Just as you, out yonder, seeing splendors there.
Often you will ask him where his fancies dwell—
Then you'll learn that's something children never tell.

Detroit Fishermen, Downed in Plane, Found Uninjured

Blind River, Sept. 3 —(CP)— Five Detroit fishermen were back at Algoma Inn today, none the worse for two nights in the open, after a Provincial Air Service aircraft discovered their damaged Grumman Widgeon amphibian at Qurk Lake, 10 miles west of here.

The aircraft owned by Fred Johnson of Detroit, was damaged in a heavy landing as pilot Douglas Bell, 23, a veteran of the United tates Army Air Force, attempted to land on the choppy waters of the lake. Search planes combed the heavily wooded area along Lake Huron's north shore Sunday until heavy winds and darkness brough a halt to the seach.

Tow Woodside, of the Ontario Game and Fisheries Department, spotted the aircraft early yesterday and a second plane was summoned to bring back the rest of the party which included Johnson's three nephews, Gunnar Johansen, 25, Ivan Johansen, 21, and Stanley Hoeberg, 16.

The amphibian left Algoma Mills, 10 miles east of here, Saturday afternoon on a short fishing jaunt. They stopped at Quirk Lake to fish then decided to try another corner of the lake. As the plane touched down for the second landing it water-looped and buried its nose in the water.

The pontoons began to take water and when the plane was finally beached they discovered the pontoons were almost torn off. The party slept on the beach Saturday night when the temperature fell to almost freezing.

All day Sunday planes from Sault Ste. Marie scoured the area without success. The five men built signal fires and heard two aircraft pass above them but high winds dispersed the smoke. They tried to taxi the plane again this morning and Woodside's rescue plane arrived just as the floats were beginning to fill with water.

Airing of Views On Russia Grows With Passing Time

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst

Russia's direct-action tactics in her post-war dealings with the Western Allies have produced a powerful though wholly unforeseen flareback.

From the moment that the Soviet Union joined battle with the Axis, the United Nations dropped all open expressions of hostility to the Communism which always had been a fearsome philosophy to adherents of western democracy. Russia was an ally, and nothing was to be said or done which would weaken the bond that held the United Nations together in the life or death struggle.

Then came the Red direct-action, which was registered not only in Moscow's unilateral methods of expanding the Soviet zones of influence, but in the Allied conferences. The meetings of the Foreign Ministers, the United Nations Security Council and the Paris Peace Conference have been turned into bedlam.

The public reaction in the western democracies at first was one of amazement. This gave way to dismay and, shortly, to resentment and then anger. At the outset the anger smoldered, but recently it has broken into full flame. The result is that there is a constantly increasing volume of criticism directed at Soviet tactics and at Communism itself. For example:

The weekend brought the two-fisted statement from Gen. MacArthur that Allied leadership in Japan "must adhere unerringly to the course now charted," staving off "regimentation under the extreme, radical left." This is a reminder that not long ago the United States State Department endorsed a declaration by its ranking diplomat at Tokyo — George Atcheson, Jr.—that Americans do not favor Communism in either the United States or Japan.

The weekend also brought a sensational statement from the six members of the military committee of the United States House of Representatives who have been touring American bases in the Pacific. They expressed grave concern over Russia's intentions, and over the "imminent danger of another Pearl Harbor."

So the criticism of Russia runs, and swells with passing time. Distinguished speakers and writers are voicing their views of Communism openly and bluntly.

Some close observers believe all this airing of views may have the effect of clearing the atmosphere in the long run. It may convince Russia that direct action won't gather any cherries in the Allied orchard. It might even persuade Moscow to change its tactics.

MEXICAN EXPORTS GROW

Mexico City, Sept. 3—(AP) — The Canadian Embassy announced yesterday that Mexican exports to Canada in the first half of 1946 were 200,000,000 pesos ($40,000,000) greater than in the corresponding 1945 period, and that Mexico has jumped from 41st in 1939 to fifth place among countries exporting to Canada. Mexican coffee was exported to Canada for the first time this year.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

A BREEZE FROM BOSTON

From the eminence of his 80th anniversary—attained, I believe, largely because of his intelligence and wisdom — my friend W.B.S., whom I have never met, tells me that Butcher's "My Three Years with Eisenhower," records that "Ike" took cold many times after exposure to wet and cold, and of course everybody knows, friend S. remarks, that Eisenhower is an old softy and his "colds" were purely imaginary. Then W. B. S. urges that I (Brady) abate that line of ex cathedra cocksureness....that my readers are weary of such everlasting iteration and reiteration.

That is putting it mildly, isn't it, folks? Well, I can dish it out, and I can take it. Believe it or not I still have a few good friends in the medical and dental professions, and these good friends never hesitate to tell me when they believe I am wrong. Indeed, I am indebted to the unvarnished criticism of these good friends for the best ideas in this column.

As for "Ike" and his "colds" — what the soldier says is not evidence. The alleged "colds" of Mrs. Sumsey or Ben Told weigh as much as anything Major Butcher tells about the General.

From Boston comes a newspaper clipping which bears the date of June 29, '46, telling how a Harvard professor summed up all the evidence and the results of his own research in respect to everyday exposure to cold, dampness, drafts, by uttering one word.

The word—I have it right here as plain as can be—the word is —wait just a second—I must have another look. I'd hate to work myself out on a limb about this.

Yes, yes, here it is and I quote: "Dr. Drinker, dean of Harvard Public Health School summed up all the evidence and the results of his own research and said 'Bosh'. Dr. Drinker goes even beyond the statement of Dr. Vlato Getting, State Health Commissioner, who says it is all right to sit in the full blast of an electric fan. Dr. Drinker says you can sit out in a snowbank wearing only a pair of shorts, and you won't catch cold...."

After this I should not be astonished if some health authority were to drop that misleading and dangerous word "cold" altogether from his vocabulary and call it cri.

Questions and Answers

On The Mat

You stated your willingness to go to the mat on the question of hernia treatment with any physician of standing. My physician, from the (well advertised) clinic, tells me the injection treatment is very dangerous because.... now how about that? (F. A. W.)

Answer—I'll take all comers — but they must come onto the mat themselves, not by proxy. My opinion and advice about hernia treatment will be found in the pamphlet on Hernia, available on written request if you inclose stamped self addressed envelope. Here I assure you that the ambuland or injection treatment is at least as safe as radical operation, provided you choose a qualified physician and not a quack.

Where can I have my son, 7, tested to learn whether he is left-handed. He showed an inclination to use left hand before entering kindergarten, then had to use right hand for writing, eating, etc., but not for play, and he began to stammer. (Mrs. G. A. H.)

Answer—Whether he was forced to use the right hand for writing etc., or whether he did so just to be like the other children, any such change from natural left-handedness to artificial right-handedness predisposes the child to stuttering, stammering or other impediment of speech and behavior. Handedness is an effect of eyedness—oculist can test the child with manuscope to determine whether he is right-eyed or left-eyed-that is, whether he sights with right or left eye. My advice in any case of natural lefthandedness is not interference by teacher, parent or any one else. Investigators of the question estimate that one child in every twenty-five is naturally left-handed.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is the Devils Tower?

The Devils Tower is a remarkable tower-like mass of igneous rock on the bank of the Belle Fourche River at Sundance in the extreme northeastern county of Wyoming about 25 or 30 miles east of Moorcroft.

The tower proper is about 380 feet in diameter and rises about 600 feet above the larger platform-like base of buff sandstone, which in turn rises 600 feet above the river and which is some 1700 feet in diameter.

It has been described as a "volcanic plug" and is an exceptionally fine example of the prismatic structure that igneous rocks sometimes assume in cooling. The sides of the tower are fluted by great columns that flare out at the base and round in toward the top. Most of these columns, which are five or six feet in diameter, are pentagonal in shape, although some of them are four- or six-sided. The entire mass measures more than a mile around the base.

Comparable in beauty to the Giants' Causeway in Northern Ireland and the Hudson Palisades in New York, the whole gives the appearance of an immense bundle of perpendicular pillars held together by an invisibel cord. To some observers it looks like a gigantic tree trunk in the distance. The only vegetation on the table, which is about 100 by 300 feet in area, i scrub brush growing in th crevices of the rock, and the onl animal life consists of rats, mic and chipmunks.

The Devils Tower was the firs natural structure in the Unite States to be taken over by th Federal Government, the initia protection having been extende September 24, 1906. Similar protection was extended to Montezuma Castle in Arizona Decembe 8 of the same year. On October 1915, President Wilson issued a executive order converting abou 1,152 acres around the Devil Tower into what is technicall known as a "national monument."

A local rancher named Wi Rogers climbed to the top c Devils Tower July 4, 1893, and i believed to have been the fir white man to do so. In Octobe 1941, after some 40 persons ha climbed to the top of the towe George Hopkins, of San Antonic Tex., parachuted onto it from a airplane as a publicity stunt an to win a $50 bet. The daredev parachuter found that he coul not get down from the col wind-swept table. It was nece sary to drop him food, blanke and a tent from an airplane t prevent him from freezing t death. He had been on the towe 130 hours when he was final rescued by a crew of experience mountain climbers who got hi down with a ladder of ste spikes.

Greek King Will Return to Country In Three Weeks

By TOM WILLIAMS

London, Sept. 3 (AP)— King George II of Greece, described by a confidant as "a very happy man" today, intends to return to Athens in two or three weeks, a government spokesman said, thus ending his second exile since 1924.

The returns from Sunday's plebiscite on the monarch's return to his throne were still running at better than two to one for King George and dispatches from Paris said Premier Constantine Tsaldaris of Greece, now attending the peace conference, might confer with the King today or tomorrow.

The influential Times viewed the results of the plebiscite as a signal for the withdrawal of British guardianship and the assumption by the Greek government of full responsibility for the peace and welfare of the country.

The Daily Telegraph, Conservative, called the result of the Balloting a rebuff to Russia and Communist "autocracy."

"Whatever was the calculation," the Telegraph said, "the recent outburst of (Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov) and (Ukrainian Foreign Minister Dmitri) Manuilsky evidently have not had the effect of lessening the traditional Greek love of independence."

The Communist Daily Worker commented, on the other hand, that Greece was "no longer an independent country—it is a British colony."

And as King George prepared to end his five years of exile, the Admiralty announced that a British battle fleet would follow a United States naval force into the waters off Greece about Sept. 18. But the British fleet will approach much nearer to the diplomatic sore spot of the Dardanelles than the United States force.

The American fleet's visit to Greece has been the subject of much hot language by Russian diplomats and the Soviet press.

Three Killed In Car Crash Near Kingston

(By The Canadian Press)

Twenty-seven persons lost their lives in accidents in eastern Canada during the Labor Day weekend, 15 of them in car accidents, five by drowning and two in an airplane crash.

Nineteen fatalities occurred in Ontario, where the most serious accident was an automobile crash near Crosby, 30 miles northeast of Kingston. It claimed the lives of Morley MacNish, 67, Mrs. Bertha Avery, 20, and Mrs. Isabel Mills, 70. all of Toronto.

Frank Goulais, 56, whose home was near Sudbury, was struck by a car and killed as he walked along a highway. At Willowdale, four-year-old Jimmy Rissling plunged to his death when he toppled over a cliff.

Four persons—William Troke, 75; Archibald McCallum, 80; Joseph Litnay, 17, and Beverly Marshall were killed in car accidents in Toronto and vicinity. George Flavella, 18, was killed in Hamilton when thrown from his bicycle in a collision with a car.

In the Windsor area, Mrs. Geo. McMurray, 46, Windsor, and Lucien Ouellette, 37, Detroit, died of auto accident injuries. Harold Morley, 33, was killed in a rockfall in a mine near Sudbury. At Simcoe, Miss Thelma Beamer, 24, was fatally injured when struck by a car. Barbara Packard, 18, of Kenmore, N.Y., drowned near Port Colborne and M. Brubasher, two, drowned in a small spring near kitchener.

Struck by car

Miss Mary Gray, 60, struck by a car near Ottawa, died soon afterwards. At North Bay, Jacob Leroy, 28, died from injuries suffered when a revolver he was cleaning accidentally discharged. At Niagara Falls, firemen dragged for the body of L.-Cpl. William Paul, 34, Timmins, drowned there Sunday.

Quebec fatalities were Arthur Ginsburg, 20, New York, drowned Sunday when a canoe overturned on Baskatong Lake, 35 miles north of Maniwaki; James Bowen, 60, whose body was taken from Lachine Canal near Montreal, and Joseph Gosselin, 32, killed in a hunting accident at St. Redempteur.

At Moncton, N.B., Herbert E. Jones and Donald E. Malloy, Trans Airlines Pilots and former R.C.A.F. members, were killed in a plane crash.

At Charlo Falls, N.B., Edward Mazerolle, 33, was drowned when he fell from a rock while fishing. At Glace Bay, N.S., Floyd Hayden, was killed when he jumped from a speeding automobile, and at North Sydney, N.S., Leonard Jesty, 20-month-old baby was instantly killed when run over by his father's car as it backed out of a driveway.

Large Grey Hawk Shot at Deloro

Marmora—A large grey hawk which had a wing spread of forty inches fell to the good markmanship of James Cross, returned soldier, as the bird was about to reduce the number of Fred Matthews' chickens at Deloro a few days ago. It was only a few minutes later that a fox was spotted hanging around the same pen but this time the shotgun was not used. "I will get him later on," said Cross. "His pelt will bring me more then."

GROMYKO — DEAD PAN AND LAUGHING BOY

Spectators at the U. N. conferences, newsreel audiences and news paper readers throughout the country have become so thoroughly familiar with the dead-pan, poker-faced expression masking Andrei Gromyko, youthful chairman of the Russian delegation to U.N., that it is difficult to believe he is capable of revealing any emotion other than unchanging glumness. But another side of the representative of Joe Stalin's Soviet Union emerged when a photographer visited him at his home. For there, while reading the comic section of a newspaper, he broke out into a broad, not unphotogenic smile, shown in the photograph at RIGHT. The LEFT photograph shows Gromyko sphinx-like at an early meeting of the U. N. which opened again.

Four Ringleaders Attempted Break Are Recaptured

Windsor, Sept. 3—(CP) — Fast police action, led by jail governor John M. Robinson, blocked a Labor Day escape attempt from Essex county jail and ended in recapture of four ringleaders in a tunnel used for travel between the jail and the courthouse.

Principals overpowered by police were Fred Thibeault, 30, sentenced to 22 years in Kingston penitentiary for armed robbery, auto theft and escape from custody; Morley Card, 28, facing a 10-year term for a hold-up; John Zero, 26, facing trial on a bank robbery charge; and Grant Farnol, 25, awaiting trial on two charges of armed robbery.

Thibeault recently had been involved in a jailbreak with the Burns brothers, notorious border bandits, and had been recaptured at Tillsonburg.

The men, apparently having chosen Labor Day in the hope only meagre reinforcements for the jail staff would be available, started by bludgeoning turnkey Phillip Lemieux with socks loaded with soap and sand.

They fell on Lemieux as he was putting Zero back in his cell and when another guard, Albert Brown, tried to aid, he also was overpowered. Then the quartet rushed downstairs to the tunnel but word had already gone out on the police radio and within 10 minutes of the first call 30 officers swarmed into the Sandwich Street prison.

In the underground tunnel, the men smashed through a steel door and leaped up another flight of stairs to the final door to freedom when the police arrived in force.

Police said the jail governor stationed himself with seven officers on the other side of the door and, when his demand to the men to come out "with your hands up" was answered only by opening of the door and the throwing of a machinist's hammer, he shot through the door as it closed.

The four men then retreated back down the tunnel and surrendered a few minutes later in the prison laundry.

TELEPHONE CALLS and Junior have a lot in common... both have grown at a breath-taking pace. And a switchboard is even harder to get than a new suit for Junior. That, in brief, is why the operator is often unable to answer you promptly.

Equipment is being added just as fast as the supply situation will permit. But complicated things like switchboards take time to build and install, even when you're as impatient as we are to restore telephone service to peak efficiency. And that means once again giving you instant service on every call you make.

Are You the Talkative Type?

Lovely Dinah Shore's throaty voice is music to alll who hear her.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WOMEN who keep up a continual flow of gab will never gain a reputation as charmers. To them life is a talkie and they must ever play the leading role. How they stand the strain nobody knows. The listeners are the ones who suffer.

We all know the hostess who is the show-off at her own dinner party. Feeling that it is her duty to be entertaining, she relates one anecdote after another. A guest may endeavor to contribute his or her five cents' worth of conversation, but soon gives up.

Perfect Hostess

That is not according to social Hoyle. The perfect hostess leads the guests on, directs dinner table talk, keeps it interesting.

Braggers are great chatterers. They love to tell their family history, the great achievements of their ancestors and living relatives. They never suspect that these are subjects of no interest to the listener. They brag about their children, what wonderful marks they get at school.

Of course, their dogs are the smartest. Well, they have fun, or they wouldn't do it. But their friends do not flock around them. They are not sought after when a party is given. You'd think they would get wise to themselves, wouldn't you?

There is the "me too" baby. Tell her you have a headache and she'll tell about hers, not only that but she will describe in detail every illness she ever had. A tiresome topic—ill health.

Not Confined to Age

Talkativeness isn't confined to any age. There are kids who jabber incessantly. There are teenage girls who break all records for telephone confidences. There are some men who monopolize the conversation, dwelling on thir pet subjects in which other individuals may not be interested.

Says a dear old girl of seventy, "I enjoy old age. It is restful. I let other people do the talking, don't have to exert myself to be entertaining. When my children have guests in the evening I excuse myself, take my mystery story and go to bed, I don't have to talk, I don't have to listen."

C.G.I.T. Camp At Moira Lake

The Canadian Girls in Training camp conducted at Moira Lake last month with an attehdance of 63 girls and leaders was directed by Miss Shirley Hendry of Brockville.

The director was assisted by the following leaders.—Mrs. Mabel Hayton Foxboro, business manager; Mrs. Wanda Sine, Foxboro, camp mother and assistant business manager; Miss Helen Beattie, Peterborough, nurse; Miss Ellen Brown, swimming and sports; Miss Doris Broad, B.A., Madoc, Bible study and dramatics; Miss Margaret Hillis, Belleville, musical director and song leader; Miss Marguerite Armstrong, Stirling, Bible study and art; Miss Wilhemina Huffman, Corbyville, Bible study and sketching; Miss Fay Fleming, Madoc, Bible study; Miss Dorisl Badgley, Tweed, camp craft; Miss Norma Dempsey, Trenton, handicraft; and Miss Edna Moore Belleville, librarian.

Day's Activities

The camp afforded ideal opportunity for the development of the four-fold life as evidenced by a glance at the daily time-table.

Rising whistle —7 A.M.

Salutation of the dawn.

Morning dip, flag raising, camp hymn and morning watch. breakfast, camp tidying and inspection, morning worship, Bible study, free time, council hour, swim, dinner, singing, tuck, rest hour interest groups, swimmiing, supper, games, camp fire, Devotion, taps, lights out.

On Sunday, which was visitors day, the girls entertained parents and friends, many of whom remained for picnic supper and joined the campers in their sunset service and antiphonal singing from the hills above the camp. Other visitors at camp were Miss Margaret Parker who is here from England on a mission for UNRRA, Miss Parker is a grade-school teacher and had much of interest to tell the girls about schools and conditions in England, Miss Harrison, a former leader at the Moira camp who presented the girls with a treat of fresh fruit; Miss Margaret Donaldson and Miss Mary Huff who had just returned from a C.G.I.T. camp in western Ontario and who contributed to camp fire service.

Mr. Joe Shortt who had dinner with the girls on their last day at camp told them of the development of their present camp site from the time it was started about seventeen years ago when all water was carried from the lake up the hill to the cook house and when oil lamps were used to the present fine buildings with electricity, refrigeration and a fine well at the kitchen door.

Interesting activities during the camp period were shore breakfast and worship on the south shore of the lake, an overnight hike, a drama evening, a sports marathon, an old time barn dance with costumes. Swimming contests were held for which life saving and other medals were awarded.

Tweed Girl Chief Camper

The high distinction of chief camper was awarded to Mary Ellen Farrar of Tweed. Helen Naylor celebrated her birthday while at camp and was presented with a beautifully decorated cake with 13 candles. The highly efficient camp cook, Mr. Govlean, made and decorated the cake.

The closing service at camp was held Friday evenng and took the form of a most impressive candle lighting service. A winding pathway of light was formed from recreation hall to lake shore as all campers with lighted candles and led by the leaders with tall lighted tapers wended their way over the familiar paths of the camp's activities singing "The Holy Gail." As each group arrived at its own cabin a friendship circle was formed and upon the clear night air rang out from each little lighted group the sweet sound of "Taps" and "Thanks Comrade for the Day," and amid fond recollections of vespers, camp fires, good stories, and happy songs the girls said goodbye until another year at Moira Lake camp.

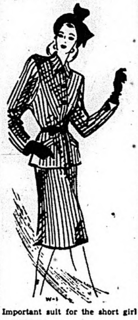
THERE are plenty of interesting hat and shoe styles for Fall wear, and the hat depicted nere is a new version of that old favorite, the pork-pie casual. This one is a gray felt with a wide brown grosgrain hand. Deep dark brown suede is used for the neat street shoe, with medium heel and welt sole. The covered suede buckle is detailed with bright green leather stitching. The dress-up pump, to wear with afternoon dresses or a "date" get-up, is of inky black suede with satin platforms.

Smart Suit



Important suit for the short girl

STRIPES, always smart and fashion-wise, are used every which way in this suit of men's wear worsted, designed with an eye to the 5' 5" girl. Slanting stripes make a V-shaped front yoke, and horizontal stripes define the pockets. The front closing is on a vertical stripe centre band, and the skirt is narrow and gored. The worsted is brown with a pale blue stripe, a good color combination, since it is not hackneyed.

The Experts Say

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 30 —(CP)— Some years ago tomatoes lost their social position and were considered harmful for human consumption after they had progressed slowly up from the status of a household decoration. But this was all before biochemists discovered they were fairly popping with vitamin C and boosted them up the ladder of popularity again. Now they are here to stay.

As long as tomatoes are in season they appear on most tables and can be enjoyed at two meals a day. When canned they still take their place on winter menus.

They are easy to can but the Agriculture Department home economists say it is important to use recommended methods to assure that as much as possible of the food value is retained and also to be sure the tomatoes keep well until needed.

There are two methods suggested. If whole tomatoes are desired the first is best but for general use the secod method is quick, easy and gives excellent results.

The first method is cold pack for whole tomatoes: blanch, remove stem and peel tomatoes. Pack in clean sealers, add one teaspoon of salt to each quart sealer. Cover with boiling hot tomato juice. Ajust rubber ring and top. With screw top sealers screw tightly, then loosen slightly unscrewing not more than one inch. With spring top sealers the top ball into place but do not spring down the lower one. With vaccuum-type sealers screw the band tightly or put the metal clamp in place.

Process pints 30 minutes in the water bath or 35 minutes in the oven.

For quart sealers allow 35 minutes in the water bath or 45 minutes in the oven.

The second method is the cold pack for tomatoes: Blanch, remove stem and peel tomatoes. Cut large tomatoes in quarters or leave small ones whole, pack, pressing down until the juice covers the tomatoes. Add 1-2 teaspoon of salt to each pint or one teaspoon to quart sealer.

Adjust the rings and top. With screw top sealers screw tightly, then loosen slightly unscrewing not more than one inch. With spring top sealers spring the top ball into place but do not spring down the lower one. With vaccuum type sealers screw the band tightly or put the metal clamp in place.

Process pints for 35 minutes or quarts for 40 minutes in the water bath.

Porcelain enamelware and glass kitchen utensils respond better to cleaning if no abrasives are used and they are washed in soap and water or soapless suds. Since food prepared in enamel catches on readily, watch the pot. If a disaster does occur soak the untinsil and then use a soapless sud or a mild scouring powder. A bad burn is apt to leave a permanent brown stain.

STALIN IGNORES ALLIES

London, Sept. 3—(CP)—Prime Minister Stalin in an order marking VJ-Day, hailed the Soviet Union today for "victoriously concluding the war against Imperialistic Japan," but ignored the part the western allies played in the conflict. His order of the day, broadcast by Moscow radio, said Russia's armed forces had made "a tremendous contribution to the cause of achieving peace throughout the world."

Sparkle Costume Jewelry

By PRUNELLA WOOD

HANDSOME new costume jewelry set in gold-plated sterling silver, with brilliants, has something the same precious effect as very old paste, or rose diamonds.

Here we have three pieces of the type modelled on a pretty girl in dinner dress. The jewelry is just as effective and appropriate with daytime frocks.

The earrings are button shaped, showing off the raised settings used for all these designs. The bracelet is set with the motifs, the rings. . . well, they aren't rings at all, but hoop earrings which may be worn on the lobes or on the fingers, as photographed. Good costume jewelry tends more and more to look like the real stuff.

NATIONAL LOOP BECOMING BATTLE OF THE BULLPENS

Al Brazle Latest Relief Ace for Cards, Wins Two Games for Club in Day

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

National League fans long may remember the 1946 pennant race as the "Battle of the bullpens" with manager Eddie Dyer of St. Louis uncovering Al Brazle as his latest relief ace to match Leo Durocher's crew of firemen.

The lean lefthander's greatest day of the season came yesterday when he received credit for both ends of a double win over Cincinnati 6-4 and 8-7, although he, too, needed help from the bullpen in the late stages of the second game.

The twin victories re-established the Cards' lead at 2½ games because Brooklyn, after winning the opener from the Phillies, 5-2, ran afoul of Oscar Judd's left arm and dropped the 3-2 finale. Judd, a native of Ingersoll, Ont., gave up seven hits in earning his 9th victory of the season.

Walker Cooper was the big noise for New York Giants in their eight-run seventh inning that earned an 8-3 edge and an even break with Boston, which had won the opener 6-2. Cooper spoiled brother Mort's shutout bid in the first tilt with a two-run double. It was the first time he had appeared against his brother since they left St. Louis.

Swap Decisions

Pittsburgh and Chicago swapped decisions, the Pirates grabbing a 4-1 opener for rookie Edson Bahr. The veteran Russ Bauers, a former Pirate, earned his first victory of the season on a 7-3 job for the Cubs in the second.

New York's largest crowd of the season 73,551 paid, watched Boston sweep both games from New York Yankees 5-2 and 3-1, moving the Sox toward a mathematical flag clinching with a 15½-game lead.

Bob Newsom thoroughly enjoyed himself on the holiday afternoon by trimming his old Philadelphia mates for a Washington 5-2 win. Jess Flores, one of the better hurlers in the league for the last month, earned his fifth straight victory 7-1 for an even break.

Hank Greenberg's two-run homer provided the scoring punch for Detroit's 2-1 edge over Chicago in the first half of a double. Frank Papish outpitched Al Benton to square matters 6-2.

St. Louis thumped Cleveland 9-2, on an eight-run spurt in the eighth inning of the opener and the teams played 13 innings to a 2-2 deadlock before darkness forced the second game to be called.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Al Brazle and Enos Slaughter, Cardinals: Brazle saved both games for St. Louis against Cincinnati, 6-4 and 8-7, with relief pitching; Slaughter's two-run home won opener, his two home runs decided finale.

Carl Furillo, Dodgers, and Oscar Judd, Phillies: Furillo's three hits, including two-run homer sparked Brooklyn to 5-2 win; Judd stopped Dodgers in second, scoring winning run of 3-2 margin.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

On the recommendation of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, the International Ice Hockey Federation in session at Zurich, Switzerland, made revisions of game rules similar to those in vogue in the Dominion. The Congress decided on a standard game of three 20-minute periods, the use of three forward lines and a team limit of 12 players. The Federation accepted the membership of a new International Hockey Association.

Representatives of 14 countries attended the conference, including Hanson Dowell of Middleton, N.S., president of the C.A.H.A. The meeting decided to stage the next international championships at London in March.

Taking the lead against Sussex yesterday, Lancashire looked to be headed for second place in the English county cricket championship race which has already been won by Yorkshire. The Lancashire-Sussex match is finishing today.

Thomas E. McWilliams, star halfback of the U. S. Army football team, is expected to submit his resignation today from West Point Military Academy as a result of the controversy over his gridiron services by the cadets and Mississippi State College.

Before a Labor Day crowd of 54,000 fans at Washington Park, Chicago, Warren Wright's Armed captured the $57,400 Washington Park Handicap, with Challenge Me second and Honeymoon back in fifth place. Armed went to the post a 4-5 favorite. His earnings total $382,175.

Famed in Davis Cup and Wimbledon tennis competition before the war, Baron Gottfried Von Cramm of Germany has returned to the court. He reached the finals yesterday in the Hamburg championships.

After a see-saw race between the two clubs practically all summer, Jamestown and Batavia, both of New York State, wound up tied for first place when the scheduled season closed yesterday. The teams will have a play-off game tomorrow.

Grand Circuit racing opened yesterday at the Indiana State Fair, Indianapolis, with a three-heat victory by Algiers in the $4,000 2:04 bar trot, his time for the second dash being 2:02¼. Max Napoleon won the past feature by taking two of three heats of the 2:20 event for a $1,500 purse.

King Nawahi, a 48-year-old blind Hawaiian, last night completed a choppy, 22-mile swim from Catalina Island to California mainland in 22 hours and 20 minutes. He was led by the tinkle of a bell on his pilot boat. The time was nearly seven hours slower than George Young's 1927 record of 15 hours, 48 minutes.

One Pigeon Finishes Chatham-Trenton Race

The Trenton and District Racing Pigeon Club flew their scheduled race from Chatham, Sunday, the 25th of August, an airline distance of 261 miles. The weather was good until the middle of the afternoon when occasional showers hampered the progress of the birds and no doubt was the cause of a few losses.

The birds were released at 7 a.m. and the first and only bird was reported in by Ross Newton at 5.03½ with a speed of 762.26 yards per minute. It is hoped that birds not reported will come in the early part of the week so that the 360 mile Les Farrell Young Bird Trophy Race will have as large an entry as possible.

The racing season has been a tough one, with 75 birds starting the race program from Oshawa, only 7 birds have survived and a few of these were withdrawn aftere some hard flights.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.)

New York, Sept. 3—(AP)—One of the cannierand more articulate golf pros (okay, its George Corcoran) picks Frank Stanahan to win the amateur championship at Baltusrol next week... George's reason is that Stranahan is the only present day amateur who puts in enough practice time ..."It was nothing," says Corcoran, "for Bobby Jones to spend six hours in one sand trap (we quit golf when we couldn't get out of one in two hours) ...and when Lawson Little won the British Amateur, he went over six weeks in advance and practiced hitting against heavy gales that prevail on seaside shores. Francis Ouimit would walk over a course two or three times and study it like a mariner would study his chart and Jerry Travers, the greatest putter of all time, would don a raincoat and putt for hours in a pouring rain to get the feel of the greens."

Why not?

GUY LOMBARDO WINS GOLD CUP

Detroit, Sept. 3—(AP) — Guy Lombardo, winner of the 1946 Gold Cup Race, symbolic of the North American speedboat championship, said today it was quite possible he would defend the title here on the Detroit River in 1947.

While the Canadian-born bandleader was racing his Tempo VI under the colors of the South Shore Yacht Club of Freeport, L.I.,—and the winning club is entitled to stage the following year's race — Lombardo said that he doubted if satisfactory water could be found along Long Island for a suitable course for a 1947 renewal.

"I'll be back here in 1947 if my own club can't provide a sheltered course," Lombardo said.

Recently a well-fed looking gentleman who has been twisting and tugging his way through the grunt and groan game since the early '30s paid one of his regular visits to this city to enact one of the leading roles in a performance of "rasslin."

His name is Emil Dusek, smallest member of the famous four Dusek brothers—weighs only 215 pounds.

Before an audience of a few thousand, Emil played his part with little prompting—a part he's played thousands of times in the last 15 years.

It went like this: Ram opponent head first into post, taking advantage of added dizziness to win first fall with body slam; drop second fall by being on the wrong end of an Irish whip; grab ropes while opponent tugs leg, then let go suddenly, toppling over on opponent to win deciding fall.

Old stuff—but the fans loved it. They must because they keep coming back to see the same play each week.

Undoubtedly there's a psychological explanation for what attracts the crowds—maybe meat rationing. But far be it from the mat promoters to look for a hidden reason. They're satisfied to stand by and watch the millions roll in each year.

That's the way it is in the game today. But once upon a time wrestling was an exhibition of skill and brawn. The paying folk lost interest, however, until a football player by the name of Gus Sonneberg came up with the flying tackle.

Interest grew and with it developed such ungentlemanly tricks as hair-pulling, eye-gouging, punching and kicking.

Contestants grew more bloodthirsty each outing while promoters hunted for bigger and fatter game. The latter search reached its apex with the blimp, 800-pound find. He fizzled, however, because he was too slow afoot, and it was a practical impossibility for him to squeeze into a lower berth.

To add more color to the game, the number of world's champions was steadily increased until now there's a king on almost every main wrestling circuit.

Toronto Seniors Defeat Local All-stars in Benefit Game For Leo Goyer by 9-6 Count

Over $200 Realized for Injured Player in Game That Had All the Thrills of Softball

Two Toronto senior teams joined forces on Labor Day to join battle with a Belleville All-Star aggregation and the outcome was a sparkling display of softball at the Fair Grounds for the benefit of Leo Goyer, a game that saw the visitors pushed to the wire by the home and district brews before they could win by the score of 9-6.

The venture for the injured player was a success it was estimated by those in charge and thanks to all who gave their services, plus the City Parks Board and donations, the injured player will benefit financially by a sum in the neighborhood of $200.

To the credit of the Toronto players, it must be said that they held their actual expenses down to a minimum. They proved to be not only fine softball players but they showed a fine spirit of sportsmanship in trekking down from Toronto on a holiday to help in a cause which they knew was a worthy one.

Fine Display

And at that they put on a fine display on the diamond, one that definitely proved they are tops or near tops in their respective leagues up in the Queen City; and when on the diamond they showed that they were ball players. They went out to win—and they did.

But it was purely an exhibition of softball at its best and the Belleville and district All-Stars turned in a fine job.

Manager Frank Sedore selected his team from the squads in the Belleville Softball Association, and everyone came through with a grand effort. The fact that they were beaten by only three runs by players who are of distinctly senior calibre is a fine reflection on the ability of softball players from this city and its environs.

Headed by Gord Wright.

The Toronto squad was headed by Gordie Wright, rated as one of the three best Queen City hurlers. The diminutive righthander who ranks with Cam Eclestone, Ab. Grant, Suse Turner and chuckers of that ilk, turned in a fine display after Frankie Morris, a chucker with an alarm-clock wind-up, had thrilled the crowd with his freak delivery and had been nicked for four hits for as many runs before the brilliant Wright took over.

At that the little righthander was touched for five hits yielding one run before the local gang said "uncle."

Manager Frank Sedore started youthful Don Boyle, Goodman's junior hurler and the youngster refused to be "phased" by the bats of the Toronto team. He held them scoreless allowing two hits for two innings, but in the third two scratch bunts and a double by Callanan accounted for the three runs scored off him.

Pat Maracle of Point Anne took over at this point and labored for two heats with the visitors getting four hits for three runs off his delivery.

Error Proved Costly.

Marty Halloran, of Sacos, then went to the mound and allowed but one hit for three runs. An error crept into the game here and proved costly.

Morris, a chubby fellow with a quick-twirl delivery after the American style, started the game for the visitors and toiled for four innings. The All-Stars touched his queer delivery for four hits for as many runs and then the ace, Gordie Wright, took over the chucking chore. The locals got to him for five hits for one run over the rest of the pastime, but the slight 120 pounder showed an amazing change of pace with a whizzing fast-ball. He struck out four in the seventh, the first batter making first after the catcher had fooled around with a third strike.

Jimmy Barriage, Sacos, paced the All-Star attack with three hits. Nicky Sero, Point Anne, got two. Vern Goyer, LeBonne, Rowbotham and Don Boyle accounted for the remainder.

For the Toronto Rooneys-Prince of Wales squad, Recupero, Kelley, Callanan and LePelley got two each.

The teams:—

Belleville All-Stars—Barriage, Sacos, lf.; Whitehead, Point Anne, 3b.; Sero, Point Anne, ss.; Reid, H., Flashes, 3b.; Williams, Flashes, 1b.; V. Goyer, Flashes, 1b.; LeBonn,e Sacos, rf.; Green, Point Anne, c.; Robotham, Flashes, c.; Bradshaw, Point Anne, 2b.; Ronski, Flashes, 2b.; Boyle, Goodman's, p.; Maracle Point Anne, p.; Halloran, Sacos, p.

Toronto Rooneys - Prince of Wales — Recupero, lf.; Kelley, 2b.; Ralley, ss.; Shereto, rf.; Callanan, 3b.; LePelley, 1b.; Burns, cf.; Keller, c.; Morris, p.; Wright, p.

Score by innings:—

Toronto	002 130 030—	9	9 1
Belleville ...	220 010 100—	6	9 2

Countess Brook Best in Summary Of the Futurity

Toronto, Sept. 3 — (CP)—Van Riddle, owned and driven by Hon. Earl Rowe of Newton Robinson, romped to a straight heat victory here yesterday in the 3-year Canadian standard bred Society Futurity Trot — the feature race of a five-even harness racing card that thrilled more than 6,000 persons.

In the three-year-old Futurity pace for a purse estimated at $3,500 Countess Brook, driven by Johnny McFadden and owned by J. T. Saint, Stratford, placed 2, 3, 1 to edge out Bonny G. owned by M. Storey of Peterboro. However, the Countess' win was protested by Bonny G's owners and as a result race officials decided to withhold the purse pending an investigation of the interference claim.

In the 2.15 bar pace, Her Royal Highness, owned by J. H. Mehlanbacher, Nelles Corner thundered back to capture the last two heats and the event after placing 11th in the first heat.

SACO MARINES DEFEAT KINGSTON IN FINAL GAME

D.V.A. Beaten 16-9 and Meet Oshawa Tannery in Next Playdown Round

Saco Marines won the first round of the Ontario Softball Association Intermediate "A" series in Napanee on Saturday afternoon when they defeated the Kingston D.V.A. squad in the third tussle of the two-of-three series by a score of 16-9.

Sacos lost the first tilt here last week by a 4-3 score but came back strongly in Kingston to turn back the youthful veterans squad by a 9-3 count.

The winners meet the classy Oshawa Tanners here tonight in the first games of the second round, at the Fair Grounds. The game starts at 6 o'clock.

Halloran started on the mound for Sacos and went fairly well until the seventh innings. He held the D.V.A. to three runs for as many hits until that fateful heat when the enemy ganged up on him for three solid clouts and a walk that sent over five runners.

Jim Hunter was rushed into the breach and was touched for one run and one hit in each of the two remaining innings.

But his mates had got to Steve Hook D.V.A. starting pitcher by this time. Three walks three hits and a costly error spelled defeat for the Kingston crew as Sacos sent six runners scampering across the plate to win the game.

Sacos scored two in the first on hits by LeBonne and Henn. They were held scoreless until the sixth when they shoved over four runs when Reid and Henn doubled and Wardhaugh and Temple blasted out singles. They got another in the seventh when Henn who had walked raced home on LeBonne's single to centre, and three more in the eighth on hits by Hunter and Henn plus a couple of costly D.V.A. bobbles.

D.V.A. Scores Five

But the clean-up came in the ninth after D.V.A. had scored five in the seventh to come within striking distance of victory. Baker and Savage led off with solid clouts, Armstrong chased his two mates home on a Saco error. Firstbrook and Hook hit safely and came in on Ready's hit. D.V.A. scored another in the ninth but Hunter bore down to retire the side in the losers' half and that was that.

Herbie Henn and Gene LeBonne paced the winners' attack with three and two hits respectively with Baker getting four for the losers with Savage getting three.

Score by innings:

Kingston ..	110 010 510—	9	6	3
Sacos	200 004 136—	16	12	3

The teams:

Kingston: Baker, cf; Savage, lf; Belwa, 2b; Armstrong, 1b; Mallory, 3b; Firstbrook, ss; Cooper, rf; Hook, p; Ready, c.

Sacos: Barriage, lf; Henn, 2b; Sword, ss; LeBonne, cf; Reid, rf; Blaker, 1b; Wardhaugh, 3b; Temple, c; Halloran, p; Hunter, p.

Canadian Scores Brilliant Win In Chess Tourney

Gronigen, Holland, Sept.3 — (CP)— For Abe Yanofsky, revelling in a new role as "Giant Killer" of the world chess tournament, the moves that defeated shrewd Mikhall Botvinnik of Russia remarked "The best game I have played in 17 years of chess."

Resting after a startling 15th-round checkmate victory Monday over one of the world's acknowledged masters, the tall, 22-year-old medical student from Winnipeg admitted he was "very surprised" at the ease with which he topped the Russian out of a first-place tie with Dr. Max Euwe of The Netherlands.

He was even more bewildered, he said by the spontaneous applause of spectators who filled the great hall here with cheering and then carried him from the room on their shoulders after the tournament's youngest player, with a brilliant sacrifice of a knight, forced Botvinnik to resign after 53 moves.

It was the fourth victory against five draws and six defeats for the former Canadian Naval rating, who shares the Dominion championship with Frank Yerhoff of Regina. He now stands 14th with 6,1-2 points and has four games to play.

His first move yesterday was P-K4. Botvinnik chose a Rou Lopez defence and appeared to gain an early advantage by an audacious attack on the Queen'r side, but when the players adjourned for dinner after 40 moves most observers conceded an edge to Yanofsky.

On resuming the game the Canadian quickly constructed a masterly combination which forced Botvinnik on the defensive. Then came the unexpected sacrifice of the knight and Botvinnik, resigning, extended his hand to his young rival.

In other 15th -round matches, Dr. Euwe conquered Milan Vidmar of Yugoslavia in 40 moves into undisputed leadership with 12 1-2 points, one ahead of Botvinnik. V. Smislov of Russia gained third with 10 1-2 points by defeating M. Christoffel of Switzerland.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

LABOR DAY?

Saco Marines came through handsomely in their third tilt against the Kingston D.V.A. squad in Napanee on Saturday afternoon, knocking off the Kingston city champions 16-9 in that all-important third and deciding game in the first round of the OASA Intermediate "A" series. It was a good game until the late innings when the Saco bats exploded and ripped the Kingston pitching for 6 runs to clinch the game and send the Sacos against the starry Oshawa Tanners in the second round.

The Tanners who conquered Peterboro's De Laval team in two straight games are said to be a classy outfit which knows a lot of mushball questions and answers. Sacos will be at full strength according to Manager Maxie Peoples and will be out to cop that all-important tussle for an Oshawa team, as experience has taught the Marines are tough to beat in their own bailiwick. Jim Hunter will likely get the starting mound assignment with Mary Halloran and Adams in reserve.

Jack Carson was all smiles Saturday night and well he might be for his Latta baseball squad is now resting and awaiting the winner of the Napanee-Bloomfield OBA Intermediate "B" first round playdowns. The Latta squad finished off Bancroft, the North Mastings champions in two straight games, winning on Saturday on the northern diamond by a 15-7 score.

Thanks to a lot of good fellows in this city, (you find them when the chips are down, believe it or not) Leo Goyer will benefit by a substantial amount of money. Ticket receipts will not be in for a day or so, and that makes it impossible at this moment to give any exact figures.

In any event, the venture was a qualified success thanks to a number of well-minded city sportsmen. Orchids especially to Messrs. Jack Yanover of the Queens Hotel and S. R. "Sandy Burrows who gave handsome cash donations. Thanks too, to Herbie Henn and Jack Boyle who did the umpiring at a moment's notice. And to the players of the various teams of the Belleville Softball Association goes the gratitude of those in charge. Not forgetting the Army and Navy Veterans branch here for the after-game hospitality. It was appreciated by the teams and officials.

The Toronto squad, which was a composite team of the Rooney Bellewoods Senior Loop and the Prince of Wales team, champions of the Dovercourt Senior Softball Loop, were grand fellows. They trekked here from the Queen City and their expenses were held to the minimum. All they desired was gasoline expenses and meals. Fair enough.

And a goodly crowd was on hand to enjoy the festivities. The game was a fine exhibition of softball with the All-Stars throwing a scare into the "city slickers" in the first two heats when they scored four runs. Frankie Morris, pudgy freak pitcher who winds up his arm like an alarm clock before speeding the ball over the plate, proved not only an effective hurler but added plenty of color to the game.

Gordie Wright, 120 pound hurler of the Toronto Rooney squad lived up to all advance notices. Gordie is one of the Queen City's outstanding hurlers and he gave full evidence of that here even though he was touched for five or six hits. His change of pace had the eyes of the faithful wide-open at time while the fast ball had fog around it when he fired it across the plate.

Don Boyle, Goodman junior ace gave a fine account of himself as the All-Stars starting hurler. Pat Maracle did a good job and Marty Halloran topped off the three-pitcher performance with a grab effort. All the boys did a swell job, and no one made a mistake except the usher who tabbed Leo Goyer for a 25 cent ticket.

Vern Goyer came in from Toronto to help the lads along, and was not in the least bashful about what he thinks of the Toronto Argonauts, 1945 Dominion football champions chances of copping the mug again this year. But Verny opines, "we are going to run into some stiff opposition." He played in the game on Saturday against Balmy Beach, and will be out there again next week against the Montreal Alouettes.

Trenton Flyers will be here Wednesday evening with their backs to the wall against "Smoky" Smith and his Batawans. The Shoemen eked out a 1-0 win against the Flyers a week ago in the first game of the Intermediate OBA first round playdowns and Moose Matthews and his gang will be all out to force the issue into a third tussle. There will be two handsome draw prizes, so don's fail to be on hand at the Alemite Field Wednesday gloaming come five o'clock.

Goodman Juniors trek to Oshawa on Wednesday afternoon where they take on the Oshawa Harmony Millionaires in the second tilt of their O.A.S.A. junior playdowns. The Goodman youngsters had little difficulty of disposing of the Oshawans in their first game here, but that doesn't mean to say they will ride roughshod over them on Wednesday. The kids from the motorless city may have gotten a bad game out of their system, and some sound advice is not to sell them short. However, Goodman's are taking no chances and will be at full strength in an effort to sweep the series in two straight jousts.

All was not well with the junior baseballers in Oshawa yesterday when the B'nai B'riths of that city tacked a 12-9 defeat on them to even their second round O.B.A. junior series. The St. Louis crew committed no less than nine bobbles while Lefty Kelleher's slants proved no puzzle to the Oshawa batters. He was yanked in the fifth and Bobby Bunton went in and held the classy homesters to two hits for one run over the remainder of the pastime. The game, according to the box score, was loosely played, with Oshawa erring five times.

The third tilt is set for the Peterborough diamond on Wednesday, but no time has been set as yet. It is likely the game will be played in the afternoon, but nothing definite as to time will be available until late today. The Kiwanis kids feel confident they can take the Oshawans in this third fray and go on to meet the starry Ottawa Wrightvilles, conquerors of Kingston, who are awaiting the winner of the series.

ROUGH RIDERS SMART ON LINE AND BLACKFIELD

This is the second of a Canadian Press series of pre-season prospects of teams in the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union. Today's story is about the Ottawa Rough Riders.

By ANDY ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 3—(CP)—Faithful supporters of Ottawa's rugged Rough Riders, who viewed with alarm the loss of several star players and two coaches since last fall, can take heart from the words of canny Jim McCaffrey, manager of the husky Capital team.

"We're a little light along the line, but look at our backfield," chuckles Jim. "And I've never seen a Rider team with such pep and hustle as this squad."

The coaching mantle has fallen on the broad shoulders of last year's Jeff Russel Trophy winner, amiable George Fraser, a Rider lineman and outstanding placement kicker for 13 years.

The new coach says he would like to see "another 10 pounds a man" along the line, but the back division is "much stronger" than a year ago.

The backfield loss of the one-time Golden Boy of football, galloping Tony Golab, and Ken Preston, who is coaching the Saskatchewan Rough Riders, is off-set by the return of Orville Burke and Johnny Fripp and the acquisition of Frank Mathers and Mike Franco.

Back at Old Post

Burke, who directed the Riders from the quarterback slot in the Grey Cup final against Winnipeg in 1941, is back at his old post after service overseas. He will share the signal-calling with Gripp, 24-year-old, 210-pound star of Montreal Hornets last fall.

Mathers, a former Winnipeg Blue Bomber plunging half who came east late last season to play hockey for Ottawa Senators, is counted on as a regular, while Franco, product of the Pop Warner football school in Philadelphia, has been taking to the Canadian game with gusto in workouts.

Triple-threat Ken Charlton, who turned in a one-man show to trim Toronto Argonauts in one play-off tilt last fall, also is back along with Jimmy Abson, Ace Powell, Roy Annant and Fleet little Wilf Trembley, all regulars.

Three Centres

Reliable Curly Moynahan, Ted Grand and Fred Lamoureux are being groomed as centres. For middles Fraser can pick from regular Mike Ozarko, Eric Chipper and Jake Dunlap, a converted backfielder and newcomers Don Dissipio, Mike Kennedy, Steve Switzer, Moe Segal and a large Philadelphian from the Warner school, Steve Murray.

Leo Seguin, Bob Davie, Don Grimes and Pete Kaluski are working for inside berths again and the loss of Fraser as a player is eased by the return from overseas of George Hall, a member of the 1941 team.

At outside, Fraser has been working Bert Haigh, Brian Lynch, Tony McCarthy, all regulars, and has unveiled a second conversion in the Dunlap family in Jake's brother Frank, a relief quarterback last year. Other ends are Hugh Crawford, Roy MacDonnell, Bill Dalton and George Winton.

No wonder McCaffrey is beaming. The canny manager says the Big Four "definitely will be back to pre-war strength and fans will see the best football since 1939."

ST. CATHARINES WINS FIRST ONE

St. Catharines, Sept. 3—(CP)—Barrie Lake Shores were trounced 16-7 here last night as St. Catharines Athletics won the first game of the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior semi-final series. Second game will be at Brampton Wednesday and third, if necessary, here Friday.

St. Catharines elected to play Barrie Lakeshores in the semi-finals, a best-of-three series. Mimico will get a bye into the final against the winner of the St. Catharines-Barrie series.

Six teams went into the play-offs, and all three series were decided in three straight games—St. Catharines over Hamilton, Barrie over Brampton, and Mimico over Owen Sound.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A bridge convention is a call (a bid, or pass, or double, or redouble) with an artificial meaning. It is, in fact, a special signal of some kind as a tipoff to partner.

To make it legal in bridge, only words from the vocabulary of bidding may be used, of course. They are the same bidding words that are permitted for normal or customary purposes.

When used as a convention, the words mean something else. They give and get unusual information. Unless partner also knows what it means and follows it, the convention does more harm than good.

Some conventions never were good. They were invented by experts for temporary use until found unwieldy or impractical. It was found that their disadvantages greatly exceeded their advantages.

In more or less recent years, several experts fostered one of their brainstorms. It was this: If your partner makes a penalty double of a game bid, he asks you to lead dummy's old suit.

On rare occasions this signal might help to defeat a contract. But I disapprove of it in general play. There are more times when a standard lead will bring much better results.

If you are my partner and double for penalty, I expect you to mean: "We can defeat these buzzards if you don't fool me. So, cut out any fancy stuff to show off your alleged brilliance."

South became the declarer at a contract of three no-trump after north had bid spades. Your partner in the east doubles. It is your opening lead from this hand:

For goodness sake keep your fingers off the two spades you have. You have a good lead in the club suit. Grab hold of that queen and send her forth for better or for worse.

Lead natural and you will be most nearly right.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 3 —(AP)— When Norma Shearer attached herself to Enterprise pictures this week, Hollywood realized that Charlie Einfeld's baby had arrived.

Many studios had tried to lure the screen's one-ttime first lady out of retirement, particularly after Joan Crawford's sensational comeback. Her hook-up with the infant Enterprise outtfit added to the studio's fabulous growth.

A year ago, Charles Einfeld was being paid $3,500 a week to publicize Warners' pictures. The brothers offered him a new contract at more money. Faced with sure riches and a lifelong job, or starting in business of his own, he chose the latter.

Adrift in a whirl of fantastic offers Charlie sat and did nothing. Then one night he was attending a party at the house of independent producer David Loew. "Why don't we go into business together?" asked Loew. "Why not?" said Einfeld. So they did.

The two enlisted producer David Lewis who had snapped up the Erich Marie Remarque novel "Arch of Triumph." While other independents were clamoring for space, they took over the compact California studios. Meanwhile they rounded up the most important Hollywood quanthe obvious label —Enterprise. grid Bergman, John Garfield, Barbara Stanwyck, Joel McCrea and Ginger Rogers were signed up in a hurry.

His multi- million dollar deal wound up in a tight package, Charlie Einfeld pasted onto it the obvious label-- enterprise.

"I left Warners because I thought it was time for the country boy to go to the big city," he explained. "I thought, with the government cracking down on selling pictures in a block, there would be a demand for a company producing high-quality pictures. That's what we intend to be. We don't ever expect to be a major lot, in the sence that we would make pictures on a production line basis.

NEWARK BEARS SERIOUS THREAT TO THE ROYALS

Yankee Farmhands Assured of Playoff Berth and Resting in Third Place

Newark's up and coming bears, winners of their last six starts, loom as a serious threat to the pennant-winning Montreal Royals in the Shaughnessy playoffs.

Although manager George Selkirk's Yankee farmhands still are not assured of a playoff berth, they are resting in third place only half a game behind the runner-up Syracuse Chiefs.

Newark knocked off the last place Jersey City Giants in both ends of yesterday's holiday doubleheader, 21-5 and 7-2, really turning on the power.

After Syracuse had taken an opening 4-1 decision from Baltimore behind Howie Fox, the Orioles came from behind to defeat Dixie Howell in the 4-3 nightcap with the help of a homer and a double by Bob Repass.

Buffalo kept its playoff hopes alive by dumping the champion Royals twice, 7-6, and 8-6, going into fourth place ahead of Baltimore. The Bisons came from behind in both games, Pete Appleton saving both decisions with nice relief work.

Toronto, playing purely for exercise and the record books, downed Rochester twice, 5-3 and 9-5.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

(By The Canadian Press)

Welland Atlas Steels took a 3-lead over Niagara Falls Houska in their best -of - seven series for the Niagara District Baseball title yesterday when they won at Welland, 2-1.

In the Labor Day game, Mario Comy, veteran right-hander, was solved for three hits in the ninth after permitting only two safeties up to that time, but he struck out a pinch-hitter to end the game.

At Sudbury Saturday, the league-leading Coniston Buzzers took a two-game lead in their Nickel Belt "A" series baseball semi finals by defeating Copper Cliff Redmen 4-3 before 4,500 fans.

London Majors maintained their unbroken series of wins over Port Huron Cardinals Blue Water league leaders winning over the Michigan team by a score of 7-1 in the afternoon and 5-0 at night.

Stratford Nationals took a one-game lead over London Majors during the week-end winning the first game of the Intercounty finals by a score of 6-5. Oren (Lefty) Price pitched the Stratford team to its win.

Hank Greenberg, Tigers: His two-run homer gave Detroit 2-1 shade over Chicago in first of doubleheader.

Bobo Newson, Senators, and Jesse Flores, Athletics: Newsom trimmed old Philadelphia mates, 5-2, Flores earned fifth straight victory 7-1.

WHIPPER AND KRIPPLER HERE AGAIN FRIDAY

"The Match of the Year" is the way Manager Walter Gerow of the Belleville Arena describes Friday's coming battle between Whipper Billy Watson and Karl Krippler Davis. Watson and Davis fought it out here last Friday over the one-hour-long route and a harder rougher set of smashes has never been seen here. When the hour bell rang Davis had sustained one of the roughest passages of his stormy career and the Whipper was nursing a smashed nose and a limping leg. It was really slug tear and heave all the way through.

Yesterday both men signed for a re-match but this time the time-limit will be ninety minutes and let the devil take the hindmost. Both men are eager and if Watson's nose doesn't bet worsened in training bout should set a new top here in excitement.

Davis has been quite free with his statements that "there are really no top-notch Canadian heavyweights." That is he was before last week's battle. Now he may talk differently for Billy Watson certainly poured it to him. But the powerful big Texan can take an unbelievable amount of punishment and still come growling back for more. Well Friday's battle should see some mighty struggling before it's all over. We wouldn't miss it for plenty.

ALOUETTES WIN AGAINST BOMBERS BY 24-0 SCORE

Lew Hayman's Team Takes Sweet Revenge for Reverse Suffered in First Game

(By The Canadian Press)

Montreal Alouettes got the train weariness out of their joints yesterday and bounced back from a 17-6 reverse to plaster Winnipeg Blue Bombers 24-0 in the second game of a two-game exhibition Canadian football series at Winnipeg.

The big Montreal team smashed through the Winnipeg defence to make their own game all the way in a surprising reversal of their Friday night's Winnipeg contest, when the Blue Bombers did pretty much as they pleased.

In other pre-season exhibitions, Joe Krol sparked Toronto Argonauts to a 17-7 triumph over Toronto Balmy Beach in that city Saturday and at Ottawa the Rough Riders of the Big Four loop rode roughshod 17-10 over Ottawa Trojans of the Ontario Union.

The Winnipeg contest held the interest of eastern fans because it gave the opposition a line on Lew Hayman's American-powered Montreal organization. In the first quarter Joe Soyka plunged through for a touchdown, converted by Ches McCance.

In the last frame the Montrealers really started to roll again and former Bomber Dave Greenberg and Joe Richman romped across the Winnipeg line for touchdowns.

Helpless Against Krol

At Toronto Balmy Beach found their hefty front line was helpless against the Krol punting, passing and running. The beefy halfback smacked out a 35-yard pass for one touch, crashed over for another himself and booted a 30-yard placement, two singles and a convert. Doty, Argo's pint-sized quarterback, took Krol's pass for their second touchdown. Frank Seymour made the only Beach major in the second quarter.

In the free-passing Ottawa contest Riders piled up their margin through the passing of Orville Burke and halfback Ken Charlton, who romped through for 3 of the four Ottawa majors. Bert Haigh made the other.

AT THE BELLE — Robera Cummings contemplates temptation in the lovely person of Diana Lynn and doesn't seem to know what to do about it. The two co-star with Barbara Stanwyck in Paramount's delightful laugh romance, "The Bride Wore Boots," with Patric Knowles, Peggy Wood, Robert Benchley, and Willie Best.

AT THE CAPITOL — A reunion in the jungle unites Tarzan's family as Johnny Weissmuller (right) accompanies Johnny Sheffield (Boy) when Brenda Joyce (Mate Jane) returns from civilization. Weissmuller portrays "Tarzan" in the current thriller, "Tarzan and the Amazons," now showing at the Capitol Theatre. The added hit, Leo Gorcey and the Bowery Boys in their latest comedy "In Fast Company."

Oshawa Juniors Even Count With Kiwanis Kids Defeating Them at Oshawa by 12 to 9

Kelleher Started on Mound But Relieved in Fifth by Bunton

Oshawa B'nai B'riths, Junior O.B.A. baseball squad, leaped right back into the junior play-off picture at Oshawa on Monday afternoon and in a loosely played game defeated the Belleville Kiwanis juniors 12-9 to even the series at one game each. The Kiwanis kids won the first tilt in a 6-5 eleven-inning thriller here last week, and the two squads will square off for the third and deciding game in Peterborough on Wednesday afternoon. The exact time of the game will be announced later today.

The game was marked with errors of both the costly and the other type. Belleville committed no less than nine miscues while the Oshawans bobbled at least five times.

Kiwanis finally settled down but the damage had been done and they were unable to overcome the lead garnered by the hometown kids up to the fifth innings.

Forge Into Early Lead.

Oshawa forged into an early lead, scoring three runs off starting hurler Allen Kelleher in the first innings. Blanked in the second and third, they came back to score another trio in the fourth and put the game in the well-known container. In the fifth they shoved over five runs on four clouts and a base on balls.

The Kiwanis kids scored a single in the third and another in the fourth. They got a brace in the fifth and three more in the sixth. Two more runs came home in the eighth but the Oshawa pitcher settled down and held the visitors runless in the ninth.

Both Use Two Hurlers.

Both teams used two hurlers. Kelleher started on the mound for Kiwanis but the Oshawa batters clubbed his offerings for ten hits for eleven runs and he was yanked in the fifth in favor of Bob Bunton. The righthander held the homesters under control for the balance of the game allowing but one run for two hits.

Oshawa started Michael and he was touched for five hits for seven runs over five innings. Langmaid relieved him and went the balance of the game allowing but one hit for two runs over the four inning balance.

Oshawa clustered their clouts to win the pastime. Two hits, two errors and a base on balls helped them to three runs in the first. A double and two singles by Dell, Bird and Tyson in the fifth started the five-run rally and Murphy came through with a towering home run to clean the sacks.

Handed Two Runs.

The hometowners handed the Kiwanis squad two runs on the platter in the fifth. Bush walked and Fitzpatrick went out. Bud Green got a life on Dell's error and with Bush scored when Dell again kicked the ball around. Michael hit two Belleville batters in the sixth and these aided by two hits by Kelleher and Lockyer were responsible for three runs. Verny Green's walk and Bush's second hit of the game plus a base on balls sent two more Belleville runners home in the eighth, but that was all they could do — and that was that.

Bush paced the Belleville attack with two clouts with Bud Green, Wright, Kelleher and Lockyer getting the remainder of the six hits garnered off the Oshawa hurlers. Patte spearheaded the Oshawa hitting with three hits with Bird getting a brace.

JIM SHERWOOD HURLS NO-HITTER

Smiths Falls, Sept. 3—(CP) — A no-hit, no-run masterpiece was southpaw Jimmy Sherwood's contribution yesterday as Smiths Falls shut out Kingston Locos 4-0 in the first game of the Ontario section finals of the Quebec-Ontario Baseball League.

Before some 2,000 fans Sherwood permitted only seven runners to reach first base, three on walks, two on errors, one on a fielder's choice and the other as a hit batsman. Ethan Arnold led the supporting cast with a single and double. The teams meet again in Kingston Wednesday and move back here for the third game Saturday.

Dotted Line Honeymoon

CHAPTER 23

Virgie Blake broke into her reflections about that time by strolling over from her own place of business.

Virgie never had mentioned Larry's name again, but she had gone out of her way in the matter of friendly overtures to atone for the error she had made in retailing the account of the blonde on the mezzanine. Jack was a good sport, but she couldn't fool the keen-eyed Virgie.

"Darling," Virgie drawled, "I used to think I was good, but I can see I'm slipping now. I wish I knew your system. I saw you making eyes at that nifty looking little daddy who was in here. I was selling a cigar at the time or I'd have come over and tried to cut you out. How do you do it?"

Jacqueline laughed in genuine amusement.

"I won't hold out on you, Virgie. I wish you had come over. That was my own daddy. Isn't he nice?"

"No fooling? When's he coming back?"

"About dinnertime."

"And I'm off in a half hour. I never get the breaks, but....say, Jack!"

"What?"

"How'd you like me for a stepmother?"

Vince did not return to the hotel until nearly dinnertime. He was in a talkative mood, but Jacqueline could not escape from a growing conviction that he was attempting to keep their conversation in his own hands to a great extent. Several times she referred to his trip down to the city and, very promptly, he changed the topic.

Vince was more than willing to speak of his invention. But with an air of delighted secrecy.

"I'm not telling anybody what it is....except Larry, of course," he told his daughter. "It's the greatest wonder in the world that nobody ever thought of it before. It's something every home in the country should have. Those things will sell like wildfire!"

It was so pleasant to witness his glowing enthusiasm that Jacqueline tried to forget similar fervid accounts of the Anthony contributions to progress.

"I hope you won't find somebody has thought of it first," was all she said.

"Don't think there's any danger. Larry tells me he never has seen anything of the sort....and he should know. He's gotten in touch with a patent attorney in Washington he knows. He says this man is very reliable and can be trusted. So, it shouldn't be long until we hear something. I know an inventor can't count his chickens until they hatch. But you and I are as good as rich this minute."

His words came back to Jacqueline when she saw him take what appeared to be a generous roll of bills from his pocket to pay for their meal.

"Shall we walk out to the apartment?" she asked when they were on the street. "It is not very far."

Vince hesitated. "I don't know. We've got plenty of time. What do you say to a movie? I haven't seen one I don't know when."

"Whatever you like, dear. There are several houses down this street. You pick out the picture you think you'd like to see."

Jacqueline was thinking of the movie she went to see....on her wedding day. She had wanted to go then to avoid conversation with Larry. Perhaps not. It must have been a long time since he had had any pleasure of the sort.

But her vague discomfort increased when her father selected a film of the gangster type. It proved to deal with the activities of a super sleuth, matching his cunning against the underworld. To Jacqueline, it was unpleasantly suggestive and she tried to pay as little attention to it as possible. And, to her heightened imagination, Vince seemed thoroughly absorbed in the performance. She watched him in anxious perplexity during the more exciting scenes. When machine guns went into action. Vince sat on the edge of his chair, drinking it all in like a small boy.

There was a time when Jacqueline herself would have absorbed such perils with shameless interest, but not tonight. She and Vince might have traded places, in a way. He seemed so utterly irresponsible now, in need of guidance. And she never had felt so old.

The antics of an animated cartoon gave her the evening's first relief. And Vince settled back in his seat, to all appearances, politely bored.

Later, in the Courtland street apartment, Vince admitted a tolerant approval of his daughter's living quarters. He conceded that everything was convenient and tastefully arranged. But it was entirely too small. When he and the Skipper were ready to settle down, they must have a larger place....much larger. Perhaps a small house would be more to the point. After his experience on the Brown farm, Vince was not at all sure that he would not prefer a place in the country. Trees and fresh air....nothing quite like that. Plenty of room.

"Guess you'd like that, Skipper. If you're anything like your mother, you'll want to grow flowers."

And, ever and anon, his glances wandered to the little clock on the mantelpiece.

Finally, when he buttoned his coat with a suggestive air, the girl could endure her suspense no longer. She must learn something about this night's excursion before she allowed Vince to get away from her.

"What time is your appointment with Larry?" she asked, trying to make the tone of her voice casual.

"Oh....late."

"How late?"

"Well, I don't have to meet him until about twelve, But I thought I'd start a little early, you know. It's quite a little ways and I want to walk."

"Where are you going to meet him?"

"In a little restaurant where he eats sometimes." Vince was becoming more and more uncomfortable under this direct examination. "I guess I'll be trotting along, Skipper."

"Not yet. It's not eleven. I want to know something...."

"Well?"

"Where are you and Larry going?"

"Why, back to the farm.... as far as I know."

"Direct?"

"Why....You're getting sort of curious, aren't you, Skipper?"

"Yes, I am, Vince," she said earnestly. "But I have a reason. Won't you please tell me just what you're going to do tonight?"

"Sure! But I don't know. Larry asked me to meet him. Said he was going.."

"Where?"

"I don't know." Vince's voice took on a stubborn tone. "After all, that's Larry's business. I'm only taking orders."

Jacqueline was thinking fast now. Vince had shown his hand, in a way. He knew more about what was afoot than he was admitting; that, or he was following Larry in a blind fashion. "Taking orders,' That didn't quite sound like Vince, easy-going as he was always. All the old fears came trooping back.

There was still some reason to believe that Larry was doing some things without the law, or intended to. There was some mystery about the old Cutter house and its owner. And, in spite of his easy assurances, she was convinced that his stay at the Brown's meant that he was in hiding. He had misled Lieutenant Staples by a ruse that was as bold as it was clever. And he seemed to have succeeded.

Larry was marking time, waiting for any suspicion to die down before he....did what? Perhaps this was the night he had been waiting for. And he was taking the unsuspecting Vince into it with him. The possible danger that he would be embroiled in some crime did not appeal to Jacqueline as much as the terror of some physical peril.

Vince was all she had. She must risk anything and everything to keep him out of trouble. She would! Cost what it might!

"I want to talk very plainly with you, Vince," she began steadily. "It won't take but a minute. We'll have to be pretty frank."

"Well..?" Vince was the picture of uneasiness.

"Tell me, dear, just what you know about Larry. You have spoken about his coming down here, and other places. Just where does he go? Just what does he do?"

"Why, I don't know. That's his business."

"All right. Did it ever occur to you that he might be....be doing something he didn't want anybody to know about? Something ..wrong?"

"Of course not! You or nobody else would ever make me believe that Larry Cutter was a crook! You're talking nonsense, Skipper."

Jacqueline launched her most effective shaft. This was no time to think of the future, to count costs.

Then perhaps you can tell me," she offered quietly, "why the police are so interested in him."

"What!" Vince sat bolt upright in astonishment. "Police," he echoed unbelievingly. "You're crazy, Skipper! You must be!"

"I happen to know it's true. I think we should know why."

Vince settled back in his chair, still staring. It was very evident that all this was news to him. Then he leaned forward to ask excitedly, "Are you sure? Does Larry know it? Somebody's got to tell him!"

He knows. I was the one that let him know."

Vince looked at his daughter skeptically. "How did you find out?" he demanded shrewdly.

"By accident. A detective I know was in the office. He described Larry and called him by name. He asked if he ever had given me any letters and if I remembered to whom they were written."

"Had you? You didn't tell, did you?"

"I said that they were business letters, That I couldn't remember what they were about. Then I told Larry because..well, it seemed only fair."

Vince did not seem to hear this halting explanation. He was deep in thought. When he roused himself, it was to declare, "I've got to see Larry right away."

"You can't, Vince!"

"Why?'

"Because I wont let you."

Instead of the outburst Jacqueline expected, her father looked at her in silence. When he spoke, it was with almost a subdued air.

"It's all right, Skipper. There's nothing for you or me to worry about. Larry's able to take care of himself, I guess. Maybe I can see you tomorrow and tell you what it's all about. If I don't, I'll write."

"It isn't all right!" Jacqueline burst out. "You may think so, but I know better. You don't know what you're running into and I tell you I won't let you go! You can't! You're all I've got now...."

"There, there. You mustn't get excited. And I've got to go. I'll be late, first thing I know. You go to sleep and forget it," He picked up his hat.

With a spring, Jacqueline was out of her chair. She placed her back against the door leading to the hall. Her face was pale, but determined. Her dark eyes wide, dry.

"Vince, you're not going to meet Larry Cutter!"

"Who's going to stop me?" There was a brittle edge to his voice now.

Rising C. O. L. Costs Help Marriage

Portland, Ore., Sept. 3—(AP) —The rising cost of living helped the romance and marriage of James T. Higgins, 92, and his bride, Augusta, 79. "We both were paying $60 a month each where we lived before," said Mrs. Higgins today at their suburban cottage which they are renting for $10 a month. Mr. and Mrs. Higgins were married Saturday. Higgins, a former minister, has been married twice before and his bride once.

Semi-Finals In Provincial Tourney Are Completed

After an interesting day of play in Kingston and Belleville, the semi-finals in the rinks and doubles competition of the Provincial Lawn Bowling tourney was completed at the Belleville club this morning with R. Bingham, D. W. Krupp, D. Scalisi and D. Wade of Woodstock, defeating J. Archer, D. Bennett, A. Meyers and H. Taylor, of Campbellford, 22-10 in the first match and R. Gellately, A. Fuhrman, J. Johnstone and W. Ball of London C.N.R. Club, defeating J. Biddulph, W. Kilburn, S. McMillan of Oshawa, 21-16 in the other match. The final will be played this afternoon.

In the doubles, C. Norris and T. Smead of Balmy Beach, Toronto, won the first group; R. Carson and J. Wilson of St. Albans, the second; P. Reed and R. Edney of Kingston, the third, and J. Ross and A. Moffat of Hamilton Argylls the fourth. In the semi-finals played this morning, Balmy Beach pair defeated the Kingston team, 26-20, while Hamilton Argylls defeated St. Albans, 26-16.

Italy, Switzerland, Portugal and Eire Are Elected to F.A.O.

Copenhagen, Denmark, Sept. 3 —(AP)—Italy Switzerland, Portugal and Eire were elected to membership today in the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, grappling here with the fight against hunger throughout the world. Canada already is a key member of the F.A.O.

Italy and Switzerland joined the 51 original members by unanimous vote. Polish Vice Premier S. Mikolajczyk objected to Portugal and Eire because they had no diplomatic relations with Warsaw.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Sept. 3—(CP)—Trailing the New York market, the Toronto Board sold down before noon today to show index losses of 2.39 for the industrials and 1.33 for the base metals in the early session. The golds were up at mid-day but they weakened in the early afternoon. Western oils held steady. The turnover for the first three hours was 1,691,000 shares.

Most of the industrial groups were heavy. Hiram Walker and Aluminum lost 6 to 9 points.

Louvicourt Goldfields featured the gold group, moving in heavy volume on an advance to 4.45. The noon price around 3.90 was up 60 cents net.

Smelters lost 3 points, Nickel 3/8, Mining Corporation 25 and Sherritt about 20 cents. Calgary and Edmonton was down a few cents and other western oils were firm.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Sept. 3 —(CP)— Lambs were unsettled and other classes steady in early trading today on the livestock markets. Receipts: cattle 1014; calves 1197, hogs 425, sheep 2982.

Cattle trading was moderate and there were only a few weighed in early deals. Just medium quality steers sold at 11-12. Common were 8.50 up. Heifers ranged from 7.50-11.50. Good cows were 9.50 up. Medium kinds were 8.50-9.25. Common were 7.25 and more. Canners and cutters were 7 down. Bulls were mostly of plain quality, the best ones selling from 9.50-10.25 and a few tops making 10.50. Bologna bulls were 7.50-9.

Vealers remained at 12-14.50, a few going at 15. Grassers and drinkers were disposed of in mixed lots at 2-9.50. Hogs were 21 for Grade A and sows were 19 dressed.

Some lambs brought 13.50-14 straight, with others fetching 13.50. Bucks were discounted 1 lower at 12.50. Sheep were 3-7.50.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 3 —(AP)— The stock market suffered another sharp sell-off today, after the lengthy weekend, with leaders toppling one to five or more points to lows for the last year and the high speed ticker tape was behind actual floor transactions for an interval.

Mild slipping tendencies appeared at the start. Activity then slowed but an avalanche of liquidating orders appeared before mid-day. Steels, motors, rails and most industrials were substantial losers. Dealings again tapered and extreme setbacks were reduced in most cases near the fourth hour.

Rawdon

Rawdon—Mrs. Don Fleming attended the Fleming re-union picnic.

Twenty five folks from Mount Pleasant attended the 75th anniversary of Stephen's United Church, Hoards, on Sunday, August 25th. Rev. F. G. McTavish, Bradford, a former minister, was the anniversary preacher. The newly organized choir rendered special music. The edifice was nicely decorated with bouquets of gladioli.

Mrs. Cyrus Summers spent a weekend at Pickering with Mr. and Mrs. Eric Summers and visited her grandson.

Mrs. Elwood Johnson recently underwent an operation at Belleville Hospital.

Mrs. John Hay and Miss Helen Hay were guests of Mrs. Will Hubble and Miss Edna Hubble on Thursday.

Miss Jean Hoard entertained on Thursday afternoon in honor of Miss Lois McAdam, bride to be, about thirty girls were in attendance and part of the afternoon was spent in making a bride's book. The gifts were placed in a decorated house and Lois was given a seat of honor in a chair with pink and white streamers. Mrs. Frank Spencer read a poem, and Miss Joyce Johnson read an address. Lois lifted the roof of the cottage and a nice array of graniteware in white with red trim was revealed and she graciously thanked her friends for the gifts. Delicious refreshments were served.

The service at Mount Pleasant on Sunday afternoon was cancelled owing to the 75th anniversary of Stephens United Church at Hoards.

Mr. and Mrs. Clancy Feted

Wellman's Wide-a-Wake Sunday School class honored one of their classmates in the person of Mr. Douglas Clancy and his bride on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Polloch.

Misses Doris Polloch, Evelyn Melville and Iris Holland conducted a number of interesting games which all thoroughly enjoyed.

The bride and groom were given seats of honor and Mr. Jack Dunham presided over a short program. Miss Babel Sharp read "The Cookie Jar" and Mrs. Burton Morton gave "Domestic Happiness." Several musical numbers were contributed by Miss Mina Dracup, Mrs. Frederick Beckett and Mrs. Lorne Watson.

Mr. Ted Polloch read the address of appreciation and the newlyweds were invited to the kitchen where the washing was pinned on the line in the form of gifts which included hammer, screw driver, can opener, steel wool and several useful articles for both bride and groom.

Douglas and Jean both graciously replied and dainty refreshments were served.

Misses Evelyn Melville and Iris Holland were weekend guests of Miss Doris Polloch.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hoard and their families are camping at Belmont Lake for two weeks.

Stirling

Stirling—Mrs. Walter Bronson of Detroit, Michigan, is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Morley Phillips.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hulin were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Alcombrack of Sackett's Harbour, N.Y., Mr. and Mrs. Herb Bush of River Valley, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bennett and family of Frankford and Mrs. G. W. Hockey of Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelz of Toronto and son John, spent the weekend with the latter's aunt, Mrs. P. W. Long.

Miss Joan Bennett of Frankford is spending a week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hulin.

Mr. and Mrs. Bain of Toronto spent the weekend with the latter's sister, Mrs. E. A. Carleton.

Miss Wilma Phillips is spending a few days with her cousin, Jean Cotten of Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stanson and family of Hamilton and Mrs. Alan Murdock and Keith of Frankford were Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hulin.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Rudolph returned yesterday to Detroit after spending two weeks with the latter's sister, Mrs. P. W. Long.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bannister and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Mills of Campbellford were in town Saturday evening attending the "at home" of Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Carleton.

St. John's Church Picnic.

An enjoyable afternoon was spent by the young and old of St. John's Sunday School when they met on Thursday, August 22nd at Crescent Beach, Oak Lake, for their picnic.

Many cars gathered in front of the church to take the children to the picnic grounds where races were run and cash prizes were given to all taking part. The race run between Rev. Brazill and Mr. A. H. Callings, which was a tie, was particularly enjoyed by all. A delicious picnic supper prepared by the mothers and Sunday School teachers was served to every one and chocolate milk, oranges and apples were given to the children. All left for home tired and happy after a day well spent.

Mrs. Mabel Murphy of Toronto is spending two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Spry.

Mrs. Wilbur Jones returned after spending a week with friends in Ivanhoe.

Mr. and Mrs. John Spry and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Spry and son Jerry, all of Wyandotte, Mich., are visiting the former's brother, Mr. Tom Spry and Mrs. Spry.

Jap Governor at Hong Kong During War Condemned

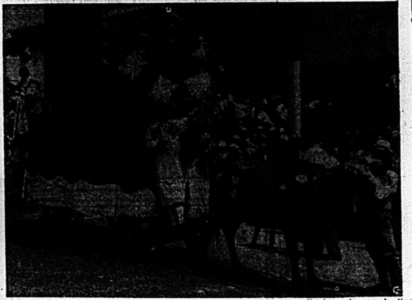
ENGLISHMAN HONORED IN TOKYO CELEBRATION



Occidentals witnessing a parade by residents of Nihonbashi district of Tokyo celebrating replacing of bronze animal figures on either side of the main bridge there, one of the city's most famous, were surprised to see a float bearing the name of William Adams. Investigation revealed him as an Englishman who, 80 years ago, founded Japan's first steamship construction yard. He resided in the Nihonbashi bridge district and was a leading figure in the prosperity and growth of the area. The bronze animals were removed from the bridge in 1943, to be used in the manufacture of munitions. Their replacement was a three-day event participated in by business men, political figures, police officials, geisha girls and the general populace.

Aircraft Stripped By Souvenir Hunters at Show

Toronto, Sept. 3 (CP)—In the language of the flying men upwards of 50,000 Torontonians had "had it" today so far as the International Air Show goes. And the air show, where the 50,000 are concerned, had "had it" too.

They will go down in living memory as the frantic 50,000 of Toronto's Labor Day, 1946.

Police will remember them in one large chunk, as the greatest traffic jam this city ever experienced, while the air show folk think only of people who came in thousands to watch, numbering among them souvenir hunters who stripped one aircraft after another.

Nobody ever thought Toronto felt this way about the air so nobody prepared to handle such crowds as for hours snaked their way, windblown and dust-powdered, across the open meadow country north of the city, from Yonge Street to the airport.

Police couldn't cope with it and reinforcements could not move over jammed roads. So they flew extra police to the airdrome and long after dark a crowd that began to gather long before noon still struggled to find a way home.

For part of the show all flying ceased when crowds streamed across runways. As fast as paratroopers cleared them new crowds urged forward.

Souvenir hunters meantime stripped four navy Seafires of almost everything moveable; then moved on to an R.C.A.F. Spitfire and went to work anew until finally guards with bayonets took over.

Vital parts of radios, radar and other electrical equipment disappeared. Just to add to the confusion, one small boy going through a Lancaster bomber saw a cord, and pulled it and was horrified to find he had inflated a rubber rescue raft.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop and ma were at a party last night, and this morning at breakfist pop said, That little Mrs. Tripper had quite a cute hair-do, with all those cerls fore and aft.

She's not so little, she's no smaller than anyone else, it's just the insufferable way she smerks and tries to act coy, ma said, and pop said, Maybe that's it, maybe she's just a medium size woman who makes little motions.

And ferthermore, if you're dissatisfied with the way I've been doing my hair, I wish you'd come right out aboveboard and say so, instead of beeting all around Robin Hood's bush for land sakes, ma said, and pop said, Yee gods, what's your hair got to do with it?

Everything, and you know it, so don't try to sit there looking like an innocent stranger, ma said. If you honestly feel that my hair would be more becoming done in a little looser fashion, please come right out and say so without dragging in Mrs. Tripper by the heels, she said, and pop said, Horse Blanket to blazes, what's going on here? My dear, your hair is perfect just as it is, it's collossal, it would win ferst prize at any county fair, I mean bewty show. I wish I had a picture of it I could refer to every hour on the hour down at the office, he said.

Now William you dont need to feel you have to jump from the frying pan to the other extreme, ma said. As a matter of per fact, for some time now I've be seriously considering having new permanent along mod lines, but I've just been hesit ing on economical generel pr cipals, she said, and pop s Then for Peet sake why could you say so without all that c founded termoil about Mrs. Tr per?

Because you men need a li occasional catching up just for pure good of your soles, th why, ma said.

Not quite being the end of subject.

FIRST BOTTLE CONVINCED HER SYNTONA WAS GREAT MEDICINE

For Six Years Could Hardly Eat a Meal Without Having Gas, Heartburn and Sour Risings Afterward. Got Bad Headaches, Couldn't Sleep — Tells of Grand Relief.

"In the past six years I have had trouble with my stomach and could hardly eat a meal without suffering afterwards, but I am delighted by the relief Syntona has given me in a very short time," said Mrs. Maria Hendel, Dorchester, Ont., in a recent interview.

"Food that I ate caused a constant pressure of gas that I could not dispel and my stomach often became bloated until it made me short of breath. I would belch up hot, sour liquid and get the most awful burning sensation in the pit of my stomach. Many days I had a throbbing headache and felt sick all over. I couldn't sleep well at night and in the mornings often felt that I hadn't rested at all. In fact, I began to feel very tired and worn out all the time so that even things that I used to enjoy doing became a great effort to me.

"I had tried almost everything I knew of, but nothing seemed of any use to me, so I was very discouraged with everything. Then I read how Syntona was highly recommended by people who had taken it and I decided to get some. Even from the very first bottle, I could tell that this medicine made me feel better. So, I kept on taking it and now this medicine has done me worlds of good.

"The bloating and shortness of breath have cleared up entirely. I can enjoy my meals once again and the food doesn't sour and I have no burning, or distress afterward. Also, I am free of headaches and I am sleeping far more soundly at night. As a result my entire system seems built up and improved and I haven't felt so well in years as I have in the past few weeks.

"I owe this all to Syntona and I advise anyone who suffers as I did to give this medicine a trial without delay."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.

Good Hunting!

(TO OUR FRIENDS FROM THE U.S.)

Good hunting and our wise game laws bring more and more friendly visitors from south of the border. They're doubly welcome as fine sportsmen and because they help our economy. It's up to each one of us to encourage their visits . . . give them a real welcome every time.

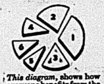
WHAT CAN I DO?

The answer is plenty! Here are some of the things anyone can do. The suggestions come from a well-known Ontario hotelman:

1. Know the places of interest and beauty spots in your district and tell people about them.
2. When you write your friends in the States tell them about the places they would enjoy visiting.
3. Try to make any visitor glad he came.
4. Take time to give requested information fully and graciously.
5. In business dealings, remember Canada's reputation for courtesy and fairness depends on you.
6. To sum it all up, follow the "Golden Rule."

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS . . . it's good business!

Worth his weight in gold! The province of Ontario, profits to almost the same extent from tourist business as it does from the gold mining industry. It is up to each of us to see that it goes on growing.



This diagram, shows how everyone benefits from the Ontario tourist income. Every dollar is shared in this way . . . 1. Hotels; 2. Stores; 3. Restaurants; 4. Taxes, etc.; 5. Amusements; 6. Garages.

It works both ways! They treat us royally when we visit them . . . we can't do less than return the compliment. Remember that it costs money to take a holiday . . . so let's see they get a good return for every penny they spend.

"Let's make them want to come back!"

Issue of Trieste Most Important Item on Agenda

Molotov Has Not Returned To Paris Peace Conference

Paris, Sept. 4 —(AP)— The four-power foreign ministers' council met today for the second time during the Paris peace conference with Deputy Foreign Commissar Vishinsky representing Russia.

Foreign Commissar Molotov, who earlier was reported by a French foreign ministry official to have returned from Moscow, was not present when the meeting opened.

French officials said their later information was that Mr. Molotov had not returned, and Russian sources said their best information was that the Soviet chief delegate would not be back until "some time later this week."

A French foreign ministry official earlier had said Mr. Molotov returned this morning and that the four foreign ministers would meet to discuss peace conference problems.

The 21 countries attempting to write peace treaties for all the conquered states of Europe save Germany and Austria still grappled with the issue of Trieste and the Venezia Giulia area of Italy, coveted by the Russian-influenced Yugoslav government of Marshal Tito.

Czechoslovakia, also in the Russian sphere, through her foreign minister, Jan Masaryk, backed Yugoslavia's claim to Trieste today.

Brazil proposed postponement of action on the Venria Giulia frontier until the Big Four foreign ministers study the matter further and also urged that the Big Four be empowered to establish finally the border within a year after the Italian peace treaty becomes effective.

Proposes Incorporation.

South Africa proposed that additional territory in western Istria containing an Italian population be incorporated into the free territory of Trieste.

Mr. Molotov left Paris for Moscow Saturday, presumably to report on the peace conference. The Big Four meeting at 4 p.m. had been arranged prior to his return but at the suggestion of Mr. Molotov's deputy, Andrei Vishinsky. The ministers were to plan common strategy on amendments to the treaty drafts for Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland.

Russia has proposed that the Sept. 23 meeting of the United Nations Assembly in New York be postponed, and this too may be a topic of the Big Four.

Might Cause Trouble

Mr. Masaryk told the Italian political and territorial commission that Yugoslav control would ensure a "peaceful and stable Trieste" and inferentially warned that internationalization of the Adriatic port would cause future trouble.

"Corridors can cause only trouble — we have seen that in northern Europe," Mr. Masaryk said without mentioning specifically the Big Four agreement to create the free territory of Trieste.

The Yugoslav proposal would give most of Venezia Giulia, including Trieste, to Yugoslavia.

The conference military commission, meanwhile, completed action on military limitations sectionh of the Italian treaty by approving Big Four recommendations of the Italian treaty by aponly two battleships — the Doria and Duilio — four cruisers, four destroyers, 16 torpedo boats and 20 corvettes and a small number of minor fleet auxiliary vessels.

A conference sub-commission empowered to check all war bills submitted against Italy save one for $100,000,000 from Russia, already approved, was scheduled today to go over requests for $20,000,000,000 in Italian reparation payments.

Investigate Claims

The sub-commission is slated to investigate such items as Bolivia's demand for all Italian assets in Bolivia, even though she will not be one of the signers of the treaty with Italy. Ethiopia has asked $400 for each of the 760,300 of her people claimed killed during the war with Italy and $50 for each of the $13,000,000 animals she says the Italians took — a total approximating $1,000,000,000 dollars.

Britain and Greece also have filed large reparations claims against Italy.

The question of the future of the Jews in Europe entered conference debate for the first time yesterday when the Romanian political and territorial commission argued for three hours over an Australian proposal to include in the Romanian treaty a guarantee that Romania never would adopt any law or decree contrary to fundamental democratic freedoms. The commission took no final action on the matter.

FOUND DEAD IN SEWER

Missing for almost a month, Mrs. Catherine A. Norlie (above) of Lowell, Mass., was found, her body hanging from a sewer outlet on the Merrimac River. The woman had been brutally beaten and shot three times through the neck. Police believe the crime was committed by a jealous suitor. A man whose identity has not been revealed is being questioned by investigators.

United States Hands Yugoslavia Bill For Damages

By GRAHAM HOVEY

Washington, Sept. 4 —(AP)— The United States handed Yugoslavia a blank bill for damages today with a sharp notice that it expects Marshal Tito's government to pay the full amount when it is written in.

If Tito agrees, the United States stands ready to write "finished" to the incidents in which two unarmed American transport planes were forced down by Yugoslav fighters at a cost of five American lives.

Should Tito refuse, the United States might have to dust off its 13-day-old threat to take the case before the United Nations Security Council.

The notice that the United States expects damages for the loss of life and property was contained in a lengthy note delivered by William L. Clayton, undersecretary of state, to Dr. Sergije Makiedo, Yugoslav charge d'affaires, last night. The note in fact, expressed surprise that Yugoslavia had not volunteered in advance to pay.

Denies Tito Claims.

Beyond that, Mr. Clayton painstakingly citing numbers, dates, places and types of aircraft, denied a series of Tito claims that American planes were flying virtually at will over Yugoslavia without permission, and thus violating that country's sovereignty.

After answering each point of the Tito indictment, Mr. Clayton declared that the alleged violations of Yugoslav territory "must have been made by planes other than United States planes." He did not elaborate on that point.

TWENTY PERSONS KILLED IN CRASH OF FRENCH PLANE

Air Liner Taking Off From Paris to London And Failed to Clear Factory Roof

By MEL MOST

Paris, Sept. 4 (AP)—Twenty persons today were killed in the crash of an Air France Liner taking off from Paris for London, bringing to 49 the total number of dead in French plane accidents in three days.

The latest crash, which killed 17 of 21 passengers and three of the crew of five, occurred at 9:15 a.m. when the Paris-London liner failed to clear a factory roof at Le Bourget, Air France announced.

At the same time, the line confirmed the death of 17 passengers and five crew members when another of its planes crashed just 16 1-2 hours before 21 miles out of Copenhagen.

Three French airmen and four French civilian passengers were killed Monday when an army plane crashed in a wood shortly after taking off from the Villacoublay air base in Paris, for Grenoble.

Air France released the names of only six survivors of the Bourget crash. It said it was withholding the rest of the passenger lists of the two planes "until next of kin have been duly notified."

A 21st victim of today's crash was a workman killed by collapse of a roof of an automobile radiator factory hit by the plane.

Monty Relaxing After Exacting Western Tour

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Calgary, Sept. 4 (CP)—Flying over the Rockies to Victoria today, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery was relaxng after an exhausting prairie tour yesterday that saw him responding to the cheers of Winnipeg, Regina and this city within a space of 10 hours and still with enough energy left to help in his own welcome arrangements here.

His hand in the welcoming ceremonies here occurred when an informal and ill-ordered group of veterans in a legion hall all crowded around him to shake his hand. Monty started calling out orders with a smile and a wave and had them in a neat and tidy line in two shakes and had started a marathon handshake. Then he directed them to go to the back of the hall and find seats so that he could speak briefly to them.

He spotted photographers lining him up for shots as he was about to begin and he waved them aside too and told them with a chuckle they had had a very good day with him already.

Another feature of his stop here was his presentation to Capt. William J. McLeod 24-year-old armored corps officer, of a Military Cross the young officer had won for taking an enemy position at the risk of his own life in the April 1945, fighting in northwest Europe.

The special presentation was arranged becausef the Field Marshal in 19944, in presenting a sam browne belt to McLeod as the leading cadet at Sandhurst military academy had told him he hoped the next time they met he would be pinning a medal on him.

Huns Proved by Humans Life Possible At 30,400 Feet Simulated Altitude

Washington, Sept. 4 — (AP) — By using human "guinea pigs," German doctors were able to prove that life can be sustained at simulated altitude of 30,400 feet without resort to oxygen.

That is 1,375 feet higher than the United States Navy dared go in its "operation Everest" earlier this year.

The Army Air Forces told of the German experiments today in reporting on captured enemy medical documents. These said the experiments on "professional criminals and Jews" were made in laboratories at the Dachau concentration camp during April, 1942.

Relating that one group survived a pressure tank altitude of 30,400 feet, the reports said "only continuous experiments at altitudes greater than 33,600 feet resulted in death."

They told of one 37-year-old Jew "in good general condition" who was subjected to tests at 38,400 feet. He continued breathing for 30 minutes after reaching this altitude and was conscious for 10 minutes. After the experiment, the subject was dissected, by a German surgeon, who discovered the heart still beating.

In its "operation Everest" the navy called for volunteers and stretched its experiments out over a 28-day period to permit the men to become accustomed gradually to the decreased oxygen.

Battle of Normandy Fought Exactly as Planned States Montgomery in Report

London, Sept. 4 —(Reuters)— "The outstanding point about the Battle of Normandy is that it was fought exactly as planned before the invasion," Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, commander-in-chief of Allied land forces in the D-Day assault on the Continent, says in his official report to the War Office.

"The measure of our success was in the event far greater than could ever have foreseen because of the faulty strategy of the enemy," said Field Marshal Montgomery, now touring Canada. His report was released today by the War Office.

The report, dated June 1, 1946, covered operations in Northwest Europe from June 6, 1944 — D-Day — until May 5, 1945 — when cease fire was ordered.

20,000 Word Report

Lord Montgomery, now Chief of the Imperial General Staff, told in his 20,000-word report how "Operation Overlord" was planned. He described in detail the linking-up of the beachheads after the initial landings, the subsequent breakout and the battles that carried the Allies across the Rhine until "on the evening of May 4, 1945, General-Admiral Von Friedenburg signed an instrument of unconditional surrender" in Lord Montgomery's headquarters as Commander of the 21st Army Group and the cease fire came the following morning.

Operations which have since become matters of controversy—Arnheim and the Ardennes—were outlined by Field Marshal Montgomery in considerable detail.

The Arnhem battle, aimed at gaining a crossing of the Meuse and the Rhine by laying a carpet of airborne troops across the waterways, did not achieve full success for two reasons, he wrote.

"First: The weather prevented the building up of adequate forces in the vital area. Second: The enemy managed to effect a very rapid concentration of forces to oppose us."

In the Battle of Normandy the only sound military course open to the Germans at the end of July would have involved staging a withdrawal of the Seine barrier and with it sacrifice of northwestern France. Instead they decided to fight it out between the Seine and Lire."

JAM AND JELLIES, SALT AND BUTTER IN SHORT SUPPLY

Ample Supply of Fruits and Vegetables Survey Shows

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sure there's a shortage of jams and jellies, and of salt and butter and hardware, among other things. But this business of shortages has to be handled carefully. For instance, there's an ample supply of fruits and vegetables.

In the United States, Washington officials have issued a government-stamped list of commodities in short supply, such as hogs and cattle, fats and oils, and jams and jellies. This prompted a nation-wide survey by The Canadian Press of Canada's supply situation.

The Prices Board at Ottawa doesn't give official lists of commodities in short supply for the good reason that if a commodity is in short supply, it's practically non-existent after the word gets around.

In Nova Scotia the only agricultural commodity in short supply is butter, most of which Nova Scotia has to import anyway. Vegetables and fruits are ample.

In the Montreal district vegetables and early fruits are plentiful. There won't be any shortage of apples. But oats and barley are expected to be 40 per cent below normal.

Big Fruit Crop.

In Toronto — and Ontario generally — you're lucky if you can get jams and jellies but there'll be a big fruit crop and this will help later on. There is a shortage of salt which has affected the entire Dominion because of a strike in one factory in Western Ontario which supplies chemicals used in refining salt. Fats and oils, soap and toilet paper, confectionery and tinned fish all are hard to get.

There's also an Ontario shortage — take it easy now — in butter and cheese and milk, vaguely blamed on a let-down by the producers after the hard-working war years. Pastures are bad in some places, farm labor is still none too plentiful, and it will be some time before the dairy producers are stuck with surpluses.

Still, there's a fair crop of everything in Ontario, the cattle population and cattle marketing are above former peaks, egg production is away up and so is poultry marketing. There's plenty of fish.

British Columbia has about the same shortages as other Western provinces: salt and soap and toilet tissue, bacon and canned goods and jams and jellies are pretty hard to find. But they're all managing somehow.

45 DIE IN POLITICAL MURDERS IN GREECE

Athens, Sept. 4—(Reuters) — Forty-five persons died in political murders in Greece during the week ending Aug. 31, a British report issued today said.

Of these, 22 were victims of the right wing, nine of the left and 14 of unknown persons.

SOME U.K. TROOPS LEAVING GREECE IN RE-GROUPING

No Immediate General Withdrawal Expected and No Political Significance

London, Sept. 4 (CP)—A foreign office spokesman said today that some British troops are being withdrawn from Greece as part of a general re-grouping of British forces in the Middle East.

London newspapers earlier today suggested that British troops be withdrawn from Greece now that the Greek people have voted in a plebiscite to recall King George from his London exile.

The British government has been committed to withdrawal of its forces as soon as the political situation became stabilized by elections.

The foreign office spokesman said however that no general withdrawal was in immediate prospect and that there was "no political significance" to the present troop movements.

He declined to give the number of men being moved out of Greece. The latest announced strength of British forces in the Hellenic Kingdom was at least 50,000.

King George II today awaited a personal invitation from Premier Tsaldaris to return to the Greek throne in Athens.

Part of Transition

The British spokesman said the Middle East re-grouping was part of the transition from war to peace-time conditions and was "not necessarily" connected with Anglo-Egyptian negotiations for a revision of the 1936 defence pact with Egypt, which involve the evacuation of England's troops from the Nile kingdom.

He said, however, that one of the most important divisions in Greece was being split up by the shift and that the troops evacuated were not likely to be replaced.

The decision to reduce British forces in Greece, the spokesman added, was made "some weeks ago"—that is, before last Sunday's plebiscite in which the Greek government announced an overwhelming return for King George.

The Soviet Ukraine, in bringing charges before the United Nations Security Council, declared Greece was endangering the peace of the Balkans and that the presence of British troops was an important factor in the threat to Balkan order.

British troops were used to quell the civil war which broke out between leftist and government forces in Greece in December, 1944.

THIRD POLIO DEATH REPORTED AT WINDSOR

Windsor, Sept. 4 — (CP) — Death of Ronald Bruce Leggett, 13, was the third fatality in the poliomyelitis outbreak here, while another case was admitted to the isolation hospital yesterday, bringing the total Windsor polio cases to 38, Dr. John Howie, Medical Officer of Health, said today. The boy contracted the Bulbar type of polio which Dr. Howie said is extremely dangerous.

HOPES FOR EARLY SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE SLUMP

Union Official States No Agreement Was Reached at Meeting With Government

By JACK WILLIAMS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 4—(CP)—Hopes for early settlement of the seven-week steel strike slumped today following a two-hour conference between Labor Minister Mitchell and union representatives.

"There has been no agreement, but there has been no irrevocable break-up," Pat Conroy, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, said as the union delegation left the minister's office.

"There is a possibility that there may be further negotiations. We have informed the minister that the union committee will remain in Ottawa until tomorrow and will be at his disposal."

There was no government comment on the meeting.

Mr. Conroy said the difference between what the government was suggesting and what the union demanded was from 2½ to five cents in addition to removal of the differential under which workers in the Dominion Steel and Coal plant at Sydney, N.S., receive five cents an hour less than workers in the Ontario mills.

Settlement was announced at Ottawa today of the dispute which threatened a new shipping strike on the Great Lakes. And the 7-weeks-old basic steel strike was believed near solution with steel union heads meeting labor minister Mitchell at Ottawa today.

But the brighter developments in steel and shipping were countered by new threats of strikes. Reports from Calgary were that meetings are continuing in an effort to avert a walk-out of Western Canada coal mine workers. And 20,000 farmers linked with the Alberta farmers union are ready to go on a "non-delivery strike" Friday, expecting to be joined by 83,000 farmers in Saskatchewan.

Altogether 50,000 unionists have been on strike in various industries, some of them for as long as three months. Steel settlement would cut this total by possibly 15,000. Settlement of the textile workers strike in Quebec, also a possibility in the near future, would reduce it another 3,000.

In Hamilton, where the Steel Company of Canada plant is the only basic steel plant continuing in operation, hopes were high for a settlement. The Stelco plant has upwards of 2,700 workers on the job inside strong union picket lines, and it was continual picket line friction that led to despatch of 450 Federal and Provincial Police to Hamilton two weeks ago.

Lady Montgomery's Condition Unchanged

Moville, County Donegal, Eire, Sept. 4 —(CP Cable)— Lady Montgomery's condition was unchanged today. Last night attendants reported the 82-year-old mother of Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery was "slightly improved." Lady Montgomery was taken ill at her home here 11 days ago.

Police Open Fire To Disperse Mobs In India Rioting

Casualties Soar to 132 Dead And 484 Hurt in Bombay

By G. MILTON KELLY

Bombay, Sept. 4 — (AP) — Casualties resulting from bitter Hindu-Moslem clashes which began in Bombay Sunday soared to 132 dead and 484 wounded today following a night of sporadic violence during which police several times opened fire to disperse rioting mobs.

The disorders occurred mostly in the northern section of the city, but extended to the main business section, where mobs tried to break into stores and attempted to burn a house of worship. Streets in curfew areas were littered with rocks hurled at police patrols.

Under the threat of further trouble many places of business closed their doors, while markets began to feel the pinch of a food shortage as deliveries fell off.

Sewers Become Clogged

A health menace developed in one troubled section where sewers became clogged and workers refused to clean them in fear of their lives.

Dispatches from Nasik, 117 miles north of Bombay, reported communal rioting there Tuesday in which three were slain and 30 injured. Police, who thrice opened fire to disperse mobs, imposed a strict curfew and called for military assistance from nearby Deolali.

I. I. Gundrigar, president of the Bombay Provincial Moslem League, appealed meanwhile to Moslems to remove black flags which they have been flying as a sign of protest against the new interim Indian government, in which the Moslem League has refused to participate.

Source of Contention.

The flying of the flags coincided with the start of the disorders Sunday and has been a source of contention ever since.

In Calcutta conditions were reported slowly returning to normal, but it was indicated that extraordinary police and military precautions probably would remain in force through Sept. 12, when the Bengal Legislature convenees.

More than 2,500 arrested on charges of looting, arson and assault during the Calcutta riots will be brought to trial soon in batches. Bail has been refused in most cases.

No Sign of Improvement

A government communique today said the general situation in Bombay showed "no signs of improving."

Six persons were killed during the night when police opened fire on a mob which had placed roadblocks in a northeastern Bombay residential section and set afire four trucks and two taxis.

At least five others were slain in a knifing fray when a group from one community attempted to invade a tenement. Thirteen others were wounded in this incident.

A police sub-inspector was knifed while answering one emergency call.

Acting Governor Sir Alexander blocks in a northeeastern Bomister of law and order, returned from Poona and toured trouble areas in Bombay preliminary to taking charge of control measures. Additional troops were poured into the city to assist police.

One of the first control measures adopted was extension of the curfew, effective from 7 p.m. until 6:30 a.m., to approximately 80 per cent of the city. Heretofore the curfew had been invoked only in sections which had been the scene of disorders.

Twenty eight of Bombay's 70 miles were reported closed thru absenteeism.

Exiled Monarch Wins 69 P.C. Plebiscite Vote

Athens, Sept. 4 —(AP)— The total vote cast Sunday in the Greek plebiscite on the return of King George II neared 100 per cent of the estimated total registration today, with the exiled monarch winning 69 per cent and only 136 precincts left uncounted.

(Exchange Telegraph said in a dispatch from Athens that the Leftist E.A.M. was planning a Supreme Court challenge of the validity of the plebiscite.)

The Anglo - American observer mission announced some time before the election that revised electoral lists contained approximately 1,700,000 names, and the latest results issued by the ministry of interior listed more than 1,673,000 votes already counted.

When asked for comment on the apparent 100 per cent vote, R. T. Windle, chief of the British observer mission, said the mission's estimate might have had a small margin of error, up or down.

The public prosecutor, meanwhile, said indictments would be drawn against two Athens newspapers — the Extreme Leftist Eleftheria Elllada and the Leftist Liberal Eleftheria — for carrying "articles insulting to the King and authorities."

It was announced immediately after the plebiscite's outcome was known that an 1837 law protecting the Monarch from "slights, insults and derision," would be enforced.

Earlier, the Greek government warned that emergency measures — including establishment of military courts empowered to prescribe the death sentence — would be reinstituted unless Communist bands stopped trying to "impose by force their will" upon the nation. The warning followed Communist threats of civil war.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Sept. 4—(CP)—Synopsis at 7:30 a.m. — Clear cool weather still prevails over Ontario, Quebec and eastern states. Light frost occurred last night in many localities of south-eastern Ontario. A flow from the south is bringing somewhat higher temperatures to Manitoba and northwestern Ontario and temperatures are expected to be somewhat higher over southern Ontario on Thursday. A fresh outbreak of air from the Polar regions is moving southward this morning between Hudson Bay and the Rockies the leading edge lying across southern Alberta, central Saskatchewan, and central Manitoba and is expected to enter the Kirkland Lake region late Thursday accompanied by showers and thunderstorms.

99-year Term For Wife Murder Given Husband

Chester, Ill., Sept. 4—(AP) — Daniel S. Clifton, 36, was sentenced Tuesday to 99 years in prison on his plea of guilty to the murder of his wife, Bertha, 32.

Mrs. Clifton's decapitated body was found along railroad tracks June 1. Clifton told authorities he slugged her with a hammer and placed the body on the tracks in an effort to make it appear she had died under the wheels of a train.

Mihailovic Watched Friends Shot, Details of His Capture Disclosed

By MONTY RADULOVICH

London, Sept. 4 (Reuters) — Draja Mihailovic is dead—executed last month after being found guilty of high treason—and the full story of how the Yugoslav Chetnik leader was captured and brought to trial, based on eyewitness reports, can be told.

At Dawson on March 13, 1946, Mihailovic was hiding in a cave in the Yugoslav mountains with three of his remaining Chetnik commanders, vainly awaiting a reply to a message he had sent to the American command in Bari, Italy, asking urgently for a transport plane to carry him and his Chetnik archives to Italy.

Word had reached the cave that agents of the Yugoslav secret police—the Ozna—and armed troops and militia were closing in on Mihailovic and his three friends, Col. Nikola Kalabitch, Captain Vasiljevitch and Captain Kovatch.

Every village in the Vishegrad district had received instructions to report every move of the four men. Members of the secret police in peasant clothes were stationed in each hamlet.

The fugitives' only connection with the outside world was through Mihailovic's peasant friend, named Sima, from the village of Dobrun, a Chetnik in the First Great War. On Jan. 2, Ozna agents disguised as Chetnicks, looking for shelter, went to Sima's hut. They lived with him and after some time convinced Sima to persuade Mihailovic to use them as a bodyguard.

On March 13 Mihailovic's "bodyguard" staged a "fight" which brought about his capture. A shot was heard in the vicinity. Kalabitch awoke and began to wake the others. The "bodyguard" rushed out of the cave.

When the Chetnik leader emerged from the cave after the others, he saw the body of his friend Sima. He saw Vasiljevitch and Kovatch fall, and then Kalabitch, his only remaining companion, also fell. He was so confused that he could not hear shouts from the wood until his "bodyguard" was up to him.

"Who has attacked us?" demanded Mihailovic. But before he could get an answer he was dragged into the woods and only when handcuffs were locked on his wrists did he appear aware of what was happening. He was marched to a nearby village whence an automobile took him to Belgrade to stand trial.

Issue of Trieste Most Important Item on Agenda

Molotov Has Not Returned To Paris Peace Conference

Paris, Sept. 4 —(AP)— The four-power foreign ministers' council met today for the second time during the Paris peace conference with Deputy Foreign Commissar Vishinsky representing Russia.

Foreign Commissar Molotov, who earlier was reported by a French foreign ministry official to have returned from Moscow, was not present when the meeting opened.

French officials said their later information was that Mr. Molotov had not returned, and Russian sources said their best information was that the Soviet chief delegate would not be back until "some time later this week."

A French foreign ministry official earlier had said Mr. Molotov returned this morning and that the four foreign ministers would meet to discuss peace conference problems.

The 21 countries attempting to write peace treaties for all the conquered states of Europe save Germany and Austria still grappled with the issue of Trieste and the Venezia Giulia area of Italy, coveted by the Russian-influenced Yugoslav government of Marshal Tito.

Czechoslovakia, also in the Russian sphere, through her foreign minister, Jan Masaryk, backed Yugoslavia's claim to Trieste today.

Brazil proposed postponement of action on the Venzia Giulia frontier until the Big Four foreign ministers study the matter further and also urged that the Big Four be empowered to establish finally the border within a year after the Italian peace treaty becomes effective.

Proposes Incorporation.

South Africa proposed that additional territory in western Istria containing an Italian population be incorporated into the free territory of Trieste.

Mr. Molotov left Paris for Moscow Saturday, presumably to report on the peace conference. The Big Four meeting at 4 p.m. had been arranged prior to his return but at the suggestion of Mr. Molotov's deputy, Andrei Vishinsky. The ministers were to plan common strategy on amendments to the treaty drafts for Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland.

Russia has proposed that the Sept. 23 meeting of the United Nations Assembly in New York be postponed, and this too may be a topic of the Big Four.

Might Cause Trouble

Mr. Masaryk told the Italian political and territorial commission that Yugoslav control would ensure a "peaceful and stable Trieste" and inferentially warned that internationalization of the Adriatic port would cause future trouble.

"Corridors can cause only trouble — we have seen that in northern Europe," Mr. Masaryk said without mentioning specifically the Big Four agreement to create the free territory of Trieste.

The Yugoslav proposal would give most of Venezia Giulia, including Trieste, to Yugoslavia.

The conference military commission, meanwhile, completed action on military limitations sectionh of the Italian treaty by approving Big Four recommendations of the Italian treaty by aponly two batteships — the Doria and Duilio — four cruisers, four destroyers; 16 torpedo boats and 20 corvettes and a small number of minor fleet auxiliary vessels.

A conference sub-commission empowered to check all war bills submitted against Italy save one for $100,000,000 from Russia, already approved, was scheduled today to go over requests for $20,000,000,000 in Italian reparation payments.

Investigate Claims

The sub-commission is slated to investigate such items as Bolivia's demand for all Italian assets in Bolivia, even though she will not be one of the signers of the treaty with Italy. Ethiopia has asked $400 for each of the 760,300 of her people claimed killed during the war with Italy and $50 for each of the $13,000,000 animals she says the Italians took — a total approximating $1,000,000,000 dollars.

Britain and Greece also have filed large reparations claims against Italy.

The question of the future of the Jews in Europe entered conference debate for the first time yesterday when the Romanian political and territorial commission argued for three hours over an Australian proposal to include in the Romanian treaty a guarantee that Romania never would adopt any law or decree contrary to fundamental democratic freedoms. The commission took no final action on the matter.

FOUND DEAD IN SEWER

Missing for almost a month, Mrs. Catherine A. Norlie (above) of Lowell, Mass., was found, her body hanging from a sewer outlet on the Merrimac River. The woman had been brutally beaten and shot three times through the neck. Police believe the crime was committed by a jealous suitor. A man whose identity has not been revealed is being questioned by investigators.

United States Hands Yugoslavia Bill For Damages

By GRAHAM HOVEY

Washington, Sept. 4 —(AP)— The United States handed Yugoslavia a blank bill for damages today with a sharp notice that it expects Marshal Tito's government to pay the full amount when it is written in.

If Tito agrees, the United States stands ready to write "finished" to the incidents in which two unarmed American transport planes were forced down by Yugoslav fighters at a cost of five American lives.

Should Tito refuse, the United States might have to dust off its 13-day-old threat to take the case before the United Nations Security Council.

The notice that the United States expects damages for the loss of life and property was contained in a lengthy note delivered by William L. Clayton, undersecretary of state, to Dr. Sergije Makiedo, Yugoslav charge d'affaires, last night. The note in fact, expressed surprise that Yugoslavia had not volunteered in advance to pay.

Denies Tito Claims.

Beyond that, Mr. Clayton painstakingly citing numbers, dates, places and types of aircraft, denied a series of Tito claims that American planes were flying virtually at will over Yugoslavia without permission, and thus violating that country's sovereignty.

After answering each point of the Tito indictment, Mr. Clayton declared that the alleged violations of Yugoslav territory "must have been made by planes other than United States planes." He did not elaborate on that point.

TWENTY PERSONS KILLED IN CRASH OF FRENCH PLANE

Air Liner Taking Off From Paris to London And Failed to Clear Factory Roof

By MEL MOST

Paris, Sept. 4 (AP)—Twenty persons today were killed in the crash of an Air France Liner taking off from Paris for London, bringing to 49 the total number of dead in French plane accidents in three days.

The latest crash, which killed 17 of 21 passengers and three of the crew of five, occurred at 9:15 a.m. when the Paris-London liner failed to clear a factory roof at Le Bourget, Air France announced.

At the same time, the line confirmed the death of 17 passengers and five crew members when another of its planes crashed just 16 1-2 hours before 21 miles out of Copenhagen.

Three French airmen and four French civilian passengers were killed Monday when an army plane crashed in a wood shortly after taking off from the Villacoublay air base in Paris, for Grenoble.

Air France released the names of only six survivors of the Bourget crash. It said it was withholding the rest of the passenger lists of the two planes "until next of kin have been duly notified."

A 21st victim of today's crash was a workman killed by collapse of a roof of an automobile radiator factory hit by the plane.

Sure there's a shortage of jams and jellies, and of salt and butter and hardware, among other things. But this business of shortages has to be handled carefully. For instance, there's an ample supply of fruits and vegetables.

In the United States, Washington officials have issued a government-stamped list of commodities in short supply, such as hogs and cattle, fats and oils, and jams and jellies. This prompted a nation-wide survey by The Canadian Press of Canada's supply situation.

The Prices Board at Ottawa doesn't give official lists of commodities in short supply for the good reason that if a commodity is in short supply, it's practically non-existent after the word gets around.

In Nova Scotia the only agricultural commodity in short supply is butter, most of which Nova Scotia has to import anyway. Vegetables and fruits are ample.

In the Montreal district vegetables and early fruits are plentiful. There won't be any shortage of apples. But oats and barley are expected to be 40 per cent below normal.

Big Fruit Crop.

In Toronto — and Ontario generally — you're lucky if you can get jams and jellies but there'll be a big fruit crop and this will help later on. There is a shortage of salt which has affected the entire Dominion because of a strike in one factory in Western Ontario which supplies chemicals used in refining salt. Fats and oils, soap and toilet paper, confectionery and tinned fish all are hard to get.

There's also an Ontario shortage — take it easy now — in butter and cheese and milk, vaguely blamed on a let-down by the producers after the hard-working war years. Pastures are bad in some places, farm labor is still none too plentiful, and it will be some time before the dairy producers are stuck with surpluses.

Still, there's a fair crop of everything in Ontario, the cattle population and cattle marketing are above former peaks, egg production is away up and so is poultry marketing. There's plenty of fish.

British Columbia has about the same shortages as other Western provinces: salt and soap and toilet tissue, bacon and canned goods and jams and jellies are pretty hard to find. But they're all managing somehow.

45 DIE IN POLITICAL MURDERS IN GREECE

Athens, Sept. 4—(Reuters) — Forty-five persons died in political murders in Greece during the week ending Aug. 31, a British report issued today said.

Of these, 22 were victims of the right wing, nine of the left and 14 of unknown persons.

SOME U.K. TROOPS LEAVING GREECE IN RE-GROUPING

No Immediate General Withdrawal Expected and No Political Significance

London, Sept. 4 (CP)—A foreign office spokesman said today that some British troops are being withdrawn from Greece as part of a general re-grouping of British forces in the Middle East.

London newspapers earlier today suggested that British troops be withdrawn from Greece now that the Greek people have voted in a plebiscite to recall King George from his London exile.

The British government has been committed to withdrawal of its forces as soon as the political situation became stabilized by elections.

The foreign office spokesman said however that no general withdrawal was in immediate prospect and that there was "no political significance" to the present troop movements.

He declined to give the number of men being moved out of Greece. The latest announced strength of British forces in the Hellenic Kingdom was at least 50,000.

King George II today awaited a personal invitation from Premier Tsaldaris to return to the Greek throne in Athens.

Part of Transition

The British spokesman said the Middle East re-grouping was part of the transition from war to peace-time conditions and was "not necessarily" connected with Anglo-Egyptian negotiations for a revision of the 1936 defence pact with Egypt, which involve the evacuation of England's troops from the Nile kingdom.

He said, however, that one of the most important divisions in Greece was being split up by the shift and that the troops evacuated were not likely to be replaced.

The decision to reduce British forces in Greece, the spokesman added, was made "some weeks ago"—that is, before last Sunday's plebiscite in which the Greek government announced an overwhelming return for King George.

The Soviet Ukraine, in bringing charges before the United Nations Security Council, declared Greece was endangering the peace of the Balkans and that the presence of British troops was an important factor in the threat to Balkan order.

British troops were used to quell the civil war which broke out between leftist and government forces in Greece in December, 1944.

THIRD POLIO DEATH REPORTED AT WINDSOR

Windsor, Sept. 4 — (CP) — Death of Ronald Bruce Leggett, 13, was the third fatality in the poliomyelitis outbreak here, while another case was admitted to the isolation hospital yesterday, bringing the total Windsor polio cases to 38, Dr. John Howie, Medical Officer of Health, said today. The boy contracted the Bulbar type of polio which Dr. Howie said is extremely dangerous.

HOPES FOR EARLY SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE SLUMP

Union Official States No Agreement Was Reached at Meeting With Government

By JACK WILLIAMS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 4—(CP)—Hopes for early settlement of the seven-week steel strike slumped today following a two-hour conference between Labor Minister Mitchell and union representatives.

"There has been no agreement, but there has been no irrevocable break-up," Pat Conroy, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, said as the union delegation left the minister's office.

"There is a possibility that there may be further negotiations. We have informed the minister that the union committee will remain in Ottawa until tomorrow and will be at his disposal."

There was no government comment on the meeting.

Mr. Conroy said the difference between what the government was suggesting and what the union demanded was from 2½ to five cents in addition to removal of the differential under which workers in the Dominion Steel and Coal plant at Sydney, N.S., receive five cents an hour less than workers in the Ontario mills.

Settlement was announced at Ottawa today of the dispute which threatened a new shipping strike on the Great Lakes. And the 7-weeks-old basic steel strike was believed near solution with steel union heads meeting labor minister Mitchell at Ottawa today.

But the brighter developments in steel and shipping were countered by new threats of strikes. Reports from Calgary were that meetings are continuing in an effort to avert a walk-out of Western Canada coal mine workers. And 20,000 farmers linked with the Alberta farmers union are ready to go on a "non-delivery strike" Friday, expecting to be joined by 83,000 farmers in Saskatchewan.

Altogether 50,000 unionists have been on strike in various industries, some of them for as long as three months. Steel settlement would cut this total by possibly 15,000. Settlement of the textile workers strike in Quebec, also a possibility in the near future, would reduce it another 3,000.

In Hamilton, where the Steel Company of Canada plant is the only basic steel plant continuing in operation, hopes were high for a settlement. The Stelco plant has upwards of 2,700 workers on the job inside strong union picket lines, and it was continual picket line friction that led to despatch of 450 Federal and Provincial Police to Hamilton two weeks ago.

Lady Montgomery's Condition Unchanged

Moville, County Donegal, Eire, Sept. 4 —(CP Cable)— Lady Montgomery's condition was unchanged today. Last night attendants reported the 82-year-old mother of Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery was "slightly improved." Lady Montgomery was taken ill at her home here 11 days age.

Police Open Fire To Disperse Mobs In India Rioting

Casualties Soar to 132 Dead And 484 Hurt in Bombay

By G. MILTON KELLY

Bombay, Sept. 4 — (AP) — Casualties resulting from bitter Hindu-Moslem clashes which began in Bombay Sunday soared to 132 dead and 484 wounded today following a night of sporadic violence during which police several times opened fire to disperse rioting mobs.

The disorders occurred mostly in the northern section of the city, but extended to the main business section, where mobs tried to break into stores and attempted to burn a house of worship. Streets in curfew areas were littered with rocks hurled at police patrols.

Under the threat of further trouble many places of business closed their doors, while markets began to feel the pinch of a food shortage as deliveries fell off.

Sewers Become Clogged

A health menace developed in one troubled section where sewers became clogged and workers refused to clean them in fear of their lives.

Dispatches from Nasik, 117 miles north of Bombay, reported communal rioting there Tuesday in which three were slain and 30 injured. Police, who thrice opened fire to disperse mobs, imposed a strict curfew and called for military assistance from nearby Deolali.

I. I. Gundrigar, president of the Bombay Provincial Moslem League, appealed meanwhile to Moslems to remove black flags which they have been flying as a sign of protest against the new interim Indian government, in which the Moslem League has refused to participate.

Source of Contention

The flying of the flags coincided with the start of the disorders Sunday and has been a source of contention ever since.

In Calcutta conditions were reported slowly returning to normal, but it was indicated that extraordinary police and military precautions probably would remain in force through Sept. 12, when the Bengal Legislature convenees.

More than 2,500 arrested on charges of looting, arson and assault during the Calcutta riots will be brought to trial soon in batches. Bail has been refused in most cases.

No Sign of Improvement

A government communique today said the general situation in Bombay showed "no signs of improving."

Six persons were killed during the night when police opened fire on a mob which had placed road-blocks in a northeastern Bombay residential section and set afire four trucks and two taxis.

At least five others were slain in a knifing fray when a group from one community attempted to invade a tenement. Thirteen others were wounded in this incident.

A police sub-inspector was knifed while answering one emergency call.

Acting Governor Sir Alexander blocks in a northeeastern Bomister of law and order, returned from Poona and toured trouble areas in Bombay preliminary to taking charge of control measures. Additional troops were poured into the city to assist police.

One of the first control measures adopted was extension of the curfew, effective from 7 p.m. until 6:30 a.m., to approximately 80 per cent of the city. Heretofore the curfew had been invoked only in sections which had been the scene of disorders.

Twenty eight of Bombay's 70 miles were reported closed thru absenteeism.

Exiled Monarch Wins 69 P.C. Plebiscite Vote

Athens, Sept. 4 —(AP)— The total vote cast Sunday in the Greek plebiscite on the return of King George II neared 100 per cent of the estimated total registration today, with the exiled monarch winning 69 per cent and only 136 precincts left uncounted.

(Exchange Telegraph said in a dispatch from Athens that the Leftist E.A.M. was planning a Supreme Court challenge of the validity of the plebiscite.)

The Anglo - American observer mission announced some time before the election that revised electoral lists contained approximately 1,700,000 names, and the latest results issued by the ministry of interior listed more than 1,673,000 votes already counted.

When asked for comment on the apparent 100 per cent vote, R. T. Windle, chief of the British observer mission, said the mission's estimate might have had a small margin of error, up or down.

The public prosecutor, meanwhile, said indictments would be drawn against two Athens newspapers — the Extreme Leftist Eleftheria Ellada and the Leftist Liberal Eleftheria — for carrying "articles insulting to the King and authorities."

It was announced immediately after the plebiscite's outcome was known that an 1837 law protecting the Monarch from "slights, insults and derision," would be enforced.

Earlier, the Greek government warned that emergency measures — including establishment of military courts empowered to prescribe the death sentence — would be reinstituted unless Communist bands stopped trying to "impose by force their will" upon the nation. The warning followed Communist threats of civil war.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Sept. 4—(CP)—Synopsis at 7:30 a.m. — Clear cool weather still prevails over Ontario, Quebec and eastern states. Light frost occurred last night in many localities of south-eastern Ontario. A flow from the south is bringing somewhat higher temperatures to Manitoba and northwestern Ontario and temperatures are expected to be somewhat higher over southern Ontario on Thursday. A fresh outbreak of air from the Polar regions is moving southward this morning between Hudson Bay and the Rocwies the leading edge lying across southern Alberta, central Saskatchewan, and central Manitoba and is expected to enter the Kirkland Lake region late Thursday accompanied by showers and thunderstorms.

99-year Term For Wife Murder Given Husband

Chester, Ill., Sept. 4—(AP) — Daniel S. Clifton, 36, was sentenced Tuesday to 99 years in prison on his plea of guilty to the murder of his wife, Bertha, 32.

Mrs. Clifton's decapitated body was found along railroad tracks June 1. Clifton told authorities he slugged her with a hammer and placed the body on the tracks in an effort to make it appear she had died under the wheels of a train.

Mihailovic Watched Friends Shot, Details of His Capture Disclosed

By MONTY RADULOVICH

London, Sept. 4 (Reuters) — Draja Mihailovic is dead—executed last month after being found guilty of high treason—and the full story of how the Yugoslav Chetnik leader was captured and brought to trial, based on eye-witness reports, can be told.

At Dawson on March 13, 1946, Mihailovic was hiding in a cave in the Yugoslav mountains with three of his remaining Chetnik commanders, vainly awaiting a reply to a message he had sent to the American command in Bari, Italy, asking urgently for a transport plane to carry him and his Chetnik archives to Italy.

Word had reached the cave that agents of the Yugoslav secret police—the Ozna—and armed troops and militia were closing in on Mihailovic and his three friends, Col. Nikola Kalabitch, Captain Vasiljevitch and Captain Kovatch.

Every village in the Vishegrad district had received instructions to report every move of the four men. Members of the secret police in peasant clothes were stationed in each hamlet.

The fugitives' only connection with the outside world was through Mihailovic's peasant friend, named Sima, from the village of Dobrun, a Chetnik in the First Great War. On Jan. 2, Ozna agents disguised as Chetnicks, looking for shelter, went to Sima's hut. They lived with him and after some time convinced Sima to persuade Mihailovic to use them as a bodyguard.

On March 13 Mihailovic's "bodyguard" staged a "fight" which brought about his capture. A shot was heard in the vicinity. Kalabitch awoke and began to wake the others. The "bodyguard" rushed out of the cave.

When the Chetnik leader emerged from the cave after the others, he saw the body of his friend Sima. He saw Vasiljevitch and Kovatch fall, and then Kalabitch, his only remaining companion, also fell. He was so confused that he could not hear shouts from the wood until his "bodyguard" was up to him.

"Who has attacked us?" demanded Mihailovic. But before he could get an answer he was dragged into the woods and only when handcuffs were locked on his wrists did he appear aware of what was happening. He was marched to a nearby village whence an automobile took him to Belgrade to stand trial.

FORGETFULNESS COSTS PETERBOROUGH MAN $13

That is does not pay to forget where the family automobile was parked was demonstrated on Tuesday to Jack Lagras of Peterboro when it cost him exactly $13 to find his car which he had reported stolen.

Yesterday Lagras entered the local police station stating that he could not find his automobile which he had left parked on the street. Unfortunately for him, however, he showed definite signs of intoxication and was booked on the drunk charge. Police later found his car — right where he had parked it on Pinnacle Street near the Quinte Hotel.

TEMPERATURE DROPS TO DANGEROUS LEVEL

Tomatoes in the Belleville district again had a narrow escape from frost damage on Tuesday night when the thermometer dropped to danger level during the night. Official reading at the Belleville water purification plant on the Trent Road was 36 degrees, but farmers in the rural districts to the north reported lower temperatures.

One farmer motoring from Stirling to Belleville at an early hour reported white frost clinging to rooftops and in low-lying hollows. Officials at the Canada Packers canning plant in Belleville, up to late morning had not received any report of damage to field tomatoes, however.

BELLEVILLE FIRM GETS ROOFING CONTRACT

The Belleville contracting firm of Alex W. Carmichael has been awarded the contract for the roofing, insulation and sheet-metal work for the new engineering building being erected by the Bata Shoe Company at Batawa. The new building will be of Monitor type construction and will be erected with brick and steel. The building will be of one storey, and will be built with the company's construction forces.

MOTORIST INJURED WHEN CAR HITS POLE

George Sweet, R.R. 8 Belleville, was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital early Wednesday morning following a motor accident on the 2nd concession of Sidney township last midnight. It was reported the auto in which Sweet was riding left the road and crashed into a telephone pole with Sweet reported to have sustained a dislocated hip in the accident.

ROCHESTER MAN HAD LAPSE OF MEMORY

Suffering from exposure and lack of food, after he had a lapse of memory, George Latta, Rochester, N.Y., returned to Picton after spending Saturday and Sunday in the woods near the bay shore of Adolphustown.

Latta's boat had run out of gasoline and he was unable to contact anyone. He was brought back to Picton by automobile after he had notified Picton friends of his predicament by phone. The boat, a rented one, was brought back by its owner after they located it on the shore of Adolphustown.

PICTON BOY DIES IN BIKE ACCIDENT

HON. PAUL MARTIN VISITS CITY OCT. 10

The visit of the Hon. Paul Martin, Secretary of State to this city, originally scheduled for early this month has been postponed to October 10, Kiwanis Club officials announced today.

The secretary who will attend the United Nations Security Council meeting in New York notified local officials of the postponement due to pressure of federal business. He will speak to service clubs here on the occasion of his visit.

Toronto Man Charged With Rape of Young Girl

Toronto, Sept. 4 (CP)—Police said today that Ernest Pearch, 22, of Toronto was arrested as he walked to work and was charged as the man who last Saturday seized a five-year-old girl by the throat, dragged her into a lane and raped her.

The girl, daughter of a taxi-driver, was returning home from a candy store where she had made a three-cent purchase. Hospital attendants said today her condition is improved but she will not be released for 10 days.

Pearch's arrest climaxed an intensive police search. Detectives said the girl's description of her assailant tallied with that given by other children who had been molested in the same east-central district.

Many in City Seeking Rooms For the Winter

The rooms and other small accommodation situation in Belleville is now becoming desperate, Mrs. J. A. Kerr, Rooms Registry secretary stated today. "The time is coming and is almost here when someone must do something for these people who are desperately in need of housing accommodation," she said.

Mrs. Kerr has 250 applications on file in her office in the Y.M.C.A. with the number increasing daily.

The seriousness of the problem has increased by leaps and bounds during the past two weeks due to the fact that city residents who sub-let their houses and apartments are now returning to the city from cottages and camps. Then, too, cooler weather is bringing people back to city homes that were being utilized by those who have no accommodation, during the summer months.

There is real hardship in the stories of these people, many of whom have small babies, or are expectant mothers, Mrs. Kerr said. "There is not a single house for rent in the city, and what will be the outcome no one seems to know — and apparently but very few care."

"Some applicants are so desperately in need of rooms or small apartments that they will take a shack, shanty or even a dog-house, if such things were procurable."

She had placed 163 persons during the month of August and in the 250 applications now on file some 600 persons are involved.

The majority of applicants are service men, many of whom served five years overseas. "They are not bitter at the situation, only hopeful that some one soon will do something for them," Mrs. Kerr said.

Inquest Finds Girl's Death Accidental

A verdict of accidental death with no blame attached to the driver of the car was returned by a coroner's jury Tuesday evening at the adjourned inquest looking into the death of Marilyn Herbertson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Herbertson of Foxboro.

The Herbertson girl was instantly killed on the evening of June 26th when she was struck by a car driven by Robert Anderson of Campbellford. The little girl was crossing the street in company with a playmate when the accident occurred.

The inquest was held before Coroner Dr. J. S. Demorest of Foxboro with Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson acting for the Crown. A total of 13 witnesses were called to give evidence.

Jurors empanelled by Coroner's Constable Thomas Thorne were: Charles McKenzie, Frank Smith, Albert Holway, Frank Sharp and William Hall.

Obituary

LATE ROBERT STEWART

The funeral of Robert Stewart, late residence, 157 Church Street, Belleville, who died in the Veterans' Memorial Hospital, Kingston, on Saturday last at the age of 59 years, took place from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, on Tuesday afternoon. The service in the chapel was conducted by Major the Rev. Fred Goforth, Chaplain of the Royal Military College, Kingston, and Major the Rev. Arthur Smith, Chaplain of the 15th Battalion Argyll Light Infantry (Tank), and rector of St. Thomas' Church.

Thirty-five members of the Army and Navy Veterans were present in charge of Frank Post. Interment took place at Belleville Cemetery and the committal prayers were said by Major the Rev. Arthur Smith. The hymn "The Old Rugged Cross," was played by Pipe Sergeant Jamie Clarke at the graveside and the Last Post and Reveille were sounded by three buglers from the Royal Military College, Kingston.

The bearers were a detail of six corporals from the Royal Military College.

CHARLES ELROY YOUNG
(Harlow and Williamsville, N.Y.)

Charles Elroy Young, age 55, years, died in the Belleville General Hospital early Wednesday morning as the result of injuries sustained when attacked by a bull recently at Harlow, Ontario, where he was spending a vacation at his summer home. He resided at Williamsville, N.Y., and he is survived by his wife and 3 daughters.

The body will be forwarded today from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, to Williamsville, N.Y., for burial on Saturday.

LONDON MOTHERS MARCH TO WHITEHALL TO PRESS DEMANDS

London mothers are shown as they marched from Trafalgar Square to Whitehall to demand the abolition of the present anomalies in the payment of family allowances. They say that in certain cases the present law should be amended to prevent the deduction of the recently introduced children's allowances. Particularly families receiving low income from compensation or assistance are barred from getting the same children's allowances as people earning wages. This anomaly is causing intense disappointment. Most of the mothers took their children along.

New Yorker Has Muskie Weighing 25 lbs. Mounted

Marmora — Mr. Schrieder of Cuba, N.Y., who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Dennis for several past fishing seasons and who returned again recently on a visit, secured a fine muskie at Crowe shortly after noon on Tuesday while in the company of his host. The fish weighed twenty-five and a half pounds. Later in the day the fish was taken to Peterborough to be mounted.

HOPES FOR EARLY

Whether a steel settlement would help bring settlement of other disputes was problematical, but it was a fact that the other disputes in eastern industries have been more or less marking time pending a break in steel. More than 10,000 rubber workers are on strike in Ontario plants. More than 5,000 textile workers are idle in Ontario and Quebec. Electrical workers are on strike in Ontario, motor vehicle factory workers in Ontario, metal miners in British Columbia and Ontario, brass factory workers in Ontario, metal foundry workers in British Columbia and chemical factory workers in Ontario.

While terms of the government's settlement plan have not been disclosed it is understood it provides for a sliding scale of wage increases which, in the top brackets, would be the 10 cents previously offered by the government, and in the lower-paid brackets would run as high as 12 1-2 cents.

Thus, for the lower-paid workers the settlement would be at roughly the halfway mark between what the union demanded and what the government originally proposed.

An important development which has become known since last week's union-government conferences is the passage of an Order-in-Council giving the labor minister authority to conduct votes either when a strike is threatened or has actually taken place.

The order follows the general terms of recommendations made to the Commons by the Parliamentary Industrial Relations Committee as a result of its investigation of labor unrest, including the steel strike.

Should the government suggest using it in the steel strike, however, there would undoubtedly be strong objection from the union. At the Hamilton plant of the Steel Company of Canada some 2,000 workers have stayed in the plant throughout the strike and have been told they will be paid on a 24-hour basis.

There is no question that the union would object to these workers taking part in a vote on whether the government's settlement plan should be accepted.

DEATHS

YOUNG — In the Belleville General Hospital early Wednesday morning, September 4th., Charles Elroy Young, of Harlow, Ontario, and Williamsville, N.Y., age 55 years. The body will be forwarded Wednesday evening from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, to Williamsville, N.Y., where the funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon.

IN MEMORIAM

CROUTER — In loving memory of my dear sister, Mrs. Hazel Crouter, who died September 1, 1943.

You are not forgotten, sister,
Nor ever will you be,
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee.
—Ever remembered by brother John.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Robert Stewart, 157 Church St. and the members of her family desire to convey to friends and neighbors their sincere thanks for the many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy extended to them in their recent bereavement; also for the many beautiful floral tributes and the kind offers of the use of cars.

Flying Fishermen Rescued — Detroit fishermen missing west of Blind River when their plane was damaged in landing on Quirk Lake are seen with Tom Woodside, Department of Lands and Forests fire specialist (right) who spotted the plane during search.

SAVED WHEN YACHT HITS ROCKS

Susan, eight, and Barbara Berry, 10, RIGHT, daughters of Major Gomer Berry, second son of Lord Kemsley, publisher of Britain's largest chain of newspapers, had a narrow escape with their father when their yacht was driven into the rocks under the cliffs on the Isle of Wight off Southampton during a howling gale. The children are shown at a hotel after clifftop residents rescued them by means of rope ladders dropped 400 feet down. The girls made no fuss about climbing up the 400-foot rope ladder, one of the rescuers saying, "They were very brave little girls." In addition to the three Berrys, a housekeeper and two seamen were also rescued. The 51-ton yacht was anchored during the storm, but was swept on to the rocks when its chain parted.

Day-to-Day Life in Palestine Goes On Despite Politico-Racial Strife

By CARTER L. DAVIDSON

Jerusalem, Sept. 4 —(AP)— Beneath the sound and fury of Palestine's political-racial miseries, one thing is often forgotten: Palestine is a land where people live, love, labor and listen to music.

The world has a Palestine problem because the Jews and Arabs have religious affinities that transcend national boundaries. But Palestinians are people and they have problems, too.

The land is a land of scenic beauty and healthful, sub-tropical climate. It has rock-crested mountains and verdant plains. Its scenic beauty is marred but little by the hundreds of miles of barbed wire entanglements, the sprawling military encampments and the thousands of military vehicles trundling over its winding roads.

Some call Palestine an armed camp. Some call it an incubator for a third world war. All may be correct. Certainly there is tension underlying every social endeavor. But it is no less true that Palestine is a land where soil is tilled and crops harvested, where people water their flowers and go to church and pray in the way of their faith.

Here are two ancient peoples and a British Mandate Government in which neither has a substantial voice. The Jews have their Jewish agency, and the Arabs their Arab executive, shadow governments whose shadows fall across the Mandate.

Big power politics in the world's other capitals cause stirrings among Palestine Politicos. But what's said in London and Washington never changes the taste of grilled fish on the terrace by the sea of Galilee nor stops the breakers on the Mediterranean beaches.

Some two dozen foreign newspapermen, representing the world's big agencies and newspapers, live in Jerusalems hotels and report news as it happen glean bits and pieces of intelligence from government "handouts," and write deep "think pieces." They visit the homes of Arab and Jew and are plied with coffee, brandy and political persuasion.

It's true that every government building and every house of a top government official wears a barbed wire skirt. But it's equally true that there are many more apartment houses and private homes whose distinguishing mark is a clothes line full of laundry.

CUT DOWN ON TAKING LAXATIVES THIS WAY

See How Regular You Can Be Every Morning

Try taking Carter's Pills this way: Start with 3 and set a definite time every morning. When you get regular every morning cut down to 2. After a few days, try 1.

Then try taking Carter's every other day. You may even find you can keep regular without any laxative.

You see, Carter's are so tiny you can cut down the dose—from 3 to 1—to fit the needs of your individual system. Without disappointment.

Carter's help clean out your intestinal tract not halfway, but thoroughly. They are doubly effective because made with two vegetable herbs compounded properly for thorough, easy action.

Thousands can cut down on laxative dosing this Carter way. Ask for Carter's Pills [illegible] to get the genuine at any drugstore—35¢, 70¢, $1.00. Start the Carter graduated dose method tonight, and jump out of bed tomorrow rarin' to go.

BATTLE OF

Outlines Strategy

Field Marshal Montgomery wrote that "once ashore and firmly established, my plan was to threaten to break out on the eastern flank—that is the Caen sector; by this threat to draw the main enemy reserves into that sector; to fight them there and keep them there, using the British and Canadian armies for that purpose.

"Having got the main enemy reserves committed on the eastern flank, my plan was to make the breakout on the western flank, using for this task the American armies under Gen. (Omar) Bradley (later Commander of all American ground forces), and pivoting on Caen; this would cut off all the enemy forces south of the Seine, over which river the bridges were to be destroyed by air action. This general plan was given out by me to the general officers on the field armies in London on April 7, 1944. The operations developed in June, July and August exactly as planned; I had given D-plus-90 as a target date for being lined up at the Seine; actually the first crossing of the river was made on D-plus-75."

German Compromise Plan

In dealing with the layout of enemy defences against all invasion of France the Field Marshal disclosed that Field Marshal Gerd Von Rundstedt German Commander-in-Chief in the west, and Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, who under Von Rundstedt was in command of Western France, Belgium and Holland, were not in agreement about how invading forces were to be dealt with.

"Rommel, who was no strategist, favored a plan for total repulse of the invader on the beaches," Field Marshal Montgomery said.

"Von Rundstedt on the other hand favored a 'crust-cushion-hammer' plan. This implied a crust of infantry manning the coastline with a cushion of infantry divisions in tactical reserve in close in rear and a hammer of armored forces in strategic reserve further inland. The cushion was designed to contain enemy forces which penetrated the crust, and the hammer was available for launching decisive counter-attacks.

"These differing theories led to a compromise. Armored reserves were generally kept well back, but the majority of infantry divisions was committed to strengthening the crust. The result was that in the event panzer divisions were forced to engage us prematurely and were unable to concentrate to deliver a co-ordinated blow—until it was too late."

The report went into great detail as to the specialized equipment assembled for the landing, and to the build-up of forces once the initial beachheads were established.

Complete Surprise

Complete surprise was achieved on the morning of the great assault, Lord Montgomery said. The troops had fought magnificently and Allied losses had been much lower than had seemed possible.

The subsequent story of Allied progress including the capture of Cherbourg and Saint Lo by the American forces and the heavy fighting by Canadian and British forces before Caen was then related and Field Marshal Montgomery said that "by Aug. 6 I was still not clear what the enemy intended to do."

"On Aug. 6 I issued orders for the advance to the Seine. Between Aug. 7 and 11 it became clear that the enemy had decided to fight the battle of France on our side of the Seine.

Then developed the battle of the pocket and corridor around Falaise. Bitter fighting ensued as the Allies sought to frustrate the German attempt to retreat from the mountain area through the corridor beween Falaise and Argenten and on towards the Seine ferries. American, Canadian and British troops all pressed in, the Canadians took Falaise on Aug. 14 and "by Aug. 16 the enemy lost all cohesion."

Eisenhower Takes Over

On Sept. 1, according to prearranged plan, Gen. Eisenhower, Supreme Allied Commander, assumed command and direction of the army groups himself and Field Marshal Montgomery took over command of the 21st Army group, made up of the British and Canadian forces with various Allied contingents serving with them, while Gen. Bradley took over command of the American 12th Army Group.

From this point the report is primarily concerned with the 21st Army Group. The immediate tasks of the 21st Army Group were the destruction of the enemy in northwestern France, clearance of the Pas De Calais with its V-bomb sites, capture of airfields in Belgium and capture of Antwerp. These tasks were carried out, clearing of the Pas De Calais being achieved by the 1st Canadian Army.

"The Supreme Commander directed that our immediate aim should be the establishment of bridges over the Rhine throughout its entire length and that we should not go beyond this until Antwerp or Rotterdam could be opened," Lord Montgomery said.

"It was already noticeable that the enemy was beginning to recover his balance so that the urgency of launching a thrust to the Rhine was underlined."

From this urgency developed the Arnhem operation beginning Sept. 17.

Battle of Ardennes

After outlining the Canadian task in clearance of the Schelde Estuary in October, Lord Montgomery came to the battle of the Ardennes.

"The full weight of the German counter-offensive in the Ardennes was not immediately apparent," he said. "Extremely bad weather had precluded satisfactory air reconnaissance, and the German concentration had been carried out with a high degree of secrecy.

"By the 19th the full implication of the German attack was established. It was known that the 6th S.S. panzer army was thrusting in a northwesterly direction towards Liege, with the 5th panzer army in a wider wheel on its left. The 7th German army was in support.

"On the same day the Supreme Commander entrusted to me temporary command of the 1st and 9th United States armies as they were at that time on the northern side of the German salient, and therefore remote from the 12th United States army group axis.

"On the 19th I ordered Gen. (Sir Miles) Dempsey (Commander of the British 2nd Army) to a general line from Liege to Louvain, with patrols forward along the western bank of the river between Liege itself and Dinant. This corps was thus suitably placed to prevent the enemy crossing the river, and could cover the routes from the southeast leading into Brussels. It subsequently became necessary in connection with the regrouping of American 1st army to send some British divisions east of the Meuse.

Praises American Soldiers

"But throughout the battle I was anxious to avoid committing British forces more than was necessary. Had they become involved in large numbers acute administrative problem would have resulted from their lines of communication crossing the axis of two American armies....

"The battle of the Ardennes was won primarily by the staunch fighting qualities of the American soldier, and the enemy's subsequent confusion was completed by the intense air action which became possible as weather conditions improved....

"The enemy had been prevented from crossing the Meuse in the nick of time. Once the Meuse crossings were secure it became increasingly apparent that the opportunity had come to turn the enemy's position to our advantage. Hitler's projected counter-offensive ended in a tactical defeat, and the Germans received a tremendous battering."

The report then reviewed the battle of the Rhineland where the enemy, with "intense and fanatical opposition," accepted, "as we had hoped," battle west of the Rhine.

In it the enemy suffered yet another heavy defeat, losing nearly 100,000 men, with 18 divisions battered.

The crossing of the Rhine, led by the United States 1st Army's capture of the railway bridge at Remagen, was next detailed at length and on the British-Canadian front to the north "we were now in a position to drive into the plains of northern Germany."

The British and Canadian bridgehead over the Rhine was established in four days and the advance began to the Elbe. An operation to outflank Hamburg was in progress when the Germans surrendered.

A German delegation, headed by General-Admiral Von Friedenburg was dispatched to Lord Montgomery's headquarters May 3.

PREDICTS 30-HOUR WEEK

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 4—(AP) — William Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, in a Labor Day address Monday looked beyond what he saw as dangers facing labor abroad and in the United States to envision the approach of a new era when the atom will be "applied to lighten the labors of mankind."

"The 40 hour week is doomed," the Labor leader told a rally at the Tulsa State fairgrounds. "Within the foreseeable future the 30-hour week is bound to come."

Mr. Green called upon the United States to be "firm with Russia now or be forced to fight her later" and cited to American labor the possibility of an "insurrection inspired by Communist leaders" within and "the forces of Fascism in America" without.

Long Trial Ends

One of the greatest legal and international events in history has been the trial of twenty-one German leaders accused of crimes against humanity in launching war against nation after nation. To Germany it must have special significance for the plight which is Germany's today is the result of her permitting Hitler to rule with despotic power and to aim at world domination. It has its message for the Germans of today and for other nations and for ages to come. The trial has ended with the evidence put in and the last pleas of the accused leaders made.

A fair trial has been given them and a great mass of evidence has been submitted which will become historic because of what it reveals of Nazi Germany's pursuit of aggression and the lengths to which Hitlerism went to dominate first Germany, then her neighbors and afterwards the world. The latter aim fortunately Hitler was never able to achieve for destiny caught up with him.

It was natural that the present age should pay close attention to this trial because this inquiry into the crimes of Germany and the crimes which are charged against the twenty-one leaders follows so closely on the long war and throws light on that period of world suffering and on the peculiar development of Nazism which shocked humanity. For the world of the future generations there will be profound interest in the course of the trial and on the findings of the tribunal. It has given the accused men the fairest possible trial and has brought to light a great deal of evidence on the development of Nazi Germany and aggression.

Very soon the verdict will be given — a document of deepest importance to mankind and of coming generations. The world has read much of the evidence presented. It now awaits the judgment of the court which will have a place in the history of democracy and freedom.

Housing

620,000 houses in Britain, damaged during the war but still considered habitable, were repaired by the end of July. Excluding prisoners of war 521,800 men have been employed on housing in England and Wales up to the end of July. In July 1945 the total was only 320,040. As repairs to damaged houses decline men are switched to the building of permanent houses. Scotland's labor force in July totalled 45,550.

During July, 1946, 10,395 houses were completed of which 5,109 were permanent. Since April, 1945, the total number of houses completed is 60,452 of which 20,027 are permanent and of them 2,578 are blitzed houses, completely rebuilt. Private enterprise has been responsible for the larger part of the permanent houses completed by the end of July, in building 11,917 compared with 8,110 by local authorities.

Britain's construction shows a decided preference for permanent homes. Out of 163,232 in preparation 134,600 are permanent and only 28,632 are temporary.

Smell of Frost

There's a new feel in the air these pre-fall days. After the countryman has started the morning fire in the kitchen stove he stands a minute on the worn granite step by the ell door and looks over the countryside before he goes to the barn to do the chores. The sun's long fingers are pulling in night's canvas; little wisps of white-gray mist hang over the rowen; the lower end of the meadow is a pond of fog. The weathered shingles on the big barn are black-brown with moisture.

As the hours climb up day's ladder a blue haze comes on the mountains and soft warmth rests on the boulder-strewn upland pasture. The sun circling to the south of its midsummer tracks sends hot rays to dry the potatoes as a man wields the digger and breaks open the nests of tubers clustered in mellow soil. Gold finches swoop in undulating fashion across the garden; cock pheasants crow from woodland's edge; blue jays shriek as they flash across the orchard and crows hold a raucous caucus, selecting leaders for the flight southward.

By midafternoon there's a change. No longer does day's warmth hold into dusk time. When the sun begins to lower toward the horizon and shadows inch down from the hills one can sense that fall is on the way. The cows come early to the pasture bars and moo impatiently. Blue-gray spirals of smoke pour upward from the farmhouse chimneys and drift slowly away toward the east. When evening chores are finished and the countryman comes across the yard with milk pails and kerosene lantern he stops a moment. The sky is alight with stars. A fox sounds his hoarse bark from the hill above the orchard. There's a sharp ominous edge to the air. It's the smell of frost — harbinger of autumn.

Airway to Mecca

Arabs taking to the air instead of journeying by steed or camel train will cramp the style of the romantic novelists and scenario writers.

Now the Arabs are not only enthusiastic about flying but they back up their enthusiasm with financial enterprise, Gerald Sanders, formerly with the R.A.F. testifies.

His first idea was for a school of instruction: to train Arabs to be pilots. He had a two-hours talk about his scheme to an Arab tradesman, Tewfikkattan, who asked him what it would cost. Mr. Sanders told him £10,000. The answer: "You can have that tonight," nearly caused the airman to "fall out of his chair."

But that wasn't all. One thing led to another, and before long the Arabs accepted Sanders' complete plan for a new air line, and, the speaker summed up, "the whole business was settled on the spot by five Arabs and an Englishman, who's their commercial consultant," the consultant being Sanders himself, of course. The hangars and most of the other equipment are already on the way, and Sanders and some of his staff are taking off with a delivery flight of eight planes to open up the service. The staff will number round about fifty; 16 Englishmen and the rest Arabs.

Caspian Sea Shrinks

Since the world was thoroughly mapped, geography teachers have told their students with firm certainty that the Caspian Sea (area 169,000 square miles) is the world's largest inland body of water, though the Black Sea (165,000 square miles) is a fairly close competitor. Future generations of teachers, however, may have to revise their estimate of the Caspian's size, for the sea is slowly shrinking. In the past decade the sea's level has dropped six and one-half feet, uncovering new banks and islands. The reason is that the Caspian loses more water through evaporation than it gains from its affluents (among them the Volga.)

The Moscow radio announced that Soviet scientists planned to do something about this state of affairs. An expedition prepared to leave Moscow and study the possibility of diverting the Amu-Darya River from the Aral Sea to the Caspian. The Russians were chiefly concerned over the Caspian's shrinkage because the sea is an agricultural "buffer zone" for Russia's wheatlands; the hot dry winds from Asia pick up moisture and lose heat passing over the broad Caspian.

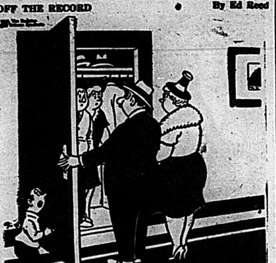
HAPPY DAY

Every year brings special days—
 Christmas, Easter, birthdays all
When we drop care's tedious ways
 And our troubles, great and small
These are days of pure delight.
 But perhaps the happiest known
Is the one (I think I'm right)
 When the baby walks alone.

Christmas is a joyous day.
 Easter, hope in life renews—
May they never pass away;
 Life were harsh if these we'd lose.
But as time wings on its way,
 To the winds all care is thrown
On that very special day
 When the baby walks alone.

Mothers hail it with delight.
 Fathers very proudly grin,
Greeted with the news at night.
 Loved ones all to smile begin.
Grandpas at the temples gray—
 Not a year too old have grown
To stand up and shout, "Hooray!"
 When the baby walks alone.



"Hang your hats in that closet — Mom and Pop are around here someplace."

London Letter

By STUART UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 4 (CP)—Among glittering war trophies displayed in the Royal United Service Institution in Whitehall is a sombre collection of black metal and wood objects over which Canadians are likely to linger.

These are relics of the Franklin Arctic expedition of 129 officers and men which sailed from England on May 19, 1845, in the ships Erebus and Terror. They were last seen on July 26 at the entrance to Lancaster Sound, on the northern water route followed successfully a century later by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police patrol vessel St. Roch.

It was 14 years before all the story of Arctic tragedy was known. Several of the relics in the Whitehall display were found on Beechey Island, among them a black-painted wooden signpost designed to stand out against the snow.

The Eskimos who later tol of white men staggering across the snow dragging a boat behind them, made use of equipment which thus came into their hands. In this corner of a building packed with everything from African spears to airplane gun-turrets, are the contrivances of a primitive people pleased with the unexpected wealth of steel cutlasses and knives.

The cutlasses they filed and shaped until suitable for cutting snow blocks for igloos. Wood from the boats was equally precious, and the display shows how the Eskimos used it as handles for tools and other purposes.

In contrast, almost everything else in the institution deals with triumphs of British arms. One room is filled with displays of medals, and engraved ceremonial swords.

An aged Chelsea pensioner, wearing a long scarlet coat as bright as any mounted policeman's, proudly guides visitors through a long lane of diorama designs where gaily-dressed British soldiers and sailors in miniature stand in perpetual victory on the Plains of Abraham and on a dozen other battlefields of long ago.

Beside an African witch-doctor's drum is a notice explaining that near this spot King Charles 300 years ago walked out to the scaffold on Whitehall. There are scale models of modern ships of war, and at the doorway a fantastic painted ship's bow ornament in the shape of a dog.

Bigger Share In Control of Japan Is Red Objective

By GLEN BABB
(A.P. Foreign News Analyst)

Moscow's pointed celebration of its own VJ-Day and the insistence in both Generalissimo Stalin's order of the day and the Russian press in the thesis that it was primarily Russian might that smashed Japan may mark the opening of a new phase of the Russian attack on the American position in the Orient.

Russia declared war on Japan Aug. 8, 1945, effective the following day. Already Japanese leaders had been trying for months to find out what terms they might receive if they yielded, some of these overtures having been made through Moscow itself. The first atomic bomb fell two days before the Russian declaration. Japan was already beaten.

Russian propaganda usually has an objective, and it is reasonable to deduce that the VJ-Day blasts, minimizing the roles of the United States and other Allies in the defeat of Japan, are preparing the background for fresh claims that Russia is not receiving her share in the control of Japan and the sharing of the beaten empire's future. Military men of several Allied Nations are known to believe that Nippon could be a tremendous asset in any future conflict to the power which controlled her strategic islands and her reservoir of manpower.

Sessions of the four-power Allied control council for Japan, which is supposed to assist Gen. MacArthur in directing the occupation, frequently have developed acrimonious verbal battles between the American Chairman, George Atcheson, Jr., and the Russian member, Lt.-Gen. Kuzma Derevyanko and the breach between them has shown no signs of healing.

One of the bitterest contentions has been over the repatriation of the Japanese soldiers—some authorities estimate them at 750,000—captured by the Red army in Manchuria and Korea and reported taken into Siberia and put to work. The Russians simply have declined any information on this point, although the Potsdam agreement specified that "Japanese military forces...shall be permitted to return to their homes."

Gen. MacArthur is known to have stood against various forms of Russian pressure to extend the Soviet foothold in Japan. One form of such pressure is reported authoritatively to have been a proposal that Japan be divided among the occupying powers, which probably would have placed Russia in the Hokkaido the second largest and potentially the second richest of the Japanese home islands.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

NEVER MIND YOUR HEART

In the little lesson C V D—heart and artery troubles— for copy send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelop—there is a chapter titled "Never Mind Your Blood Pressure". In it I do not tell in detail most of the things I do not tell everybody in correspondence with readers who do tell me they have high blood pressure. They might just as well tell me they have wild nights and bad days. Or some of their own teeth. There is nothing in particular I can tell any one with high blood pressure unless I have examined the individual myself.

Now if you have some kind of heart trouble, that's easier. It doesn't matter what kind of trougle it might be if any, I'll take your word for it.

Should you or should you not take digitalis? If you are under the care of a physician you had better do as your physician says about that. I would if I were under the doctor's care, I can tell you—I'd even try to eat a plate of mashed potato and take a beaker of castor oil or almost anything the doctor might think I needed.

If you are not under medical care, then I advise you not to monkey with digitalis.

Whether you are under medical care or not I advise you to take a good daily ration of vitamin B complex every day in the year, with each dose of digitalis if you take digitalis, once or twice daily otherwise. In many cases this really gives the "tonic" effect the old time doctors tried to believe digitalis gave in my opinion- remember, this is merely my opinion and I arrived at it almost entirely on the basis of the experience reported in current medical literature by physicians in many parts of the world.

Whatever your heart trouble may be, if you are not under the care of a physician, don't get into the habit of moving about as though you expect to pop out any minute. Patients who have had one or more anginal incidents or perhaps a bout or two with thrombosis seem just a little ridiculous to me when they take to walking on eggs and avoiding every little activity that makes life worth living. There is no evidence that such morbid, cheerless existence prolongs the life of the heart disease victim a single day. On the contrary there is some evidence that a reasonable amount of physical activity, work play, exercise conduces to greater longevity for heart disease subjects.

Another thing, for goodness sake don't let your heart disease spoil your enjoyment of a cup or two of good coffee with break fast every morning, if you care for it. Particularly don't let your obsession against coffee deprive other members of your household of the beneficent beverage. Mind, I say good coffee-that does not mean boiled coffee. Chapters in the Red Book—twenty-five cents and stamped how to make coffee and win friends, how to manage after dinner doze, what to do about dessert, what to eat and why.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

EPILEPSY

My sister is engaged to a young man whose father has epilepsy. Is it hereditary? (Mrs.E. H.)

Answer —Only a few instance of direct inheritance of epilepsy. Many epileptic parents have normal children. Your doctor with a full knowledge of the young man's family history can best advise you.

VITAMINS AND WEIGHT

Kindly tell me wether the taking of vitamins, such as B-complex and D has a tendency to increase weight.

Answer— Yes if the individual is underweight; not if the individual is overweight. Overweight persons tend to reduce to normal if they get adequate amounts of the essential vitamins (more D and B—complex, for instance, than the majority of people can get in ordinary every day diet). If they take vitamins day in, day out, the year around, that is. Vitamins are not medicine and it is rarely or never worth while to "take" or "try" them for a few weeks; eat them regularly as food, if you use them at all.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is burgoo?

In some parts of the South, particularly Kentucky, a burgoo picnic or feast often takes the place of the open-air party commonly known elsewhere in the United States as a barbecue.

A rich savory soup or stew is made by boiling all sorts of meats and vegetables in a large outdoor kettle, seasoning the mixture with strong pepper and whisky and serving it very hot.

The soup is called "burgoo" and the occasion a "burgoo picnic."

It is said that this concoction was originated and introduced into Kentucky by a Frenchman named Gus Jaubert, who was a cook in the Confederate forces of General John Hunt Morgan and who first made a burgoo for an encampment of Federal prisoners at Lexington in the fall of 1863.

According to tradition, the secret of making Kentucky burgoo was handed down from Jaubert to James Looney, who became known as the "Burgoo King." On one occasion Looney served burgoo to 7,000 people at charity race meet given at Idle Hour Farm, Colonel E. R. Bradley's estate near Lexington. One of the kettles held 400 gallons of the Kentucky concoction.

In 1932 a three-year-old thoroughbred owned by Bradley and named "Burgoo King" won the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs in Louisville.

Just how the odd name of the soup originated is not known for certain. As originally used in modern English "burgoo," or "burgout" as it is also spelled, meant a kind of thick gruel consisting of boiled oatmeal porridge seasoned with salt, sugar and butter and served on shipboard to the common seamen.

"Burgout" in this sense occurred as early as 1743. Possibly it is derived from Middle English "burgout," "burgood" or "beer-good," meaning "yeast," or from Arabic burghul," signifying wheat ground, dried and boiled.

According to a whimsical explanation, "burgoo" was suggested when a tongue-tied Civil War soldier, after sampling Jaubert's mixture, said it was "bery goo."

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

(By The Ottawa Staff of the Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Sept. 4—(CP)—Provincial Labor Ministers will be invited to Ottawa early in October to participate in discussions aimed at a peacetime labor code. The federal minister, Labor Minister Mitchell is expected to invite provincial labor ministers to meet him in Ottawa about Oct. 5 to consider the legislation.

During the war the Dominion, with the authority of special wartime regulations, inaugurated the first Canadian national labor code which provided for Compulsory collective bargaining and required employers to bargain "in good faith" with unions which were recognized by a provincial or National Labor Relations Board as representing a majority of the employees.

That federal code had only been made possible by action of the provinces in abrogating their jurisdiction for the period of the war.

The question which faced the conference which Mr. Mitchell had promised to call late this year was what the future of this legislation was to be now that peace had come. The question was one that had come before the Commons Industrial Relations Committee which investigated the general problem of industrial unrest.

The committee went on record in favor of a National Labor code. It had heard suggestions that the code should be implemented by the Dominion, leaving it to the provinces as to whether they should apply it to their own conditions.

Fish: It is reported on Parliament Hill that the complaints of Nova Scotian schooner skippers about marauding foreign trawlers have become linked with the broader picture of international relations, particularly those with Spain.

Government spokesmen have handled parliamentary questions gingerly. Spain, France and Portugal as well as Newfoundland, the United States and Canada have been named as the home countries of ships fishing off the Quero Bank, but nobody in the government had taken the responsibility for saying just which ships were responsible for damaging Canadian fishing gear in broad daylight.

In their reluctance, they have the alibi that the skippers themselves have been unable to identify the offenders positively.

In dealing with Spain the External Affairs Department is faced with the necessity of working through the British Foreign Office. Canada has no representative in Franco's capital.

The British Foreign Office, again, is engaged in mysterious moves of its own in handling the Spain that is a key faction in the tense international situation of today. For that reason the claims of the skippers, comparatively puny both financially and politically, may find themselves weighted in a scale that contains far heavier problems.

Drillhole News Sparks Buying Interest in Junior Gold Stocks

By ALEX PRINGLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Sept. 4 (CP)—Drillhole news, seeping into Toronto stock market circles from the north country in the last 10 days of August, started a buying flurry in the junior gold stocks that apparently brought a definite check to the summer slump, at any rate so far as the mining issues are concerned.

Industrial stocks are still following the downward slant, but on diminishing offerings.

Brokerage circles had forecast better prices and more market action before the end of September but uncovering of important ore showings on the property of Louvicourt goldfields recently sparked into action ahead of expectations.

Louvicourt jumped $1.50 or more in a week and the stocks of neighboring properties were pulled along in the new current.

Before August was out other big fields, including Red Lake were also steaming up in a manner unequalled since the first 10 days of May.

On a downward slant since Feb 6 the gold stocks reached the year's bottom price level July 23, having registered a decline of 35 per cent in the intervening period. The jump of the Canadian dollar to a parity with the United States dollar, thus eliminating the 10 per cent premium on Canadian bullion sales, brought about the main break in the mining share market.

Better prices for silver, recently announced, has put new life into a few moss-covered camps and some of the old silver stocks, including Nipissing and Castle-Trethewey, have been edging to the fore in the market.

The outlook for the base metal stocks is still clouded. Current prices for stocks averaged about 3 1-2 points above the summer low, recorded in July.

The financial district still has little to forecast about the industrial share section of the market, citing the persistent labor turmoil as a factor that cannot yet be fully appraised.

Restoration of 12th Century Abbey Cause of Much Controversy

By PAUL DAUPHINEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Leeds, England, Sept. 4 (CP)—Restoration of the 12th-century Fountains Abbey as the home of Benedictine Monks has brought a mass of letters to British editors' desks and the project seems likely to be one of the year's biggest controversies.

Most correspondents endorse the purchase of the ruined monastery by a Roman Catholic group which includes the Duke of Norfolk, but others just as emphatically claim the decaying walls should be preserved in their present condition.

Fountains Abbey was started in 1132 by an offshoot of the order at York from which the Benedictine order descends. It was partly demolished in the reign of Henry VIII. For more than 20 years the ruins have been owned by Cmdr. Clare Vyner, along with Fountains Hall, a large country house built from abbey stone.

Opposing the Fountains Abbey project is the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings.

"The replacement of missing parts and necessary additions would be so great as to obliterate the original historic craftsmanship, either in fact or by contrast," said E. M. MacGregor, its technical adviser and architect.

Professor A. Hamilton Thompson, authority on medieval buildings, took the other side. "There seems to be every prospect that those who have it in hand will take competent advice about restoration," he said. "If the restoration is done carefully and conservatively, there need be little fear that the result will spoil the historic beauty of the buildings."

Steel Union Asks Further Talks With Government

Ottawa, Sept. 4—(CP) — Requests of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) for further discussion with the government on settlement proposals for the steel strike were under consideration but there was no immediate indication when meetings will be held.

The advisory committee of the union Monday decided to ask for further conferences before a final decision was made on the latest government offer.

There were unconfirmed reports that instead of a flat 10-cent increase which the government had previously suggested proposals had been advanced for a general 10-cent increase to all workers with larger increases, ranging up to 12½ cents, for workers in the lower paid classifications.

Rodeo Bull Crashes Through Shop Door Crushes into Shoppers

Ottawa, Sept. 4 (CP)—A group of rodeo cowboys had a flop-eared Brahms bull roped by the horns in Ottawa's crowded Sparks Street business district at noon hour Tuesday, but all the bull would do was lie down—that is, until they decided to take all the ropes off him.

Once loose, the bull made a wild dash for people on the crowded sidewalk. Confronted with his reflection in a large department store on O'Connor Street, the bull veered and crashed through the store's door.

In the doorway he crushed into shoppers and onlookers before backing out and then scurrying into a nearby lane, where he was again roped.

As the crowd began to ease from the doorway, an elderly, unidentified woman collapsed to the floor and was believed to have been crushed by the animal and was removed to hospital. A young girl fainted.

The bull, one of the feature attractions at a rodeo now appearing here, was paraded as a promotional stunt.

Crowds Pat 'Monty' On Back And Shout Greetings

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Sept. 3 —(CP)— After both a literal and figurative pat on the back here in a warm Western welcome, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery had stops at Regina and Calgary on today's schedule — one of the busiest of his 17-day trans-Canada tour.

He began his swing through the West yesterday — after a plane trip from Toronto — when enthusiastic crowds swept past thin police lines to crowd into his open car, pat him on the back, shout greetings in his ear and hold on to his battle dress jacket.

In a 2nd Divisional Royal Winnipeg Rifles' honor guard he met three brothers — Louis, Henry and Edward Dutiaume — who landed with that regiment on D-Day. At a disabled veteran's hospital he met G. G. Hall of Dauphin, Man., a veteran of the Riel Rebellion and The First Great War. He told Monty with a twinkle in his eye that he was 160 years. "You look very well for that age," the famous soldier came back with a grin.

It was learned that the Field Marshal intends making a farewell broadcast to Canadians before leaving Quebec Sept. 10 to go to West Point Military Academy. On his return across Canada he will see Prime Minister Mackenzie King in a brief pause at Ottawa.

Proposes Ban On Communism In Australia

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Woomba, Queensland, Australia, Sept. 4 (CP Cable)— Arthur Fadden, leader of the Australian Country Party, included the banning of Communism when he outlined his party's election platform in broadcasts from his Queensland town.

The Country Party, campaigning jointly with the Liberal party led by Robert Menzies, is opposing the re-election of the Australian Labor government Sept. 28.

Mr. Fadden said that he proposed to have Communism declared illegal in Australia if his party was successful in the election.

Mr. Fadden, regarded as the financial spokesman for the opposition parties, said the Liberal and Country parties estimated it would be possible to cut Australian income taxation by $100,000,000 in addition to a $50,000,000 cut introduced by the Labor government a few weeks ago.

He announced plans to prevent soil erosion and to inaugurate flood control as measures against drought which he said had cost Australia as much as "all the wars the country has waged."

Criticizing existing methods of price fixing for primary production costs and to recommend guaranteed price plans for primary producers seeking such assistance.

The opposition parties' platform included plans to increase the size of both the houses of parliaments, he said.

At present each of the six states in Australia is represented by six men in the Senate. In the House of Representatives, which has 75 seats, the states are represented according to the size of their populations. New South Wales, the largest state, has 28 members and Tasmania, the smallest, has five.

WEDDINGS

WANNAMAKER—PARKS

A pretty wedding was solemnized on August 31, at three o'clock at Holloway Street United Church, by the Rev. C. A. Perkins, when Olive Bernice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miller Parks, was united in marriage to Mr. Cecil William Wannamaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wannamaker, of West Huntingdon.

Mr. Wm. Connor presided at the organ and Mrs. Frank Jeffrey delightfully rendered "Holy Hour" before the ceremony and "Because", during the signing of the register.

Entering the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the Bridal March from Lohengrin, the bride was lovely in her floor-length gown of white satin applique, the skirt falling in graceful folds with a sweetheart neckline and sleeves ending in points over her wrists.

Her finger-tip veil was caught to her hair with a halo headdress and she carried a bouquet of deep red roses.

Mrs. Jack Smith, of Belleville, was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a floor length gown of blue sheer with matching headdress and carried a nosegay of mixed Summer flowers.

Mr. Elville Wannamaker was best man for his brother and the ushers were Clifford Wannamaker and Clifford Parks, brothers of the bride and groom.

The reception was held at the bride's home with the bride's mother receiving in a navy blue dress with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a two-piece dress of green with black accessories and a corsage of pink gladioli.

Later the happy couple left by motor for points west, the bride wearing a blue and white pin-striped suit with black and white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome chest of silver.

POTTS—ALLEN

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized at Bridge Street parsonage by Rev. D. C. Amos, when Shirley Frances, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Allen, became the bride of Leslie Potts, son of Mrs. H. Potts, Belleville.

The bride looked lovely in a gown of azure blue and grey and corsage of red roses.

Following the ceremony the bride and groom left for a wedding trip to western points.

ROLLINS—STEVENS

Ida Isabelle Stevens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stevens, chose the 32nd anniversary of her parents' wedding as the date of her wedding to Mr. Maxwell Murray Rollins, son of Mrs. B. Rollins, of Belleville. Rev. A. O. Lloyd officiated at the ceremony, which was held on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Ottawa. The wedding music was played by Mrs. A. O. Lloyd at the piano, and Mrs. Kenneth Gilmour was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Miss Hilda Norris as bridesmaid. Mr. Ernest Nolan, of Belleville, was best man, and Mr. Gordon May ushered the guests.

The bride chose a floor-length gown of heavenly blue organza fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice and a bouffant skirt. She wore matching elbow-length mittens, and a finger-tip veil arranged from a coronet of satin and lace. She carried Piccardy gladioli in shower, and wore a strand of pearls as her only ornament.

Following a reception the couple left on a wedding trip to Quebec City. For going away Mrs. Rollins wore a honey-beige wool suit with black accessories and a shoulder knot of Butterfly roses. They will take up residence in Brockville.

Out-of-town guests included Miss Muriel Rollins, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Rollins, Mrs. Leonard Wilkes, Miss Lenore Wilkes, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Nolan, Mr. Don Dell, Sgt.-Major Stanley Holton, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Burley, Mr. Earl O'Shaughnessy, Mr. and Mrs. L. Brisbin, all of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. William Beehler, of Finch, Ont.; Messrs. John and Frank Galvin, of Berwick, Ont.; Mrs. D. P. McNaughton, of Chesterville; Miss Ethel Kettles, of Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Meyers and Mrs. S. H. Meyers, of Trenton, Ont.

TUM—BROUN

Holloway Street United Church was the scene of a pretty wedding at 4.15 on Saturday afternoon, when Helen Canniff, only daughter of Mrs. George Broun and the late Mr. Broun, became the bride of Arthur John Tum, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Tum, of Saskatoon. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. A. Perkins, and wedding music was played by Mr. William Connor. Before the ceremony Mrs. Hector Poste, cousin of the bride, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and during the signing of the register, "Because". The church was beautifully decorated with fern and multi-colored gladioli. Guests pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her aunt, Miss Helen L. Moore, Detroit, and made a charming picture in her slipper length gown of white satin, with fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, and long sleeves, ending in points over her wrists. Her floor length veil of tulle illusion fell from a halo of white flowers. An arm bouquet of American Beauty roses and fern was carried. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls with matching earrings, gift of the groom.

Mrs. Gordon Stewart, Toronto, was matron of honor, wearing a floor length gown of melon pink taffeta with full gathered skirt and self-covered buttons from the high neckline to the waist. The bodice was fashioned with cap sleeves. Her fingertip veil of matching shade was caught to her hair with pink roses and she carried a nosegay of Summer flowers. Miss Audrey Crosby was equally lovely in her long gown of blue net over taffeta with lace bodice and sweetheart neckline. Her fingertip matching veil was caught with blue forget-me-nots and she carried a nosegay of Summer flowers. Both attendants wore matching elbow length lace mitts and completed their costumes with pearl necklaces and earrings.

Mr. Rex Chaplin was best man and ushers were Mr. Gordon Stewart, Toronto and Mr. Bill Moore, cousin of the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Madden for about forty friends and relatives. Mrs. Broun, mother of the bride, received in a gown of powder blue crepe with black accessories and a corsage of deep red roses. The groom's mother, who assisted her, wore ice blue jersey with black accessories and a corsage of deep red roses. Serviteurs were Jean Moore, Shirley Moore, Lois Chaplin and Kay Moorcroft.

For travelling to Toronto and Niagara Falls, the bride donned a two-piece wool ensemble of dove grey with black accessories and a corsage of American Beauty roses. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

The bride's gift to the matron of honor was a set of rhinestone earrings, and to the bridesmaid, a china brooch. The groom's gift to the groomsman and ushers were ties and tie clips. The serviteurs received boxes of chocolates.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Tum, Saskatoon; Miss Helen L. Moore, Detroit, Mr. Leslie Hattam, New Toronto, and Mrs. Broun, Miss Ada Tuleaven, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Stewart and Miss Marjory Stewart, all of Toronto.

BRANT—BRANT

Mohawk Reserve, (Special.) — An interesting early Autumn wedding took place Friday, August 23, in Christ Church, Reverend C. P. Heaven officiating, when Catherine, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brant, became the bride of Leslie Brant, son of Mr. Charles Brant, Hamilton, and the late Mrs. Brant. The bride was given in marriage by her father, and the Nuptial music was played by the bride's uncle, Mr. Thomas Brant, church organist. After the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served at the Council House, where covers were laid for 75 guests, and where the bride's many beautiful gifts were displayed. Miss Lorraine Brant caught the bride's bouquet. The young couple, after a honeymoon in the United States, will make their home in Hamilton.

POLLOCK—McADAM

Rawdon, (Special.)— A pretty wedding ceremony took place on August 31, at 10.30 p.m., in the Rawdon United Church parsonage, Stirling, when Rev. Nathaniel Cole united in marriage Lois Eva McAdam, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl McAdam, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon and William John Ray Pollock, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Pollock, Burnbrae.

The bride chose a beige birch-bark wool pin stripe two-piece suit with cherry coke accessories, plastic purse, and corsage of Talisman roses. She wore a pearl necklace, the gift of the groom.

The groom's cousin, Miss Doris Pollock attended the bride wearing a two-piece wool suit of Autumn brown with dark brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses and fern.

The bride's brother, Mr. William McAdam, assisted the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Pollock left immediately after the ceremony by motor for a trip by way of Ivy Lea bridge, Watertown, Niagara and Detroit. The bride donned a neutral shorty coat for travelling. On their return they will reside at Burnbrae.

The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of silver and to the attendants, billfolds and costume jewelry.

The immediate family attended the ceremony and were Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Pollock, Burnbrae; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reid and Ann, Miss Barbara Rowe, Campbellford; Mr. and Mrs. Farley Vermilyea, Jack and Bill, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Earl McAdam, Mr. Douglas McAdam, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McAdam, David and Dianne, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, also the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Hagerman and Mr. Harold Hagerman, Stirling.

CURRY—HAY

Rawdon, (Special.)— A pretty Autumn wedding was solemnized on Monday, Sept. 2, at 11 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hay, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, when their eldest daughter, Helen Audra, became the bride of George Curry, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Curry, Belleville, with Rev. Nathaniel Cole officiating. The ceremony was performed beneath an artistic arch of evergreens baskets of gladioli and fern and the house was tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a floor length model gown of ivory satin, gathered midriff, rippling long skirt, full long sleeves, ending in points, sweetheart neckline, shoulder length veil of tulle illusion and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Delbert Mitchell, Warkworth, was matron of honor, wearing a long gown of Alice Blue sheer with shirred bodice and draped skirt, shoulder length veil, and three colored nosegays of Autumn blooms.

The groom's sister, Mrs. Nicholas Zilinski, Kingston, also took part in the wedding assemblage, wearing an ankle length dress of dawn pink sheer with shoulder length veil and a mixed Colonial nosegay.

Mr. Nicholas Zilinski, Kingston, assisted the groom.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver played the wedding music before the ceremony and during the signing of the register.

After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served to thirty guests by Misses Eleanor Sandercock, Marietta Sandercock, Ruth McEathron, Belleville, Ruth Rose, Lois Weaver, and Edna Hubble, Mount Pleasant assisted by Mrs. Ross Hoard and Mrs. Frank Smith. The bride's table was centred with a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake.

The bride chose for travelling a spice brown frock of Convoy crepe with dark brown accessories and a beige wool shorty coat. Mr. and Mrs. Curry will honeymoon at Kingston, Toronto and western points. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

The groom's gift to the bride was a lovely new house on Stone Street, Belleville, to the matrons of honor water glass sets and table mirrors; to the organist, handpainted set of glasses, to the groomsman billfold and to the serviteurs, cups and saucers.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. David Curry, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sandercock, Belleville, Mr. Delbert Mitchell, Warkworth, Reeve and Mrs. John Morrison, Rawdon, Mrs. Harry Ketcheson, Phillipston.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She Was In Too Much Of A Hurry

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19 years old and in love with a man of 24. He was in the army and I wrote to him a lot. One day I wrote to him and said that I liked him very much. I know now that I should not have said that, but I just had to. He wrote back and said that he thought a lot of me, too.

Now he is home for good. He came up to see us one day, but he never said anything more to me. He just went along as if nothing had happened. I have 3 brothers and he comes up to see them once in awhile, but he does not pay any attention to me. He takes other girls out, and you might think he would ask me if I would like to go out, too.

I just don't understand him. I wish I knew what I could do to make him see me. Could you tell me?

"Heart-broken"

It is too bad that you were in such a hurry to show your feelings to someone who had never expressed any special interest in you. I am afraid that this man's reply—that he thought a lot of you, too—was more polite than sincere. He didn't want to hurt your feelings.

Unfortunately, there is very little anyone can do to make another person notice one or pay attention to one. Sometimes it seems as if the harder one tried, the less one accomplished in this direction. That is perfectly natural, because to make an effort of that kind only makes one self-conscious and artificial.

About all you can do is to be as pleasant and friendly as you can when this man is around, but don't overdo it. If you seem too eager for his attention, you will probably scare him off. And don't sit home waiting for him to invite you out. Go out all you can and if he sees that you are popular, he might want to get better acquainted himself.

Is She Right In Breaking Her Promise

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 years old and going steady with a boy of 17. We have been going to gether for a long time and have never had an argument. A long time ago, we said we would never keep anything of importance from the other, and I have not that is, until now.

His closest friend came up to see me about a week ago and told me he loved me and wanted me, in spite of his friendship to my boy friend. I told him that I was definitely not in love with him and that I wouldn't think of giving up my boy friend. He said he was sorry and that it wouldn't happen again.

Now, I don't know if I should tell this to my boy friend or not. If I do, it might break up their friendship, and they have been friends ever since childhood. If I do not, it will be breaking a promise to the only boy who has ever meant anything to me. What shall I do?

"Sally"

I can see how hard it is for you to make up your mind on this question, Sally.

But I think as you grow older, you will find that life is a little too complicated to make an agreement, once and for all, to tell anyone else, even the person closest to you, all the facts about everything. You have to be guided by certain general principles and, when you are confronted by a difficult choice, you must make the choice on the basis of which alternate will do the most good or most harm in the long run.

In this particular case, I think that breaking your promise to your boy friend is the lesser of the two evils, for, if you keep that promise, you will do harm to two people—your boy friend, who will be hurt and disillusioned about his childhood friend—and the other boy, who obviously wants and means to do the right thing, since he says he will never say anything of the sort to you again.

I am quite sure that you should keep this little incident to yourself and let the whole thing be forgotten.

C.G.I.T. Holds Camp Council

As boatloads of Canadian Girls in Training from all over Ontario docked at Camp Inglestane in Stoney Lake, the 1946 session of Camp Council began. Sixty-two representatives from all points of Ontario were meeting for ten days to discuss and plan the coming year's program for C.G.I.T.

To be chosen to represent one's community at Camp Council is the highest honor a girl can win in her local C.G.I.T. The representative from Belleville was Janette Ashbury.

Each day at camp the girls met for council hour led by the new Ontario Girls' Work Secretary, Miss Elizabeth Kerr, in which problems of the individual group were discussed and new projects endorsed.

Camp Council is, however, definitely not all work and no play. The girls' leisure time is taken up with swimming, rowing, canoeing, lively discussions on Canada's race problems and child psychology; interesting studies of the stars, singing camp songs, old and new; handicrafts and sketching.

C.G.I.T. ever aware of others turned over the offering from their Sunday service and also the proceeds from the County Fair held in the camp to the "Save the Children" Fund.

At the closing ceremonies, Bible, bound in blue leather and suitably inscribed were presented by the retiring officers, Annette Gofton and Margaret Hudson, to the new provincial president, Beth Brown, Unionville, and vice president, Doris James, Hamilton, to be handed on to succeeding officers as a gift from 1946 Council.

Long after Camp Council has adjourned the fellowship shared and the friendships gained, will live on to enrich and unify the provincial movement.

Women Heading For West to Help With Harvesting

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Sept. 4. (CP)—Harvesting has begun in the west, and several Toronto girls were headed today for the Prairie provinces where they will work as cooks—some may even drive tractors on labor-short farms.

This is the first of several groups which the Toronto Women's Division, National Employment Service, will send west within the next two weeks, said Mrs. Ombra Dill, acting supervisor of the Women's Division. "It's the first time since the war woman have been transferred by the service to other provinces in Canada to relieve a labor shortage."

Some of the girls are former westerners and no novices when it comes to working in the fields, or cooking for a dozen or so threshers.

"I'll probably be helping with the harvesting, cooking—or even milking the cows," said Barbara Nester, formerly of Blackie, Alta., who leaves this week for her old hometown where she expects to work on her brother's farm.

Girls wishing to go to Alberta choose their own farm, provided they have a letter from the farmer showing his need of help.

Those going to Saskatchewan will be sent to Regina where the employment office will send them out to needy farms.

Transportation west is looked after by the service, and the girls are expected to stay at least six weeks. A special return fare of $10 is allowed them up until Nov. thirty-first.

Those already on their way to Saskatchewan include two sisters-in-law, Mrs. Eleanor Farenik, and Mrs. Marie Farenik. Their husbands went west several weeks ago to help with the harvesting.

Fashion Flashes

JAUNTY AND YOUNG; worn at a provocative angle off the face; nice trimmed or untrimmed; that is the bowler. A pretty new version is of pink felt, the rather high crown draped with wine-red wool jersey which is caught in front by a jewelled ornament of gold sequins and pearl beads. Scarf ends in back.

Trimly tailored reefers are prominently displayed by many stores as the coat for the new season. Nice with or without fur is a fine reefer in medium navy melton, made with wide, welted revers; a collar that rolls up in dandy fashion; a small, fitted waistline with pointed flap pockets at either side, a double-breasted front; a tiny, rippling shoulder capelet ;and a rounded hipline. Very different, we opine, from the old-time reefer!

A full season ahead for brown, which is used in sports and casual clothes, for fine afternoon dresses, and for evening. Brown faille taffeta, with diagonal stripes in deep brown and yellow, is used for a handsome evening frock, detailed with a big self bow on the one covered shoulder. Another big bow—side-to-centre below the waistline—draws the skirt drapery. Both bows point up border stripes in multi-color. Full hemline is lifted from floor at side front.

Very different from the usual white evening furs is a three-quarter-length coat of ermine dyed in a pale gold shade, its wide cape sleeves bordered with fox dyed a "peach glow" shade. Beautiful with white; dramatic with black.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

On The Use Of Your Husband's Name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Before I was married I never did understand just when a married woman should refer to her husband as "Mr. Smith", when as "my husband", and when by his first name. But since the rule didn't concern me personally then, I didn't pay too much attention to it. Now that I've very recently been married, this problem does concern me personally, of course, and I realize I have only a very vague idea when to use which form. . . if I'm ever right it's only by good fortune! But my husband has had a better education than I have, and better social contacts and opportunities, and I don't want to embarrass him by making a social error about this. Will you help he, please?

Bride

Gladly. . .and you'll find the rules easy to remember because when you figure out the reasons for them, they are sensible.

1. Since the use of the first name signifies friendship, refer to your husband by his first name when you are speaking of him to a friend of yours or a friend of his.

2. To a casual acquaintance, it's natural, sensible, to refer to your husband as "my husband".

3 .To the "butcher and baker and candlestickmaker", to a clerk, to a servant or any other employee. . . .in other words, to anyone who will probably always address your husband as "Mr. Smith". . . .refer to your husband as "Mr. Smith".

The most important thing to remember is this: you must not refer to your husband as "Mr. Smith" to a social acquaintance. And when in doubt as to the degree of friendship or acquaintanceship, you can't be wrong if you say, "my husband".

several times that it is courteous

Courtesy To A Host

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have read in your column for a girl, when she is dining with a man in a restaurant, always to give the man her order, and then he relays both orders to the waiter. But I haven't always found this easy to do, for although I may try to do it, usually the waiter tries his best, apparently, not to give me the chance to do it. For example, so often a waiter will ask me directly what I want, or will look at me and give my order directly to him ,or will even come over to my seat, to get my order. Sometimes too, I must admit, apparently my host doesn't realize that it is his responsibility to "relay" my order with his, to the waiter does or says to have you Beeckman, that your advice about this is sensible, the gracious thing to do. . .but how can the procedure be controlled?

Pamela

Even under these circumstances, you can be smart, as well as courteous, and direct your own ordering to the channel into which it should be directed. . . that is, to your host. No matter what the waiter does or soys to have you give your order directly to him, don't do it. Decide what you want to order, and then either (1) keep looking at the menu as you read your choice aloud, or (2) look directly at your host as you say what your choices are. The latter procedure will reveal to even a man who is not familiar with the courtesy you're trying to abide by, that he is expected to be in charge of the ordering. If you make your host "head man" of the courtesies of the meal, he'll know—or if he hasn't realized his host-responsibility before, he'll sense—your courtesy. You'll "relay your mannerliness to him, and he'll see that the thing for him to do is to "relay" your order with his to the waiter.

Saco Marines Lose First Game Of O.A.S.A. Playdowns With Oshawa Tannery by 4-0 Count

Winners Score All Their Runs in First Frame; Superb Pitching Duel With Hiller Having Slight Edge

In one of the best softball games seen here in many a moon the Saco Marines, bowed to the Oshawa Tanners by a score of 4-0 in the first game of the second round O.A.S.A. Intermediate "A" series at the Fair Grounds Tuesday night.

The entire damage as far as the Sacos were concerned and the entire scoring as far as the game was concerned, took place in the first innings. After that, the game resolved itself into a thrilling pitching duel between tall Jim Hunter of the Sacos and Hiller of the Oshawa Tanners.

Both hurlers backed up by superb fielding went the route and the opposing batters were set down with more or less monotonous regularity.

Robbed of No-hitter

Hiller was robbed of a potential no-hitter in the sixth when reliable Jimmy Barriage nicked him for the first hit. Barriage provided the fielding feature when he raced across the outfield to pull down Stark's long hit.

The whole story of the game lies in that first inning when 4 hits plus an infield error by the Saco shortstop sent four Tanner runners across the plate.

After that, it was one of those games that you read about. Two smart hurlers, backed up by sterling fielding, battled one another with each waiting for breaks that never came. It was definitely an infielder's game, with Jackie Wardhaugh, Saco's third baseman, coming through with an effort that drew the admiration of the Oshawa clan. Wardhaugh played a sparkling game and his pick-ups of potential Oshawa bunts drew the applause of the crowd.

But no less potent was that Oshawa infield.

Gilbert on short has a bullet-like underwhip that blazed across the infield time after time to nip Saco runners.

Saco Bats Hogtied

Hiller, chunky Oshawa chucker had the Saco bats hogtied and stifled throughout the entire game. He seemed headed for a no-hitter as he set down the Sacos innings after innings until the fifth when Barriage beat out a bunt. Hiller struck out six and walked one. Hunter, on the other hand after that dismal first pitched superb ball striking out five.

Belleville rallied but once and that came in the ninth. Jim Barriage smacked out his second hit of the game and Henn whiffed. Sword drew a walk and LeBonne drew a life on Gilbert's error filling the sacks. Barriage was forced at the plate on Hunter's tap and Reid grounded out to end the rally.

Oshawa struck viciously in the first inning when they scored all their runs and seemed headed for a batting spree. Four hits and Sword's error gave them the big edge, one they held throughout the game.

Price paced the Tanner attack with two clouts with Branton, Stark, Gilbert and Cooper getting the remainder of the six hits allowed by Hunter. Jimmy Barriage got two of the three garnered off Hiller with Gene LeBonne getting the third.

Score by innings:

Oshawa .... 400 000 000—4 6 1
Sacos ...... 000 000 000—0 3 2

The teams:

Oshawa: Branton, lf; Trimm, 2b.; Stark, 1b.; Gilbert, ss; Hyrnick, rf.; Price, 3b.; Cooper, c.; McLaughlin, cf.; Hiller, p.

Sacos: Barriage, lf.; Henn, 2b.; Sword, ss.; LeBonne, cf., 1b.; Hunter, p.; Reid, rf.; Wardhaugh, 3b.; Temple, c.; Blaker, 1b.; Adams, cf.

Umpires: Bennett, Oshawa, plate; Bawden, Belleville, bases.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

Forest Hills, N.Y., Sept. 4—(AP)— Trygve Lie, United Nations general secretary and real tennis fan, must have been a bit perturbed when he saw what had happened to all the other countries who were challenging United States supremacy in the national championships... Next season's 168-game major league schedule will mark the first time in 50 years the big leagues have increased their program, except after it was cut for the 1918 "emergency"... In 1897 the national league played 132 games; then it was boosted to 154.

Servo's Title Declared Vacant By Commission

Marty Servo's welterweight championship was declared vacant yesterday by the New York State Athletic Commission because of the nose injury which the titleholder said would make it impossible for him to defend his title against Ray Robinson in Yankee Stadium Friday night.

The commission declared it would open the title to a tournament among all the leading contenders.

However, the National Boxing Association wouldn't go along with the action, said it hadn't been formally advised of the details, and still would recognize Servo as the champion.

Bob Falkenburg, 20-year-old brother of Jinx of the movies and radio, showed spectators the best tennis of the United States National championships yesterday at Forest Hills, N.Y., as he slammed aside Budge Patty, hero of an earlier round 6-4, 6-4, 6-2. The victory put Falkenburg in the quarter-finals.

Muttering tiredly "we made it, we made it," King Nawahi, blind Hawaiian staggered ashore near Point Fidmin Monday night to become another conqueror of the 22-mile channel between Santa Catalina Island and the California mainland. His time of more than 22 hours was nearly seven hours slower than Toronto's George Younge's 15 hours, 48 minutes in 1927.

Boston Red Sox announced yesterday that applications for world series tickets will be accepted on and after Tuesday, Sept. 10. Only two tickets for one game will be sold any applicant.

Rain washed Lancashire out of second place in the English cricket county championship yesterday by curtailing the last day's play of a three-day match against Sussex —a match which Lancashire had to win to overhaul the Middlesex team. Yorkshire already has clinched the crown for the 13th time since the end of the First Great War.

Victory Song, driven by Sep Palin of Indianapolis, won the first two heats of the $5,675 Horseman Futurity three-year-old trot on the Grand Circuit racing card at Indiana State Fair, Indianapolis, yesterday. The black colt covered the mile in 2:01 3-4 for the first heat.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

In the third game of the Intercounty baseball finals Brantford Crests edged out a 3-2 win over Guelph Tuesday night to lead the best -of -five series 2-1. Shoemaker went the route on the mound for Brantford with Hillson catching. Cook was the losing pitcher.

Lindsay Athletics took the first game of the Ontario Baseball Association intermediate playdowns Tuesday with a 4-1 victory over Port Hope. Lefty Meljunkin pitched three-hit ball and after a three-run first inning had no trouble holding the lead. A home run by Edwardson was the only Port Hope tally.

Three -hit pitching by Hiller gave Oshawa Robson Leather 4-0 win over Belleville Sacco Marines in the first game of an O. A. S. A. intermediate "A" second-round playoff series in Belleville Tuesday night. Oshawa scored the four runs on four hits in the first inning.

B. F. Goodrich won the "Y" Industrial softball league junior championship defeating sunshine 16-9 in Kitchener on Tuesday night. It was Goodrich's third straight victory. The teams committed a total of 17 errors.

MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL HOSTS TO VISITING BOWLERS

Provincial Championships Played at Belleville and Kingston Greens

London, Oshawa, Toronto and Niagara Falls rinks won events yesterday as the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association tournament was concluded here.

A London rink composed of R. Gellately, A. Fuhrman, J. Johnstone and W. Ball, won the rink competition by defeating the Woodstock rink of R. Bingham, D. W. Kruupp, D. Scalisi and D. Wade by a score of 21-9.

In the consolation event, the rink of F. A. Cochrane, Oshawa, defeated that of Herb Taylor, Campbellford, 19-11.

In the doubles, C. Norris and Tom Smead of Balmy Beach, Toronto, defeated J. Ross and A. Moffatt, Hamilton Argylls, 22-16. In the consolation, J. Carson and J. Wilson, Toronto, defeated P. Reed and R. Edney, Kingston, 18-16.

In the semi-finals of the singles competition, J. Smart, Niagara Falls, defeated H. Taylor, 21-17 while J. Smith, Toronto, won from M. Kellum, Paris, 21-9. In the finals Smart won from Smith 21-4 while Taylor defeated Kellum in the consolation 21-15.

Opened Labor Day

The tournament was opened on Labor Day at Belleville and Kingston, the preliminary matches being contested with the four teams in each division coming to Belleville to complete the semi-finals and final matches. Large crowds gathered at the local greens each afternoon to watch the play and no doubt gathered some useful information because the games were bowling at their best. It seemed on some ends that the last bowl could not possibly get to the shot but in the majority of cases the shot was made with ease. Most of the tournament players stuck to the draw game invariably with the running shot used only when absolutely necessary.

Those taking part in the Provincial championships were loud in their praise of the courtesy and hospitality shown them by the Belleville Bowling Club and the City of Belleville. To having the championships played east of Toronto the credit must be given to Cliff Argue, a member of the Provincial Council and an enthusiastic member of the local club. Cliff in his quiet way sold the possibilities of having the games played in Belleville and not one of the executive was sorry that they came. The weather was ideal and the greens in excellent condition and the bowlers were loud in their praise. Although the local greens are not regulation length yet there was sufficient trickiness to make the bowlers play their best.

Winners Given Blazers

Each member of the winning rinks in singles, doubles and rinks was given a red blazer denoting championship play, while the consolation winners were given suitable prizese. Each one who bowled in the championship was given an official button, which shows that he has bowled in the Provincial tournament and is entitled to wear it on all occasions. Many bowlers were seen on the greens with up to twelve of these buttons.

At the conclusion of the matches the City Council entertained the winning combinations at a buffet lunch at the Belleville Club with the Mayor and members of his council in attendance. Mr. J. C. Burns of Markham, President of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association was in the chair and seated at the head table were N. C. Hart, official umpire, C. A. Sage, secretary and H. Hazelwood, vice president. Mr. Burns graciously thanked the Mayor and Council for the fine gesture and His Worship, Frank Follwell in a short but witty reply told the gathering this was the "Friendliest City in Canada" and hoped that this would not be the last of such gatherings. He extolled the advantages of the city and asked them to take home with them pleasant memories of the visit and hoped they would soon come again. The meeting closed with small gatherings collecting together to talk shop and how to improve and interest more people in the healthful recreation of bowling.

Winnipeg, Sept. 4 (CP)—It may be a few weeks before the leagues open their 1946-47 schedules but junior hockey players are on the move—and until all the moves are completed it's hard to say whether Winnipeg Monarchs, Memorial Cup champions, will even be a serious contender this season.

At least three of the Monarchs have left for greener—if the term can be used about a winter sport —fields. George Robertson and Dunc Daniels are in Stratford, Ont., and likely to stay there and Eddie Marchant has been released to join the Edmonton club.

How many more gaps there will be in last year's junior champions before the first game is something no one is sure about. The one bright spot is the return of Johnny Arundel, former St. Michael's College and Oshawa General.

Monarchs aren't the only Winnipeg junior team hard hit by migration—Rangers, too, are taking a beating. Terry Sawchuk, hailed as one of the best goalies developed here recently, has gone to Galt, Ont. Odie Lowe and Bill Ramsden, also of the Rangers, are in Lethbridge, Alta., and Bill Johnson is looked at Brandon.

Sidelight of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers-Montreal Alouettes exhibition football series: Walter Dobler, former North Dakotan, now playing for Bombers, limped off the Osborne stadium field after the first game. But, it appears, he hadn't been injured by any mammoth Alouette tackler. Jumping into a huddle, he had stepped onto a gopher hole and sprained an ankle

Incidentally Winnipeg can get some consolation for their 24-0 drubbing Monday from the fact that it was ex-Bombers who displayed prominence in the scoring lineup. Dave Greenberg and Ches McCance, both ex-Blue and Gold boys, gathered nine points between them in the game.

Rita Hayworth Not Interested In Buying Club

Columbus, O., Sept. 4 (AP)— Flaming-haired Rita Hayworth of moviedom, who displays choicer selection of curves than Bob Feller, isn't interested in buying a baseball club.

Lovely Rita made this plain in a letter to Bob Hooey, Columbus Ohio State Journal sports editor, in response to his tongue-in-cheek suggestion that she buy Columbus Red Birds for $500,000 —in line with similar sports ventures by Bob Hope and Bing Crosby.

"It isn't the $500,000, Bob," she wrote. "As everyone knows I get that much for a couple of hours overtime, any Saturday. But baseball just isn't my racket, and I can't quite imagine myself subbing for Mr. (Samuel) Breadon (present Red Bird owner.)

"For that matter, can you imagine Mr. Breadon making love to Glenn Ford?"

Eight-Pound Son Born to Dionnes At Callandar

North Bay, Sept. 4 —(CP)— The Dionnes are back in the news —this time with an eight-pound son, born last night at Callander.

The two doctors attending Mrs. Oliva Dionne were so excited they forgot to take exact weight of the baby at birth. Excited, too, were the Quintuplets — Cecile, Yvonne, Marie, Emilie and Annette. Now 12, they spent most of the evening discussing suitable names for their new brother.

Circumstances surrounding the birth were different from those of the memorable night of May 28, 1934, when news was flashed to the world that quintuplets were born to the same parents in a tiny frame farm-house at Corbeil, near Callander.

Last night two doctors — C. H. McGowan and I. Joyal — were present along with Nurse Yolande Joyal. At the birth of the Quints in 1934, Dr. Alan Roy Dafoe toiled without proper medical supplies to keep the five babies alive.

This was the 14th birth in the Dionne family and 13 of the children are still living. Their first child, Ernest, was born in 1927, Rose in 1928 and Therese in 1929. Leo, born in 1930, died at one month.

Daniel was born in 1931 and Pauline in 1933. Then came the Quintuplets on May 28, 1934, and world attention focused on the Dionne family.

Oliva Jr., born in 1936 and Victor, in 1938, were almost completely overshadowed by publicity attending growth and development of their famous sisters.

Mr. Dionne is 43 years old and Mrs. Dionne 37.

Dodgers, Back at Home, Slice Cards' Lead to Two Games

Chicago and Detroit Struggle for 16 Frames in Smart Contest

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Brooklyn Dodgers fell on their old "cousins" from Philadelphia last night to clip half a game off St. Louis' lead and move within two games of the National League leading Cards who were idle. Each has 24 games to play.

Kirby Higbe, manager Leo Durocher's "stopper," showed signs of wear and tear in earning his 14th victory of the season over the Phillies 6-4. The Phils spurted for three in the eighth, and Hank Behrman saved the day.

For what was supposed to have been an open date in both leagues, yesterday was a busy day with six games.

Lefty Bob Chipman shut out Pittsburg with five hits 2-0, as Chicago's Cubs continued their belated drive which probably will do no more than assure them of finishing third ahead of Boston.

Tommy Holmes was the big gun in Boston's 5-4 shade over the New York Giants, the Braves loaded double during a four-run rally in the seventh inning that knocked out starter Dave Koslo. Although Bill Lee received credit for the win, Billy Southworth used Jim Wallace and Mort Cooper to halt a late Giant uprising.

Chicago and Detroit struguled for 16 innings before the White Sox won 4-3. The Tigers broke a 2-2 tie with a run in the first of the 16th but Chicago came back to score twice and beat Stubby Overmire who pitched to only two batters, but allowed two hits.

Cleveland climbed into a fifth-place tie with Chicago on a double win over St. Louis, 5-3 and 7-3. Lou Boudreau had to use Bobby Feller in relief to save the opener.

New York Yankees, Boston Red Sox, Philadelphia Athletics and Washington Senators were not scheduled in the American and St. Louis and Cincinati were idle in the National.

BISONS, ORIOLES TIED FOR FOURTH PLAYOFF SPOT

Newark Bears and Syracuse Fairly Certain to Make Playoffs

(By The Associated Press)

Buffalo and Baltimore are tied for the fourth and final playoff spot in the International League with only five days to go before the curtain drops.

Although neither second-place Newark nor third-place Syracuse is assured of a spot in the post-season play, they are fairly secure with the clock rapidly running out in their favor.

Baltimore climbed back into the select circle last night by downing Syracuse, 6-3, behind Alex Ronay who was making his first start in 14 days.

Ronay held the Chiefs to nine hits while the Orioles bumped Earl Harrist and Floyd Giebell for 14 safeties including home runs by Soup Campbell and Eddie Robinson who also had a triple.

Syracuse fell into third position as Newark's red-hot Bears racked up their seventh straight win, 4-2, over Jersey City. In addition to moving Newark into the runner-up spot, the victory gave the Bears a lopsided 18-4 sweep of their season series with the last place Little Giants.

Steve Peek turned in a sparkling four-hit job to earn his 10th victory and contributed a double to the Newark offensive, driving in two runs and scoring one himself.

Montreal, Toronto, Buffalo and Rochester were idle.

ARGOS AS STRONG AS LAST YEAR SAYS TED MORRIS

This is the third of a Canadian Press series on pre-season prospects of teams in the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union. Today's story is about Toronto Argonauts. Tomorrow: Montreal Alouettes.

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Sept. 4—(CP)—Two of everything, from a complete change of speedy backfielders to a heavy forward wall powered by substitutes as rugged as the regulars, still finds coach Ted Morris singing the "double blues" as his champion Toronto Argonauts start after their second straight Grey Cup.

The Argos, with their Dominion championship lineup virtually intact, are the morning - line favorites. There's little doubt about that. But Ted can see at least two snags that could sink them in the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union schedule they open Saturday.

"For one thing," he enumerated, "I can't say I have a stronger team than last year. Those are the same faces you see out there. And who knows how much the other clubs have strengthened?

May go to School

"For another, what happens if the intercollegiate boys decide to wreck my backfield?"

Right there, Ted has something because the University of Toronto may "get", not one, but all his quarterbacks. Students Fred Doly and Billy Myers, the two mighty mites whose play-calling sparked last season's team, may be "requested" to play for Varsity, as may Tommy Waldon, a quarter and half.

The Intercollegiate Union does not get under way until Oct. 5, however, so the trio will be around for a while at least. Meantime, Ted is grooming a pair of newcomers "just in case." They are Al Jacobs, last year's Varsity quarter, and Chuck Camilleri, late of high school and the navy.

Regarding the alleged failure to strengthen, maybe Ted meant he hasn't found a second Joe Krol. At that, the shifty, 210-pound half from Windsor showed one was enough when he scored 11 points himself and passed for another touchdown Saturday in a 17-7 exhibition victory over Balmy Beach, Toronto's Ontario Rugby Football Union entry.

Besides Krol, Morris has such proved backfield stars as Royal Copeland, the big blond speedster; Art Skidmore, the long-range punter; the rugged Karrys brothers, Byron and Steve, and the college trio mentioned earlier.

Plunging Prospects

He has two good plunging prospects in Boris Tipoff, late of Balmy Beach, and Lyn Thompson, a powerful blocker who went into the army after captaining the University of Western Ontario's unbeaten 1939 champions. Other backfield hopefuls include Art Bell, Bill Wade, Morris Titanic, Don Robinson and Bev Carter.

To protect these ball-luggers, there is the first-string line intact. Centred by 245-pound Tom Glen, it has Steve (linecoach) Levantis, weighing 220 pounds, and Frank Morris, 243, at insides; middles Les Ascott, 220, and Bill Zock, 225, and ends Jack Wedley and Len Cassidy.

Others trying for line jobs include veterans Ted Courtney; Murray Sullivan; Vern Goyer; Phil Carr-Harris; Pat Reid; Bruce Richardson; Jack Obernesser and Steve Pruski. In addition, there are such newcomers as Harold (Montreal Hornets) Grice; Gordon (Balmy Beach) Burdick; Pat (Hamilton Wildcats) Santucci; Don (Beaches) Robinson; Babe (Steve's brother) Levantis; Pete (Toronto Indians) Titanic; Leo (Beaches) Deadey and Johnny (Hornets) Crincich.

Morris concedes it will be tough cutting this wealth of talent down to the 24 players league rules permit in a game. The chances are he will open with pretty much a pat hand in the same lineup that spanked Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the east-west final last year.

He expects to find out Saturday what the other fellow caught in the draw when Lew Hayman the wholesale importer, brings the Montreal Alouettes here to ring up the curtain.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

The mail brings word from that former newspaper guy, Harry Moore, who put Trenton in the limelight for several years, and who is known to hundreds of district readers as "Uncle Hi." The "Unk" always a great sportsman, whether it be the rod and line, his typewriter, or a baseball squad, is spending his time up in his native Pembroke, and his current sports love is the Pembroke team which recently annexed the North Renfrew baseball championship.

Harry states that by far one of the best umps up around the suburbs of Petawawa, (Sweat, sand and huckleberries, shades of 1943) is none other than Sergeant Mayor Harry Welsh, known more familiarly down around Picton way as "Peckin". The former Pictonian, who apparently loves the khaki, is doing a grand job with the mask 'n pad lads and is rated tops in the Pembroke district. Davey Young can take a bow, for "Peckin" learned a lot about officiating from the irrepressible Davy.

And aside to the hon. Harry: the information and documents re rules will be in the mail tomorrow or next day. And it's all free, chum.

This afternoon at five the Trenton Flyers and Batawa hook up in their second diamond duel of their current OBA Intermediate "A" series. Flyers have their backs to the hangars and are far from being grounded. They've got their sights trained and even as you read this, are levelling them on the deadly slants of "Smoky" Smith, or whoever is doing the chucking for the Shoemen. There's a couple of dandy prizes being drawn for, so you might make the game and the prizes yet if you hurry.

Amiable "Pete" Beach, director of athletics at Albert College, fresh from his sojourn at the University of Western Ontario in London, (in the bush) as a summer school director of recreation, dropped in the other day to discuss the fall program of the school and district.

Prospects for junior sports at the college are not very bright, according to "Pete", while senior activities will be only average. Some of last year's championship rugby and basketball teams will be back when the school opens next Wednesday, but the director feels that in the main he will have to rely on new and untried material.

There are two stars who will attend however, and who will be seen in action after school opens. They are Al. Wiley, who was picked as the snap for the all-star WOSSA squad last year, and Jack Dodsworth, who played for London Central Collegiate Institute, last year's senior WOSSA basketball champions.

The first meeting of the Bay of Quinte section will be held at the Collegiate here probably at the end of this week if not before. No definite date has been set as yet but principals and teachers in charge of athletics will be notified and are urged to attend.

Two important matters will come up for discussion at this meeting. One is a proposed change in eligibility rules which the COSSA expects to put into effect at the annual meeting scheduled for the end of September and the tightening up of academic qualifications. Seems as though the lads have to be good at the three "R's" as well as the high jinks on the diamond, hockey cushion, and basketball floor.

There is also an important change in rugby rules this year according to Mr. Beach. The COSSA will inaugurate the ten-yard interference for linemen. Heretofore it has been five yards. Rugby schedules will also be drafted at the B. of Q. section meeting.

A suggestion that a senior COSSA grouping in rugby to include Belleville Collegiate, Albert College, Oshawa and Peterborough C.I.'s be formed met with mixed feeling in various parts of the district. As in the case of all group sports transportation is a ticklish problem. Oshawa and Peterborough would have to make two trips each to Belleville, which does not appeal very strongly to those schools. Night games in Belleville have been suggested, but the idea is far from being clear at the moment. Something definite may develop in the immediate future.

Senor Jorge (pronounced Horgay) Pasquel, pert peso producer and boss of the Mexican Baseball (pronounced beisbol) League, asserts that Mickey Owen, flitabout catcher, owes him plenty of dinero (pronounced, bucks, iron men, lettuce, mazuma and dough) and has filed suit against the jumping receiver for that amount.

And Wacky Waldo cracks that Horgay doesn't intend to let the hon. Miguel have any peso mind. Miguel admits, Waldo asserts, that he doublecrossed the border — but that's as far as he'll go.

The Sacos bats failed to click last night against the hurling of Hiller, the Oshawa Tanners' chucker. The pudgy one, a veteran of the softball wars, (remember we beat him a couple of years ago) can still throw 'em in there and make the opposition like it. In any event, apart from that first bad innings when the Tanners got all their runs, the game was easily one of the best mushball tilts seen here in years.

This Oshawa gang, conquerors of the Peterboro De Lavals, appear to have all it takes. They have one of the "clickingest" infields seen here in many a moon, and while tall Jim Hunter set them back on their hitting heels after that disastrous first innings, the lads from the Motor City gave a defensive exhibition that satisfied all concerned.

Furthermore, the "Leathers" have a team harmony that is hard to beat. In fact, we have seen little better here in years. These Motor City guys clicked in perfect unison, and therein lies one of the secrets of their power. They will be a tough aggregation to beat in Oshawa come Saturday when the two squads tussle again.

But the Sacos are far from beaten. They have the experience of the Kingston squad who beat them here and then went down to defeat in the next two games. And they feel confident that they can take the measure of the Tannery gang—but that awaits to be seen. They play in Oshawa Saturday — time to be decided upon. More later.

BE KIND TO ANIMALS

DR. BAKER'S COLUMN
Edited by Dr. Charles B. Baker, B.V.Sc.

HINTS

There is much satisfaction to be had out of the ownership of an obedient, well-trained dog, and although the Shepherd has in his nature an instinct to guard and to attack, he has a compensating intelligence with which a wise owner can do much. The aggressive instinct should be curbed in puppyhood.

The puppy should not be punished for misdemeanors until he is at least three months old. Before that he does not understand what he has done that might be wrong.

This advertisement is approved and endorsed by THE SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

"The Seeing Eye" A dog reflects his owner. The dog is what man makes him. The Shepherd or Alsatian has always been the screen's topflight canine actor. He is the leader of the blind—"The Seeing Eye"—and Dog of War par excellence.

The Shepherd can be trained to attack on sight or can be moulded into the owner's loyal and gentle friend. Kindness to animals begins with understanding. Understanding brings out the best in dogs as well as people.

Companies Sign New Agreements With Seamen

By JACK WILLIAMS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 4 —(CP)— Threat of a Great Lakes strike was removed today with the completion of new agreements between the Canadian Seaman's Union (T. L. C.) and three major shipping companies. Settlement of differences between the Union and companies appeared to assure continued navigation at least until the end of the 1947 season.

Companies involved in today's settlement are Canada Steamship Lines; Paterson Steamship Co. and Sarnia and Colonial Steamships. Terms of the new contracts followed generally those which had been accepted previouly by other lake operators.

A C. S. U. strike earlier this year tied up lake shipping for four weeks and ended only when a government controller was appointed. There was no indication today of whether settlement of the issues would mean an immediate end to the controllership.

The new agreements provide for wage increase of 20 per cent-roughly equivalent to from eight to ten cents an hour—of which 12 1-2 per cent will be payable this season and 7 1-2 per cent in the 1947 season. Union security is provided through maintenance of membership under which belonging to the union must continue their membership for the duration of the contract. In addition the contract provides an eight-hour day and gives preference in employment to Union members.

Joint discussion yesterday between Union, companies and government official finally concluded in the settlement early today.

SCOTCH COAL EXPORTERS UNEASY

Glasgow, Sept. 4 (CP)—Lack of coal for export is causing concern among exporters and shipping agents who fear a permanent loss of this trade to the United States. Before the war thousands of tons of coal were shipped weekly from ports on the Firth of Forth to the continent Now nothing but inferior coal is available, and in small supply.

AT THE CAPITOL — Majestic scenery — The awe-inspiring grandeur of the giant Redwoods of California casting their reflections in the crystal clear waters of the lakes and rivers, is something long to remember, in James Oliver Curwood's "God's Country," filmed in breathtaking color, coming next to the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "Galloping Thunder," with Charles Starrett and Smiley Burnette.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A good lead suggestion is never a contradiction to rule. Dig down into its reasons. You will discover that it is merely a subbranch of a good general rule.

One of the general rules for leads is: A top card is the most desirable of all. By a top card is meant the highest of a sequence; or king from AK with others; or ace from a short suit.

A branch of this general rule is: With two top card leads, the strongest should be led first. By strongest is meant the highest of the sequence groups in your hand.

One sub-branch of this branch is: When one suit has quick tricks and another has an establishable sequence, lead first from the sequence to be established.

Such a lengthy sentence with jawbreakers confuse me. My grasp of the point is better when it is broken up into short phrases made up of one-syllable words. Or by quickly applying it to an example.

So, suppose south is declarer at three no-trump and it is your opening lead from this hand:

♦7 4 2
♣A K 5

Customarily, your best lead is club king. The idea is to tell partner you have the ace. Meantime you have a look around. Then a lead of your spade queen is sent forth.

If declarer has ace and king of spades, he wins the queen and shoots back a club. It knocks out your ace and you lead spade jack.

Declarer wins that and your spades are established. So, what. By this time you have no chance of re-entering your hand to make spades.

Better for you first to lead spade queen. When you get in with a club, lead spades again. By the time you establish spades, you can get in with your last top club to take something out of them.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 4 (AP) — They've got a new studio out in Universal City, and a new Deanna Durbin, too.

The Winnipeg-born songbird is making "I'll be Yours," the first picture for the new Universal-International Company. This is only fitting and proper since it is a Hollywood triusm that Deanna yanked Universal out of bankruptcy in the lean 30's.

Back at work, Deanna is much trimmer than she was, even before the baby. In fact, she looks more like an 18-year-old school girl than 23-year-old mother.

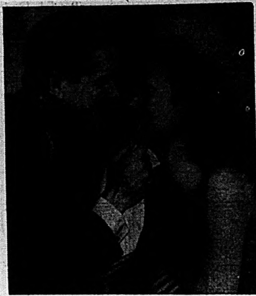
And it's not only her appearance that has changed; motherhood becomes her. She seems pleased with life, and displays little temperament. Whether or not she is pleased with the new studio set-up is problematical. Said she:

"I don't know if I'll be able to recognize the studio when all its plans are completed. It used to be like one happy little family. I knew practically everyone by his first name and telephone number."

Deanna added that "I think I'll retire for a while after my present contract is up." That will be in 3 1-2 years. But how long would her retirement stick?

"Probably three or four days until I found another good story," she admitted.

The underground reports that Jimmy Cagney's salary for doing "13 Rue Madaleine" is one of the greatest ever paid for a movie job. Near $300,000....watch for M.G.M. to set up a recording company which will have all its leading artists on discs....Laurence Olivier will record parts of "Henry V" for Victor.... With Robert Montgomery replacing him as screen actors guild prexy, George Murphy plans to tour army hospitals.



AT THE BELLE — Robert Cummings contemplates temptation in the lovely person of Diana Lynn and doesn't seem to know quite what to do about it. The two co-star with Barbara Stanwyck in Paramount's delightful laugh romance, "The Bride Wore Boots," which is closing at the Belle Tonight. "Don't be a Sucker," is a special extra attraction on the same program.

"I am. I have the right to!"

"Right?" he stared at her wonderingly. "What right?"

"I..I'm Larry's....wife!"

The news that his daughter was married to Larry Cutter seemed to almost stun Vincent Anthony.

"You....you're married.... to Larry....?" he managed at length.

"Yes, Vince."

"Why? I mean, when?"

"We haven't time to talk about that part of it. But Larry and I are married. That's why I said I had the right to keep you from going with him tonight....until we know."

"But if you're his wife...." Vince's brain seemed to be functioning again. "If you're his wife, why don't you know....everything?"

"Because I promised I wouldn't ask. And he's been unwilling to tell. At first, I didn't think it mattered much. That it wouldn't hurt anybody but me. But when you came back...."

"Then you and Larry have never lived together, have you?"

"No. I'll tell you all about it when we have time. Nobody knows anything about it."

"And him telling me he was in love with you....." Vince murmured helplessly. "I don't get it."

Jacqueline had herself in hand now.

"You'll have to let me straighten this out, Vince. I told you I had the right. Now, you know I have. I'm going to meet Larry tonight and have an understanding. I will not let you take the risk of getting into any trouble.. or hurt. Where will I find him?"

"See here, Skipper. Larry won't like it. He's depending on me. You know, I can drive his car and...."

"He can drive his own car tonight," Jacqueline said calmly.

"But what's he going to say when we...."

"I will see him and talk to him. You won't have to. I would rather you stayed here until I came back. I want to talk to him alone."

"But, Skipper...."

"Don't worry, Vince. I'll make him understand why you didn't come, and take all the blame. Where is this place? I'd better be getting started." She walked toward the wardrobe to get her coat and hat.

"You can't go there alone, Skipper. It's out on the edge of town. I'll have to go with you."

"I suppose it's a respectable place?"

"Yes, but that isn't the idea. It's late and everything ..."

"Never mind. I'm used to going about alone. I'll take a taxi at the corner and ask the driver to wait for me....at least until I know everyhting is all right." She crossed to the desk and came back with pencil and a bit of paper. "Write the address so there won't be any mistake."

Vince scribbled it with a sigh. He still was feeling the effect of Jacqueline's astounding news, felt baffled and helpless before the arguments advanced by this small woman. He scarcely knew his Skipper tonight.

"Don't worry, dear. I'll be perfectly all right," Jacqueline assured him when she was ready to leave. "There are some books over there in the case. Cigarettes in the desk. Please stay until I come in ...even if it's late."

"I still don't like ...."

"Nonsense!" She tried to laugh. The excitement of the night's adventure was making itself felt, buoying her up. "Can't a woman go out and find her husband without stirring up such a fuss?" she wanted to know.

Vince only stared at her as she opened the door and blew him a parting kiss. He was beyond words.

Jacqueline tried to observe her driver's face in the gloom when she told him to drive her to Hayner's roadhouse. He accepted his directions without evincing surprise that a lady should be going to such a place at midnight.

In the semi-darkness of her retreat, she lighted a cigarette and tried to ponder the situation calmly.

It was unfortunate that she had been obliged to confide in her father to the extent of revealing her marriage. It probably would be difficult to make him understand how she ever had been driven to embark upon married life in such a fashion. Vince had been a trifle erratic in manipulating his own home ties, but he clung to oldfashioned ideas. His own marriage had resulted from a love match, and a union such as hers would be little understood or approved.

There would be time enough to go into that. It was too late to alter the facts.

All that really mattered tonight was to save Vince from any untoward complications. It was her place now to shoulder any fresh difficulties arising from her association with Larry. It did not occur to her to wonder, or care, what his reaction to all this would be.

If he still wished to preserve his air of reticence about his doings, it was his own affair. But he was not going to drag Vince into any fresh difficulties. Vince had had enough troubles of his own and, if he really was on the point of success, it was no time to interfere with his career.

All these reflections were still in a chactic muddle when the cab came to a sudden standstill.

"Mayners, ma'am." The driver reached back and opened the door.

Jacqueline alighted in some trepidition and looked about her. The roadhouse stood apart from other buildings. Fortunately, it was brightly lighted and had an air of quiet respectabilty.

"Please wait here just a moment," Jacqueline said to her chauffeur. "I am looking for a friend. If....they are not here, I may wish to go back at once. I won't keep you waiting."

"Okay, ma'am."

Unpleasant visions of entering a barroom or something of that sort assailed Jacqueline as she walked quickly up the gravel path and stepped on the porch. Drawing a deep breath, she pushed the door open and peered in.

There were very few guests at the small tables with their red and white cloths. And there was Larry....only a short distance away. A half finished stein of beer was in front of him. He was smoking his pipe and idly marking the back of a menu with a pencil stub. As Jacqueline stepped inside the door, he glanced up and saw her.

Pushing back his chair so suddenly that he almost overturned it, Larry came striding to meet her.

"Jack....!" he exclaimed in a low tone. "Where did you come from?"

"I'd like to speak to you a few minutes, Larry," she told him composedly enough.

"Of course! How did you get here? Won't you sit down with me....the place is perfectly all right," seeing her glance about questioningly.

"I came in a cab. It's out front."

"That's all right. My car is parked behind the house. Wait here a second and I'll tell your man he needn't wait. I'll see that you get home safely."

For the sake of appearances, Jacquelinee seated herself at Larry's table. She was uncomfortably aware that she was the object of curious regard on the part of waiters and guests.

When Larry returned, he seated himself and asked. "May I order something for you?"

"No, thank you. I'd rather not stay."

"Where's Vince?" was his next quick question. "Nothing has happened to him, has there?"

"No. Vince is all right."

"I was expecting him to meet me here tonight."

"I know. I wouldn't let him come."

"So?"

"Yes. I don't think I care to discuss it here, Larry. I think it would be better if we were to go to Vince and all talk it over together. I told him....about us. I had to....to keep him from coming."

"I see." Larry's gaze and voice were level. Quiet.

"Would you like to take me home now?"

"I'm sorry, Jack. I can't do that. I have something I must attend to and....frankly, I don't care to be seen in....where I might be recognized.

"I thought so," she answered coldly. "But you were perfectly willing to take Vince into.... wherever you're going."

"Yes and no. I'll be glad to get a cab for you."

"Larry...." Jacqueline's eyes suddenly were beseeching. "I don't know what it's all about. But I'm afraid. Please....don't go! I've tried not to ask questions. I don't want to interfere....really I don't. But there's something wrong I feel it!"

The expression of Larry's face did not change.

"Nothing to be tragic about, my dear. Come on and stroll out to the car with me. We'll try to straighten things out. But not in here, if you don't mind. I'll be with you as soon as I pay my check."

The roadster stood in deep shadows, with no other cars near it. Larry helped Jacqueline in, then seated himself beside her. He made no moves to start the car.

"Jack, I wish I could tell you what it's all about....But there's too much at stake. I've waited too long to have anything slip now. You're all wrong in thinking that I was planning to let Vince in for anything. I thought I might need his services as a driver, that's all."

"Larry....you're going out to your old home, aren't you?"

"Yes."

"And you wanted Vince to bring your car back, in case...."

"There's no use in trying to hide anything from you, I see. I thought I might want him to do an errand for me at Rannie's house."

"So that Mr. Hicks would know something had happened to you."

"Perhaps. But nothing is going to happen to me. Now will you let me take you part way home.. put you into a cab?"

"No."

Jacqueline was thinking rapidly. There was a clutch of fear at her heart....remembering that man they saw guarding Fairlawn. She suddenly realized that she was thinking of Larry in much the same terms as she had thought of Vince. It was not the matter of wrong-doing. But danger. The danger had taken a very definite shape now. Her mouth was dry. She had to moisten her lips before she could speak.

"Larry!"

"Yes, Jack?"

"I'm going with you."

Larry Cutter would have given a great deal to read the expression in his wife's eyes when she made that little announcement. He sat in silence for a moment, then said slowly:

"It's no good, Jack. You figure that if you stick with me I won't go. Of course I can't put you out of the car....unless I have to. But I have to see this through tonight."

"I'm going with you," she repeated stubobrnly.

"Then I'll have to tell you why you can't, my dear. "You've guessed right. I'm going out to Fairlawn and I'm going into that house. There is something there I must try to find."

'Does it belong to you, Larry?"

"That's a question. It may not even be in existence. But I owe it to some one to take the chance. To a man who's been dead a good many years."

Pop was smoking to himself after supper, saying to ma, This is a strange and remarkable age we're living in my dear. We'll probably go down into histery, if there's anything left of us to go down, as the Age of Science and the Machine. Our astronomers bounce radar beems off the moon aud our docters bounce the germs out of our bodies so fast that it's almost a relief to stay home a cupple of days with a little attack of newmonia, he said.

Yes, everything seems possible nowadays, that's what makes it all seem so impossible, ma said, and pop said, We laugh at time and space, we eat breakfist at home and have an air conditioned lunch of fresh oysters in the middle of the Sahara Desert, topped off by 12 cups of harmless coffee with all the caffine removed.

I wish you'd learn to drink that kind for land sakes, ma said, and pop said, A scientist in Russia has discovered a serum that will keep us jitterbugging to the age of 150, and there was a picture in this morning's paper of a war veteran doing a difficult tap dance with the aid of 2 artificial legs. But what's the use? With all their nolledge they cant find a cure for the simplest human affliction, he said.

Do you mean the common cold? ma said and pop said, No, I mean the strongest man's helplessness when the weakest woman makes up her mind to go to a movie.

Now William you sollemly promised with your last breath while we were eating dinner that you'd take me to see Paulette Rich in Atomic Love, ma said, and pop said, That's what I meant, my dear, there's no help for it is the whole realm of science or surgery.

And he changed his slippers back to nis shoes and they went.

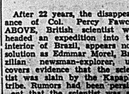
Miss Ethel Donoghue of San Diego, Cal., and Mr. Harper Newman of Cambridge, Ont., visited Mr. and Mrs. T. S. McCrea this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jeffrey spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. Stapley and family of Campbellford. They were accompanied by Misses Joan McCrea and Gertrude Orr.

MYSTERY UNRAVELS



After 22 years, the disappearance of Col. Percy Fawcet, ABOVE, British scientist who headed an expedition into the interior of Brazil, appears near solution as Edmmar Morel, Brazilian newsman-explorer, uncovers evidence that the scientist was slain by the Kapaplos tribe. Rumors had been persistent that the scientist was alive and a prisoner of jungle natives

Victim of Japanese Encephalitis

Tokyo, Sept. 4 — (AP) — One American soldier died of deadly Japanese B type encephalitis and two are seriously ill at an isolated United States outpost 100 miles south of Seoul, Korea, Dr. Albert B. Sabin reported today.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Sept. 4 (CP)—Further losses were boarded in the early session on the Toronto exchange today in sympathy with the New York decline. Industrials led the slump with an index drop of 2.58 while the golds lost 1.28, the base metals .79 and the western oils .23. Volume was lower, 879,000 shares changing hands in the first three hours.

Aluminum weakened 13 points to 165, Hiram Walker 6 points to 128 and Industrial Alcohol issues were down considerable.

In the gold group losses of 10 to 15 cents or more appeared for Giant, Pioneer, Wright Hargreaves, Negus and East Sullivan. Hudson Bay, Smelters and Steep Rock were heavy base metals.

The western oil share market showed weakness.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 4 —(AP)—Stocks rallied selectively today although many market leaders continued to post lows for the last year or longer.

The list churned rapidly from the opening until around midday when the pace slowed. The ticker tape was late during the greater part of the forenoon. Steels recovered at the start but ultimately slipped. Assorted rails and industrials retrieved fractions to a point or so although losses of one to 11 were widespread near the fourth hour.

The Canadian list continued to droop. Hiram Walker led the group with a mid-day loss of five points. Distillers Seagrams slipped 1-2 and Dome Mines 3-4. C.P.R. was off 1-4.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Sept. 4. (CP) —Cattle, veal calves, hogs and sheep sold at steady prices up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. Lambs were firm.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were—cattle 500, calves 200, hogs 300, sheep and lambs 400. Unsold from yesterday were 1,600 head of cattle.

Sheep: $5-$7.50.

Hogs: Dressed Grade A $21.75, Grade B1 $21.35, sows mostly $18.50.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Sept. 4 — (CP) — Prices were steady today on the livestock markets. Receipts: cattle 11; sheep 23; hogs 46; calves 8.

Heifers ranged from 7:50-11.50. Good butcher cows sold from 9.25-10. Medium kinds were 8.50-9.25. Common were 7.25-8.25. Canners and cutters were 5.50-7. Good bulls were 9.25 up and bologna bulls 7-9.

Vealers sold made 12-15. Grassers and drinkers in mixed lots were 7-10. Good ewes and wethers were 13.50. Bucks were 12.50, culls 7-8 and sheep 3-8.

Hogs were transferred at 21 for grade A. Cows were 19 dressed.

Chinese on Trial Says "I Should be Shot"

Peiping, Sept. 4—(AP)—Wang Yi-Tang, former chairman of the Japanese-organized North China Political Affairs Commission, listened today to the reading of 12 charges of collaboration filed against him, then remarked simply: "I should be shot." He will be sentenced Saturday.

Heirens Pleads Guilty 3 Murders, 29 Other Charges

Chicago, Sept. 4 (AP)—Seventeen-year-old William Heirens, Jekyll-Hyde personality with a "deep-rooted" sexual perversion, today pleaded guilty to the murders of Suzanne Degnan, Mrs. Josephine Ross and Miss Frances Brown.

The swarthy, bushy-haired university sophomore stood quietly, showed no emotion as the clerk read a long list of 29 burglary, assault and robbery charges against him. To each he pleaded guilty.

TO MAKE PILGRIMAGE

London, Sept. 4—(Reuters)—About 100 relatives of the "Red Devils" who fell at Arnhem will make a pilgrimage to the scene of the battle on its second anniversary, Sept. 17, it was announced today.

Roman Catholic and Church of England services will be held at the cemetery of the British airborne troops who died in the fruitless surprise attempt to win a bridgehead over the lower Rhine near Nijmegen, scene of subsequent Canadian actions which led to the Rhine crossings of the following spring.

Veterans Take Over Barracks To Solve Problem

Ottawa, Sept. 4 —(CP)— With "Operation Kildare" successfully launched, 11 veterans of Ottawa's newly - formed Anti - Housing Shortage League, with their wives and 18 children, today consolidated their position in expectation of counter-attacks.

The operation began last night with the "capture" of Kildare Barracks and Kildare Annex — recently-vacated by the Canadian Women's Army Corps—at Laurier Avenue and Chapel Street in the Sandy Hill District. Acting suddenly, the veterans moved in their furniture and families and defied authorities to "try to get us out."

Earlier yesterday F. E. Hanratty, ex-R.C.A.F. officer who heads the league, sent an "ultimatum" to Mayor Stanley Lewis demanding that housing be provided. When the time limit expired the veterans moved in according to prepared plan.

Civic officials, housing authorities and military officers declined comment on the situation last night, but the veterans expected some opposition today. At the same time, Mr. Hanratty intimated his veterans would continue to move into the huge residences which it is believed will accommodate about 18 families.

Converted for wartime use, the buildings housed 100 C.W.A.C.'s.

Mayor Lewis last week promised the veterans they would be housed, and said the barracks would be used for the purpose. However, the buildings still are under control of military authorities and were vacated only Monday.

One army official was on hand in the confusion of moving last night, but he made no attempt to halt the operation and would not comment as to possible action.

MAY BE HAILED AS CHESS MASTER

By Groningen, Holland, Sept. 4 —(CP)— Only the formalities appeared necessary today to place the seal of success of Abe Yanofsky's bid for recognition as a world chess master.

Practically everybody here — judges, observers and participants — agreed that the 22-year-old medical student from Winnipeg had earned the coveted master ranking by his play in the international chess tournament.

One critic stressed it is an unwritten law in the chess kingdom that a contender who achieves one-third of a maximum score in a tough tournament is considered a master. And Yanofsky, who drew Tuesday against Dr. A. S. Denker of New York after a sensational victory the day before over touted Mikhail Botvinnik of Russia, now has seven points of a possible 16 with three games to play.

Dr. Max Euwe of The Netherlands drew yesterday against Gosta Stoltz of Sweden, but retained his first-place position with three points, one-half point ahead of Botvinnik, who defeated Cenek Kottnauer of Czechoslovakia.

Yanofsky, now in 14th place, plays Isaac Boleslavsky of Russia today. His cumulative record at the tournament is four victories, six draws and six defeats.

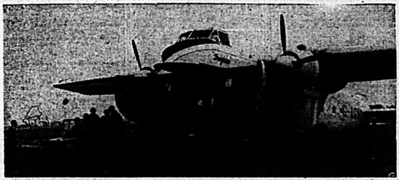
NEW BRITISH AIRCRAFT WILL CARRY OUT TESTS IN MANITOBA



Following its participation in a paratroop display at the International Air Show at DeHavilland Airport, Toronto, Ont., Britain's new aircraft now touring Canada and the United States, the Bristol Freighter, will be tested by the Canadian Army and the R.C.A.F. The big aircraft will leave Toronto on Sept. 4 to carry out these tests in Manitoba. The Bristol Freighter unloaded jeeps and a field gun in support of paratroops attacking enemy gun positions in the display. Two jeeps and a field gun were unloaded from the aircraft in two-and-a-half minutes.

Searchers Hold Little Hope Of Finding Survivors

Prince Rupert, B.C., Sept. 3—(CP)— Across a wide wilderness of woods, rock-bound coast and sea, searchers by plane and boat today sought trace of the flying boat Skeena Queen which disappeared into a fog Saturday night during a mercy flight from Stewart, B.C., to Prince Rupert, a distance of 120 miles.

Searchers hold little hope of finding any survivors, following the finding of one body yesterday, in the Chatham Island area, and believe only wreckage, possibly fathoms deep, will be found.

Spotted by a United States Coastguard seaplane, a large oil tank, believed from the part wing of the Skeena Queen, was brought here by a Provincial Police boat from Chatham.

It was found 10 miles south of where the body of 24-year-old Mrs. Margaret Dempsey was located in the water floating in a life preserver half-mile off shore from Finlayson Island.

Mrs. Dempsey, bringing her 3½-year-old daughter from Stewart to Prince Rupert for medical treatment, was one of seven persons aboard the plane. No trace of other bodies was found, but searchers located a cushion and several "Mae West" life belts floating in the water.

Prime Minister Abandons Role External Affairs

Will Devote Energies To Canada's Internal Problems

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 5 —(CP)— With one last personal major diplomatic shuffle, Prime Minister Mackenzie King today abandoned his 20-year role as minister of external affairs and prepared to devote his energies to Canada's internal problems and to a reorganization of his cabinet before parliament resumes late next January.

In a late afternoon, 45-minute press conference, the 71-year-old prime minister discloses:—

1. Justice Minister Louis St. Laurent has succeeded him as external affairs minister at least until the end of the year but the post will be handed over to one man exclusively — "only Providence knows who" — in the cabinet shuffle.

2. Norman Robertson, under-secretary of state for external affairs, will go to London as Canadian high commissioner, succeeding the Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey.

3. L. B. (Mike) Pearson will succeed Mr. Robertson here and, in turn, will be succeeded as ambassador at Washington by Hume Wrong, associate under-secretary of state for external affairs.

4. The government will take no action by order-in-council to give Canada a new flag; that problem will be left over for the next session of parliament.

Will Lead Delegation.

One of Mr. St. Laurent's first acts in his new position will be to lead the Canadian delegation to the United Nations General Assembly meeting in New York Sept. 23. Mr. King said he also might go to the meeting but not as a delegate.

The Prime Minister said Solicitor-General Joseph Jean would take some of the justice department responsibilities off the shoulders of Mr. St. Laurent. As for himself, he felt "a good deal younger" now that he had shed his responsibility as foreign minister.

He intends to lead the government into the next session of parliament as he hoped to lead it into several after that but he would not lead the Liberal forces into the next general election.

Mr. St. Laurent was sworn into his new office yesterday. The other appointments become effective Sept. 17. All three involve career diplomats.

Native of Vancouver

A native of Vancouver, Mr. Robertson, 42, joined the External Affairs Department in 1935 and became its under-secretary five years ago. Mr. Massey, his predecessor in London, resigned in May and is in Canada, his future plans unknown.

In his early 40's, Mr. Pearson joined the department 18 years ago and served in London and Washington. Mr. Wrong, 52, has served in various capacities in London, Washington, Ottawa and Geneva, at one time being permanent delegate to the League of Nations.

ORDER RETURNING IN BOMBAY AFTER DAYS OF RIOTING

Unofficial Estimates Place the Casualties At More Than 200 Dead and 600 Injured

By G. MILTON KELLY

Bombay, Sept. 5—(AP)—Scattered police and military gunfire still echoed today in troubled Bombay but order appeared to be returning slowly after four days of bitter communal strife in which officials said 189 persons had been slain and 527 wounded.

Unofficial estimates placed the casualties at more than 200 dead and 600 injured.

A government communique issued at 1 p.m. said stray stabbings still were being reported in scattered sections of the city and warned there would be no hesitation in imposing a 24-hour curfew in troubled areas if the situation warranted.

Meanwhile all the city's 70 mills remained closed. Few shops remained open and in the northern section of the city traffic was completely suspended.

British and Indian troops not on duty were confined to their barracks.

A temporary internment camp has been set up in a Bombay suburb to assist in accommodating troublemakers, some 2,000 of whom have been arrested since the rioting began last Sunday.

Today is a Hindu holiday and tomorrow a Moslem day of prayer—both considered critical periods.

Hindus Carry Images

Thousands of Hindus reverently carried the images of Ganesh, their elephant headed god of Fortune, to the shore and cast them into the sea in a ritual intended to protect the images from pollution.

There was considerable concern lest the processions of devout Hindus might become involved in clashes with Moslems. Similar fears were held for tomorrow when devout Moslems move to the Mosques for prayer.

Increasing numbers of Moslems have been taking down the black flags they flew in protest against the interim Indian government, but they were replaced with flaming red banners. . . . supposed to symbolize the Moslem League's "direct action" for Pakistan (an Independent Moslem State).

One factor which may have prolonged the disordeers has been the food shortage in the public market places, which resulted because supply agencies feared to venture into Bombay. As a result food prices have soared as much as 225 per cent on some scarce items, such as vegetables, meat and bread.

Additional Stabbings

The Calcutta Ambulance Corps said it had handled an additional eight stabbing cases today, mainly in the north and central parts of the city.

Still recovering from an orgy of murder, looting and arson which terrorized the teeming city's millions last month, Calcutta remained tense, with similar disturbances in other Indian cities heightening the apprehension.

Bus service was completely suspended and trams were running in only a few sections.

From Poona, Premier B. G. Kher of Bombay issued a call for the assistance and co-operation of the city's citizens to stop the disturbances.

Russia Calls on Parley To Reject Emphatically Italy's Claim to Trieste

By ROBERT HEWETT

Paris, Sept. 5 (AP)—Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Russian Deputy Foreign Minister, called on the 21-power peace conference today to "reject emphatically" Italian claims to disputed Trieste.

Outlining Russia's stand on the leading territorial issue before the post-war conference, Mr. Vishinsky said that Yugoslavia has an "unquestionable right" to Trieste. He said the Soviet Union was supporting the Big Four agreement to make a free territory of the port only because of "political consideration."

The Russian diplomat, in a speech before the Italian political and territorial commission, accused Ivanoe Bonomi, former Italian Premier, of "cloaking annexations with the flag of justice" in claiming the important Adriatic port for Italy.

Mr. Vishinsky made it plain that Russia would abide by the Big Four foreign ministers decision to create the free territory of Trieste but declared sharply:

"Yugoslavia has an unquestionable right to the port and town of Trieste. The decision of the foreign ministers contains a minimum of justice. In our opinion it should contain a maximum of justice.

"But sometimes it is not possible to have a maximum of justice in dealing with political considerations. Sometimes when we are dealing with politics two and two don't make four—sometimes they all up to five."

Called "Act of Robbery"

The Soviet minister called the act of Rapallo by which Italy obtained Trieste in the First World War as "an act of robbery." Bonomi, he declared, "became famous not by service to the people but by his dubious role as war minister of the Fascist regime."

Considerable importance was attached to the Soviet stand on Trieste because thus far the Russian delegation had neither failed to support the Slav bloc in its demands nor the treaty clauses agreed upon by the Big Four—and this time the two are at odds.

While Italy clamored that "internationalizing Trieste"—as proposed by the Big Four—would be a "threat to world peace," Yugoslavia was demanding the whole Istrian Peninsula, including the port.

Position Stated

The United States' position on the touchy problem—regarded by many here as the key to future peace—was sounded yesterday by Senator Tom Connally (Dem.-Tex.), who called for the zone to be "such territory and such government that will command the respect of both Yugoslavia and Italy."

Today's sessions of the peace conference probably will see two central figures absent: Foreign Secretary Molotov of Russia and State Secretary Byrnes of the United States, who is scheduled to leave for Germany, where he intends to make a major statement of American policy in Germany in a speech at Stuttgart tomorrow.

Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain, the third member of the Big Four Foreign Minister Council, also probably will be gone tomorrow. He is scheduled to attend another conference in London.

MARITIME UNIONS CALLED TO STRIKE IN UNITED STATES

Protest Wage Stabilization Board Ruling Recently Passed

New York, Sept. 5 — (AP) — American Federation of Labor seamen were ordered by union leaders to quit work at "every pier in every port" in the United States today in protest over a wage stabilization board ruling denying them the full wage raise won in recent negotiations with shipping operators.

Exact time of the strike has not been set but officials of the Sailors Union of the Pacific, one of the two maritime unions involved, said the men probably would leave their ships at noon. Picketing, however, is to begin tomorrow morning.

The strike call by the S. U. P. and the Seafarers International Union came despite a last minute offer by the Board to consider a rehearing of its disapproval of the pay boost.

Despite the official strike deadline, A.F.L. seamen began leaving their jobs yesterday. Almost 3,000 seamen quit work on the Pacific coast while 300 more walked off ships docked in Baltimore harbor last night.

Union leaders claimed the strike would take 400,000 workers off their jobs and tie up every port in the United States.

The recently formed A. F. L. Maritime Trades Department, including representatives of longshoremen, masters, mates and pilots, commercial telegraphers and firemen and oilers, yesterday pledged their support to the seamen.

Lines to be Respected

"Where the S.I.U. and the S.U.P. form picket lines, they will be respected," the Trades Department said. "This, in effect, means a complete tieup of all American coastal ports."

Asked about excepting relief cargoes and troopships, Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association (A.F.L.) a member of the Trades Department, said:

"There'll be no exemptions this time."

The S.I.U. and the S.U.P. also received pledges of support from Joseph Curran's National Maritime Union, (C.I.O.) and Harry Bridges' International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (C.I.O.), which announced their members would "co-operate and respect all picket lines."

The dispute is not between the union and ship operators but instead finds both arrayed against the W.S.B. which refused to approve a $27.50 monthly wage increase to which both parties had agreed. The Board held that any raise over $17.50 would be inflationary.

INGERSOLL SAYS MONTY'S REPORT 'SET OF ALIBIS'

Field Marshal Did Not Originate Invasion Plan Comments Publisher

New York, Sept. 5 (CP) — Publisher Ralph Ingersoll today termed Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery's latest report on the Normandy campaign of 1944 "another set of alibis concerning his shortcomings in France .... chiefly distinguished for its amazing claim of proprietorship over Gen. Bradley's victories at St. Lo and thereafter."

The Chief of the Imperial General Staff, in a 20,000-word report released in London yesterday by the war office, said his delaying action at Caen on the east flank of the Allied line drew German reserves away from positions opposite the United States 1st Army under Gen. Omar Bradley and materially assisted the American breakout from the Argentan Peninsula.

Canadian and British troops fought one of the bloodiest actions of the western front in and around Caen shortly after D-day, June 6, 1944.

In a signed article in his newspaper, PM, Mr. Ingersoll said the British leader did not originate the invasion plan which Lord Montgomery said yesterday "was fought exactly as planned." The plan was laid under direction of Lt.-Gen. Sir Henry Morgan, the publisher said, and "far from originating this plan, Montgomery failed even in the accomplishment of it."

He added:

"His 21st army group, for instance, was to have taken the key road centre of Caen during the first week ashore. Actually, some of his troops were in the outskirts by the evening of D-day, but he failed to provide for their reinforcement and they were driven back. Caen was not taken until the second week in July—and Montgomery was again stuck."

Turning to Lord Montgomery's account of the battle of Arnhem, Mr. Ingersoll said:

"Montgomery explains away his defeat at the Arnhem bridgehead by blaming it on the weather....actually, as has been documented, the heroic British forces at Arnhem were annihilated for two quite different reasons. The first was that British intelligence had lost track of a panzer corps and the British airborne division was dropped in the midst of it. The second was Montgomery's failure to push reinforcements through to relieve the brigade that had established a foothold on the far side of the river."

Poison Can Penetrate "Buttoned Up" Ship and Spread Death Below Decks

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Sept. 5 —(AP)— The atom bomb's radium-like poison can penetrate a tightly closed ship and spread death throughout the interior.

This was disclosed today in an "Operation Crossroads" report dealing with the animals used in the Bikini tests. Among other things, the report said that radiation sickness porved fatal to all of the 20 pigs stationed on four of the target ships used in the underwater bomb test.

The pigs had been placed in the medical quarters of the vessels, which were in "buttoned up" battle condition with hatches and ports closed. Six pigs were found dead within four days, the remainder died within two weeks.

The atomic depth charge, by creating a deadly radioactive mist and tossing tons of heavily contaminated water aboard the target ships, produced a far more poisonous effect than the first airburst bomb.

In that test, 3,030 rats, 176 goats and 146 pigs were used, stationed at points in 22 target vessels to simulate crewmen. A preliminary survey indicated that about 10 per cent died from the blast of the bomb and that 10 per cent more fell victim to radiation sickness.

In the underwater explosion, 75 rats were killed initially by blast, radiation or other reasons, and 49 more died of radiation illness within a month.

Bomb damage in the airburst test was mainly to above-deck portions. The underwater blast, in addition to ripping open hulls, tore loose fittings inside the ships and flung them about with projectile-like force. Casulties thus produced presumably would augment those resulting from the bomb's poisonous effect.

LITTLE CHANGE REPORTED IN STRIKE SITUATION

Negotiations Are Still Proceeding and Union Heads to See King During Afternoon

Ottawa, Sept. 5. (CP)—Representatives of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) today discussed the possibilities of settlement of the lengthening steel strike with Labor Minister Mitchell and later disclosed they were to see Prime Minister Mackenzie King this afternoon.

At the conclusion of this morning's session, Pat Conroy, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, said negotiations still were going on and added that there was "very little change in positions."

Following what appeared to be an unsatisfactory conference with Union leaders yesterday Mr. Mitchell was understood to have discussed the situation with the Cabinet and possibility was seen today that Cabinet views might be reflected at today's conference.

Basis of the discussions is a government proposal which provides an increase of 10 cents an hour for all workers in the three plants affected by the seven-week strike—Dominion Steel and Coal Corp., Sydney, N.S., Algoma Steel Corp., Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Steel Company of Canada, Hamilton. In addition the plan provides for increases up to 2 1-2 cents for workers in lower-paid classifications.

The last plan formally advanced by the Union demanded a general 15 1-2 cent increase. Following a meeting with Mr. Mitchell yesterday Pat Conroy secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor said the difference between the positions now held by the Union and government was from 2 1-2 to 5 cents.

The meeting obviously ended on a glum note and Mr. Conroy said there had been no agreement but there was a "possibility of further negotiations." C. H. Millard, director of the United Steelworkers of America said he was remaining in Ottawa overnight so he would be available should the minister call a conference today.

Then Mr. Mitchell met the Cabinet and following that meeting Prime Minister Mackenzie King at a press conference was asked about the steel strike. He said Mr. Mitchell was handling negotiations with the Union and was to meet them again today.

OFFER QUICKLY ACCEPTED

New York, Sept. 5—(AP)—Patients in the New York City hospitals will receive extra cuts of cake tomorrow — thanks to the city's trucking strike.

Two grocery store chains, with more than 270,000 pounds of cake, doughnuts, rolls and bread on hand, offered the stock to the Department of Hospitals, which was quickly accepted. They will be collected by city trucks.

23 Killed in Crash Of Transport Plane Near Elko, Nevada

Ten-Year-Old Boy is Lone Survivor of Disaster

Elko, Nev., Sept. 5 (AP)—A two-engine transport plane of the Trans-Luxury Airlines, on a trans-continental flight, crashed three miles west of here early today with a probable death toll of 23.

A two-year-old boy was the only survivor, airline officials in San Francisco reported. One woman passenger was brought to hospital here and died several hours after the tragedy.

The plane crashed at about 2 a.m. P.S.T. a short distance from the Elko airport. The country is flat, although the rugged Ruby mountains are nearby.

An Airline spokesman said the cause was not immediately determined.

The plane was on a chartered flight from New York to San Francisco.

The plane was reported piloted by a Captain Campbell of Miami, Fla., and other members of the crew were listed as Co-Pilot Leatherman of New York City and Stewardess Marjorie Fox of San Francisco.

An Airline spokesman in San Francisco said its records showed the total number of persons abord, including the crew, was 24.

The company began its trans-continental flights within the last two months, after about two years of operating a service between New York, Florida and Puerto Rico.

Monty to Take Two-Day Rest At Jasper Park

Vancouver, Sept. 5 — (CP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, who switched from plane to train here last night, was speeding toward Jasper National Park today where he will take a two-day "breather" before continuing his busy North American tour.

He got cheers wherever he stopped for official functions here and in Victoria and he weathered an auto mishap with jaunty aplomb. His car, carrying him the 16 miles from Patricia Bay airport to Victoria, blew a tire and wheeled close to the ditch. But the chauffeur brought it to a stop on the dirt shoulder before it could go off the road.

N.Y. Stock Market Turns Upward After Sharpest Break in 16 Years

By JOHN F. CHESTER

New York, Sept. 5. (AP)—The Stock Market swung smartly upward today, extending the late rally of yesterday which changed the course of a downward plunge that had carved more than $5,000,000,000 off the value of stocks traded in New York Stock Exchange in the last two days.

Strong plus signs showed up and down the "big board" as trading opened at so brisk a pace that the ticker tape almost immediately began to lag behind floor transactions.

It appeared, however, that the extended recent downswing had thrown at least a temporary roadblock in the path of billions of dollars of new corporate financing.

A survey of 60 representative stocks disclosed their composite value had gone up instead of down on only five days during the last month. Last Tuesday the market tobogganed into its sharpest break in 16 years and in furious trading yesterday another low for the year was established. A late rally served only to reduce many of the losses.

Analysts have thrown in a complexity of "reasons" for the downswing but a clear consensus has been lacking.

Arguments have been frequent in Wall Street recently as to whether the long-time bull market has ended. The trend for the last three months has been definitely downward.

The volume of dealings rose yesterday to 3,620,000 shares, a new high since May 21 1940 and there was trading in 1088 of the 1,804 issues listed on the "big board" establishing an all-time daily record.

London Comment

London, (CP)— Wall Street's Stock Market drop and subsequent rally has caused considerable comment in London financial circles, but the general consensus is that the recession reflects what one commentator called the "mercurial American temperament" rather than a serious symptom of economic weakness.

Experts tended to dismiss the theory that the decline foreshadowed a rough financial period. There was general agreement with the recently issued bank of international settlement report which said:

"There are good reasons for thinking that present day economics will be less exposed to business recession than those of 25 years ago."

The report added that a "temporary check" rather than a "real depression" seems indicated.

Comment in other quarters stressed the likelihood that the Wall Street situation reflected the fact that the United States is facing production bottlenecks, rather than a slump and that comparisons with the recession after the First Great War are not yet valid.

Heirens Tries Unsuccessfully To Hang Himself

Chicago, Sept. 5 (AP) — William Heirnes, triple murderer awaiting court determination of his punishment, tried unsuccessfully to hang himself in the Cook County (Chicago) jail early today, his guard reported.

The guard informed Warden Frank Sain that when he came on duty at 1 a.m. Heirens was hanging in a noose fashioned crudely with a bedsheet. The guard cut him down before the youth lost consciousness.

Heirens' attempt to kill himself was his third since his capture and confession of three killings and more than a score of burglaries and assaults. Previously he had tried to break open head wounds in the hope that he might bleed to death. He also had collected a store of sleeping tablets in the belief that a large overdose might kill him.

Gales and Rain Flood 3000 Square Miles of Britain

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 5 —(CP)—Britain's two-day siege of torrential rains and chilling gales seemed at an end today with weather reports from most areas forecasting a generally brighter outlook.

The sun shone from a watery sky over most of Southern England and Norfolk farmers, concerned by their overdue harvest, were more hopeful it could be saved. A strong drying wind enabled harvesting to resume in that country.

Londoners bathed in brilliant sunshine a few hours after it had been estimated 3,000 square miles—mostly grain fields—was under water.

Three rivers — the Wey, Avon and Nadder — have burst their banks and deluged surrounding crops. Two others, now at bank level, threaten to overflow.

Wide areas of south and south-west England carried the burden of the torrents but areas up the east coast to Yorkshire and across the country to Lancashire also were swamped.

From Exeter to Bristol, Dorchester, Salisbury and Hampshire rain was killing the fading hopes of farmers for a successful harvest. In East Anglia harvesting was at a standstill while hundreds of acres in east and west Yorkshire were flooded.

Cornfields in South Wiltshire were turning black with potatoes rotting and peas beaten into the ground.

Rough seas delayed Channel shipping and some craft cancelled sailings.

Molotov Returns To Conference

Paris, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia, returned to Paris today after stopping over at Berlin, the Russian Embassy said. Mr. Molotov flew to Moscow last Saturday for conferences.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Sept. 5—(CP)—Synopsis at 7:30 a.m.—Cold air still covers the Maritimes and the eastern coast of the United States, while southerly winds are bringing warm weather to Quebec, Ontario, eastern and central states. Clear weather prevails over Southern Ontario, Southern Quebec, Maritimes and eastern central states. Overcast skies with showers and thundershowers are general west of Lake Michigan and over Northern Ontario. Cold air from the Polar regions covers all the prairie provinces where temperatures are about 10 degrees below normal with generally overcast skies and widespread rain over Saskatchewan and Alberta.

15-POUND 'LUNGE AND NINETEEN PIKE CAUGHT IN BAY

The Bay of Quinte was raised considerably as a fisherman's paradise in the eyes of a party of Brantford fishermen over the holiday weekend when the party caught a 15-pound 'lunge and 19 pike on the holiday. Visiting at the home of Mr. Arthur Daniels, Trent Road, the party went fishing on the bay just off the cemetery, the 'lunge falling to the line of Mr. Erwin Daniels. It was the first 'lunge ever to be caught by the party and its members went home highly satisfied with their holiday.

NO POLIO CASES REPORTED IN CITY

An eleven-year-old boy, a visitor from the United States who was visiting relatives in Marmora was admitted to Kingston General Hospital isolation ward on Wednesday reportedly suffering with polio myelitis. On the same date a 16-year-old youth from Brockville was admitted with the same disease.

According to a number of city physicians, no cases have been reported in this city.

TEN-YEAR-OLD BOY HOOKS 24-POUND 'LUNGE IN MUSCOTE BAY

Jack Joyce, Bert Williams and ten-year-old Johnny Joyce, all of Rochester, N.Y., had their big fishing thrill in Muscote Bay on Wednesday. Here on a fishing holiday the two oldsters were forced to sit by and watch the younger angler haul in a twenty-four pound musky, when returning from an otherwise fishless trip.

The fish gave the young angler an exciting battle for nearly forty minutes and although "dad" had to come to his aid in the last moments, the boy proudly claims the fish as his own.

LAST OF 3 SISTERS RECEIVES DISCHARGE

Staff Sgt. Evelyn Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Watson, 149 Lingham Street, and one of three sisters who were in the C.W.A.C. during the war years, has received her discharge after more than three years in the service. Following her discharge she returned to Ottawa to work in the office of Defence Minister Abbott, as a member of the civil service. Evelyn is the last of the three sisters to receive her discharge.

MARMORA

Bear Hunting Expedition Success In Marmora Twp.

Marmora — A bear-hunting expedition in which four or five farmers participated took place in Marmora Township on Wednesday on the farm of James McAvoy and properties adjacent thereto. It was noticed Tuesday afternoon that bee hives placed a field away from the McAvoy residence by Donald Cook, a farmer residing in another section of the township, had been capsized.

Possibly Wounded.

A watch was kept and Mr. McAvoy aimed at a bear which turned up, and possibly wounded it. A wire fence also bore marks of a bear having passed through it. Mr. Cook was in the party which took up the hunt on Wednesday evening and while the hunt was still in progress and full results were not yet obtainable, it was reported that a bear had been killed and possibly another bear or so was engaged in the depredations.

Personals.

Mrs. Stanley Gray and son, John of Eastview, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Gray.

Miss Flora Sanderson, of Toronto, is spending the week at her home here.

London Meat Handlers Have Resumed Work

London, Sept. 5 (CP)— Arthur Deakin, general secretary of the Transport and General Workers Union, announced today that 3,000 meat handlers who have been on strike at London's huge Smithfield market would resume work immediately.

With the prospect of a meatless weekend for millions apparently averted, Mr. Deakin said the men had pledged to move out supplies to retailers and leave their demand for a closed shop for settlement by the government. The men had agreed earlier to a partial resumption of work, moving the meat into storage but refusing to move it out of the market.

The men had refused to take the meat from storage because 50 managers and deputy managers refused to work with them under terms of a settlement announced by the Ministry of Labor.

"The union will immediately take steps to get the Ministry of Labor to set up an inquiry into the causes of unrest on the market" Deakin said.

Meanwhile notice was served that 1,600 members of the Independent Aeronautical Engineers Association would strike Sept. 12. Such a walkout would affect the British Overseas Airways, British European Airways, British South American Airways and Channel Island Airways. The B.O.A.C. has refused the Association's demand for recognition.

A strike of shipyard welders at Barrow-in-Furness was in its fourth week and gave no promise of settlement. The men went out when a member of the Electrical Trad Union employed on welding work did not join the Boilermaker's Society.

Florists Plan Service To Place Flowers on Graves of War Dead

Toronto, Sept. 5 — (CP) — Through efforts of the Florist Telegraph Delivery Association, it may soon be possible for next-of-kin of Second Great War casualties to place flowers on their graves, John Hunt, Dundee, Scotland, international president of the organization said yesterday. Mr. Hunt said 16,000 florists in every country except Germany and Russia are contributing to plans for service on any cemetery in the world, exclusive of North Africa.

30,000 Ration Books Will Be Distributed Here

Upwards of thirty thousand ration books will be distributed in the city and district starting Tuesday of next week, Ration Board Secretary Harold Bateman announced today.

Issuance of the book, Number 6, will start on Tuesday through Friday at the Butter Market in the City Hall. Hours of issuance are 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. Books will definitely not be issued before or after these hours, Mr. Bateman said.

The generad public are urged to time their applications for the books so as not to cause any confusion or "traffic" jams. There are books for all, and officials ask the co-operation of the public in this respect.

It is estimated that over 20,000 books will be issued in the city proper. Advertisements carry the place and time of issuance in district centres.

The Kiwanis Women's Auxiliary will supervise the issuing of the books. Mr. Bateman stated that the Butter Market is the only place in the city where the books will be issued.

Romance Rumors "Pure Nonsense" Says Spokesman

London, Sept. 5 —(CP)— A Buckingham Palace spokesman today described as "pure nonsense" rumors of a romance between Princess Elizabeth and Prince Phillipe of Greece. Gossip columns of London newspapers had recently hinted at the possibility of such a marriage.

The authoritative source said an alliance between the 20-year-old heiress apparent to the British throne and the Greek Prince, a nephew of King George II was altogether unlikely since members of the Greek royal house were Roman Catholics.

Stories have appeared that Prince Phillipe, an officer in the Royal Navy, was a constant visitor at Buckingham Palace and a particular favorite of the King and Queen.

A marriage between the British and Greek royal houses is not unprecedented. The late Duke of Kent, third son of King George V, married Princess Marina, cousin of the King of the Hellenes. At that time, however, the British Prince was third in succession to the crown.

Canada Packers Has Net Profit Of $1,816,781

Toronto, Sept. 5 (CP)—Canada Packers Limited today reported net profit of $1,816,781 in the year ended March 28 compared with $2,405,811 the previous fiscal year. Net sales totalled $208,997,520 against $228,398,111; cost of products was $169,966,217 compared with $188,077,369; wages and bonus $16,854,898 compared with $16,781,541. The year's surplus was $816,781 against $374,811. Operating profit came to $1,755,109 against $1,291,504 with income and excess profits taxes standing at $2,803,931 compared with $4,207,624.

At the year end working capital stood at $10,243,986 compared with $9,066,623 with current assets at $22,879,368 against $25,416,779. The drop in current assets was due, the report stated, to a drop of approximately $2,200,000 in inventory values.. During the year class A dividends totalled $600,000 against $300,000, class B $400,000 compared with $200,000. Current liabilities were listed at $12,635,382 compared with $16,350,156. A large cut was shown in borrowing from banks from $6,300,000 to $2,400,000.

Posse Goes On Black Bear Hunt

Peterborough, Sept. 5 —(CP)— Five farmers of Marmora township in Hastings county formed a posse last night and went on a black bear hunt. Net results were one black bear dead and a second one wounded. The bears had been raiding the apiary of Donald Cook upsetting the bee hives and in their search for honey destroying many of them. Mr. Cook and his neighbors organized the hunt after he had shot at two bears found around his apiary.

TREMOR AT CORNWALL

Ottawa, Sept. 5 —(CP)— Dominion observatory officials reported today a "slight tremor" was recorded on one of their four seismographs yesterday at 2.29 p.m., E.S.T., at the time when an earth tremor was reported to have rattled windows in Cornwall.

Startled residents of Cornwall said the disturbance, which was accompanied by a deep rumble, was one of the heaviest tremors since the earthquake which caused nearly $1,000,000 damage two years ago today.

Seismologists here said it was "quite a small tremor" and lasted only a minute and a half.

School Patrolmen Turned Down By Vote of Council; Members Adjourn at Stroke of Eleven

Members Refuse to Sanction Sale of Lots Because They Might be Needed for Sewage Disposal Plant

Tolling of the city clock bell at eleven oclock Wednesday night cut short the first regular meeting of city council since the summer recess when neglect in asking for an extension of time sent members home before all business of the meeting had been completed.

Council members were in the midst of a spirited discussion regarding Mayor Follwell's report of the mayors' convention in Vancouver, which is to be given, when eleven o'clock came before an extension of time had beep given. At the gong of the clock council members began to file out and Mayor Follwell declared the meeting adjourned.

According to a long standing city by-law council meetings cannot last beyond eleven o'clock without the time being extended.

Innocently Started Discussion.

Alderman Trudeau innocently started the discussion when during inquiries he asked that delegates to out-of-town conventions give a written report to council on their return. In reply Mayor Follwell assured that he had every intention of giving a report of the Vancouver convention and would do so when members were ready to hear it.

Although voting favorably on the recommendation at committee meeting on Thursday night, the recommendation asking that school patrolmen be hired to act at each of the city public schools and at the Separate school to direct street traffic failed to pass in council last night. Members voted six for and six against the recommendation with Alderman Thompson in opposing the motion stating that he was in favor of the idea, but declared that five men were not sufficient to provide adequate protection for school children crossing streets. "If we are going to go into this thing there is no use doing it in a half-way measure," he said.

Yeas and Nays Taken.

In the vote Mayor Follwell and Aldermen Armstrong, Follwell, Allin, McDougall and Trudeau supported the recommendation while Aldermen Chamberlain, Clarke, Hyde, Thompson, Wilbur and Woodley voted nay.

Council voted almost unanimously against selling lots 21-27 on the east side of South George Street, claiming that this was the site where the proposed sewage disposal plant would be built if ratepayers sanctioned its construction. Council had previously discussed selling of the lots to Arthur Keegan as a site for a marine yard.

Mayor Follwell felt as the ratepayers had voted against the sewage disposal plant and as there was little chance of any further action being taken for possibly ten years, that private enterprise should be given the opportunity. In opposition Alderman Chamberlain stated that only within the last few days had he learned that the lots in question were the site chosen for the sewage disposal plant and that as such he could not support their sale to a private individual.

Licence Fee Set.

All dry cleaning establishments in the city will in the future be charged an annual licence fee of $25 it was decided by councillors. The necessary by-laws will be immediately prepared by the city solicitor.

Dr. G. S. Cronk, medical health officer, and Dr. Jack Marshall, chairman of the Board of Health, were named as the local representatives to the Health League of Canada.

Alderman Woodley inquired of the public works chairman when Bell Telephone was going to replace West Bridge Street to its original condition following excavation and was told that the firm was waiting on its contractor.

Up to 25 New Residences Will Be Built Under Integrated Housing Plan

Twenty to twenty-five housing units ranging in cost from $5,000 to $6,500 were assured for the city of Belleville during council meeting Wednesday evening when property on the east side of Wellington Street was voted sold to John H. Davies of this city on condition that dwellings under the Integrated Housing Plan be erected as soon as possible.

Upon completion the houses will be sold with a limited profit to the builder and with veterans receiving purchase priority. The Integrated Housing Plan under which housing units are sold was chosen by members of the city council in preference to the program offered by Housing Enterprizes and Wartime Housing. If the first group of houses under the Integrated plan prove successful, more will be constructed, city officials believe.

On Wellington Street.

According to the recommendation which passed unanimously in council undivided lots No. 38 and 43 and the west half of No. 46 on the east side of Wellington Street will be sold to Mr. Davies at a price of $1 per lot with all lands to be resold at cost. Site of the houses will be on the east side of Wellington Street between Parker and Charlotte streets.

Houses built under the Integrated Housing Plan are constructed according to requirements of the National Housing Act and are of various styles and sizes, all being fully insulated, with basements and furnace. The plan is promulgated by the Federal Government, the government setting the price of sale giving the builder a limited profit. Veterans get priority of purchase.

Arranging for Materials.

Formerly of Ottawa and Toronto Mr. Davies is an interior decorator and designer and was associated with the planning and decorating of the recently opened Bowl-o-Drome on Front Street. Recently he has purchased the woodworking shop formerly owned by Eddie Schrieder and has the necessary machinery for the manufacture of his own house trim and clap boards which will go into the construction of the new housing units.

Priorities for building materials for houses constructed under the Integrated Housing Plan are provided by the government and Mr. Davies is at present in Toronto arranging for materials. On his return to the city it is expected an immediate start will be made in the construction of the first 20 housing units.

Tension Eases In Threatened Miners' Strike

Calgary, Sept. 5 (CP)—Tension in the threatened strike by some 8,000 Western Canada coal miners eased last night as United Mine Workers of America officials announced that a sub-committee would meet with a committee of the Domestic Coal Operators' Association Friday afternoon.

Informed sources here said it was "highly unlikely" that a strike would be called or a strike vote ordered so long as there is any liaison between miners and operators.

Meanwhile negotiations between the miners and the Western Canada Bituminous Coal Operators' Association appeared to have completely broken down. There has been no report of a resumption of the talks since they ended Monday without settlement.

Both parties are understood to have made their final compromise offers with neither offer acceptable to the other.

Earlier union officials had said that failure to reach agreement would result in strike action being taken.

The union is asking for a $2.80 a day wage increase and the operators offered 10 cents an hour. It is understood that some understanding was reached on union proposals for a five-cents a ton welfare fund and for a 40-hour week, although a detailed settlement had not been completed when the break between the steam coal operators and the union came Monday.

The negotiations involve coal mines stretching from Estevan, Sask., to Vancouver Island.

APPEAL DISMISSED

Ottawa, Sept. 5 (CP)— The Supreme Court of Canada today dismissed the appeal of H. S. Gerson, one of Canada's espionage accused, against the refusal by Chief Justice Thibeudeau Rinfret to grant a writ of habeas corpus for his release from Bordeaux Jail, Montreal.

The appeal was heard yesterday. Gerson is nearing the end of a three-month term for refusing to testify in the espionage case of Fred Rose at Montreal.

He is due to go before the Ontario Supreme Court here Monday in his own espionage case.

L.W. Brockington To Probe Strike At Chrysler Corp.

Ottawa, Sept. 5 (CP)— Labor Minister Mitchell announced today the appointment of Leonard W. Brockington, K.C., of Ottawa, as an industrial disputes inquiry commissioner to investigate a strike at the Chrysler Corporation of Canada, Ltd., at Windsor and Chatham, Ont.

The appointment was made after consultation with Ontario Labor Minister Daley.

Approximately 3,500 employees, members of Locals 195 and 127, United Automobile Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) have been on strike since June 18 in a dispute over wage rates, hours of work, vacation with pay and union security.

Mr. Mitchell said any tentative agreement on the subject of wage rates which might be arrived at through direct negotiations must later receive the approval of the Ontario Regional War Labor Board.

Mr. Brockington has arranged to meet both union and company officials at Windsor at 4 p.m. today.

Officials Fear Plane Crashed Into the Sea

Prince Rupert, B. C., Sept. 5—(CP) — The air forces of two countries, Provincial Police and fishing vessels, and 22 rowboats, each manned by two men, continued today to conduct a foot-by-foot search through the fog-shrouded wastes of Chatham Sound and the surrounding wilderness for some trace of the missing flying boat, the Skeena Queen.

Three bodies, those of Ken Wilson, 26-year-old skipper of the ill-fated craft, Mrs. Margaret Dempsey, a passenger, and her 3½-year-old daughter Bernice, have been recovered from the water. A battered oil tank, seat cushions and several life-jackets also have been found.

It was to bring the sick Dempsey child here from Stewart, B.C., that the giant aircraft turned from its course Saturday night. The child and its mother were picked up and the plane headed back, only to run into fog conditions so severe as to prevent its landing.

A four-man crew, Mrs. Dempsey and her child and Nick Killas, a passenger from here were aboard.

Officials now fear that the plane crashed into the sea, disappearing below the fog-bound waters.

Capture of Dieppe in 1944 By Canadians Wiped Out Threatened Supply Shortage

—Montgomery.

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 5 —(CP Cable)— Canadian troops by reopening Dieppe in 1944 wiped out a threatened supply shortage for all British armies at a time when reserve stocks were dwindling fast and "we had both feet off the ground," Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery disclosed in War Office dispatches published.

It was the first time the wartime commander of the 21st. Army Group, now touring Canada as Chief of the Imperial General Staff, had commented on the supreme urgency of the task of clearing the Channel coast which was given Gen. Crerar's 1st Canadian Army after the Seine crossing.

The Seine bridges destroyed and railways extensively damaged, Lord Montgomery, then Sir Bernard, had to maintain lines of communications stretching 400 miles from Bayeux in Normandy to Antwerp.

"In order to maintain the advance, shipping and discharge of material were cut well below the figure necessary for daily maintenance of the force, so as to release every lorry possible for ferrying stores forward to the troops," Lord Montgomery wrote.

"This meant eating into the reserves built up in the rear maintenance area, and it became a matter of urgency to get bases further forward and shorten lines of communication.

"We had both feet off the ground, relying on opening up of the Channel ports, particularly Dieppe, before our accumulated stocks became exhausted.

Risk Intensified.

"It was an administrative risk," Lord Montgomery acknowledged, but one which was justified. The Canadiens captured Dieppe Sept. 1, 1944. Even after Antwerp could be used, "subsidiary tonnages" continued to be landed through Channel harbors.

The lengthy report on the operations of his troops including the 1st Canadian Army was primarily for his superior officers but it constitutes an answer to criticism by Ralph Ingersoll, publisher of the New York newspaper PM, in the book "Top Secret" that the desperate Caen battles were a "failure."

Exactly as Planned.

"The operations developed in June, July and August exactly as planned; I had given D-Day plus 90 as a target date for being lined up on the Seine; actually the first crossing of the river was made on D-Day plus 75," Lord Montgomery wrote.

Like his earlier book, "Normandy to Baltic," a large section of the dispatches was devoted to the all-important first few weeks after D-Day when Canadian and British troops fought bloody actions to draw Germans to the Caen hinge while Gen. Omar Bradley's United States troops broke out in the west.

Actually, Lord Montgomery said, it was more important to gain ground there than anywhere else.

"The general strategic plan was to make the breakout on the western flank pivoting the front on the Caen area, where the bulk of enemy reserves were to be engaged; on the other hand, the air forces insisted on the importance of capturing quickly the good airfield country south of Caen.

"Though I have never failed in my operations to exert my utmost endeavor to meet the requirements of the air forces, in planning these operations the overriding requirement was to gain territory in the west. For this reason, while accepting an estimate for seizing the open country beyond Caen at a relatively early date, I had to make it clear that progress in that sector would be dependent on successful development of the main strategic plan."

Canada's Big Part in Invasion.

Page after page of the 21-sheet dispatch, bears witness to the big share the Canadian Army had in western front operations.

Referring to the first time Canadian troops went to Dieppe — in the raid of Aug. 19, 1942 — Lord Montgomery disclosed that its results brought a recommendation that "engineers should be carried behind the armor up to the concrete obstacle which has to be breached."

This idea was developed before the invasion so charges of explosives could be put into position from tanks without exposing the crews.

From the initial D-Day landing by two brigades of the 3rd Canadian Division about 8 a.m. June 6 — 15 to 25 minutes behind schedule — he relates the Canadian advance through Caen and down the Falaise road, across the Seine and along the Channel, into the tricky clearing of the Scheldt Estuary, the fanatical fighting of the Reichswald Forest and on across the Rhine into Germany and Western Holland.

Gen. Simonds' Idea Singled Out.

In connection with Falaise, Lord Montgomery singled out Gen. Simonds' idea of moving infantry forward by kangaroo under cover of darkness as a major development in the use of armored personnel and carriers. Lt.-Gen. Guy Simmonds then commanded the 2nd Canadian Corps.

He described the Schelde fighting as "very hard," with the main problems overcome by the "remarkable precision bombing" of R.A.F. Bomber Command breaching dikes to flood large sections of the Walcheren Islands.

He said the Reichwald was a "memorable battle which, in intensity and fierceness, equalled any which our troops have experienced in this war."

The Canadian Army gets full credit for its major jobs except in one place — the Commander does not mention that a Highland brigade from the 3rd Canadian Division was in the British 51st Highland Division for the Rhine crossing north of the Ruhr.

NEGLECT STOCKINGS FOR CURTAINS

Toronto, Sept. 5 (CP) — The nylon counter of a Toronto department store was almost neglected during a stocking sale yesterday when women shoppers saw lace curtains on a nearby counter. It took six clerks more than an hour to sell the 425 pairs of nylons.

Recommendation Asking Utilities Commission to Give Water Service To Wallbridge Road Defeated

Vote in Council Was 6-6; Delegation Asked to Attend Commission Meeting

Question of water service being extended to Wallbridge Road came up for lengthy discussion at city council Wednesday evening when a delegation of residents from that area attended the council meeting asking that something be done.

There are at present 15 families in the Wallbridge Road area without water or sewer services, the delegation spokesman told council. After lengthy discussion a recommendation placed by Ald. E. E. Follwell was lost on a 6-6 vote, the motion recommending to the utilities commission that water service be extended to the Wallbridge Road area.

"It is hardly fair to the residents of Wallbridge Road to be without water," stated the delegation spokesman. "If we had the water we could put in cesspools if it is impractical to construct sewers in the area."

In reply Mayor Frank S. Follwell stated that the matter of laying water mains was at the discretion of the public utilities commission and suggested that the delegates attend the next meeting of the commission to lay their problem before that body.

Want Water Mains.

Alderman McDougall referred to an offer of the Board of Health Department to defray the expenses of placing a tap in the Wallbridge Road area where residents could obtain water. In answer the delegation stated they were not in favor of a water tap but wanted water mains laid.

"It's absolutely ridiculous to ask people of the Wallbridge Road area to be without water," said Alderman Follwell. "I still think this council is but passing the buck when it advises this delegation to take their problem to the public utilities commission meeting. There should be some kind of a recommendation from council asking that water service be placed on Wallbridge Road."

Did Not Want to Open Area.

In opposition to the suggestion of extending water service to the Wallbridge Road area Alderman Thompson stated the council had not wanted to open this area for residential purposes owing to the difficulty in installing services and had sold the lots "as is" with the understanding there would be no services.

Alderman Follwell replied that to his knowledge not one of the deeds of property in the Wallbridge Road area had covenants with regard to there being no water or sewer. "If the city did not intend to place services in this area they should have refused to sell the lots," he stated.

Alderman Woodley felt that if it was possible to place water and sewers in this district the council should not object as the owners would be paying the cost.

To this Alderman Thompson stated that the matter had been taken up years ago with residents of the area and they refused to pay the cost entailed.

Not Desire to Create Slums.

Alderman Chamberlain assured it was not the desire of the city to create slum areas and admitted the city may have erred in selling lots in the Wallbridge Road area if services could not be provided. "If anything can be done to provide services, it should be done," he said.

To conclude the discussion Alderman McDougall advised the delegation that they would have to take their problem up with the utilities commission. When the motion was placed recommending to the utilities commission that the application be granted when such was made for water service to Wallbridge Road, it failed to carry. Mayor Follwell, and Aldermen Chamberlain, Follwell, Allin, Hyde and Woodley supported the motion, while Aldermen Armstrong, Clarke, McDougall, Thompson, Wilbur and Trudeau were in opposition.

Cement Shortage Holding up Work Says Chairman

Shortage of cement which is holding up construction of housing and of other industrial building is also being felt by the public works department with scheduled repairs to city sidewalks and laying of sewers being delayed until this building material is available.

Chairman of Public Works, Alderman Charles Hyde, at the regular meeting of city council Wednesday evening passed this information along to council members, stating there had been inquiries why the contemplated work was not being proceeded with.

Contracts for both the sidewalk repairs and the laying of new sewers have been let for some weeks but the contractors cannot commence the work until sufficient cement is available, it was stated. Sidewalk repairs on the west side of Front Street are included in the contemplated work.

Iron piping for the laying of water mains is also in short supply according to information received in the city from foundry suppliers. Quoting an excerpt from the letter "there is not a bit of four-inch iron pipe to be had in the country."

CHARGE DISMISSED

Goderich, Sept. 5 (CP)—Mrs. John E. Abbott showed the magistrate a big bruise on her arm, pointed at her husband and said he did it. The court heard all about a party—sloe gin, more gin—and dismissed the charge. Witness said the party turned into a fracas when someone with "a sense of humor" put a dummy in Abbott's bed.

WOOD NEEDED IN 1875

Thamesville, Sept. 5 (CP)—It was November, and the nights were getting chilly. An 1875 issue of the Thamesville Express, unearthed here recently, shows Editor L. Chipman was having his troubles. He advertised: "Wood parties who have promised us wood on account or on subscription to the Express are requested to bring it in at once."

Weird-Looking Meat Animals Arrive at Yards

By WILLIAM FERRIS

Chicago, Sept. 5—(AP)—Some weird-looking meat animals were stumbling into the stockyards today as arrivals of all livestock markets declined drastically in the first week of revived Office of Price Administration ceilings on hogs and cattle.

Most of the cattle received here for slaughter were dried up cows, offering a highly unappetizing type of meat for consumers. They were practically lost in the great Union Stockyards which last week were jammed with bawling steers. All low-volume Chicago records were broken yesterday when only 1,200 cattle, 700 hogs and 800 sheep and lambs arrived. Nearly all of the 8,000 pens were empty.

An equally sorry lot of hogs was being unloaded. These consisted of emaciated sows, boars and inferior grades of pigs, with not one good pork chop in the bunch.

Similar unimpressive runs were reported at other marketing entres and many packers began laying off workers. The number of salable cattle arriving at 12 major mid-western markets the first three days this week totalled 59,800 head. In the same period last week, 246,500 head arrived.

Meat packers were not surprised at the dearth of offerings. Nearly everything which could be marketed, including some light cattle and hogs which should have been held back on farms, was unloaded in the period of price-free markets, observers explained.

Livestock men would not predict how long the small receipts would continue.

BABY'S UPSET STOMACH
QUICKLY CORRECTED

BABY'S little "Tummy" is often easily upset. It is easily righted again, too, if you know just how to do it. Let Mrs. M. S. Alway, of London, Ont., tell you: "Baby's Own Tablets are a great help at the first sign of upset stomach, during teething time or when a cold is coming on. They work quickly yet gently to carry away po'sons and promote quiet sleep. Walking floors at night is unknown in our home."

And Mrs. W. R. Sharp says: "I nursed my baby shortly after being alarmed over a motor accident and that upset her almost to the point of convulsions. I gave her Baby's Own Tablets and she soon stopped crying—went to sleep."

Equally effective for teething troubles, constipation, simple fever and diarrhoea. Sweet-tasting, easily crushed to a powder, if desired—prompt in action. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Buy a box today for sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if not satisfied.

Roundup is Begun Of 200 Canadian Deserters in U.K.

London, Sept. 5—(CP Cable)—Metropolitan police are co-operating with members of the Canadian Provost Corps in a roundup of 200 Canadian Army deserters.

The hunt began last night when Canadian Army jeeps toured London's outer suburbs while uniformed metropolitan police kept a watchful eye for Canadian soldiers. A large number of uniformed Canadians over a wide area were stopped and questioned.

The roundup is directed partly at finding three men wearing Canadian uniforms who were seen near where Leonard Warrens, retired war office clerk, was murdered in the Putney district three weeks ago.

A spokesman for the Metropolitan Police told The Canadian Press than the search so far had produced few results.

Greek Plebiscite Favors Monarchy

Nearly one hundred per cent of the people of Greece exercised the franchise in the vote on the plebiscite concerning the return of the monarchy and nearly seventy per cent according to Wednesday's news were given in support of the king. The result will be the return shortly of His Majesty King George Second, now in London to Greece to reoccupy his throne.

The vote demonstrates the surge of feeling of the people which has swept Greece in support of the monarchy against the republican supporters.

Greece gave a fine example of service against the might of Germany and her satellites in the war and the stubborn resistance of the Greek forces in the middle period of the struggle is credited with having done much to halt the course of Hitler for it held up the armies of the Germans in the east so that they could not gain their goal.

Greece has the sympathy and prayers of the democratic world that she may have years of settled government so as to restore herself to her pre-war power and advance along the ways of democracy in the spirit of the Greek love for freedom.

Gift Parcels for Britain

Under the import of goods (control) order, all goods brought into the United Kingdom must have an import licence but a concession is made concerning unsolicited gift parcels. Under this concession such gift parcels are allowed in without an import licence providing they fulfil the main requirements that not more than one parcel per month is sent and that no parcels total more than eleven pounds gross weight and do not carry more than 7 pounds of foodstuffs or more than two pounds of any one food stuff.

Parcels which do not comply with these conditions are stopped by His Majesty's Customs and subsequently handed over to approved charitable organizations without payment. When any such parcel is seized in this way, the addressee is always notified in writing.

However as out of several million gift parcels received from all sources in the first five months of this year, the number seized and handed over to charitable organizations was only 125, this order really affects very few.

These regulations are regarded by the Ministry of Food as necessary to ensure a general "fair sharing" principle so that food rationing may not be upset.

Indonesia

Lord Killearn, the United Kingdom Government's Special Commissioner in Southeast Asia, has returned to Singapore from Java after conversations with Dr. Van Mook, the Netherlands Lieutenant Governor General in Batavia and with Dr. Sjahrir and his associates of the Indonesian Central National Committee at Djodjakarta.

Reports from Singapore indicate the general feeling that Lord Killearn's brief exploratory visit has usefully contributed to the prospects of an early resumption of negotiations between the Dutch and the Indonesians.

It is emphasized in London that Lord Killearn's role is simply that of an experienced diplomatist friendly to both parties and willing to lend his good offices if these can help to facilitate discussions and an eventual settlement between those two parties. The United Kingdom Government's responsibility in Indonesia will cease altogether once the military tasks assigned to them by the Allied Supreme Commander have been fulfilled. For the future of Indonesia the United Kingdom Government has no responsibility. As is known, all British troops are to be withdrawn from Indonesia by the 30th of November.

Apart from the actual resumption of negotiations between the Dutch and the Indonesians, there are two problems calling for a prompt decision. The first is the question of a truce to hostilities. Nothing could be more conducive than such a truce to the creation of a favorable atmosphere for negotiations and vice versa. The second is the resumption of the evacuation of Allied prisoners of war and internees, which has been suspended. Several thousands still remain in the interior awaiting evacuation. This depends on the action of the Indonesian leaders.

Both these factors are tests of goodwill. The urgency of both is enhanced by the approaching date of the withdrawal of the British forces.

Time and Change on Farm

The city resident whose nostalgic memories of the farm center about the sweet-smelling hayloft has had rather a rude shock this summer as he has set out on his first vacation tour of the great American countryside. On farm after farm he has noted, instead of the traditional haying scene, neat but unpicturesque bales of hay stacked in the fields, waiting transportation by truck to the barns.

This is only one of the more noticeable evidences to the extent to which American agriculture has adopted modern technologies during the war. There are many more—so many that the day is not far off when life on the farm will scarcely be recognizable to those who came to the city only a few years ago.

But what the farmer and his family are gaining in ease and economic improvement, the lover of the old-fashioned rural beauty is going to lose in eye appeal. This farm révolution, according to the Farm Structure Institute, is going to result in the elimination of traditional farm buildings and the substitution of buildings better-fitted for the new methods of agriculture.

In a matter of a few years, the institute tells us, the big red (or white) barn will be largely a thing of the past, and in its place there will be a series of structures unrecognizable to our rural forefathers. The new barns will be one-storey buildings, some for the storing of baled hay, others, provided with "lounging rooms" for cows, others farm garages — and so on.

We are for it, but not without a feeling of sadness. No doubt the Frank Lloyd Wrights and their more conservative brothers will manage to make these few farm buildings attractive. But we doubt if they will ever design anything as beautiful as the towering barn in which a part of our youth was spent, jumping in the hay.

—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Summer latterly has been cool and this week has been almost chilly. It is hastening to its end and already has on its hands the great celebrations which spread across the land from east to west and north to south—the fall fairs which will continue for more than six weeks, timetables being arranged so that people in one district may be able to attend more than one fair, in many cases not only several, but many, so rich are these districts in enterprise and in their agricultural production.

Farm Flying

A completely new service to farmers is springing up in the air age. Aviation is being adapted to seeding. It provides more speed and conquers the problem of muddy soil in early spring, says The Bloomington, Ill., Pantagraph.

Dusting by plane is playing a big part in the experiments against insects such as the corn borer.

Farmers use planes more and more in their business of buying and selling livestock.

More farmers are becoming plane owners.

All of which indicates the growing importance of aviation and aviation facilities to the modern business of farming.

HERMIT LIFE

Wonder how a hermit grave
Likes it in his lonely cave?
When the moon is on the lake,
How much pleasure can he take
From a splendor so serene,
Having none to share the scene?
Half the joy of beauty lies
Shining in another's eyes.

When a hermit sits to read,
Does he never feel the need
Of another in a chair
Who the joy of books would share?
Can the printed page suffice?
Does he never read it twice—
Once for self, there and then,
For another, read again?

What's the worth of all we own
If it's kept for self alone?
Pictures beautiful may be,
But if stored where none can see,
Though a fortune they have cost,
All the charm of them is lost.
Beauty, how do hermits bear it,
Having no one near to share it?

Belleville boats had a good day at Trenton yesterday when the annual regatta of the Trenton Yacht Club was held. The event proved to be a great success. In the dinghy class the Belleville boats had it pretty well their own way and the "Jack I" sailed by Arthur R. Wallbridge of this city came first and "Skidoo" sailed by F. Wallbridge, came second. There were several other starters including Jones' and Rathbun's dinghies and Trenton boats which did not finish. The "Jack I" is a new dinghy just completed by Jack Roblin of this city and was put in the water for the first time yesterday just in time to enter the race. In fact the boat is barely ready yet, as she has not her own sails nor rigging. She was well handled by Arthur Wallbridge and carried off a handsome silver cup which will be placed on exhibition here. Jack Roblin is naturally very proud of the success of this new boat. Several other boats took honors namely the "Yodo," owned by H. Jones, which came second in Class B.; the "Crusoe," owned by W. Allen, which came third in Class C. Fred Duesberry's "Imp" was first in the punt races and Ed. Kellaway won the swimming race.

PRIME MINISTER

Turning to Europe, Mr. King said he had come home convinced more than ever before that Canada's role in the Second Great War was amply justified. He was confident that if she had not done all she did do "we wouldn't be assembled here in this room."

He had found an affection "beyond belief" for Canada and her troops among the people of Normandy.

Causes of Delay

As for the peace conference, he felt the world-wide publicity given committee sessions had helped delay proceedings. He spoke in unfavorable terms of flash bulbs going off while a delegate spoke and of delegates being aware that their every word might go around the world.

He hoped "very strongly" that a fair solution would be found at Paris. But it might take some time before the world saw the wisdom of certain decisions.

Of the European peace, the Prime Minister said he thought Canada could have done nothing worse than "suddenly jump into the European arena to say with a loud voice what should be done." Canada's best role was one of continued help and co-operation.

Only Friendly Nations May Get American Food

By J. M. ROBERTS, Jr.
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The resolution of the veterans of foreign wars against shipment of American food to former enemies serves to remind that, with the demise of UNRRA, the United States faces development of a new policy regarding relief for other countries.

UNRRA has operated very very largely on the basis of need, and has even been attacked for the blindness of the justice under which it may have bolstered interests which were alien to the policies of the largest contributors.

Recent public flareups over continued shipments to Yugoslavia, and the attention paid by the United States government to the protests, make it pretty obvious that the new policy will take into consideration the premise of some that help should be continued only to America's friends.

This probably means that countries like Austria, Greece and India will receive major attention, with the United States' attitude toward the former enemy countries and the Russian sphere considerably influenced by the benefits we will receive in return.

Another serious problem is where the money is coming from to do anything for anybody.

The recent loan to Britain was made in an atmosphere that practically promises there would be few if any other direct treasury loans, and the export-import bank does not have the money to finance foreign relief. The Austrians, who have been very little helped by UNRRA (26,509 tons of supplies up until March this year) but who have depended heavily on aid from our military forces, are expected to appeal directly to the treasury.

Yugoslavia has done much to send herself to the bottom of the United States allotment list, even if she could pay, which she cannot. Yet she received 1,554,970 tons up until last March, and is expected to be in dire straits without outside aid.

Then there is Greece, which received 2,457,083 tons (70 per cent American, as are all UNRRA allotments) and is unable to pay except through loans.

These are just some of the problems involved. China represents one in herself. The politics involved this time is not so simple as that in American cities where food baskets during the year are translated almost automatically into votes on election day.

Herald-Express Of Los Angeles Stops Publication

Los Angeles, Sept. 5. (AP)—The Evening Herald-Express suspended publication indefinitely yesterday after some 500 of its non-mechanical employees who are members of the American Newspaper Guild (C.I.O.) went on strike when a contract between the Guild and the newspaper expired.

Lines of pickets formed in front of entrances to the Herald-Express building. Police estimated the crowd at 200. No disorders were reported.

Victor Dunsmore, business manager of the newspaper, said there were "no immediate plans" to resume publication of the paper

Richard (Tuck) Edwards, chairman of the Guild Unit, said 525 employees of the editorial, advertising, circulation, business and maintenance departments of the afternoon newspaper would not report for work today.

Edwards said he had not been advised whether the 300 mechanical employees, who are members of A.F.L. Unions, would respect the picket lines, and officials of those Unions could not be reached immediately for comment.

Forty points are at issue, including wages. The Guild asks $100 weekly minimums for experienced circulation district managers, reporters and photographers, with proportionate increases down the scale. The Herald Express has offered a 10 per cent increase or $5, which ever is greater, in all classifications. Edwards said a 10 per cent raise would boost reporters to $77 and circulation district managers to $63.

Edwards said the strike is the first to be called under a new national Guild policy to seek $100 minimums. Negotiations with the Herald-Express have been under way since July 20.

Dunsmore said Guild demands, "when added to changes in working conditions, aggregated a 90 per cent increase in labor costs." He reported management had offered, in addition to 10 per cent pay increases, a 10 per cent hike in car allowances and a third week of paid vacations to employees of 10 years or more of service.

The Herald-Express has a daily circulation of 410,000. Three other major dailies, including the Examiner, are not affected.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

TALBOT'S SOLUTION AND TEETH AND TONSILS

Eugene Talbot, M.D., D.D.S., flourished forty years ago. In the official National Formulary today there is a standard solution of iodine and zinc iodide in glycerin and water that bears his name — Diluted Talbot's Solution, or Glycerite of Iodine and Zinc Iodide. It contains approximately 10 per cent of iodine (about 5 times as strong as Mild Tincture of Iodine,) 8 per cent of zinc iodide, dissolved in one part water and nine parts glycerin.

Dr. Talbot advised application of this solution to gums and insides of cheeks twice a week in the treatment of pyorrhea. He recommended such an application of the solution to the gums, and if possible to the tonsils, just before mouth or tonsil operations on children or adults. He believed that such an application of the solution to the gums once a month prevented tooth decay. Of course he was speaking of the use of the solution by physician, surgeon or dentist. It is far too strong for an amateur or a layman to attempt to apply either to his own mouth, gums or throat or to a child's. Only after the physician or dentist has taught you how to apply such a medicament is it safe to use on your own.

Pure zinc iodide is astringent and almost caustic, so even reduced to one part in 12½ parts of glycerin and water it is to be used only with due caution.

In most instances where the atrocious tonsillectomy is proposed, I'd advise a few weeks delay while Diluted Talbot's Solution is applied to gums and tonsils twice a week. In many cases, I am sure, the child's general condition and the condition of tonsils will improve so much in a few weeks of such treatment that the operation no longer seems necessary. Of course the child or youth should have the advantage of either adequate exposure to skyshine daylight, whether the sun shines brightly or not) on naked skin or an adequate daily intake of vitamin D or both, in any case.

Here is a peculiar thing. In the stereotyped advice given to the public by the health authorities these days, in reference to prevention of poliomyelitis, there is usually a warning to avoid tonsil operations if possible. The reason for that warning is the observation that infantile paralysis develops soon after the victim has been subjected to tonsillectomy in a suspiciously large share of cases.

Whether there is an epidemic of infantile paralysis or just a scare in the papers, this advice to postpone proposed tonsillectomies is fine, I think. In any circumstances I'd advise parents to give the child the full advantage of any doubt there may be as to whether the atrocity must be inflicted on the child right away. The longer you put it off the better the chance that no operation will be necessary.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Talbot's Solution

The druggists say they cannot give me Talbot's solution unless they have the amounts of the ingredients — the last one refused to give me back the formula I had.

(A. L.)

Answer — It is described in the official National Formulary under the ntme of Glycerite of Iodine and Zinc Iodide — Diluted Talbot's Solution — it contains 10% iodine, 8% zinc iodide, in about equal parts of water and glycerin.

Bow Lges

Can a child be born with bow legs?

(K. R. E.)

Answer — All babies are bow legged at birth. If the infant has rickets, due to the mother's nutritional deficiency, the natural bowing may not straighten out in the first year as it does in the normal infant. More about this in Brady Baby Book — for copy send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

Information

For your information and enlightenment read this clipping from ...... Magazine about the dangers of aluminum ware.

(O. S.)

Answer — Don't be so gullible. I find this in the U. S. Dispensatory:

". . . the whole weight of our present evidence points towards the innocuousness of aluminum kitchen ware." (Published 1937.)

We have enjoyed pretty good health at our house where we have used aluminum kitchen ware for years.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who invented cellophane?

The transparent wrapping material known as cellophane is essentially viscose or modified cellulose solidified into thin sheets instead of into threads as in rayon or artificial silk. In fact the two products are the same until the one is reduced to threads and the other is cast into sheets.

So far as the invention or discovery of cellophane can be ascribed to any one person the credit belongs to Dr. Jacques E. Brandenberger, a Swiss chemist, who was born in 1872 and who graduated from the University of Bern. About 1900, while employed as a chemist in a textile factory in the Vosges district of France, he made thin sheets of viscose to combine with cotton fabric in attempting to produce a tablecloth impervious to dirt. Thus, by accident as it were, he stumbled on cellophane. No doubt other chemists had made a similar product, but Dr. Brandenberger was the first to see its commercial value.

He called it "la cellophane," from the first syllable of "cellulose" and Greek "phaneros," transparent or glass-like. The name, of course, was suggested by the fact that the new product, like rayon, is made of modified wood pulp or other forms of cellulose treated with a caustic soda solution and carbon disulphide.

By 1913 Dr. Brandenberger had improved his product greatly, had obtained patents on his process in Europe and the United States and had induced a French rayon firm to supply capital with which to produce cellophane commercially. The inventor and two of his associates made a journey to the United States in 1913 and granted to the du Pont Company exclusive North American rights of the Brandenberg process, receiving as consideration a percentage of the stock in the subsidiary firm organized t manufacture cellophane.

Although "cellophane" originated as a registered trademark the United States Circuit Cour at Richmond in 1941 denied the claim of the du Pont Company that it had the exclusive right to use the term. The du Pont Company sought to enjoin a Virginia firm from using "cellophane" fo a cellulose material that it manufactured. Judge Robert N. Pollard declared in effect that "cellophane" is a generic term for product that no other word o combination of words adequately describes.

At first cellophane was used fo wrapping candy boxes and cosmetics and it did not becom really popular as a wrapping material until after it was mad water-proof. Cellophane was firs used on a large scale for wrapping cigarettes in 1930. Now th different kinds of articles wrapped in cellophane are numbere by the thousands. Though th product will burn if ignited, it i non-explosive, and it is so substantial in spite of its transparency that no simple solven will dissolve it. During the Firs World War cellophane was widely used by the French in makin eye-pieces for gas masks.

Alberta Farmers Ready to Form Picket Lines

Edmonton, Sept. 5 —(CP)—While Carl J. Stimpfle, president of the Alberta farmers union called for 11th hour federal action on parity prices, scores of the union's locals today prepared road and elevator picket lines to be called out after the midnight, Sept. 6 deadline set for a farm delivery strike.

The strike, involving produce of 20,000 union members in Alberta and a predicted majority of the 83,000 members of the Saskatchewan section of the United Farmers of Canada, was called as a protest against government failure to act on proposals for establishment of a fact-finding board on parity prices and other demands. It involves the non-delivery of all produce except milk.

A.F.U. officials, however, said last night that strong protests were being received from members against the proposed delivery of milk to hospitals, the age and children.

At Saskatoon, the possibility most Saskatchewan members the U.F.C., joining with the Alberta union in the strike was see when Frank Elaison, secretar reported little "scab" whe would reach markets once th strike started.

Circulars, urging farmers' withhold their products, would distributed, Mr. Eliason said, b the circulars would not ord strike action.

It was also learned from A.F. officials at Edmonton that eig telegrams had been received fro individual farmers in the Ceylo Sask., district saying they wou give "full support" to the stri and withhold all grain and liv stock from the market.

The Lockyer family met at the Summer home of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Lockyer, West Lake, on Sunday, Sept. 1, for a family reunion. Present were Mr. and Mrs. S. Lockyer, Mr. and Mrs. C. Lockyer, and Rosemary; Mr. and Mrs. Chris Lockyer and Lona and Linda; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ward (nee Ruby Lockyer), Mr. and Mrs. Alex Lockyer with daughter, Marjorie and son, Douglas, of Port Colborne; Mr. and Mrs. William Lockyer and David and Donald, of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lockyer, of Belleville. A buffet luncheon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Merton Armstrong, and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Terbush, Clyde, N.Y., were recent guests of Mrs. W. Caldwell, Station Street.

WEDDINGS

STEINBURGH—EGGETT

Marmora. — A quiet wedding took place in St. Paul's Church at 7.30 p.m. on Saturday, August 31, when Vera Marie Eggett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Eggett, of Marmora Township, became the bride of Reginald James Steinburgh, son of Mr. Harry Steinburgh, of Belleville. Rev. J. M. Brownlie officiated. The attendants were Howard Green and Nancy Eggett.

TRIM—BROWN

Holloway Street United Church was the scene of a pretty wedding at 4.15 on Saturday afternoon when Helen Canniff, only daughter of Mrs. George Brown and the late Mr. Brown, became the bride of Arthur John Trim, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Trim, Saskatoon. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. A. Perkins, and wedding music was played by Mr. William Connor. Before the ceremony Mrs. Hector Poste, cousin of the bride, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and during the signing of the register, "Because". The church was beautifully decorated with fern and multi-colored gladioli. Guest pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her aunt, Miss Helen L. Moore, Detroit, and made a charming picture in her slipper length gown of white satin, with fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, and long sleeves ending in points over her wrists. Her floor length veil of tulle illusion fell from a halo of white flowers. An arm bouquet of American Beauty roses and fern was carried. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls with matching earrings, gift of the groom.

Mrs. Gordon Stewart, Toronto, was matron of honor, wearing a floor length gown of melon pink taffeta with full gathered skirt and self-covered buttons from the high neckline to the waist. The bodice was fashioned with cap sleeves. Her finger tip veil of matching shade was caught to her hair with pink roses and she carried a nosegay of Summer flowers. Miss Audrey Crosby was equally lovely in a long gown of blue net over taffeta with lace bodice and sweetheart neckline. Her fingertip matching veil was caught with blue forget-me-nots and she carried a nosegay of Summer flowers. Both attendants wore matching elbow length lace mitts and completed their costumes with pearl necklaces and earrings.

Mr. Rex Chaplin was best man and ushers were Mr. Gordon Stewart, Toronto, and Mr. Bill Moore, cousin of the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Morden for about forty friends and relatives. Mrs. Brown, mother of the bride, received in a gown of powder blue crepe with black accessories and a corsage of deep red roses. The groom's mother, who assisted her, wore ice blue jersey with black accessories and a corsage of deep red roses. Serviteurs were Jean Moore, Shirley Moore, Lois Chaplin and Kay Moorcroft.

For travelling to Toronto and Niagara Falls, the bride donned a two-piece wool ensemble of dove grey with black accessories and a corsage of American Beauty roses. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

The bride's gift to the matron of honor was a set of rhinestone earrings, and to the bridesmaid a china brooch. The groom's gift to the groomsman and ushers were ties and tie clips. The serviteurs received boxes of chocolates.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Trim, Saskatoon; Miss Helen L. Moore, Detroit; Mr. Leslie Hattam, New Toronto and Mrs. Brown, Miss Ada Tuleaven, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Stewart and Miss Marjory Stewart, all of Toronto.

Women's Activities

MELROSE W.I.

The regular Melrose W.I. meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Ed. Lazier in the usual manner.

The correspondence and business was read and discussed.

The junior girls took charge of social part of program by singing "School Days". Marion English gave the topic and was very highly commended.

Musical selection, Muriel Embury; reading, Marie Badgley; Music, Mrs. Fred Robinson and Bernice.

The roll call which was not announced until after the meeting had commenced was called; a verse of memory work taken at school. Everyone present responded. This roll call was the idea of junior girls. A quiz was conducted by Evelyn Embury on the "Largest Cities in Canada".

The meeting adjourned with highest praises from the president to the girls in their effort.

Refreshments were served by the conveners.

Skirts Definitely Longer While Hats Higher in London Fashion Show

By DENISE DALTROFF

London, Sept. 5 (CP)—It's goodbye to knees" in Britain's autumn fashions.

Skirts are considerably longer. Topcoats are two inches longer, suits one to three inches, and afternoon dresses are anything from 14 to 10 inches off the ground.

The straight lines of wartime austerity cutting have been replaced by circular flouncing and bias cut. Overlapping "tulip" lines with upward side curves are popular. Shoulder lines are more fluid, with padding reduced or eliminated. Pockets are roomy and sleeves are full.

And hats are going up as skirts come down. Flowers, ribbons feathers and even fur soar as much as a foot above milady's head in off-the-face creations.

Many of the models at export shows of the Incorporated Society of London Dress Designers soon will be on sale in Canada.

Here are the highlights of the London collections:

Molyneux—Dress skirts are wider; necks collarless and close or V-shaped; fitted coats are swing-skirted; collarless, wrist-length jackets in bright colors are made for wear over slim black dresses.

Hartnell—Brown is back for evening wear in a pleaded chiffon; waists are small and hips swathed with flaring skirts; some evening gowns are of rich fabrics striped in contrasting colors such as cherry and black or pink and claret.

Peter Russell—Coats have matching scarves, are two inches longer and are bulky with double pockets; topcoats, suit, blouse and dress tone together though of different weave and weight of fabric.

Stibel — Curves replace the former straight silhouette; day and evening dresses both show a one-sided "tulip" line formed by two overlapping curved sections; evening dresses are in soft colors and fit closely.

Delanghe—Lines are loosened but not much widened; jersey is used for day and evening dresses; coat and dress sleeves are seamed horizontally to produce a "melon" effect; shoulders are bare for evening.

Creed—Suits have full skirts and longer jackets; there is much one-sided emphasis; a jersey skirt with fullness at the back is worn with a matching jersey blouse or jumper.

Bianca Mosca—Melon sleeves are prominent and dresses and suit skirts have circular-cut flounces or double hems on the cross; bit coats have outsize pockets and circular cut gives extra back width.

Digby Morton—Suit skirts are two inches longer; day dresses are bias cut an fluted but topcoats remin squared; the slim skirts of evening dresses are slit.

Hardy Amies — The original theme of the house—tight waistlines and well-rounded hips—is accentuated for autumn, 1946.

School Reunion Held in Queensboro

To the echo of Chapman's Corners' School bell, a gathering of former schoolmates recently held a reunion at the home of a former teacher, Mrs. E. A. Manchester, Waterfall Lodge, Queensboro. The evening was spent in reminiscing and in exchanging personal histories and experiences of that interval when a goodly supply of water has flown under the bridge of life. Those pupils unable to be present sent regrets and former parents sent many good wishes.

A buffet supper was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. H. DeClair, Queensboro school teacher. All too soon this enjoyable and long to be remembered evening came to a close. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sherry, Tweed; Mr. Ray Countryman ,Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Foster, Tweed; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bateman, Thomasburg; Mr. and Mrs. Murney Hall, Tweed; Mr. Harkness Countryman, Galt; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Emerson, Tweed; Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Fisher, Thomasburg; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Foster, Tweed; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Blakely, Tweed; Miss Wanda Swan, Corbyville.

STIRLING

Ninetieth Birthday Celebration Held

Stirling.—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eggleton were 'At Home' on Tuesday, Sept. 3rd., to over 70 friends and relatives on the occasion of Mr. Eggleton's 90th birthday.

Mr. Eggleton was born in the Oak Hill district, son of David Eggleton and Catherine Fenn, his father coming from Norfolk, Eng., in 1834. Mr. Eggleton was married to Violet Anne Carr seventy years ago next New Year's Day and to this union were born ten children—one son dying at the age of 65. There are four sons and five daughters living. Mr. and Mrs. Eggleton resided on a farm on the Ridge Road after their marriage, coming to Stirling some fifty years ago to live on Mill Street. Since then Mr. Eggleton has been engaged in the carpentry business and many district buildings are the result of his handiwork. He is in good health with an alert mind and keen sense of humor. He has smoked a pipe most of his life and doesn't believe smoking shortens one's life. Many called throughout the afternoon and evening to extend their good wishes, including friends from Rochester and Sarnia, who were raised in the same settlement as Mr. Eggleton. He received many lovely gifts and cards and delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. L. Phillips, of Belleville, and Mrs. Roy Eggleton and Mrs. Irvine Eggleton, of Stirling.

60th Anniversary Reception Held, Gifts Presented

On the afternoon and evening of Sept. 1, Mr. and Mrs. George Sprackett received many relatives and friends on the occasion of their sixtieth wedding anniversary. The rooms of their home were decorated with multi-colored flowers, and the large number of beautiful gifts, flowers, cards and telegrams showed the high esteem in which they are held by numerous friends and relatives, as well as by the organizations to which they belong. The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. J. Hagerman and Miss Lillian Sprackett, and were received by Mr. and Mrs. Sprackett and their daughters, Mrs. E. Wilson and Mrs. O. Lounsberry. Mrs. Sprackett looked charming in a gown of grey crepe with a corsage of pink roses.

Mrs. Dave Houston invited the guests to the dining room where the table, covered with a beautiful lace and cut-work cloth, was centred by a bouquet of pink and mauve petunias and baby's breath, flanked by four silver candelsticks holding slender pink tapers. On the buffet was a three-tier wedding cake, beautifully iced, and topped with a dainty vase of sweetpeas. During the afternoon Mesdames R. Emerson, A. Fisher, H. Poste, John Cook, and O. Lounsberry presided at the tea table. Serving were Mrs. Percy Sprackett, Miss Grace Pound, Mrs. J. S. Hall, Mrs. Harry Yorke and Miss Joyce Houston. Replenishing the tea table were Mrs. A. Bell and Mrs. William Kyle.

Varied Program Given

The guests were entertained during the afternoon by solos by Miss Helen Cook, accompanied by Mrs. Hector Poste, and Mrs. Morley Duff, accompanied by Mr. Charles Allen. Several musical numbers were presented by Mr. Allen, organist and choir leader, at George Street United Church, Peterborough. During the evening Mrs. Percy Sprackett gave a reading and musical numbers were presented by Messrs. Don and Teddy Sprackett.

In the evening over seventy-five relatives were present. Mr. and Mrs. Sprackett received a trilamp, Mrs. Sprackett, a rhinestone and pearl pin and Mr. Sprackett, a diamond-set signet ring. The gifts were presented by Mr. Ernest Wilson and Mr. James Sprackett. Miss Grace Pound made the presentation of a lovely woollen blanket and other gifts.

MADOC JUNCTION

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Honored by Friends

Madoc, (Special)— About 100 friends and neighbors gathered Friday night ,at the home of Mr. George McMullen to honor Mr. and Mrs. George Nelson (nee Helen McMullen), who were recently married.

Mr. Kenneth Stewart acted as chairman over a short program. A round of Community singing was enjoyed with Mrs. Russel Stapley at the piano.

A reading was given by Miss Mary Chambers.

Little Misses Donna Stapley and Grace Clarke sang a duet with Mrs. Bruce Stapley playing their accompaniment.

Miss Hilda Stapley contributed a piano solo.

Misses Helen and Joan Stapley sang a duet with Miss Keitha Stapley playing their accompaniment.

Mrs. Bob Danford was then called on to read an address which was signed on behalf of the community by, Rosella Fitchett, Gladys Clarke, Mary Chambers, Hilda Stapley and Ethel Danford.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson were then presented with an upholstered occasional chair and a hassock. Both George and Helen expressed their thanks and invited one and all to visit them in their home at Warkworth.

Several friends outside the community were also present and brought a number of lovely shower gifts.

Enjoyable Picnic Held

On Friday afternoon a happy time was enjoyed by the teachers and members of Eggleton Sunday school.

About 40 gathered down by the creek under the spreading maple in Mr. John Cooke's field.

During the afternoon games and races were enjoyed under the direction of Mr. Kenneth Stewart.

A pie contest by six members caused considerable amusement.

Later a bountiful picnic lunch of rolls, wieners, coke, ice cream, and popcorn was greatly enjoyed by everyone. About five o'clock all wended their way homeward tired but happy.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

me Answers for a 16-Year-Old

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a 16-year-old girl, and a nstant reader of your column. ill you please answer a few uestions especially for me?

1. When introducing two people, you introduce the younger to e older, or vice versa? For exnple, "Joan (the older), I would ke you to meet Mary Smith he younger)". And then do u say "Mary, this is Joan rown"?

2. Also who says "How do you " first? And to the other erson's "How do you do", is it oper to reply, "Very well, thank ou"?

3. Is it necessary for me, 16 ears old, to rise when being inoduced to an older person?

Cathy

1. You should introduce a younger person to an older person. That is, you mention first the name of the older person. For example, "Mrs. Brown, this is my cousin Janet Smith". When you are introducing two girls of about your age, it isn't necessary for you to think of which one may be one or two years older than the other, but just mention the names, "Mary Smith. . .Joan Brown." When you are introducing a boy to a girl, always speak the girl's name first: "Mary Smith—Tom Robinson." (It is easier and simpler to say the full names as you are speaking the introductions. . . then you don't have to add an identifying sentence.)

2. The two people being introduced generally say "How do you do" practically simultaneously—neither waits for the other to say these words that acknowledge an introduction.

And that "How do you do" is just a form of introduction-acknowledgment .. .it really isn't a question, and at the moment of introduction, the other person isn't really inquiring about how you "do". So you should just reply with your "How do you do".

3. Yes, you should always rise when you are introduced to an older person.

Who Gives the Housewarming

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct for the husband and wife who are moving into a new house to give the housewarming. . .or should it be given by a group of their friends? D.W.

The customary plan is for the hostess and host of the new home to give the housewarming But it is also correct for a group of their friends to plan a surprise housewarming.

Teaspoon For Fruit Cocktail

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a dispute will you please answer this question: Should a fruit cocktail be eaten with a teaspoon or with the small, so-called "oyster fork"?

Peggy

A fruit cocktail should be eaten with a teaspoon: convenient for eating the fruit, and necessary to sip the juice. Cocktail forks are used for seafood cocktails: oyster, shrimp, crabmeat, lobster and so forth.

Introducing a Stepfather

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother has recently remarried. Most of my friends have not met my stepfather. How should I introduce him? Should I mention his name in my introductions? Kay

For a while at least, until your friends become more familiar with your mother's new name, I suggest you mention your stepfather's name in your introductions: "Miss Brown, this is my stepfather, Mr. Robinson."

Irregular Features May Make One Prettier

Do you dislike your nose? Do consider your mouth too large? Does your chin recede slightly, or do your eyelids have a peculiar droop? Don't worry. What you fancy are defects may individualize your face. The pretty-pretty type is a dime a dozen, especially among the young fry. Charming to the eye, but soon forgotten in a crowd. Many of the stars of screen and stage are famous for their imperfections.

Time was when full, wide lips were anything but the old-fashioned ideal, which was a Cupid's bow mouth. We know now that the cute little pucker appears infantile, does not help to give character to the face. If you have a large mouth, be lavish with the lipstick. Play it up frankly, as if you were not ashamed of it, but proud. Make no apology for it. You can't possibly make it look smaller. Keep your teeth white, polished and sparkling. Lipsticks of raspberry and wine tones give emphasis to beautiful biters.

Girls with an oblique slant to the eyes yearn for round, full ones. They shouldn't. This is one of Nature's rare designs, should be appreciated. Give a slant to the hair-do. Wear a slanting ornament in the hair.

Heavy eyelids are considered a beauty curse by many women who have them. Let them cheer up. There is something to be done about that. Accent them with bronze or faint green shadows, as Bette Davis does. Pass the powder pad over them lightly for blending and softening. The effect is intriguing. With eyelids of that character, one should keep eyebrows of normal proportion and design, not thin them down to a single line.

The girl with the thin face need not yowl about cheek hollows, unless they are the result of malnutrition, in which case she should have a chat with the doctor, get instructions on diet. Thin faces create an interesting type. Don't use rouge on the cheeks; it will make them look gaunter. Rouge forms a shadow. Use a powder as light as possible, so you wil look pale. Cut out sartorial fluff stuff and every conflicting detail of jewelry and hair-do.

Greta Garbo has high cheek bones, has always given accent to them by placing blush pigment high. Artists are forever talking about beautiful bones, but the sisterhood doesn't seem to appreciate them, or know what to do about them.

Nose little and snubby? Pooh! It gives the face a look of perpetual youthfulness. What more should a woman want?

Fashion Flashes

A new look marks dresses designed for the petite woman. Drapes are brought towards the front, without disturbing the long line from shoulder to hem—so important in this type of frock.

Definitely very good is the word on the early fall frocks. Black silk crepe makes a smartly simple mode, with high, rounded neckline, easy armholes and bracelet sleeves. A softly tucked panel, starting at one shoulder, graduates below the waist into a

IT'S A FINE SEASON for feather trimming—from the quills on a casual felt to the flower-like birds on an evening hat. A pink net creation, draped for side emphasis, is balanced by a spray of small pink birds that give height and width.

A new look gives new smartness to the casual coat. Melton, in pale champaigne beige, is used for a handsome coat with hand-stitched tie belt; similar stitching is used on the cuffs of the shirtwaist sleeves. Notched revers, double-breasted fastening—with buttons and cuff links of pale amber.

Little stars of twinkling gilt spatter the shoulder yoke, the front panel of the bodice, and the deep, draped apron peplum of a new little date dress in black crepe. Short sleeves are draped into the shoulder.

Not so long before we'll be shopping for a fur-trimmed suit. This year there are some delightful models, such as the suit of winter-white woollen in needlepoint weave. The jacket has sable-dyed squirrel edging the front closing and the flaring peplum of the jacket. It also forms the deep, luxurious cuffs.

We like the flared-back, fur-trimmed topper that has been applauded in so many coat showings. Royal blue or shocking pink woollen is used for a smart model; the first has edging of black Persian around the collar and down the front on either side; also deep melon cuffs of the fur. The pink coat has the same fur trim in brown Persian lamb.

Eating a Habit, Beauty a Joy

Actress Audrey Young follows a balanced diet.

By HELEN FOLLETT

CORREECT eating habits have much to do with appearance, neat outline of figure, loveliness of complexion, hair, fingernails. Be a follower of the Goddess Hygeia and you will have few beauty griefs.

Every reader of health notes and beauty preachments has heard about the balanced diet, yet many bosses of the culinary department of the home have hazy ideas as to just what that means.

For one thing, don't serve more than one starchy dish for dinner. If you serve potatoes, have a green salad and one other vegetable that does not contain starch.

Everyone needs protein, meats, poultry, eggs, cheese. Everyone should start the day with fresh fruit, orange or tomato juice. Breakfast should include a cereal. several slices of bacon or an egg, toast and a beverage.

What about you, lady? Do you content yourself with a cup of coffee and a nible of toast? Then do not be surprised if you feel weary, look wan before luncheon time.

Three Food Types

Three types of food are protein, carbohydrates (starch or sugar) and fats. The proper balance of these elements in a normal diet is approximately one part protein, four parts carbohydrates one part fat. One ounce of protein contains 120 calories, one ounce of carbohydrates contains 120 calories, one ounce of fat contains 270 calaries. Plumpies must cut down on the fats.

The ideal luncheon consists of a sandwich, a green salad and a glass of milk. They will furnish sufficient nourishment to carry one on until dinner time as they contain many of the necessary food elements.

The wife and mother should make it her business to serve meals that are not only balanced and nourishing, but properly prepared and served daintily. Many a child refuses to eat because what is offered is not appetizing.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Adults Don't Like Teen-Ager's Boy Friends

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We live in a small community, where everyone knows each other very well. We are both teen-age girls and, lately, have been asked several times by two boys to go out on dates with them.

These boys seem to have a good standing with the other boys, but not with the girls or older people. We have refused them each time —not because we think we are too good—but simply because of this fact. Since we have refused to date them, they are cross and do not talk to us, which we think is silly.

What can we do about this?? Would you go on like this, or would you go out with them?

Jeep and Skip"

As you don't give any reasons why other girls or the older people do not like these boys, it is rather hard to say whether or not you would be wise to go out with them. Sometimes adults know things about young people that the boys and girls of your age do not know.

It seems to me you would be smart to find out exactly why these boys don't have a good reputation ,before becoming very friendly with them.

That Wasn't Your Husband, Lady

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I read with interest your answer a few days ago about the letter from the girl, "M.C." who told about going out with another woman's husband.

A good many married men indulge in this playing around, I am told. That is bad enough, but when the woman involved knows she is dating a man who is not free, why, I say she deserves what the fates may choose to deal out to her.

It might interest this girl to know that his wife does know he has been seeing her frequently. They have been watched. I wonder how patient and understanding this young woman would be if she were married and her husband was doing with another what she is doing with my husband? I might add, did it ever occur to her that my husband might have told me that "she is just a crazy kid and it is all over this time?

With the world so full of men, why must these young women choose married to play with? Is it because it is safer ,or do they enjoy the sorrow it brings home to the families of the men?

"A Wife"

Perhaps it might interest you to know that the letter to which you refer came from an entirely different part of the country from where you live, "Mrs. Wife". I am telling you this so that you may realize you have likely been blaming some other young woman unjustly.

It is too bad that you have been having this type of trouble with your husband but, perhaps, he is not quite as wayward as you seem to think. Your letter sounds as if you were ready to accuse him of unfaithfulness at the slightest opportunity, since you are so ready to feel that any young woman might be a friend of your husband's.

I am sorry if you are having difficult problems, but don't add to them by being eternally on the lookout for more.

Simply enormous alligator handbags are appearing now, cited as ideal for women on the wing, since their leather-lined interiors are large enough to hold passport, tickets, jewelry and other items besides the regular handbag contents.

Veterans Settle Down in Barracks After Seizure

Ottawa, Sept. 5 (CP)— The smoke of the capital's housing battle cleared today and 20 families of the Veteran's Housing League, with no immediate opposition in sight, began settling the affairs of their new residence in a businesslike—almost a military—manner.

Installed in the Kildare barracks, former C.W.A.C. quarters in the Sandy Hill district, after a surprise seizure Tuesday, the new residents last night held a meeting and assigned its members jobs to keep the new quarters clean and in good running order.

Totalling itself up after the confusion, the group found it was made up of 20 families, including 32 children and 41 adults. It was decided this was a "capacity" tenantry but that the members would continue to seek adequate housing for those less fortunate.

A First Great War veteran was appointed janitor, and given free accommodation, while other tenants agreed to assume various responsibilities of looking after the buildings.

Appealing for order and coopertion, F. E. Hanratty, organizer of the League, said: "The army is on our side—let's not antagonize them."

The barracks, vacated last Monday, still is under control of the army. However, military authorities so far have shown a general disinclination to dislodge the veterans. Soldiers patrolled the buildings last night, but only to enforce orders to the new tenants not to tamper with furnaces or stoves.

The veterans are planning a proposal for rent payment based on one-fifth of the average salary. Meanwhile, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, defence headquarters and civic welfare officials are in consultation over the next move.

Last night the League announced it has filled the more urgent needs of its members, and had decided not to go ahead "at least at present" with plans for occupying other federally-owned residences in the city.

It's About Time

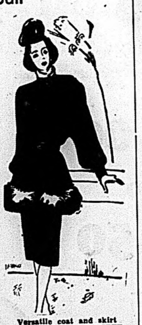
IT'S ABOUT TIME to retrim last year's felt sailor. Remove old trimming. Brush hat or have cleaned if necessary. Trim with large glass beads. Look for oval beads the color of felt. Sew them around edge of brim base of crown and edge of crown.

Fur Trimmed Suit



Versatile coat and skirt

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

THE FUR-TRIMMED suit is slated for big doings this Fall, ranging from the mink or ermine-trimmed after-five number to the suit that is really a versatile topper to be worn with either its own skirt or over dresses or another skirt. Smooth textured woollen in dark brown is used for this smart design, that flaunts a rippling border of blue fox. There is a nice detail in the shaped tucks at the shoulders. The full sleeves have buttoned-down slim wrists.

U.S. Aircraft Carrier Arrives in Athens

Athens, Sept. 5 —(AP)— The United States aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt and escorting war craft arrived here this morning for a four-day courtesy visit which caused much diplomatic furore when it was first announced prior to last Sunday's plebiscite on the return of King George II.

The naval attache's office of the United States Embassy announced shortly after it arrived that no air show was scheduled for Athens during the visit. Such a show was considered — with planes from the big carrier writing the letters in the sky — but was abandoned when it was found it could not be integrated with the jammed four-day program, the attache's office said.

A GOOD RACKET

London, Sept. 5 —(CP)— For nearly an hour residents of Stafford Court, Kensington, listened to a brilliant classical piano recital within an apartment tenated by William Max. What they did not know was that Mr. Max was out and that while an anonymous pianist played crescendoes his companion was ransacking drawers and cupboards. When Mr. Max returned the music had ceased and he was poorer to the tune of £350 ($1,400).

Mutually Acceptable Ministry And Communion Service First Step Toward Church Union Says Report

By SHANE MacKAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Sept. 5 — (CP) — A mutually acceptable ministry and communion service should be the first step toward any future union between the United Church of Canada and the Church of England in Canada, said the report of the Anglican Committee on the union, made public today.

The report, which will be studied by the 16th session of the Synod of the Church of England in Canada here next Tuesday, was mentioned yesterday by Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Archbishop of Toronto and Primate of all Canada.

Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, was an interested listener as Archbishop Owen told 200 clerical and lay delegates from all over Canada at the opening session of the Synod that "self-assertive controversy" was "quite fruitless" and should be avoided.

"But the greatest risk of all would be to do nothing in this tangled matter," he said.

Archbishop Fisher declared the Anglican Church was "in full communion" on one side with "the old Catholic Church of Europe" and on the other with Lutheran and other European Protestant churches. No church was "a more unifying whole" and people looked to it with respect and hope.

Common Communion

The first step toward union of the churches should be a common communion.

"I doubt whether the search for organic union of the churches is the most helpful toward that end. We must aim for a condition in which there wil lbe common communion, even though the autonomous parts of the churches remain. We in the Anglican Church ourselves consist of many autonomous dioceses."

In mentioning the report of the committee, Archbishop Owen asked the Synod to consider it with earnestness and self-restraint, emphasizing it will come up for study only.

The report will give details of the proposed partial union including the exact changes which would have to be made in the two the ministerial ordination cere- churches' communion services and mony.

"The object of this mutual reception of our respective ministeries," the report says, "is to make it possible for the ministers of each communion to minister in the other communion, under the licence and direction of the Bishop of the Diocese in the one ase (Anglican), and of the proper church courts in the other case (United)."

On today's agenda are the election of a prolocutor, appointment of committees, the report of the Anglican advance appeal fund and a financial report.

The Archbishop of Canterbury will address a luncheon meeting of the Canadian Club, and at 6 p.m. E.D.T. will speak over national network of the Canadi Broadcasting Corporation.

Canada Favors World Organization To Stabilize Prices, Distribute Food

—Gardiner.

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Copenhagen, Sept. 5 —(CP Cable) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner of Canada Wednesday told the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization that the Dominion favors an international organization to stabilize farm produce prices and distribute food equitably.

He said he recognized the establishment and operation of the suggested World Food Board under consideration at the present conference of 35 countries would involve complex considerations; also the F.A.O.'s function was constitutionally limited and other international agencies were concerned in the food questions.

He suggested:

1. That the conference set up a committee to study the Food Board plan and any additional alternative measures.

2. That the committee report its conclusions as soon as possible to the F.A.O. executive committee for transmission to the U. N. Economic and Social Council.

3. That the committee stress the necessity of a permanent organization with the necessary funds and authority to encourage production and facilitate distribution "in such a manner as will best provide essentials in food, clothing and shelter for the world's peoples."

4. That the committee report emphasize the importance of insuring personnel selected to administer the organization possess broad knowledge and experience of the production, distribution and consumption of the products with which they were to be concerned.

Grain Crop Good, Pastures Poor Rain is Needed

Toronto, Sept. 5 —(CP)— With the exception of Northern Ontario, the province continued to suffer from dry, cool weather which retarded development of potato, tomato, corn and tobacco crops, the Ontario Department of Agriculture weekly crop report revealed Wednesday.

The grain crop, said to be one of the best in years, has been almost completed and most of the threshing has also been done.

The cry from most counties was for more rain. Pastures were generally poor. Prospects for the late potato crop were reduced because of the dryness and also due to insects and disease. Simcoe South reported the appearance of ring rot on many farms.

Tomatoes were slow to mature due to lack of moisture while Norfolk County reported a 2,000 acre crop badly damaged by blight. Some growers will lose more than 75 per cent of that crop. The tobacco harvest was suffering from the dry spell, especially in Elgin and Oxford counties.

Northern Ontario managed to get little grain harvesting done because of damp, cool weather. Horses in Cochrane South have been attacked by what appeared to be an acute type of swamp fever which killed a number of animals.

Prices of most Ontario-grown fruits and vegetables were lower than last year though the fruit crop was especially good. The turnip crop, for example, was moving slowly because of a drop in price during the season of about 20 cents a bushel.

ONE KILLED, TWO BADLY BURNED IN FIRE IN CLEVELAND

Cleveland, Sept. 5 —(AP)— One man was killed, two were burned critically and damage estimated by company officials at $50,000 was caused Tuesday night by an explosion and fire at the South Side bulk refining plant of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio. Killed was Arthur Long, 35, workman in the compressor room where high-octane gasoline is processed.

Moscow Radio Comments on Tour Of Montgomery

London, Sept. 4—(Reuters)— Moscow Radio in a report today on Field Marshal Lord Montgomery's Canadian tour said:

"The character of statements made by Montgomery in Canada clearly shows the tour has a military significance— and this is also evident from the places he has visited.

"His message to the Canadians was: "If you want peace prepare for war."

"It is the opinion of many correspondents that the visit should be interpeted in the light of the strategic problem of Canada's Artic frontier and Canada's preparation for a future war.

Canadian papers have commented that in the light of Montgomery's speeches it is obvious Canada is taking serious measures in those areas lying opposite her "Northern Neighbor", but it will be difficult to convince this "Neighbor" that these measures are "Innocent" and hence it must surprise no one "If that neighbor takes counter measures."

No Serious Damage From Cold Snap

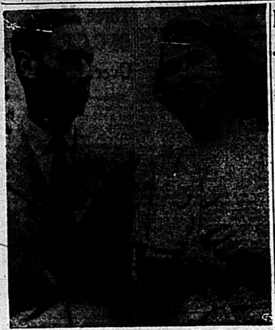
Brantford, Sept. 4. (CP)—Temperatures dipped again in the district last night and for the second straight morning a white frost was seen today as the cool spell that has chased bathers from beaches and caused fears for the tobacco crop continued.

No serious damage has been reported by tobacco growers as yet. In Norfolk County, a survey showed that work was in full swing in the fields. Smoke rose from kiln chimneys and workers were busy tying the tobacco leaf.

Tobacco growers expressed fear the crop may yet be damaged before the remaining two-thirds is harvested.

The cold snap of the past few days has made Port Dover a deserted town. Yesterday the beach was deserted, except for one lone woman sitting on a bench knitting furiously, probably to keep warm. B hchaeaeuosdnsmoe.Efu warm. Beach houses and stands were boarded up for the Winter and Lake Erie was choppy and cold looking.

The only activity was down around the fishing fleet anchorage where fishermen tended their nets.



Just like any other father and daughter, King George VI of England and Princess Elizabeth stroll in the gardens of the Royal Lodge at Windsor. The Princess is the heir presumptive to the throne and is now undergoing the training for that exacting duty.

Special Services Feature Opening Of New Church

Frankford — (Special) — The new Full Gospel Tabernacle was officially opened on Sunday with special services at which the general superintendent, Rev. C. B. Smith of Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, from Toronto, officiated. At the Sunday morning services Rev. C. B. Smith conducted the dedication of the new hymn books and special communion services were held.

The official opening took place at the afternoon service when the church was dedicated by Rev. Smith.

Rev. MacPherson of Toronto, district superintendent, was the speaker at the night service. A beautiful pulpit Bible, donated to the church, was presented at this time.

Music for the Sunday services was furnished by the orchestra, with special selections on the electric guitar by Mr. David Cheese of Montreal and vocal numbers by the Junior Girl's Choir. At the evening service Mrs. McElhoes sang a request number, "The Love of God."

Rally Held.

On Monday, Labor Day, a Christ's Ambassador's Rally was held. Devotional services were conducted by Rev. C. B. Smith in the morning. In the afternoon and evening the Young People's Leader, Rev. Kenneth Haystead of Ottawa had charge of the two very inspiring meetings.

The orchestra and Mr. Cheese furnished music for these services. Special music was enjoyed, contributed by the Junior Girl's Choir and the Ottawa Girl's Trio.

Visiting pastors and friends were present for these days from Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Truro, N.S. Hamilton, Cobourg, Chatham, Peterborough, Barrie, Oshawa, Colborne, Brantford, Western Ontario district and all local surrounding districts. The visitors were entertained at the Frankford Community Memorial Hall where approximately 400 meals were served during the two days.

Well Planned Edifice.

The new church, about 48 by 70 is constructed completely of cement blocks with arched windows of small panels of clear Cathedral glass. It is located on South Trent Street with the Trent River at its back. At present only the main auditorium is complete, but work is still going on to finish the basement for a Sunday School room.

The interior of the church is finished in pastel green rough plaster with ceiling white and ivory woodwork. The pulpit and altar are light oak finish. The main body of the church is lighted by ten large fixtures. Ten smaller ones light the alcove in which are the choir loft and the pulpit. There is a seating capacity of about 375. A balcony over the entrance door provides extra seating room.

On the right of the entrance is a small room for a nursery. It is equipped with chairs, table and baby bed. A window between this room and the main auditorium enables those inside to see all that goes on. When completed it is to be furnished with an amplifier so that the services can be heard as well. A hot-plate, tea kettle and other dishes are also to be part of the equipment.

Drapes of heavy wine-colored brocade material were donated to the church by the Woman's Missionary Society. Wine colored matting covers the aisles and passage ways.

For this special occasion many baskets of beautiful gladioli were donated by other churches in the community and by many friends.

Big Reclamation Job Under Way

Ottawa, Sept. 5 —(CP)— One of Canada's biggest salvage jobs —the reclamation of building materials from scores of surplus wartime buildings — is under way across Canada, a Reconstruction press release said Wednesday.

Through the operation, timbers and boards, flooring and window frames, doors and roofing and plumbing and electrical equipment which were built into the wartime industrial machine now will be made available for the building of housing for veterans.

The release said a survey of possible wartime establishments that could be used for this purpose has uncovered more than 1,110.

The giant operation, which has not yet reached its peak, is handled through a co-operative enterprise including the housing co-ordination branch of the department, War Assets Corporation, and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

The release said that in view of the serious shortage of all kinds of materials for home construction it was hoped the eventual reclamation from surplus buildings would represent an appreciable contribution to the solution of the nation's housing shortage.

Included in the surplus buildings under plans for reclamation are located in or near the following centres: Port Arthur, Brantford, Barriefield, Hagersville, and Nobel, Ont., Sorel and St. Jerome, Que.

Truman Orders Liner Scrapped

New York, Sept. 5 —(AP)— President Truman today authorized the Maritime Commission to offer the former French liner Normandie for scrap, but shipping experts said they anticipated few bids on the $71,000,000 investment.

The once-proud queen of the seas has been tied up for months at a Brooklyn dock, a rusting, burned out, 83,423-ton junk heap.

"Who wants her and how would you scrap her?" asked one maritime official.

The hulk will be offered to the highest commercial bidder on the American market only, maritime quarters said, but no privately owned dry-dock in the United States can accommodate the ship for scrapping purposes.

The Normandie, built in 1935 at a cost of more than $60,000,000, was taken over by the United States Navy nine days after the Pearl Harbor attack renamed the Lafayette and was being converted into a troopship at New York when she caught fire Feb. 9, 1942, and capsized in the Hudson River.

The Navy then began the $11,000,000 job of raising the vessel. Eighteen months later she was pumped free of water and righted.

Some time afterward it was decided to quit the reconversion job.

CUT UNRIPE GRAIN

Oslo, Sept. 5, —(Reuters)— Grain which could not ripen because of the short and poor summer this year in Norway has been cut unripe for use as feed for animals this winter. This has meant serious losses for some farmers. In eastern areas of Norway this morning the fields were covered with frost.

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept.5— (AP)— United States Military Police and Constabulary Troopers shot and killed the alleged German slayer of a Harvard University professor in a gun duel near Nuerenberg today, it was learned tonight.

Criminal investigation agents said the killer of Dr. Edward Y. Hartshorne of Cambridge, Mass., and Haverford, Pa., who died mysteriously from a gunshot wound on the Munich-Nuernberg highway Aug. 26, was trapped in a woods near Nuernberg and killed as he attempted to escape.

WANT MORE TO VOTE

Toronto, Sept. 5 —(CP)— Toronto City Council may adopt a report advocating "pepping up" advertising to increase attendance at polls during elections. The matter will be discussed at a future council meeting.

Three Members Of C.C.F. Resign Over Policy

Vancouver, Sept. 4 (CP)—The Vancouver Sun yesterday said that a "revolt" over doctrine has broken out in the ranks of the C.C.F. in Vancouver and that three leading members, known as "leftists," have resigned. They were named as R. W. Bullock, Boilermakers Union member, Lloyd Whalen, International Woodworkers of America, and T. J. Bradley, former C.C.F. organizer. The newspaper quoted a joint statement from the men. saying: "The central policies of the C.C.F. are in such contradiction to the needs of the workers, and so divorced from reality, that it requires an act of political prostitution to condone them or fail to expose them."

Death Toll Now Four In Automobile Crash

Kingston, Sept. 5 —(CP)— James Caskie, 76, Toronto, died in hospital late yesterday, bringing to four the death toll of an automobile accident near Crosby Monday.

Morley MacNish, 67, driver of the car and Mrs. Bertha Avery, 65, both of Toronto, were killed when the car left the road and crashed into a tree. Mrs. Isobel Mills 70, died a few hours later in hospital.

Caskie was the only other person in the car and doctors had expected he would recover from his injuries.

JAPANESE BANK CONTRACT FOR PAPER BALLOONS FOR ADVERTISING

Tokyo, Sept. 5 —(AP)— A bank has contracted for production of more of Japan's secret-war-weapon —paper balloons But they'll be carrying banners advertising a bond issue and not bombs, the bank assured its customers.

In wartime, the government spent millions of yen on such balloons, sending them into the air to drift across the Pacific in the hope explosives they carried would cripple Canadian and American production.

SERIOUSLY INJURED

Cobourg, Sept. 5 —(CP)— Struck by a car, Mrs. Cyril Taylor, Cobourg, was badly injured Tuesday night. She was taken to Cobourg General Hospital where a preliminary examination revealed that she had suffered a fractured leg, fractured pelvis and other injuries.

Goodman Jrs. Beat Harmony In Second Game at Oshawa To Win East Softball Title core is 10-5 and Team Always on Top; Jack Green, Catcher, Sustains Painful Injury

Hail to the Eastern Ontario unior softball champions.

This title was won by the oodman juniors Wednesday night n Oshawa, when they defeated r the second time the Harmony lillionaires 10-5 in the second ound of the Junior "A" O.A.S.A. laydowns. No intimation has een received as to what team ill be their opponents in the ext round but the team is looking forward to another provincial hampionship.

It is true that the team as a hole did not play the same class ball that they exhibited in their rst encounter with the Harmony eam but they had enough on the all to practically coast to victory fter securing a three-run lead in e first frame. The players were uilty of miscues both mechanical nd practical but their bats overame all these obstacles and they t in the clutches to produce heir runs. Twice during the game e fielders allowed ball drop for its when they should have been sy outs because someone did ot call the player to take the all but all can be forgiven when e team won. As coach Jack oyle stated after the game: They got a tough one out of their ystems."

oyle Sent Back

Don Boyle was sent right back the opposition and he allowed n scattered hits while whiffing even and allowing but two alks. His opponent B. Maeson, the hurler who finished the game in this city was touched for ten blows but two of them were doubles and the other two triples and all with men aboard. He walked six and whiffed seven. The juniors went to work in the first frame scoring three runs on two hits, two walks and a passed ball. They were held off the score sheet until the fifth when the balloon went up, five runs crossing the platter. Two errors, three hits, one a triple by Donovan produced the markers and the team was on their way. They picked up another two runs in the eighth when Green tripled behind a walk and latter scored on an error.

In the meantime the opposition pecked away at Boyle's delivery and the teams' miscues until the fourth when they tied the ball game scoring once in the first, second and fourth. They added another pair in the fifth but from there till the end of the pastime Don Boyle was in complete control.

Given Two Runs

The umpires gave the Harmony team two runs in the fifth which they did not deserve. A ball was hit in the air and dropped fair but bounced out over the foul line between home plate and third base with two aboard and it was ruled fair and before the ball was retrieved the two runners had scored. This is distinctly against the rules but the team took the ruling in their stride and continued on their way to win. The fielding play of the night was performed by Spafford at short when he took a line drive that was really labelled. The ball ran up his arm but he clung to the spheroid. A nice running catch also was made by Loreno at short for the opposition.

Green's Thumb Hurt

Jack Green sterling catcher for the locals sustained a badly bruised thumb in the first frame but after being patched up gamely continued although blood poured continually from the injured member. At the conclusion of the game he was taken to the hospital where the wound was properly cleaned and dressed and the thumb nail put in place and held securely. He will be able to play in the next round. He handled the slants of Boyle in an excellent manner. Young Adams started at first but Manager Boyle made a change to Locke in the middle frame and the kid played a smart game and helped himself to a hit. Gordon Donovan came back to life after being in a hitting slump and collected two. Rollins with three hits in four was the leading batsman but Green and Spafford, each collected two.

The lineups:

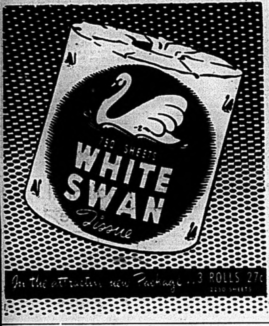
Goodmans: Culkin cf; Green c; Moher rf; Rollins 2b; Boyle p; Spafford ss; Adams and Locke 1st; Donovan lf; Wardhaugh 3b.

Harmony Millionaires: L. Scott c, and 2nd; Goodwin 2nd and c; W. Maeson 1b; Loreno ss; B. Maeson p; Dart lf; N. Scott rf; Robinson 3rd; Sanders cf.

Score by innings:

Goodmans	300 050 020—10	11	2
Harmony	110 120 000— 5	9	4

Batteries: Goodmans: Boyle and Green; Harmony, B. Maeson and L. Scott, Goodwin.



AMATEUR BASEBALL

(By The Canadian Press)

Niagara Falls Houcks defeated Welland Atlas 9-0 Wednesday night in the Niagara District Senior Baseball finals to cut the lead of the Atlas team to 3-2 in the best-of-seven series. Rufano of the Houcks allowed only three hits and Wilson led the hit parade with a three.

In the Intercounty Intermediate Baseball Finals St. Thomas Legionnaires defeated Galt Vets 6-0 to lead the series 2-1. Charlton of Galt allowed seven hits before being replaced by Franks in the second inning. Slota was the top batter with three hits in four attempts.

Belleville Goodmans took their second straight game over Oshawa Harmony Millionaries, 10-5, to capture the Eastern Ontario zone honors and move a step closer in their bid to retain the O.A.S.A. junior A softball championship. Boyle of the winners allowed nine scattered hits.

PARACHUTE TO SAFETY

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 5 —(AP)— Cralmers (Slick) Goodlin, 23-year-old Bell Aircraft Corporation test pilot, and his companion, Charles L. Fay, 29, parachuted to safety Wednesday shortly before a jet-propelled P-38 in which they were flying crashed in flames in suburban East Amherst.

Bell officials said Goodlin reported he had noticed one wing of the plane caught fire about 20 minutes after it had left the Niagara Falls airport.

MUNGER'S RETURN STRENGTHENS BID OF THE CARDINALS

May Prove Deciding Factor in RedBirds' Battle With Brooklyn Dodgers

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

George (Red) Munger, who, only six weeks ago, was wondering whether he would leave Germany in time to join St. Louis Cardinals this season, may prove the deciding factor in the Redbirds' battle with Brooklyn Dodgers for the National League pennant.

Munger last night celebrated his second week with the Cards since his discharge from the United States Army by pitching the Red Birds to a six-hit, 8-1, victory over Chicago Cubs for his first triumph of the year.

The victory enabled the Cards to preserve their two-game lead over the second-place Dodgers who defeated the Braves in Boston 3-1.

In a battle between lefthanders, Brooklyn's Joe Hatten had the better of Boston's Warren Spahn although the Braves outhit the Dodgers eight to six. Three bases on balls proved Spahn's undoing as all figured in Brooklyn scoring.

Boston Red Sox moved to withing five games of clinching the American League pennant, defeating Washington Senators 4-2 in the capitol city while the Athletics were shading New York Yankees 4-3 in Philadelphia. The Sox now lead the runner-up Yankees by 16½ games, the biggest margin they have enjoyed this season.

Marchildon Wins 12th

Penetanguishene's Phil Marchildon gained his 12th victory for the A's as Pete Suder drove in the tie-breaking run in the seventh with a single. Joe DiMaggio's 23rd home run went to waste for the Yankees.

Chet Laabs drove in all St. Louis' runs with two home runs and a single as the Browns took the measure of the White Sox in Chicago 5-1.

Bucky Walters and Joe Beggs co-operated to pitch Cincinnati Reds to a 6-0 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates in Cincinnati.

Although they collected only six hits, Philadelphia Phils made five count for extra bases, including two home runs by Andy Seminick and one by Del Ennis, to down New York Giants 6-5 at the Polo Grounds.

In the day's only daylight game, Hal Newhouser hung up his 24th pitching victory as Detroit Tigers whipped Cleveland Indians 4-1.

SARNIA IMPERIALS BACK FOR FIRST TIME SINCE WAR

Coach Predicts Team Will Not Finish Worse Than Third in O.R.F.U.

Sarnia, Sept. 5 — (CP) — The Sarnia Imperials, in former years a power in Eastern Senior Rugby, are coming back to the game this year for the first time since before the war. And while the Imperials would be the first to agree that they're not what they used to be, they calmly predict that they shouldn't finish any worse than third place in the strong Ontario Rugby Football Union.

The Imperials haven't played senior rugby since the last prewar season. But they've still got, from those plunging, fighting teams of the 30's, such stars as Ralph Perry, Pat Butler, Lyle Withers, Joe Woodcock and Trip Trepanier. Around this nucleus they've gathered a fast and promising band of youngsters and they're in there fighting, hoping for the best.

Coach Cliff Parsons had a roster of 30 stalwarts from which to choose his first-string team. Stanley (Mike) Meikle, one of the speedsters of the squad, looks like the choice as booter. He will probably share the kicking chores with Harry (Hank) Galloway. Both of them have been hoisting the pigskin 60 or 65 yards in drills.

New candidates signed to contracts include Horner Cote, a quarterback, halfbacks Kenneth Moore, Martin Powell, William Nuller and Walter Nicholls; ends Keith Fisher, John Chunko and Albert Brown; insides John Chevas, Cal Coolidge, and John Robb; and middles Clare Sutton, Walter McIntosh, Robert Zink, Russell Whiting, and snapback Patrick Butler.

Manager Jack Baker and coach Parsons believe the new Imperials should take at least half of their scheduled games. They open the season against Hamilton Wildcats here on Saturday and the officials — and the players too — have every confidence they can start with a victory over the tabbies.

The Imperials, a heavy and fast club, at least will challenge Balmy Beach's title of the "best-dressed team." The new uniforms are a combination of red, white and blue. The body of the jerseys is red with a blue epaulet and white numerals. Pants are blue and stockings half white and half red.

BATA SHOEMEN DEFEAT FLYERS TO SWEEP SERIES

Get 6-1 Win Over Air Crew to Take Intermediate "A" 1st Round in Two Straight Games

Bill Easton's Batawa Shoemen will go on to the second round of the Ontario Baseball Association Intermediate "A" playdowns by virtue of their sparkling win over the Trenton Flyers at the Alemite Field Wednesday evening. The score was 6-1. The Shoemen swept the series in two straight games, having nosed out the Flyers in the first tussle by a 1-0 score.

"Smoky" Smith had the Flyers big guns spiked for the main part of the game in spite of the fact that "Moose" Matthews cocked a mighty home run off his delivery in the second innings in an Alphonse-Gaston gesture after Wagar for Batawa had poled out a four-bagger to deep left field in the first heat.

Smith, always a money pitcher struck out twelve Flyers and was good in the clutches. On two occasions he "bore down" to strike out the third batter with the sacks occupied.

Flyers used three hurlers in an effort to stem the tide of defeat. Curtis started and was touched for two hits for three runs in three innings. Gibb relived him and allowed four hits for three runs and Wade was sent in in the sixth to help the dying cause. The tall righthander held the Shoemen runless for the rest of the game although he was nicked for three blows.

Both teams scored in the third off respective home runs but Bata forged to a three run lead in the fifth off three hits. They got two more in the sixth when Watson homered to drive in Wagar who had doubled anead of him—and that was the scoring for the day.

Wagar paced the Shoemen attack with a homer and a double with Watson, Austin and Cook getting a brace for the winners. Walt Gerow and Bridgeman got two each for the Flyers.

BALTIMORE HOLDS FOURTH PLACE IN INT. LEAGUE

Orioles Win From Chiefs While Bisons Split With Toronto Leafs

(By The Associated Press)

Baltimore Orioles today held undisputed possession of fourth place in the International League but Buffalo Bisons were more than a hot breath behind and the makeup of the loop's playoff group still was anybody's guess.

The Orioles broke their tie for fourth — last playoff spot—with Buffalo last night by nipping Syracuse Chiefs in a home run battle 7-6, while the Bisons were splitting a doubleheader with Toronto. Buffalo won the opener 8-5 but dropped the windup, 8-0.

In the only other games on the program, the pennant-winning Montreal Royals divided a twin bill with Rochester, winning 8-7 and losing the nightcap 5-3. Newark and Jersey City were not scheduled.

As a result of the evening's developments, only two games separated the second-place Bears of Newark and the fifth-place Bisons. The third-place Chiefs trailed Newark by one game and the Orioles were another half game behind with the Bisons still another half length astern Baltimore.

Buffalo poled 10 hits including Vic Wertz' homer in winning the opener from Toronto but the Bisons were stopped cold by Art McCahan in the closer, the Leaf hurler limiting them to five hits and fanning eight. Bruce Konopka hit a three-run homer for Toronto.

Clarence Campbell, Former N.H.L. Referee, Named Pres. Of Loop When Dutton Resigns

Pressure of Business Forces Dutton to Relinquish Control After 2½ Years in Office

Montreal, Sept. 5—(CP)—Clarence S. Campbell, an Edmonton lawyer who recently returned from army service overseas, last night became president of the National Hockey League in which he once worked three seasons as a referee.

The resignation of Mervyn (Red) Dutton due to the pressure of personal business and the appointment of 41-year-old Campbell as his successor were announced here following the semi-annual meeting of the N.H.L.

A former player with Montreal Maroons and New York Americans, and subsequently owner of the now disabled Brooklyn Americans, Dutton had been top man in the league for 2½ years, succeeding the late "grand old man of hockey," Frank Calder.

Dutton also told the meeting that in view of the tremendous difficulties of attempting to build a suitable arena at this time, he would not be in a position to continue with any efforts to establish a franchise in Brooklyn.

The meeting decided that henceforth the league's trophy winners will receive a financial reward in addition to the honor of winning the award.

Thus $1,000 in cash will be awarded each year to the winners of the Hart Trophy, given to the player considered the most useful to his club, the Lady Byng Trophy, for the best example of all-round sportsmanship, the Vezina Trophy, for the goaler with the least number of goals scored against him, and the Calder Memorial Trophy for the rookies of the year.

Can't Vote for Own Club

A like sum will be paid to each member of an all-star team whose members will be chosen by vote among the team managers. The vote will be taken before the playoffs but its results announced only upon completion of the Stanley Cup games. No manager will be permitted to vote for a member of his own club.

Each club may use 15 players exclusive of the goalie during a game — one man more than last season.

The 1946-47 schedule was approved and will be available for general release in afternoon papers of Sept. 17.

Campbell's appointment climaxed a long hockey career that started in the open-air rinks of Edmonton. He graduated in law at the University of Alberta and was a Rhodes Scholar. He played in goal both for U. of A. and Oxford University.

Going overseas in 1942 as a lieutenant, he rose to the rank of lieutenant-colonel and was awarded membership in the Order of the British Empire.

He took part in a number of court martial cases in northwest Europe and was assistant prosecutor at Aurich in the trial of Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer of the German army.

6 Bids Now in For Olympic Games To be Held in '52

(By The Canadian Press)

Although the London Olympiad is still two years away, the International Olympic Committee received applications from six cities, three in the United States and three in Europe, for the 1952 Olympics at its meeting in Lausanne, Switzerland, yesterday. The American "invitations" were from Detroit, Minneapolis and Los Angeles while the European bids came from Helsinki, Stockholm and Lausanne. Decision will not be made regarding the site, however, until the committee meets next May at Stockholm.

A compromise was announced on the pro-amateur issue with respect to ski instructors. The latter wil be permitted to compete in the 1948 Olympic winter sports at St. Moritz if they do not take any money after the end of this month.

The final deadlock for first place in the Pony Baseball League was broken in a playoff yesterday when the Jamestown Falcons defeated last year's pennant winners, Batavia Falcons, 6-2 at Jamestown, N.Y. The result decided the order of the scheduled postlschedule playoffs.

Winner of the 800-metre run at the recent European track championships at Oslo, Rune Gustavsson of Sweden broke the world record for the 1,000 metres by galloping the distance in 2:21.2 during a field day at Boraas, Sweden. The former mark of 2:31.8 was set by Rudolf Harbig of Germany May 24, 1941.

Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., who took up tennis because of infantile paralysis, yesterday scored a triumph in the women's singles quarter-finals of the National Court Championships by defeating Margaret Osborne, San Francisco star, in three sets.

Before a crowd of 15,000 at the Indiana State Fair, Indianapolis, Poplar Byrd, bay son of Volomite, captured two of three heats to win the $20,985 Fox Stake, feature of yesterday's Grand Circuit card. Goose Bay, pre-race favorite, took the odd heat.

Heavyweight champion Joe Louis was busy opening his new restaurant in the Harlem section of New York yesterday while his opponent for the Sept. 18 title bout at Yankee Stadium, Tami Mauriello, kept busy with the mauling of sparring partners.

The touring India cricketers outclassed the south of England eleven yesterday at London, the Indians scoring 241 runs to 70 by the English side. During the match, Vince Mankad, India's top bowler, achieved the "double"—1,000 runs and 100 wickets.

Byron Nelson has quit golf's gold trail for good. The great Texan who rose from caddy to one of the greatest golfers of all time said at Dallas yesterday that from now on he would make only rare tournament appearances. He plans to settle down on a 630-acre farm some 30 miles from Dallas and take in occasional tournaments, "such as the Masters at Augusta, Ga., next Spring.

Max Schmeling, the former world heavyweight champion, just out of jail after serving three months at Hamburg, Germany on a charge he continued building a new home after an order halting all such construction. Asked whether he would ever fight again, Schmeling, now slightly grey at the temples, said he didn't know. He is prohibited from boxing here.

DOIN' ALL RIGHT

Ralph McCabe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herb. McCabe, who is going great pitching guns with Oklahoma City in the Texas League. Ralph is the property of the Cleveland Indians and was sent to Baltimore and later to Oklahoma for more seasoning. He has won ten and lost five for a pitching average of .667, not bad in any man's league.

ALOUETTES RATE PLENTY OF POWER IN ALL PHASES

American - Canuck Team Appears Squad to be Feared, on Paper

This is the last of a Canadian Press series on pre-season prospects of teams in the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union. Today's story is about Montreal Alouettes.

By SYD THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Sept. 5—(CP)—With plenty of speed, punch and power lurking around the line-up of his squad, the customarily morose Lew Hayman felt a trifle more chipper today as his Montreal Alouettes awaited their baptism of fire this Saturday.

Coach Hayman, never noted as the great optimist, couldn't help but take heart from the walloping his widely-gathered galaxy of stars gave the Winnipeg Blue Bombers Monday. All he now needs to know will show up when the Alouettes open the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union campaign against Toronto Argos, Dominion champs, on the cup holders' home grounds this week-end.

Alouettes, the product of a brave, post-war reconversion effort to give football back to Montreal fans, on paper rank as a powerhouse to be feared, with imports from the United States and some rattling good products of Canadian gridirons spotting the line-up.

One of the American imports—there are six right now, but one will have to be dropped to bring the number within the limit — promises to do a little burning up of the turf by all accounts. He is Wally Spencer, who was lured from Philadelphia Eagles' pro training camp to join Alouettes. A five-foot-seven, 150-pound speed demon, he is being touted as even faster than Winnipeg's great Fritzie Hanson.

Another half-back import, Virgil Wagner who was good enough for a trial with Detroit Lions, also has stamped himself as a man to be watched.

The other Americans are Johnny Moody, 245-pound Negro full-back from Pittsburgh, Herb Trawick, another husky Negro who stands to add some solidity to the line with his 232 pounds, Rafe Nabors of Texas, and George Edwards, a six-foot 2½-inch, 255-pound Negro tackle from Kentucky State College.

Alouettes, with former Blue Bomber manager Joe Ryan handling the managing chores, drew heavily on Winnipeg for talent this season. Former Bombers Lou Mogul, Dave Greenberg and Ches McCance figure to add more than a little to the squad.

Elsewhere on the squad are Matt Anthony, a former Hamilton Wildcat, Red Reynolds, who pastimed with coach Lew Hayman on Toronto Indians and his RCAF Hurricanes, Hamilton Joe Syka and Don Taylor from the Grey Cup winning Navy Combines.

Just to provide the proper dash of youth and experience, Hayman has Montreal's Joe Richman and 17-year-old Tommy Manastersky. Joey, who has been around more teams and more coaches than the average two players ever see, was with Hayman on the '43 Toronto Hurricanes.

So, with all that backing him up, wily Lew Hayman isn't saying much right now, but chances are he's indulging in a few very private self-congratulations and perhaps a quiet inner smile or two.

But if you think he will admit it in public — guess again!

remember when—

Big Bill Tilden won his first United States singles tennis title at Forest Hills, N.Y., 26 years ago today, defeating W. M. Johnson 6-1, 1-6, 7-5, 6-3. He reigned as the world's outstanding amateur until 1931 when he turned professional.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Ralph McCabe, former Belleville, Oshawa and other points hereabouts baseball star is apparently going well with the Texas League team of Oklahoma City. The tall slim righthander has won ten games and lost five for a pitching average of 667, not bad in any man's loop. His most recent feat was a two-hit shutout of Beaumont. The game previous against Fort Worth he allowed but six hits to win easily. He is the property of the Cleveland Indians who farmed him to Baltimore early in the season and later sent him to Oklahoma City. Mac is making good in the upper berth baseball and next season may see him chucking in the major leagues.

Belleville Kiwanis Juniors trek to Peterboro on Saturday to play that all-important third game against the starry Oshawa B'nai B'riths in the second round of the OBA junior 'A' series. The game originally scheduled for the Liftlock City on Wedneseday was unavoidably postponed due to the fact that the Peterboro diamond was unavailable, or something of that nature. So the die is cast for Saturday.

That is unless the OBA throws another monkey wrench into the proceedings. Both teams should be consulted with favors shown to none. The Kiwanis management should not put up with any more high jinks on the part of the OBA or any other factor in the series. Let us get this game over and go on with the playdowns. After all hockey starts in December, here, that is, if there is cold weather.

Belleville fans, especially those with a penchant for umpire baiting, will be interested in the fact that there is not only no booing of umpires in Japan (the Japanese word for umpire means "divine being" or "supreme authority") but that each player as he enters the batter's box, lifts his cap and bows politely in the umpire's direction.

In our town and district, from what we have seen and heard, it would be too bad if the umpire bowed in the direction of the players — and a few fans we know, were in the immediate vicinity. Just good clean fun, chums.

This evening at the Alemite Field, Latta takes on the Swaco baseball squad in a postponed game. The Carson gang, fresh from their triumph over Bancroft, the North Hastings champs in the intermediate "B" series are awaiting the winners of the Bloomfield-Napanee series. (by the way, Bloomfield took the first game 7-3 from our league cousins down east of here). Swacos have been idle too for some time and are raring to go, so tonight's game should be worth seeing. Curtain at 5:45.

Fireworks" might be the best way to describe Friday night's wrestling battle between British Empire champion Whipper Billy Watson and Karl Krippler Davis in the Belleville Arena. The match will be over the special time limits of ninety minutes and if last week's fracas was a sample then the hour-and-a-half battle this week should be the standout of the year.

Watson is still nursing that injured nose which Krippler flattened with one of his ham-like smashes and the Canadian is even keener on the re-match than was Davis. "I really want to get my hands on his again" said Whipper today over the long-distance phone when asked how he felt about Friday's match. "Davis is a dirty dog in the ring if ever there was one and his remarks about Canadian wrestlers require some answers. I hope to give him a few real reports on Friday night."

There is very little doubt of the real animosity between the two men, for Whipper Billy Watson has always been mighty proud of his country and the place Canadian wrestlers have held in world standings. Added to those feelings is of course the fact that the rugged Davis treated Watson as if he was no more important than a preliminary boy in their last bout. It all goes to make a violent and spectacular match in prospect.

Handsome Ben Sharpe tackles a tough specimen in Jim Goon Henry in the semi-final while Bunny Dunlop steps up against the Brilliant Frankie Taylor."

SOUR GRAPES?

The great Ted Williams succumbed to the war of nerves, which Lou Boudreau declared last month when he shifted six of his eight regulars to the right of second base in an effort to set up the best possible defence against the Boston slugger, August 25, says a Cleveland writer.

"Scatter those guys, Lou," Williams shouted the first time he came to bat.

"Why??" taunted Boudreau. "You can knock the ball out of any park, can't you? What's the difference where we play."

In six official times at bat, Williams made only one hit. Deliberately trying to poke the ball to the left, as he had tried all afternoon, he bounced a single over Pitcher Allie Reynolds' head in the third inning of the second game. Ken Keltner made a fancy stop but Williams beat the throw to first.

In the first game, one of Williams' efforts to hit to left resulted in a pop fly near the third base line. Pat Seerey, playing a shallow left field, made an easy catch.

"Ted is pressing," said Boudreau. "Earlier in the season we conceded him everything he could hit to left and he didn't even try. He was going for the distance. Now that he's trying, he can't even make the singles which we were willing to give him. Some of the pitches he tried to hit to left were right down his alley. If he had been swinging naturally he might have knocked them out of the park."

"That's the tip-off," snorted Coach Oscar Melillo. "Can you imagine Babe Ruth, in his prime, trying to hit to left? Why, he'd have swung for those right field seats if the opposition had placed all eight regulars on the right side of the field."

The Indians' board of strategy believes that Williams, who was expected to prove himself the outstanding hitter of his time, has started to worry about the failure of the statistics to corroborate his press notices.

Williams K.O's Welsh Lightweight To Retain Title

Cardiff, Wales, Sept. 5—(CP)—Undisturbed by threatening rain Ike Williams successfully defended his N.B.A. world lightweight title last night by knocking out the Welsh challenger and British champion, Ronnie James, in the ninth round of a scheduled 15-round bout.

The Trenton, N.J., Negro, a 3-1 betting favorite, kept James at bay with a stiff left jab and floored him six times with a two-fisted attack before sending the Welshman down for keeps after two minutes and 41 seconds of the ninth round.

It was the first time the 29-year-old James had been kayoed in more than 70 fights.

Rain threatened during the contest but the thorough mastery Williams displayed was more disturbing to the 40,000 fans who jammed open-air Ninian Park for the first world title bout in Wales.

Many of the fans were Welsh miners who left the pits in the hope of seeing James win a crown last held by a Welshman — Freddie Welsh — in 1914.

Williams, whose lethargy in training earned him the title "Lazy Ike," was overweight two hours before the weigh-in but shed one pound 10 ounces by strenuous exercise. Williams weighed 134 3/4, James 134 1/4.

The finish came when a sharp right hook to the head sent James into the ropes. He made a vain attempt to get back to his feet before referee Moss Deyong finished the count.

James was badly cut about the face. Body blows felled the Welshman in the seventh and 8th and he was down twice in the 9th for a nine-count before the final blow.

The nationalistic followers of the challenger sang their National Anthem, "Land of my Fathers," before the bout began, one section of the stadium almost drowning out a band's playing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

British promoter Jack Solomons, staging his second world title fight in Britain with American champions within 4 months, estimated gate receipts at £25,000 ($100,000).

New York, Sept. 5—(AP) — If you're looking for a "dark horse" in the National Amateur Golf championship next week, how about Fred Kammer of Detroit? . . . Fred virtually grew up on the Baltusrol course, where his Dad, Augie, still can shoot a good game.

No Overtime Pay

Another amateur title contender is Maurice McCarthy, who set an endurance record in 1930 at Meriton, Pa. . . . In the qualifying round, McCarthy had to make a hole-in-one on the 35th to tie for the last spot in match play and he did it. The next morning he waded through a play-off with other guys who tied and then went 19 holes to eliminate Watts Gunn . . . In the afternoon Maurice tangled with George Von Elm in another overtime match, winning with a birdie 3 on the 28th . . . That was enough: Jess Sweetsee knocked him out in the third round.

One Minute Sports Page

The "struggling" All America Football Conference clubs have played to 129,000 fans in six pre-season exhibition games, which looks pretty good for the regular season opening Friday . . . and maybe it isn't just a coincidence that the Giants-Lions (National League) exhibition was scheduled for Friday in Buffalo, where the Bisons (AAC) open their regular season against Brooklyn Sunday . . . As bandleader Kay Kyser, part owner of the Rocky Mount, N.C., club said when pitcher Bill Kennedy broke the record with his 429th strikeout: — "Just let Bob Hope say something about Bob Feller." Cleveland Bob never did anything to match Tony Napoles, 21-year-old Cuban who won 20 games and lost none for Peekskill, N.Y., in the North Atlantic League this season. Tony racked up his 19th and 20th victories by pitching a doubleheader on Labor Day.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, Sept. 5 — (CP) — Football chatter is gradually pushing baseball into the background as the main street-corner topic for western sport fans. And currently holding the spotlight is the revival of the Pacific Coast Big Four League that is getting underway after a wartime shut-down.

Enthusiastic followers of the two-bucks-and-a-kick-game are already envisioning a western final between the coast champions and the prairie loop title-holders that will rank only second to the Dominion's Grey Cup classic.

It is something prairie fans would really like to see for they have never forgotten some of the classy clubs that British Columbia sent to the football wars. The coast clubs were often weak along the front wall, but the ball handling of backfields like the old Vancouver Merelomas gave the grain-belt football followers a lot of thrills they'd like to have repeated.

Speaking of playoffs, Cleveland Baron's head scout, Gail Egan, has come up with the prediction that before long the National Hockey League champion will be doing battle with the top club in the American loop for 'world series' honors in hockey.

The Regina and Calgary product says the American League can match the N.H.L. in a salary battle anytime and thinks that if it came to a showdown between the two loops, the American League could out-pay the N.H.L.

And Hec (Calgary Albertan) Maclean commenting on the fact that the same Egan recently signed ex-Edmontonian Doug Lane to an $11,000 contract for two years recently, aptly remarked "that isn't minor league money."

Rollie Maclean of Winnipeg and Victoria, who has been a regular also-ran at Jasper Park's famous Totem Pole Golf Tournament for some ten years, isn't worried any more about annexing the title. He thinks he has a better locker-room story.

Playing in the tournament this week, Rollie was quietly standing on the 16th fairway at the famous mountain resort waiting his turn to make a shot when a golf ball smacked into his trouser pocket. It was the tee shot of a Vancouver's B. C. woman's champion, Miss W. Evans.

WINS RACE FROM STORK

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 5 — (AP) — Mrs. Margaret Allen of Santa Ana, Calif., won her 10-day race with the stork. Rushing by plane and train from the United States to join her husband, Lieut. Jack V. Allen, in Erding, Germany, before the birth of her second child, Mrs. Allen arrived safely yesterday with her two-year-old son, Bobby. United States Army regulations forbid transportation of children under the age of six months, so Mrs. Allen set out to beat the stork's arrival in order not to delay her reunion with her husband.

NEED FOOT SPECIALIST

Seattle, Sept. 5 — (AP)—Memo to the keeper of the Cleveland Zoo: Better have a foot specialist on hand when your three Kodiak bear cubs arrive. The three six-month-old Bruins, appearing bored by travel and confinement, arrived here from Kodiak Island by boat yesterday and stopped over at Seattle's zoo for "breathers." But keeper C. F. Bradbury reported they needed a bit of doctoring because "pacing back and forth in their wooden cages has rubbed their feet until they are bleeding a little."

AT THE McCARTHY — Claude Rains (as Caesar) falls prey to the bewitching moods of that arch enchantress, Cleopatra (Vivien Leigh), in this scene from the G.C.F. Technicolor film produced by Gabriel Pascal. It is due on Friday at the McCarthy Theatre through United Artists release.

AT THE CAPITOL — Says Mr. Squirrel to Robert Lowery, star of "God's Country," filmed in Gorgeous Color, now at the Capitol Theatre, "Watch out for this gorgeous gal, Helen Gilbert, she'll get you if you don't look out." Bob looked out but Helen gets him just the same. The added hit, "Galloping Thunder," stars Charles Starrett and Smiley Burnette.

Palookas lead trumps when in doubt. But then, so do they nearly all things. As soon as they get to be good players they lead trumps for a definite purpose. By then they know why.

The order of preference of leads is tops, longies, shorts. So, when you find yourself without a top, you look around for a lead from a long suit. That means a suit of four or more cards.

Times are when you find yourself with four trumps. I mean the trump suit in which your opponent is playing the contract. With no top card to lead, there you are with a suit of four cards to lead; trumps.

So, you lead one of your four trumps. Not because you are in a fog. Not because you are in doubt. You lead that suit because you have four cards in it. Such a lead can hurt the declarer.

Don't lead away from ace or king in a suit contract. Or a suit bid by opponents. Trumps is such a suit. So, if you lead a trump with less than four, you have ace or king in each unbid suit.

No matter how you look at it, there is a purpose behind the lead of a trump. It is because the leader has four of them. Or because he has an ace or a king in each of the unbid suits.

South is declarer at four spades. It is your lead from this hand:

♥A 8 3
♣K 6 3

You have no top card lead in the sequence or other class. You have a king or an ace in each unbid suit. This leaves you nothing to lead but a trump. In this case, it is the deuce, your fourth best.

Every time you or your partner get the lead, pump a trump lead at the declarer. It will finally embarrass him in most cases. He is usually in need of his trumps for ruffing purposes.

If you have four trumps and entries, you can make him use up two for one. That is why you lead trumps when you have plenty of them.

When in doubt to lead a trump is the act of a chump.

Hollywood, Sept. 5 —(AP)— How to sell a movie without stars is herein described by Preston Sturges, to whom virtually nothing is impossible.

The writer - director - producer is currently fashioning "Vendetta," a film which has no glimmering names to appear on theatre marquees. It was even reported that he was out to destroy the star system. Sturges dismisses this as so much balderdash.

"Supposing I put out $150,000 or $200,000 for Cary Grant," he said. "That is a very good investment because I also buy $4,000,000 worth of publicity. People will talk and write about the picture because Cary Grant is in it."

Then why didn't he hire the Mr. Grant? It's simple — Cary and his high-priced conferes weren't available.

"Besides, we want to build stars for our company, California pictures. We plan a large operation some day, since we can get the land, the talent and the money." The latter is an understatement, Sturges' partner being Howard Hughes.

How then, to sell a picture sans stars? "The best advertising is word-of-mouth," he said. "You have to get word of the picture to Mrs. Schultz in her kitchen before the film opens."

In the Film Palaces . . . "Two Guys From Milwaukee" is a fanciful tale about a prince (Dennis Morgan) who wants to find out how you and I live. Sound familiar? Well, it is. But Jack Carson lifts it out of the ordinary class and provides enough laughs for an evening's entertainment.

Will Not Rest Till Every 'Vet' 'Decently Housed'

Edmonton, Sept. 5 — (CP) — More than 400 delegates to the 18th annual Dominion Command convention of the Army, Navy and Air Force veterans in Canada were homeward bound today after being assured by their new president A. J. Wickens of Moose Jaw, Sask., that the organization would take aggressive action to solve veterans' problems.

During the three-day sessions, the delegates passed more than three-score resolutions calling for changes in rehabilitation regulations, a "neutral" service memorial day, and dealing with housing, employment and seniority rights.

Addressing the delegates last night, Mr. Wickens said "We will fight if need be to secure our returned boys their rights and we shall not rest content until every veteran is decently housed."

He assured delegates that their resolutions would be acted upon "with all speed. If not we will find out who is to blame."

P. B. Mellon of Ottawa was re-elected secretary. The retiring president is L. G. Howard, Winnipeg.

The Women's auxiliary of the organization, holding its first convention in eight years, named an all-Vancouver slate of officers with Mrs. W. Simmons, South Vancouver, president.

CHAPTER 26

"Oh....you mean your father."

"Yes," was the grim reply. "I aim to square an old account for him tonight. I never had the chance before, but I've been waiting a long time. Just waiting until I had enough of a stake to take care of....eventualities."

"But, Larry, wouldn't the man who owns the house now let you look for what you want? If you explained it was your father's?"

A grim laugh was her answer.

"You're slipping, Jack. Didn't you see that fence? And the gentleman prowling around?"

"Then you can't possibly get in there, Larry. You might get.... hurt!"

"I'm not worrying over that, my dear. It will be more serious if I'm caught. I'll be sent up for trespass, burglary and whatnot. Unless my pocketbook is long enough to drag it out in the courts. If I can lay hands on what I want....Well, I won't have to bother about that."

"What was Vince going to do tonight?" Jacqueline asked quietly.

"He knows less than you do," Larry assured her. "He was going along and wait for me. If I didn't show up, for any reason, he was going to take the car to town and report to my lawyer....to Rannie. I believe I told you that. Naturally, I wouldn't let Vince get into a jam on my account. Any more than I would you."

"I see."

"Then you must see that you will have to give me a free hand. Be a good child now and let me set you on your way home. We'll drift along until we can pick up a cab."

"I want to go with you, Larry." Jacqueline's voice was low, but steady.

"I daren't dear. Here you are worrying about your dad, and then wanting to take his place! Think what it would mean to him, if I involved you in any trouble. Think what it would mean to you! Your reputation, job....everything. I know I've fallen rather low in your estimation, but you can't believe me that much of a bounder. And I must go, Jack. It's too late now to get Vince, even if you were willing. It's all right."

"But it isn't all right, Larry. You're not married to Vince. You're married to me. I've got some rights."

"You mean...."

"I don't know what I mean.... I guess. Oh, Larry, it all would have been so much simpler if you'd let me understand just a little more!"

"Do you think it was easy for me, Jack? To know that you were suspicious of me....and with every reason in the world? I had to do what I did. I didn't dare confide in anybody. Especially, when I found I was being trailed. That almost knocked me off my feet. Although I might have known they would get wise, with me cruising about under my own name. And you complicated matters....Bless your heart!"

"I?"

"Of course. I didn't know that I was going to fall head over heels in love with you. When I found that you were in the world and that there was a chance for me....well, I had to make good on this. And everything else."

"Oh."

"This ends the days of grace I asked for, Jack. You won't have to trust me after tonight.... unless you want to. It's make or break." He leaned forward and turned on the ignition switch. "We'll have to do something right away."

"I'm going to Fairlawn with you."

"Still the little adventure hound, aren't you!" Larry tried to laugh, but it was a failure. "Are you under the impression that you're going to talk me out of it?"

"I don't intend to try, Larry. I just want to try to undo.... things."

"Jack dear....does that mean you do care a little?"

"I'm... I'm afraid I do. And I'm going with you."

Larry gave something that sounded almost like a groan as he started his car.

"You win. We'll work out some plan as we go along. It's just possible that I may fall down altogether. In that case...."

"I'd rather know than wait."

He was silent after that, wrapped in his own thoughts as he picked a course around the edge of the city. Jacqueline was leaning back in her corner of the seat similarly engaged.

A tense excitement held her, making it difficult to analyze her thoughts. A strange mixture of fright and remorse held her captive. Fear for Larry, remorse that she must have misjudged him. He had read her intentions rightly. She did have some wild, vague idea of deterring him from his mission by her presence. But it was different now. If he were in danger, it was her right to be at his side, sharing. That was all that seemed to matter at the moment. She did not try to make herself admit any other reason. Afraid of that, too. Afraid of, but not for, herself.

When the roadster finally nosed into the road leading to Fairlawn, Larry brought it to a sudden standstill and prepared to get out.

"I want to put the top up," he explained. "It won't take but a minute."

Then, when he was in the car again, he explained, "I thought it might change our appearance a bit, in case...."

"I understand."

"I've been around here once or twice of late, Jack. Walked by on foot, after dark. I figured that your bald-headed friend would report to his chief that I had left town and that, possibly, the gorilla we saw out here would have been taken off the job after the excitement died. I think I was right. I scouted around pretty carefully and saw no sign of him. That will make it easier."

"Are you real sure, Larry?"

"Positive." He said it with an assumed cheerfulness. "When we get there, we'll coast by at a fair rate of speed. I'll be depending on your eyes. If we don't see anybody, we'll do the same on the rear road. Then I'll park the car in an unused road I know of and see what luck I have with the fence."

"What are you going to do with me?"

"That's what's worrying me sick. You'll be perfectly safe in the car. Of course you don't know how to drive."

"I have driven a few times. If you'll show me how to start it... I might make out."

"I hate to take that chance. I suppose a hard-boiled adventuress like you knows how to handle a gun. There's one in the door pocket beside you."

"I'd be scared to death to touch it!" Jacqueline shrank closer to him at the thought of it. Larry chuckled.

"It is a bit difficult to think of you in the role of a gun moll."

"I'll be all right. I don't want you to worry about me. It isn't your fault that I'm here, you know."

"Wish I could feel that way. We'll see."

When they neared the former Cutter home, Larry slowed his car a trifle.

"Keep a sharp watch," he cautioned in a low tone. "We'll have to depend on the lights. Wish it weren't so dark."

They both strained their eyes, but saw no sign of the former guard. A survey of the rear of the grounds gave the same result. A few rods beyond the boundary fence brought them to the unused road Larry had spoken of. He entered it and drove a few car lengths until the machine was screened in the brush, then extinguished the lights. The two of them found themselves straining their ears for any sound, but deep silence prevailed all about.

Larry fumbled at the side of the seat cushion and produced a flashlight. He directed its beam to the floor of the car and spoke in a low voice.

"You won't have any trouble with the starter. If you like, you can keep the motor running and throttled down, but it would be best not to. The noise, you know."

"I can start it."

"And you'll have to back out. Here's the reverse....like this. Now, when you're ready to start ahead....low, second, then high. Don't forget the way it goes." He showed her again, then looked at his watch. "Twenty minutes of three. Here, you'd better keep this. It has an illuminated dial. I'll have to take the flash. I think you'd better give me until four ....still be dark then. Try to make your way back to town and get in touch with Vince. He'll ...."

"Larry!" Jacqueline whispered nervously.

"Well?"

"I....I can't stay here alone. I...." The words ended in something perilously like a sob.

"But you'll have to now, dear. There's no danger. I'll not be long. Buck up."

"It isn't that. I....I love you, Larry!"

Larry's hand came out and caught his wife's in a rough grip.

"Do you mean that, Jack? Or is it..."

"No, Larry. I do! I guess I didn't know it until....now. I can't let you go without me."

"How can I?"

"I'm not afraid....with you."

"I wouldn't dream of it, if I thought there was any physical danger. I don't believe there is. But the other....Do you realize what that might mean?"

"I'm still not afraid. I must go with you."

"All right. Come on. Wait...." He reached up to the back of the car seat. "I almost forgot my burglar's outfit. Don't make any more noise than you can help."

They left the roadster, gained the road and started back toward Fairlawn, keeping in the shadows. When they reached the wire fence, Larry laid a hand on Jacqueline's arm.

"This will do," he whispered. "I've got a pair of lever cutters here that will take care of the wire. Keep your eyes and ears open while I try them." He moved nearer the fence and felt over the heavy mesh. There came a rasping click. "Fine!" he whispered. "I'll run a cut up alongside this post and roll the wire back ....We might be in a hurry getting out. Don't forget it's the last post but one."

Jacqueline listened nervously to the steady "plop" of severed wires. To her overwrought nerves they sounded like so many pistol shost.

"There we are," Larry reported in a few moments. "All set. I'll leave the gadget here and we'll pick it up on the way out. Hear anything?"

"No."

"Then in with you. Give me your hand. I know every inch of this ground. I'd rather not use a light. Take it easy."

(To Be Continued)

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was thinking to herself after supper, saying to pop, William, there are several couples that we owe an invitation to, and I've been racking my brains how to dispose of the social obligation by inviting them all together.

Well, what's the difficulty, the house is big enough isn't it? pop said, and ma said, That's just the point, I mean the whole wide werld wouldn't be big enough for these particuler 8 people to mingle in peacefilly. I'm referring to the Hewses and the Scanlins and Mr. and Mrs. Poxton and the Harry Bakers, she said.

Then you're referring to oil and water my dear, pop said. Of course they wont mix. . The Hewses and the Poxtons are as conservative as iced tea, and the Scanlins and the Bakers are as radical as ketchup in coffee. They'd divide into 2 camps and they'd be at each others throats in 5 minutes, and not a one of them would ever enter our house again or invite us to theirs, he said, and ma said, I realize it, William, and that's the reason the Poxtons and the Hewses genrelly avoid the company of the Scanlins and the Bakers, and vice virtue. But I've thought of a way of bringing them together and still making the evening a perfect success, all smiles and cordiality, she said.

How, for Peet sake? pop said, and ma said, By keeping the Scanlins and the Bakers in one room and the Hewses and the Poxtons in another, or if that seems too pointed, in opposite ends of the same room. Then they'll all be listening only to what they want to hear, which is the only kind of conversation people enjoy anyway, while we circulate from one group to the other like perfect hosts, she said.

My dear, you've got something there, but what'll you have here? pop said, and ma said, Time will tell.

Being the end of the subject.

Thrice as Many Thumb-Suckers In Middle Class

By FRANK CAREY

Philadelphia, Sept. 5 —(AP)— Thumb-sucking is three times more prevalent among children of middle class families than among children of the poor, a Detroit psychologist said Wednesday.

Dr. Martha Ericson indicated the reason is that middle class youngsters are nursed less by their mothers and are bottle-fed for shorter periods than the "tenement child."

She reported the finding in an address prepared for the 54th meeting of the American Psychological Association at the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Ericson said this was only one of several differences in child rearing practices of the two classes, gleaned from interviews of 48 middle-class and 52 lower-class mothers in Chicago.

Declaring the two classes had differing expectations for their children which affected the youngsters' outlook and behavior, the doctor said school teachers should take these differences in "social environment" into account when dealing with an individual child.

Other findings:

Lower class families are generally more permissive in the training of their children who are "permitted to stay out later at night, and to attend the movies at a much earlier age than the middle-class children."

Middle class children who fail to live up to the expectations of their families, are rated as "black sheep" by their families.

In lower class families where the goals "are not so high," failure to realize those goals is not considered so serious.

On the whole, Dr. Ericson concluded:

"Lower class life, with its looser social structure, and less exacting demands is unquestionably an easier way of life than is the middle class way of life."

After Many Years Suffering He Tells of Grand Relief

Praises Syntona for Relief of Indigestion, Gas, Sourness and Excess Acidity. Is Now Free of Rheumatic Pain and Throbbing Headaches. "Feel Much Better," He Says.

"Anything that will help a person the way Syntona helped me deserves the highest praise you can give to it," said Mr. W. S. Barnard, well known Canadian National Railways engineer, who resides at 129 Essa Road, Barrie, Ontario, in a recent interview:

"My stomach troubled me for many years and I took so many different things without benefit that nothing seemed worth trying any more," said Mr. Barnard. "After my meals I would get a heavy, distressed, bloated feeling, followed by gassy cramps and sour acid risings. I felt sick and nauseated and sour liquids came up in my throat. I would pick and choose my food and many days I didn't feel like eating at all. I felt overtired all the time and couldn't get my proper sleep at night. Often when I got up mornings, I had a throbbing headache aand rheumatic pains in my limbs and muscles. My back was lame and sore.

"I had been disappointed with so many things that I even hesitated to try Syntona, but a friend recommended it so highly that I finally began taking it. Why, almost from the first my food began to digest better and it wasn't long before I could eat hearty meals and have no trouble with gas, sourness or indigestion afterwards. I kept right on taking it and now I am free of headaches, the aches and pains have gone out of my limbs, back and muscles and I sleep well at night. As a result, I have more energy and I don't get tired as easily as I did before.

"It is certainly great to feel so well once again and I am glad to recommend this medicine to any one suffering as I did."

Yes, and many people can profit in a similar way by taking the advice of Mr. Barnard. Syntona acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels, improving their action. It aids in the elimination of excess acids and impurities from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

La Guardia Urges World Food Bd.

Copenhagen, Sept. 5 (AP) — U.N.R.R.A. Director F. H. La Guardia made a fervent plea to the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization today for immediate action to set up a world food board and said price stabilization "will put every gambling grain exchange out of business in Chicago, Winnipeg, Liverpool or wherever it is."

Mr. La Guardia, making his plea on the basis of lifting living standards of farmers of the world, said it was impossible to eliminate price fluctuations of commodities without disturbing present trade practices.

He brought an U.N.R.R.A. council resolution to the F.A.O. asking that organization to "consider special problems of liberated countries with the view of providing maximum technical assistance to the expeditious establishment of their agricultural production."

He said the liberated countries had lost "over 2,500,000 draft animals and 5,000,000 cattle and 20,000,000 acres of arable land are not in cultivation because of lack of machinery and fertilizers, draft animals, seed and manpower."

Mr. La Guardia offered everything U.N.R.R.A. has in the way of staff and experience to do the suggested work in liberated countries.

CHILD UNCONSCIOUS 18 HOURS

London, Ont., Sept. 5 —(CP)— Three-year-old Douglas Smith, Tillsonburg district child, is still unconscious in Victoria Hospital 18 hours after he was struck by a car on the highway yesterday. He is given "an even chance" of pulling through.

Tale of Cannibalism Told

Guam, Sept. 5 (AP)—The military court hearing the cannibalism-murder trial of 14 Japanese was told that one of the defendants ordered two kans (about 17 pounds) of flesh cut from the body of a beheaded American and prepared for a party in his quarters of Chici Jima in the Bonin Islands in February, 1945.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 5 — (CP)—The industrials advanced two points in the early session on the Toronto Exchange today, showing strength in the paper, liquor, steel and utility groups. The mining groups were higher and the western oils slightly lower at mid-day. Volume was a little heavier at 849,000 shares for the first 3 hours.

Hiram Walker, Canadian Breweries, C.P.R., Aluminum, Canada Malting, Canadian Vickers and Massey-Harris all gained a point or more.

In the mining groups, East Sullivan, up 55 cents to 4.30 and Sullivan, up 40 cents to 2.40, both trading heavily, were the features.

Smelters, Nickel, Noranda, Normetal, Labrador and Waite-Amulet were gainers in the base metal group. Western oils traded quietly.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 5 —(AP)— The stock market today extended the rally of late Wednesday by fractions to four or more points although there was not much follow through when an early flood of orders had been executed.

Dealings, fast enough after the opening to put the ticker tape behind floor transactions for a brief interval, quieted as the session proceeded. Extreme advances were reduced in a number of cases near the fourth hour but assorted pivotals held around their tops.

Liquors led the improvement in the Canadian group. Hiram Walker, off sharply in the recent days' breaks, gained two points at mid-day. Distillers Seagrams was up 1. Dome Mines gained 1-8 and Canadian Pacific 1-2.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Sept. 5. (CP)—Prices were steady on all grades of cattle, on veal calves, hogs and sheep and firm on lambs, in trade on the livestock market here up to mid-session today. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 100, calves 20, hogs 160, sheep and lambs 120. Unsold from yesterday were 500 head of cattle, stockers.

Weighty steers were $13.50 for a few choice, common to medium butcher steers and heifers $10-$11.75, canners and cutters $5-$8, stockers $8.50-$11.

Veal calves were $15-$16 for choice with plain downward to $10.

Lambs were $15.50 for good ewes and wethers, $13.50 bucks.

Sheep were $3-$7.50.

Hogs sold at, dressed, Grade A $21.75, Grade B1, $21.35, sows mostly at $18.50.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, Sept. 5 (CP)—Produce prices in the spot market here today were reported as follows:

Eggs: Grade A large and grade A medium in light supply, grade A pullet plentiful quotations unchanged, wholesale to retail, A large 50, A medium 48, A pullet 44-45, B 40-42, C 33-35; country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free, A large 49-50, A medium 47-48, A pullet 39-40, B 39, C. 30.

Churning cream unchanged No. 1 lb. 41 Fob, 45 delivered, plus ten cents subsidy.

Butter: Prints; 1st grade 42, 2nd grade 41, 3rd grade 40, unchanged.

First grade solids 40, second grade solids 39, market firm and unchanged.

HOGS

Toronto, Sept. 5 — (CP) — Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs, were unchanged at Brantford $21.60 delivered, unchanged at Stratford, to farmers $21.40, to truckers $21.55, London $21.40 delivered, in markets reporting early today.

FROST DAMAGES TOBACCO

Brantford, Sept. 5 — (CP) — Frost early this week has played havoc with tobacco crops, provincial agricultural representatives reported last night. Though no estimate has been made, some sources said the loss would run into many thousands of dollars.

On some farms the entire crop not yet harvested was destroyed while other points reported loss of from 10 to 90 per cent of the standing crop.

Early estimates predicted the Ontario tobacco crop to reach the 90,000,000-pound mark, with about $30,00,000.

Paper Ceases Publication

Twin Falls, Idaho, Sept. 5 (AP) The Twin Falls Telegram, owned by the Boise Daily Statesman, yesterday announced suspension of publication with this morning's edition. Newsprint shortage was given as being responsible for ending publication of the morning newspaper which first appeared in April 1944.

TOPPLES INTO WATER BARREL

Arnprior, Sept. 5 —(CP)— Playing about a water barrel on her parents' farm yesterday, two-year-old Jane clambered upon a bench, pushed aside the loose barrel cover and peered at the glistening mirror of water. Intrigued by her reflection, she leaned over further, then toppled silently into three feet of water.

Less than five minutes later her mother, Mrs. Kenneth Michelson, lifted her dripping unconscious body from the barrel but by the time a doctor arrived she was dead.

ARTIFICIAL METEORITES

Pasadena, Calif., Sept. 5 (AP) —An attempt to rocket artificial meteorites into the upper atmosphere—where they may conceivably form tiny satellites and travel around the earth — will be made next month, Dr. Josef Johnson of the California Institute of Technology astrophysics department announced yesterday. Dr. Johnson said in an interview the objects will be enclosed in the instrument head of a German V-W rocket which will be fired from the army proving grounds at White Sands, N. M.

Evil Due to Fear, Pride and Greed; 'Russia Has All 3'

Winnipeg, Sept. 5 (CP) — Evil sprang from fear, pride and greed, the Most Rev. Geoffrey F. Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, told the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada last night, and "Russia possessed all three."

As far as anyone could read Russia's mind, "they are urging her along the course the chief has chosen."

While the democracies were not entirely free from these three evils in the past or present, Dr. Fisher said, "yet Russia has tied them all to a political creed and the democracies cannot fight a misguided creed by self-interest—for that is the root of all evil—but can fight only through a better creed.

"The democracies can only meet the pressure by ridding themselves of the disease of self-love. And the only power that can cast out self-interest is the power that comes from making God above all else in this temporal life.

"I put that on a national basis."

U.S. SECRETARY WARNS RUSSIA AND POLAND

Trieste Must Be Given Status As A Free Territory

—Britain

Warns Parley She Will Withdraw From Agreement

By ROBERT HEWETT

Paris, Sept. 6 (AP)— Great Britain warned the peace conference today that she would withdraw from the Big Four agreement on division of Venezia Giulia if Trieste is not given a genuine "international" status as a free territory.

Charging that Yugoslavia is claiming "a very special position" in the administration of the disputed Adriatic port, British delegate Hector McNeil said Britain would "reconsider the whole agreement" if Trieste's independence is impaired.

The British stand on the hottest territorial dispute before the Luxembourg Palace conference was made in reply to demands by Slavic powers for Yugoslav domination of Trieste.

France, too, lined up with Britain in opposing Yugoslav claims to domination of Trieste, though in less unequivocal language.

Maurice Couve De Murville, the French delegate, said his government would "insist on a free territory as the core of the whole situation."

Will Honor Bargain

Mr. McNeil warned: "We'll honor our bargain but if the statute is so changed as to impair the conception of a free territory we will have to reconsider our whole agreement."

This was the first notice that any of the four-power foreign ministers council might not stand by their accords hammered out in 11 months of negotiations.

Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia has insisted again and again throughout the five-week peace conference that the four powers resist unanimously any attempt to change agreed sections of the treaty drafts and the council reaffirmed this solidarity again last week. Only yesterday the Soviet Deputy Andrei Vishinksy supported the Trieste agreement although he said it was a "minimum" of justice for Yugoslavia.

Turning to Mr. Vishinsky's statement, Mr. McNeil declared Britain had "never any doubt about the imperfections" of the so-called French line chosen for the Yugoslav-Italian frontier.

He said Mr. Vishinsky's statement was "lacking in international spirit" and added that "we just can't shut the door on Italy or any other nation of the world."

May Create Danger Spot

Poland told the conference that internationalization of turbulent Trieste might create "another danger spot in Europe."

Recalling the downfall of the free cities of Danzig and Fiume created after the First Great War, Polish delegate Wincenty urged that Trieste be united by "closest possible" ties to Yugoslavia to prevent resurgence of Italian aggression.

Appealing for a "genuine international approach" to solution of the Trieste dispute, Mr. McNeil told the Italian political and territorial commission that Trieste must be administered under control of the United Nations.

"If some countries are thinking in terms of barbed wire frontiers which can be moved by force to their advantage, it will be a failure," McNeil said.

Discussing Yugoslav demands for control of the administrative machinery of the free territory and for a major voice in railway and port facilities, Mr. McNeil declared:

"If the statute is so weak that the independence of the free territory be impaired, my government reserves the right to review not only the free territory agreement but associated subjects."

Listened Intently to Byrnes

Despite their pre-occupation with the vital problems of Trieste and Italian reparations, the peace conferees listened intently to what State Secretary Byrnes of the United States told the German people in his unprecedented speech at Stuttgart.

Heirens Given Life Sentence For 3 Murders

Chicago, Sept. 6—(AP)— The bloody and vicious crime career of young William Heirens was ended today as the state prepared to put him in prison to begin serving three consecutive life sentences.

The 17-year-old college student escaped death in the electric chair for his brutal crimes but the life sentences for the three murders and an assortment of other penalties, ranging from one year to life for more than a score of burglaries and assaults, indicated he will remain in prison until he is nearly 80 years old.

Heirens, under Illinois parole law, can not be freed for at least 61 years, probably 63 years.

In his Cook County jail cell, after he was sentenced, Heirens told reporters that "As far as I'm concerned the penalty is okay. I had felt for a long time I was going to get the chair. I didn't lose that conviction until I heard judgment pronounced. Then I was relieved."

The former University of Chicago sophomore, who had expressed no remorse for his crimes appeared unmoved as he was summoned before Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal Court for sentence late yesterday.

"Have you anything to say before sentence is pronounced?" Judge Ward asked.

Sorry for Acts

Fidgeting nervously, Heirens said in a low tone:

"I wish to express my deep humbleness. I'm sorry for the acts I committed. I'm still very bewildered by some of this, but everything seems to have worked out all right."

Judge Ward, eying the youth sharply for a moment, picked up several sheets of paper and began reading:

"The sentence for the murder of Suzanne Degnan is imprisonment for the rest of your natural life."

For the next five minutes the Chief Justice read off the sentences for the crimes of which Heirens was convicted — the lipstick slaying of Frances Brown, 33, and the murder of Mrs. Josephine Ross, 43-year-old widow; 24 burglary charges, and two assault charges. Judge Ward made no comment.

As deputy sheriffs handcuffed Heirens and led him from the court, his mother, Mrs. Margaret Heirens, rushed from her seat in the crowded courtroom, crying, "I want my Bill, I want my Bill!" She collapsed into the arms of Chief Defence Counsel John Coghlan.

Canada May be Asked to Store Up 100,000,000 Bu. Wheat for World Use

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Copenhagen, Sept. 6 (C P Cable)—Canada may be asked to store wheat stocks of 100,000,000 bushels or more for international use if proposals for a world food board, now under consideration by the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, are approved.

The Board plan emphasizes the need of establishing buffer stocks of food for use in the event of hunger anywhere. Purchase of surpluses to maintain such stocks would assist in stabilizing prices.

A report to the F.A.O. by a committee of economists said there must be close study of whether it would be better to have the international board own all such stocks or whether governments of members of the United Nations should share the responsibility.

Wheat is of particular value for buffer stock arrangements because it keeps well.

The committee suggested the effective size of the buffer stock of any commodity would be the quantity held internationally plus national stocks member governments were prepared to manage in accordance with board rules and make available for use when needed.

In some commodities the size of the stock should equal 50 to 100 per cent of an average year's international trade.

Up to 800,000,000 bushels of wheat were stored temporarily by Canada during the Second Great War. Storage space was cleared this year when all available wheat was shipped to Britain to alleviate a shortage there.

TEXTILE WORKERS RETURN TO WORK NEXT MONDAY

97-Day Strike Ends When Both Parties Accept Proposals Of Quebec Labor Head

Valleyfield, Que., Sept. 6 — (CP) — For the first time since early summer, no pickets paraded today before the main gate of the Montreal Cottons Ltd., plant. The workers, at a meeting last night, voted to end their 97-day-old strike and be back on the job Monday.

The decision of the textile employees came a few hours after an announcement in Montreal by G. Blair Grodon, company president that operations at the mill would be resumed Monday morning and "we hope to get back to full-scale production as quickly as possible under all the circumstances."

Approximately 3,000 workers were affected by the June 1 walkout, called by the United Textile Workers of America (AFL) in support of demands for higher wages, shorter hours and a union contract.

Take Secret Vote

The basis of settlement was a list of proposals by Antonio Barrette, Quebec minister of labor, including a secret vote among the workers to decide on a bargaining agency and a joint submission to the Quebec Regional War Labor Board by the company and the chosen union of a new labor contract.

The Barrette plan was accepted immediately by Montreal Cottons, but the U.T.W.A. strike committee withheld its approval for almost a week.

Two counter demands were presented by the union: that assurance be given there would be no discrimination for union activity, and that a government conciliator — preferably a judge — be present at all negotiations with the power to make final rulings.

Cases Reviewed

Mr. Barrette replied that the company had promised not to discriminate, except in cases of workers now facing court charges — and their cases would be reviewed with an eye to leniency. As for procedure, the labor agreement would have to follow the plan given by the Labor Relations Board, which provided for an arbitration tribunal for subjects of disagreement.

At last night's meeting, the strikers followed the recommendation of the U.T.W.A. strike committee in voting for settlement. The decision was greeted with noisy enthusiasm both inside the hall and outside where automobile horns were tooted long and joyously.

The workers' referendum for the choice of labor union likely will be held within two weeks of the resumption of operations.

The choice of unions presumably will be made between the United Textile Workers and the recently-formed Association of Textile Workers of Valleyfield, an organization with no national or international affiliations.

Madeleine Parent, acting Canadian director of the U.T.W.A., said the settlement was "not perfect," but consideration must be given to the wage increase and the granting of a labor contract.

Stuttgart Address Seen As Bid for U.S.-Type Of System in Germany

By GRAHAM HOVEY

Washington, Sept. 6 (AP) — Diplomatic authorities today called the Stuttgart address by State Secretary Byrnes of the United States a bold attempt to sell to the German people an American-type political system as an attractive alternative to both Nazism and Communism.

Officials familiar with the background of the speech said it was partly a counter-move to the statement on Germany by Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia in Paris July 10.

Federal Constitution

They underscored as of top importance Mr. Byrnes' reference to the eventual need of "a federal constitution for the United States of Germany" which should insure democracy and the basic freedoms. American officials have talked in general terms for months of the possibility of a federalized Germany, but none has ever put the idea into words which suggested so strongly the American type of federal union.

Mr. Molotov strongly opposed the federal plan. He said it would dismember Germany and was favored only by Allied authorities in the western occupation zones, not the German people.

Mr. Byrnes went into far greater detail than Mr. Molotov in his proposals both for the political and economic reconstruction of Germany and his efforts to persuade the German people that the United States intends to treat them justly and fairly within the terms of the Potsdam Big Three agreement.

But although the speech was primarily for German consumption, many parts of it were aimed simultaneously at Russia. Some were directed also at France and Poland.

Eastern Frontier

One section certain to cause surprise in some foreign capitals was that dealing with Germany's eastern border. Mr. Byrnes made it plain the United States might oppose Poland's permanent claims to the former German territory it now holds provisionally under the Potsdam agreement.

If France had any hope of American support for its plan to detach the Ruhr and Rhineland permanently from Germany, Mr. Byrnes killed it, diplomats agreed. He said the United States would support the apparent desire of the people of those two industrially-rich areas "to remain united with the rest of Germany."

On the Ruhr and Rhineland subject, Mr. Byrnes made an obvious reference to Russia by saying the United States would oppose any controls over those areas which would subject them "to political domination or manipulation of outside powers."

Mr. Molotov in his statement had plumped strongly for four-power control of the Ruhr to insure against a revival of war industries. At present, the Ruhr is controlled entirely by authorities in the British occupation zone.

On some matters, Messrs. Byrnes and Molotov agreed: That the denazification and demilitarization programs should be carried out; That Germany should not be dismembered, but allowed to develop an import and export program and expand its peacetime industries.

SYNOD TO DISCUSS REMARRIAGE OF DIVORCED PERSONS

Expected Motion Will Meet Heavy Opposition From Some Quarters

By SHANE MacKAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Sept. 6 —(CP)— Notice of a motion which would allow divorced persons to remarry within the church was given yesterday to delegates to the 16th Session Synod of the Church of England in Canada by Reginald V. Harris of Halifax.

The motion, expected to meet heavy opposition from some quarters, proposed that any person whose marriage has been dissolved or annulled may apply to the Bishop of his or her diocese for permission to remarry. The conditions would include a declaration that neither the applicant nor the intended spouse was found guilty of adultery by a court of law. Provided proper investigation is made, the Bishop is given power to approve or reject the application.

It is expected the proposal will reach the floor of a joint session of the two houses of the Synod next Tuesday, although it may be delayed by the fact that the highly-contentious report on partial union with the United Church is scheduled for the same day.

Mr. Harris' motion also proposes that an Anglican clergyman be forbidden from refusing to accord the sacraments or other church privileges to "the innocent party in a divorce granted for adultery and who under civil sanction has been re-married."

Gilbert and Sullivan may turn in their graves if another motion, proposed by the church's commission on marriage and divorce, is passed. The Queen of the Fairies in "Iolanthe" will be speaking of times gone by when she refers to a canon of 1563 which forbids marriage "with deceased wife's sister."

WAR BRIDE ARRIVALS

Another contingment of war brides is arriving in Canada aboard the S. S. Lady Rodney, expected to dock at Halifax approximately Sept. 10.

Destined for this immediate district is Phyllis, wife of Tpr. W. C. Fritz, Wellington, Ont.

Also expected to dock on Sept. 10 is the S. S. Letitia. On board for this district is Irene, wife of Pte. W. H. McGee, Napanee.

STRIKING SEAMEN BEGIN PICKETING AMERICAN PORTS

Maritime Strike Threatens to Immobilize "Everything That Floats"

New York, Sept. 6 (AP)— A paralyzing maritime strike spread through United States coastal ports today immobilizing 2,534 ships on three coasts, union officials claimed.

Spokesmen for the striking Seafarers International Union (A.F.L.) and the Sailors Union of the Pacific in New York said 534 ships were tied up in the port of New York, 350 in other Atlantic coast ports, 450 in gulf ports and 1,200 in west coast ports.

The figures were announced soon after seamen had flung picket lines along the New York shore front—lines which other A.F.L. and rival C.I.O. unions have pledged to respect.

A possibility of an international tieup was hinted in a bulletin issued from strike headquarters in New York. It said "expressions of support" had been received from "all over the world" including British, Danish, Swedish, Norse and Greek seamen.

"The harbor looks like a dead forest with all the booms in the air," asserted John Hawk, national secretary of the A. F. L. Seafarers International Union.

Will Respect Lines

Assurance that longshoremen would respect the picket lines of the S.I.U. and its companion striking union, The Sailors Union of the Pacific, quickly came from Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association (A.F.L.)

The union figure of ships tied up in New York was 200 over a United States Maritime Commission figure of 334 ships. The difference was believed to be represented by small harbor craft not included in the government's compilation.

Pickets formed at New York piers shortly after 7 a.m. E. D. T. They carried placards urging other maritime workers not to cross their lines.

An estimated 90,000 sailors packed their gear and walked off ships yesterday to protest a wage stabilization board order denying them a full wage increase won in recent contract negotiations.

The action was followed by an appeal by the maritime commission to participants in the strike to keep refrigeration machinery aboard ships in operation "to prevent spoilage of thousands of tons of perishable food."

MITCHELL TO TELL UNION CABINET'S VIEW ON STRIKE

Possible Settlement Of Dispute Will be On Basis of a General 12½ Cent Increase

Ottawa, Sept. 6. (CP) — The government's attitude in negotiations with the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) was scheduled to be placed before Union heads today by Labor Minister Mitchell.

Yesterday, Prime Minister Mackenzie King conferred for more than an hour and a half with C. H. Millard, Canadian Director of the Union, A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, and Pat Conroy, Congress chairman, and government spokesman later described the talks as "useful discussions."

Later in the day, Mr. King went into a Cabinet meeting where the strike situation was discussed, but no statement followed the meeting.

Prior to the meeting between the Prime Minister and Union officials, Labor Minister Mitchell and his deputy, Arthur MacNamara, held a two-hour talk with the Union men, and the government proposed increases ranging beyond its previous 10-cents-an-hour proposal to 12 1-2 cents for lower-paid workers. The latest formal proposal by the Union was 15 1-2 cents.

It was understood the topics of discussion at yesterday's meetings included the possibility of settlement at a general 12 1-2 cent increase but there was no indication such an offer had actually been made by the government.

Mr. Conroy said the Prime Minister had expressed "a keen desire that we should get a satisfactory settlement" to the strike which has crippled production in the steel plants at Hamilton, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Sydney, N.S., since July 15.

"He said he hoped he would be able to make the greatest possible contribution toward settlement of the strike," Mr. Conroy added.

Two Stelco Workers Die in Plant of Natural Causes

Hamilton, Sept. 6. (CP)—Albert Rostron, 37, and Walter Jaggard, Steel Company of Canada employees who have remained at work since the basic steel strike started July 15, died today inside the strike bound plant.

Dr. J. Heurner Mullin, coroner, who was escorted into the plant by police although pickets made no attempt to prevent his entry, said both men died of natural causes. No inquest will be held.

Mr. Rostron, who suffered a heart ailment, died in his sleep. Mr. Jaggard collapsed at work. He was discharged recently from the Stelco hospital.

Poisoning Causes Deaths of Couple, Coronér Declares

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 6. (CP)— Dr. James M. Young, coroner, said today that "poisoning of unknown origin" caused the deaths this week of Mr. and Mrs. James Montgomery who were admitted to hospital suffering a mysterious ailment.

It was not food poisoning, the coroner added.

Mrs. Montgomery, 52, died Monday morning, two days after she was admitted, unconscious and in convulsions. Her husband, a few years older, was admitted Monday afternoon. He died yesterday.

Lost Little Cree Girl Found Safe, Drank From Sloughs, Ate Grass, Berries

Atikokan, Sept. 6—(CP)—The story of a three-year-old Cree, Jeannie Uskenegus, who was lost and alone for 5½ days in the dense bushland near Big Beaver House, was brought to this Rainy River-Kenora district today by Provincial Constable Leslie West. Constable West flew in a forestry plane from Central Patricia to organize the search which ended in the finding of the little girl.

West quoted the little girl as saying she drank from sloughs and managed to eat some grass and berries and slept most of the time. He said the little girl separated from her parents when a hunting party of Indians was crossing a portage.

"As the crow flies Jeannie was only 1½ miles from her home when one of the search party of 35 Indians found her," West said. "She was in remarkably good shape and bore only a few fly and mosquito bites."

Byrnes Urges Early Establishment Of German Govt.

Rejects France's Claim To Rhineland and Ruhr

By EDWIN SHANK

Stuttgart, Sept. 6. (AP)—James F. Byrnes, United States Secretary of State, today urged the early establishment of a centralized German government, rejected France's claim to the Rhineland and Ruhr and warned Russia that the United States does not consider Germany's eastern boundary fixed on the Oder.

In an unprecedented speech regarded as the most important American foreign policy pronouncement since the end of the war, Mr. Byrnes outlined a broad plan of eventual unification of the German people under a National Council which, he said, should be charged with drafting a federal constitution for a "United States of Germany".

At the same time Mr. Byrnes made plain the intention of the United States to continue indefinitely her interest in European affairs and emphasized that "security forces probably will have to remain in Germany for a long period".

City Gaily Decorated

The State Secretary addressed an audience of German and Allied leaders in this seat of the German Provisional government for the American Zone. The city was gaily decorated with flags. For security reasons, the military police detachment was strengthened to four times the normal size.

He emphasized the determination of the United States to see Germany rise again as a peaceful, centralized nation.

Mr. Byrnes declared that the four-power Allied Control Council "so far as many vital questions are concerned, is neither governing Germany nor allowing Germany to govern herself."

"All that the Allied governments can and should do is to lay down the rules under which Germany can govern itself. The Allied Occupation Forces should be limited to the number sufficient to see that these rules are obeyed. . . .

Not Hand-Picked

"It is the view of the American government that the provisional government should not be handpicked by other governments, but should be a German National Council composed of democratically responsible minister-presidents or other chief officials of the several states or provinces which have been established in each of the four zones."

He explained that the leaders and munitions "of the ruthless Nazi dictatorship" had to go, and added:

"But it never was the intention of the American government to deny to the German people the right to manage their own internal affairs as soon as they were able to do so in a democratic way, with genuine respect for human and fundamental freedoms."

Mr. Byrnes also reiterated the United States contention that Germany should be administered as an economic unit.

"It is not in the interest of the German people nor in the interest of world peace that Germany should become a pawn or partner in a military struggle for power between the east and the west," he said.

Will Stand by Agreements

Mr. Byrnes emphasized that the United States would stand by her agreements to support Soviet claims to Koenigsberg in East Prussia and Polish requests for revision of her northern and western frontiers.

He asserted, however, that Silesia and other eastern areas had been allotted to Poland before the Potsdam meeting "for administrative purposes" only, and that Britain, Russia and the United States did not agree "to support at the peace settlement the cession of any particular area."

This gave the Germans some ground for hope they might not lose all of their eastern lands to Poland. Some German political leaders have been openly opposing such actions in recent speeches.

Mr. Byrnes said France had a right to the Saar, but he opposed the French plan for internationalizing the Ruhr and the Rhineland.

The state secretary was especially critical of the Allied control council because of its failure to achieve economic unification of Germany in accordance with the Potsdam agreement.

He noted that of the other three occupying powers, only Britain accepted an American proposal for merging economically the various occupation zones in Germany.

Chief Scout Given Hearty Welcome

Toronto, Sept. 6. (CP) — In the greatest Boy Scout rally ever held here 20,000 assorted Scouts, Guides, Cubs and Brownies at Varsity Stadium yesterday roared out their welcome to Lord Rowallan, Chief Scout of the British Commonwealth and Empire, as he reached Toronto on his Canadian tour. The colorful Baron, successor to Lord Somers as Chief Scout, was given a tremendous ovation by the youngsters who were let off class duties for the afternoon.

Drunk Driving Charge is Laid Against Judge

Cobourg, Sept. 6 —(CP)—Two charges, on of drunk driving and one of dangerous driving, have been laid against Judge J. C. M. German, Cobourg, it was announced here today by Inspector T. C. Wright of Toronto. He is county judge of Northumberland and Durham.

The charges are the result of an accident in which an automobile struck Mrs. Cyril Taylor, Cobourg, on the highway near here Sept. 3. She is in serious condition in Cobourg General Hospital.

The Judge is scheduled to appear in Magistrate's Court here next Monday morning, police said.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, September 6 (CP) — Synopsis at 7:30 a.m.: Southerly winds continue to bring clear warm weather to southern Ontario, Quebec, and Eastern States, while cold air from the Polar Region has moved southward over the Prairie Provinces, Northwestern Ontario and the Northwestern States. The zone of interaction between the warm and cold air lies across Northern Ontario where widespread showers and thunderstorms are occurring. Showers and thundershowers are also being reported west of Lake Michigan while over the Prairie Provinces skies are generally overcast and light rain is general over Southern Alberta and Southern Saskatchewan with temperatures 10 to 15 degrees below normal. Snow is reported at Calgary this morning.

FEW COMPLAINTS OVER INCREASE IN PRICES

John Public, inured to wartime exigencies and quirks of government is taking the increase in his barbering prices in his stride.

Since the price of haircuts for adults was upped last week to forty cents; children's trims to 30 cents and shaves to 25c, the average man on the street has complained but little about the extra few cents that now find their way into tonsorial cash registers.

"We have had one or two complaints," one barber said "but they have been made with tongue in cheek. On the whole the public has reacted very well to the new price regulation."

NO DISTRIBUTION OF SERVICE MEDALS, STARS FOR SOME TIME

Distribution of medals and campaign stars awarded for service in World War 2 will not be made for some time, the Department of National Defence, Ottawa announced today. Millions of these medals will go to men and women who served in the Canadian armed forces. Most of the medals have not yet been struck and in several instances the authorities have not yet settled upon the design.

POLICE DETERMINED TO STOP SPEEDING

That local police are determined to check motorists who persist in speeding on city streets was seen in local Magistrate's court Friday morning when two motorists charged with driving at an excessive rate of speed were assessed $15 and costs by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Failure to stop at "stop" streets resulted in charges being registered last night against two out of town motorists. One of the motorists was from Picton and the other from Galt, Ontario.

BELLEVILLE GUIDES, SCOUTS ATTEND OSHAWA RALLY

Belleville troops of guides and scouts took part in the reception for Lord Rowallan, Chief Scout of the British Empire, held in Kingston this week. Hundreds of scouts, cubs and guides from all parts of Ontario were on hand to welcome the distinguished visitor. Following a march-past and review, the scouts and cubs heard an impressive address by the Chief Scout.

WARDS OF CHILDREN'S AID WILL BE TREATED TO PICNIC

The annual Kinsmen Club picnic for the wards of the Children's Aid Society and for children of club members will be held at Tweed Park, Stoco Lake, on Sunday, according to the committee in charge. For the picnic all wards of the Children's Aid Society are provided with transportation to the grounds where a splendid program of sports for the kiddies, as well as for the grownups, has been arranged. There will be favors for the kiddies, and races for all.

The picnic will be an all-day affair with cars and buses scheduled to leave the market square at 9.30 Sunday morning. Kinsmen having cars with extra room are asked to contact Arthur Cruji who is in charge of transportation.

Govt. Coal Dock to Be Extended 350 Feet at Cost of $65,000; Tenders Will Be Called Soon

Decision of the Federal Government to commence contemplated work at the Belleville dock calling for extension of the present coal dock a distance of 350 feet to the east was announced in the city Friday morning by A. McLean Haig.

Plans and specifications for the work are now being prepared by the Department of Public Works and it is understood that tenders will be called in the very near future. Cost of the work has been included in the parliamentary appropriations.

Backfill for raising the ground level inside the contemplated new dock extension will be procured by dredging of the shipway, this to be dumped inside the retaining wall and levelled. Government engineers surveyed the site of the proposed dock extension early last spring.

A special council committee headed by Alderman Chamberlain with Mayor Frank S. Follwell and City Engineer Chas. Mott during the spring visited Ottawa with the view of urging early completion of the dock extension. They were met in Ottawa by Geo. H. Stokes, M.P. The work is expected to cost in the neighborhood of $65,000.

Fine New Concrete Block Barn For Stabling 125 Horses Will Be Ready When Fair Opens Sept. 23

A new concrete block horse barn capable of stabling 125 horses will be completed at the Belleville Exhibition Grounds in time for the Belleville Fair which opens on September 23, it has been announced by fair officials following an executive meeting Thursday afternoon.

The new horse barn will be constructed to replace the one which was destroyed by fire last autumn.

President of the fair, Mr. Elmer Sandercock, presided over the executive meeting which was held in the dance hall building at the exhibition park and expressed his optimism for the success of the fair this season.

Increase Livestock Prizes

To encourage one of the best livestock shows ever to be staged at the exhibition, prizes have been increased for livestock, while a Red and White Day is being sponsored by the Central Ontario Ayrshire Breeders' Association. The show will be staged on the second day of the fair, Tuesday, Sept. 24.

A ling considerably to the interest of the fair, classes of domestic science and women's work as well as elementary school classes have been much improved with many new items still to be added. A special feature showing will be the apiary displays, affording district beekeepers the opportunity of showing bee products.

Baby Show to be Held

The annual baby show with classes of one to six months and seven to twelve months, inclusive, will again be a feature which is certain to command the interest of mothers in Belleville and district. Prizes by McCormick's Studio and by the Belleville Shrine Club will be offered for the first class with prizes by Meyer's Studio and Mr. George H. Stokes, M.P., being offered for the second class.

Roblin's Dairy are offering prizes in two other classes, twins one to six months, and twins from seven to twelve months.

Dare Devil Drivers

Dare devil drivers of Luck Lott's Hell Drivers will be on hand on the opening day of the fair to demonstrate to local motorists and fair patrons just how an automobile should not be driven. All the thrills of hair-raising stunts will be provided for patron's entertainment. The Hell Drivers will present their show on the afternoon and evening of the first day of the fair.

The official opening of the fair will be by Mayor Frank S. Follwell, the ceremony to be staged in front of the grandstand on Monday evening.

Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn Dies at Home After Brief Illness

Mrs. Alice Mary O'Flynn, wife of the late Francis Edmund O'Flynn, died Friday morning at her home, 149 Bridge Street east, after an illness of three days' duration.

To a large number of friends in this city and elsewhere the death of Mrs. O'Flynn has brought sincere regret. For the past sixty years she made her home in this city and during fifty-five years of that time she resided at the Bridge Street residence. Possessing a kindly disposition and friendly manner she was widely known and in the regard of all who knew her she held a high place. Her life was given to good works and in the women's activities in connection with Bridge Street United Church she took a prominent part when age and health permitted. For a considerable time she was an efficient teacher of a Bible class and was interested in the work of the Women's Missionary Society, the Ladies' Aid and the Women's Auxiliary. During the First Great War she was an enthusiastic and faithful worker in the Red Cross and held the office of Vice President of the local Red Cross branch. Her support was also given to the Grenfell Mission.

The late Mrs. O'Flynn was born 86 years ago in Madoc Village and was a daughter of the late John Dale and his wife the late Susan Thayer. She was the last of her family.

Surviving her are one son, Sheriff John Dale O'Flynn of this city, and four grandchildren, Edmund O'Flynn Doyle, Alice Mary Doyle, John Dale O'Flynn, Jr., and Carol Dale O'Flynn.

A son, Lieut.-Col. Edmund D. O'Flynn, and a daughter, Mrs. Vincent Doyle died some time ago.

Resting at the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, until late Saturday morning, then at her late residence; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Lloyd Soble Dies Of Injuries After Truck Hits Bridge

Preliminary inquest looking into the death of Lloyd Soble, age 19, 25 Grier Street, was held at the Belleville General Hospital Thursday evening before Dr. S. Eagleson of Madoc.

Soble died late Thursday afternoon following injuries received Wednesday morning when the truck he was driving failed to negotiate a turn and crashed into the abuttment of the Canadian National Railways overhead bridge two miles south of Madoc.

According to the police report, Soble was driving a Butcher Transport truck north toward Madoc when for some reason the vehicle failed to make the turn underneath the overhead railway bridge. The truck crashed into the bridge abuttment, the cab of the vehicle being crushed.

Roy White, driver for Tanners Transport, who was following behind was the first on the scene of the accident and found it impossible to extricate Soble from the crushed cab. With the use of a chain fastened to his own truck White pried the cab of the Butcher truck and succeeded in getting the injured driver free. Soble was rushed to Belleville hospital where he was attended by Dr. G. H. Stobie.

The Butcher truck was loaded with groceries and other goods, much of which had to be unloaded before the driver of the truck could be freed from the cab.

The inquest looking into Soble's death will be heard Monday evening at the county court buildings.

Crop Improvement Officials Inspect Pasture Lots

The Hastings County Crop Improvement Association held its annual tour of long term pasture lots on Wednesday, the tour being well attended.

The Dominion department of agriculture was represented by Mr. E. G. Anderson of the Botany Division, central experimental farm, Ottawa, who identified the various weeds found in the pasture lots and along the roadside en route. Mr. Ken Fallis, district fieldman of the Ontario Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch, Toronto, identified the grasses and clovers in the long term pasture mixtures.

The pasture mixtures are made up of the following: Parkland Brome 5 lbs.; Orchard Grass, 4 lbs.; Timothy 4 lbs.; Meadow Fescue 3 lbs.; Alfalfa 3 lbs.; White Dutch Clover 1 lb.; Ladino Clover 1 lb.; Kentucky Bluegrass 2 lbs.; Canada Bluegrass 1 lb.; making a total of 24 lbs. per acre.

Wilfred Forestell, Madoc, president of the Hastings County Crop Improvement Association, Mr. John McCaffrey, Madoc, past president, Mr. W. J. Tanner, Harold, county weed inspector; Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson, Foxboro, Harry W. Burns, assistant agricultural representative for Hastings and H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative, completed the group of crop improvement officials who visited the various pasture lots.

At each of the pasture lots a number of interested farmers were present to see the pasture and to hear the discussions by Mr. Fallis and Mr. Anderson.

The pasture lots were well distributed over South Hastings. The first stop was at the farm of Mr. Frank Foster of Tweed, while from there the group travelled to the county home at Belleville, which is under the supervision of Mr. Elmer Sandercock. Visits were also made to the farms of Messrs. W. E. Tummon, Foxboro; Elmer Post, West Huntingdon; George Sutherland, Stirling and finishing up at Everett Barron's in Marmora.

Legion Members Will Attend Zone Convention

At a regular meeting of the Canadian Legion held, in their clubrooms on Thursday night, the members were invited to attend the zone rally to be held in Kingston on September 22nd. This meeting will be very important to this particular branch and the zone in particular because many subjects of vital interest will be discussed. D. H. Ferguson will be the principal speaker.

Six new members were initiated into the Legion with Comrade Ashline presiding in the absence of President, Col. H. E. Smith, who is confined to his home with illness. The financial statement was approved as well as the minutes of the recently held executive meeting. The plans for the new Legion Hall were on display and discussed but will not be accepted at the present time. Tommy Mason was in charge of the discussion period.

Comrade Shaw gave a detailed report on the bowling activities of the Branch for the coming season. The Legion will conduct a league at the Recreation Alleys for a cup donated by Goodman's Store for Men. Aselstine's Garage has donated a $5 prize for the high average in this league. The Legion will also enter two teams in the Commercial Loop that will operate at the Bowl-O-Drome with the opening date of this league set for September 18th. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Trenton Pigeon Wins Trenton Race

The Trenton and District Racing Pigeon Club young bird race from Windsor, Ontario, an airline distance of 304 miles was won by a bird from the loft of Percy Robertson of Trenton.

The bird was a young hen of deep blue color with several white flights. This bird scored second position for Robertson last week at Chatham 261 miles arriving home the second day after liberation.

The brids were liberated from Windsor at 9 a.m. Scattered clouds at 5,000 feet were reported, with a strong southwest wind. The Robertson bird arrived at 6.45 p.m. winning the Les Farrell 300 mile young bird trophy which was the envy of every Club member. The speed of the winning bird was 965.21 yards per minute. Newton registered the second bird the following day at 1.45 p.m.

This closes the racing program as scheduled by the Trenton and District Racing Pigeon Club for the season. The Club started with 75 birds and sended the race program with two, so it can readily be seen that the race schedule was by no means a push over.

At a later date complete records will be published in this paper showing the race points and the first three winneres of each race from the beginning at Oakville to the ending at Windsor.

BYRNES URGES

Urgent Need For Measures

He said there was an urgent need for "fully co-ordinated measures" to avoid turning Germany "into a poorhouse."

A tone of moderation toward Germany, under proper measures of security against rearmament, ran through the speech.

"From now on," he said, "the thoughtful people of the world will judge Allied actions in Germany not by Allied promises but by Allied performances."

Mr. Byrnes further defined the American policy toward Germany under the following general points:

1. The United States "will oppose harsh and vengeful measures (against Germany) which obstruct an effective peace. We will oppose soft measures which invite the breaking down of peace."

2. The United States will not agree to taking from Germany greater reparations than were provided by the Potsdam agreement.

3. Germany should be administered as an economic unit with the elimination of economic zonal barriers.

4. The Allies should without delay make clear to the German people the essential terms of the peace settlement which the Allies expect the German people to accept and observe.

U. S. Army to Stay

5. As long as occupation forces are required in Germany, the army of the United States will be a part of that occupation force.

6. There should be established at an early date a provincial German government for Germany.

7. The boundaries of new Germany should be defined now.

8. The United States is "convinced," in the interest of Germany, Austria "and the peace of Europe" that the two countries "should pursue their separate ways."

9. The United States government will "stand by its agreement" to support the transfer to Koenigsberg and the adjacent area to Russia, "unless the Soviet government changes its views on the subject."

10. The United States will support the revision of Poland's northern and western frontiers in her favor, because of territory Poland ceded to Russia under the Yalta agreement.

11. The United States "does not feel it can deny" to France her claims to the Saar, but if the Saar is incorporated in France, the French reparations claims against Germany should be readjusted.

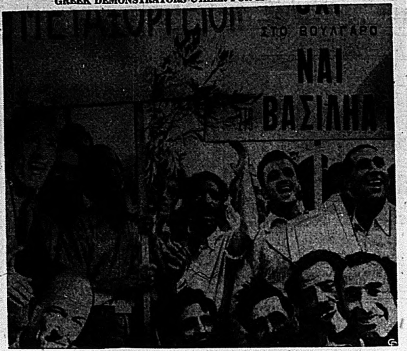
Not Support Encroachment

12. Beyond these points, the United States will not support any further "encroachment on territory which is indisputably German or any division of Germany which is not genuinely desired by the people concerned."

13. The United States favors sufficient control over all of Germany, including the Rhineland and the Ruhr, to prevent the use of German resources "for destructive purposes."

14. The United States has "no desire to increase the hardships inflicted on her (Germany) by the war her leaders started or to deny the German people an opportunity to work their way out of those hardships as long as they respect human freedom and cling to the paths of peace."

GREEK DEMONSTRATORS CHEER FOR KING'S RETURN



Smiling Royalist demonstrators cheer for the return of their monarch, exiled King George II, of Greece. They are pictured during the mass meeting in Athens' Constitution Square on the eve of the plebiscite which paved the way for the royal return. The Greeks voted over 70 per cent in favor of the King's return. Olive branches and the King's portrait are carried with the placards. The poster on the right reads "No to the Bulgarian, yes for the King."

SYNOD TO DISCUSS

$4,077,200 Donated.

The motion will call for the omission of prohibitions concerning brother-in-law, sister-in-law, aunt or uncle by marriage, and niece or nephew by marriage. Previously a widow could not marry these relatives, and the motion would thus create a revised table of kindred and affinity.

It was announced that last returns from the Anglican Advance Appeal totalled $4,077,200.

Very Rev. R. H. Waterson of Hamilton, in making the report of the appeal's executive committee, said that while the financial statement contained no estimate of money to be used for missionary work in Japan, it was the intention of the Church of England to resume its work there "at the earliest opportunity."

Sharp Criticism.

Another report, made public late yesterday, by the commission on Indian work investigation, contained sharp criticism of the Dominion Government for its treatment of the Indian Affairs Branch.

It said "the average per capita grant paid by the government to all Indian residential schools for 1945 was $172, which does not include the special additional grant of $15 per pupil for the increased cost of living."

"We cannot help feeling, however, as we read the minutes of the Parliamentary Committee on Indian Affairs, that the starvation of the Indian residential schools is merely one example of the failure of the Dominion Government to provide for the welfare and work of the Indian Affairs Branch. Only $7,000,000 was appropriated for Indian work; only $2,156,862 was spent on education in 1945."

The report was received by the Upper House of the Synod and passed on to the Lower House without comment. It will be discussed at a joint session of the two houses next week.

STRIKING SEAMEN

Honor Picket Lines

Nearly 400,000 workers, including dock employees, tugboat operators and C.I.O, seamen, said they would honor picket lines.

The Pacific American Shipowners' Association sent a telegram to President Truman, calling upon him for action.

J. B. Bryan, president of Pacific American, Associated, declared that a few days of the strike would result in a "major disaster" for the shipping industry.

Other shipping owners said imports of scarce items such as sugar and bananas would end. They predicted the strike would have far-reaching effects on American industry by choking off raw material imports and the export of finished products.

One of the first results of the strike of members of the Sailors Union of the Pacific and the Seafarers International Union was an embargo on railroad shipments to coastal ports in an effort to prevent congestion and spoilage of perishables.

Cancel Sailings

Three passenger ships in New York harbor cancelled sailings, leaving nearly 2,000 travellers stranded.

In Washington yesterday the president declared the strike was in the hands of Labor Secretary Schwellenbach, who last night dispatched an assistant, Phillip Hannah, to San Francisco to make a personal plea to Harry Lundeberg of the SUP, to call off the strike.

Union leaders already have served notice that troopships and UNRRA relief cargoes, as well as all commercial vessels, will be tied up.

Ship owners, as well as the unions, had urged the W.S.B. to reconsider its Aug. 23 decision, limiting A.F.L. seamen to the $17.50 a month increase granted the National Maritime Union (C.I.O.) last June 15 in settlement of a threatened strike.

OPPOSE PLAQUE TO JUMBO

St. Thomas, Sept. 6 (CP)— A plan to erect a monumental plaque in front of city hall, in memory of Jumbo, world-famous elephant killed here in 1885, has been abandoned because of opposition. It was suggested city hall should be reserved for monuments honring achievements of importance.

Jap Tormentor Held Responsible For Atrocities

Hong Kong, Sept. 6 (CP)—The prosecution Thursday ended its case against Niimori Genichiro, notorious tormentor of Canadian prisoners of war who is facing a war crimes trial charged with eight counts of atrocities perpetrated while he was an interpreter at Hong Kong and later at prison camps in Japan. The defence is scheduled to open its case tomorrow.

As the prosecution summed up its case, Maj. G. B. Puddicombe of Montreal, one of Canada's two war crimes liaison officers in the Far East, read to the court the affidavits of Cpl. S. D. Granvinchuk of the Winnipeg Grenadiers describing Niimori as a "slave driver" who forced prisoners to work in pouring rain until they dropped from exhaustion.

Other evidence presented today said that Niimori helped himself to prisoners' parcels from Canada and opened a grocery shop to sell their contents. Batches of mail which Niimori was "too busy" to censor he destroyed, the court was told.

During the British-conducted trials previous testimony accumulated in long affidavits from Canadian prisoners who as members of the Winnipeg Grenadiers and the Royal Rifles of Canada from Quebec Province served at Hong Kong when the island colony fell to the Japanese on Christmas Day, 1941, told of brutality inflicted by Niimori on Canadians.

Niimori was charged with beating Rfmn. R. Doucet of the Royal Rifles until the Canadian's face was "like a hamburg steak — all raw." Rfmn. Doucet ill at the time of beating, died in Japan two months later.

Another Canadian prisoner was kicked in the stomach by Niimori and died of his injuries, one affidavit said.

Affidavits read to the court Wednesday told how Cpl. J. T. F. Murray of the Winnipeg Grenadiers and Rfmn. J. W. Archibald of the Royal Rifles, accused of theft, were so badly mauled that a nearby patient attempted suicide, fearing he was next on Niimori's list.

Attorney-General Dictates Letter To all Unions

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP)—Determination of the Ontario government to see that those charged with offences in regard to labor disputes "receive the same level of justice as those charged with other offences," was expressed in a letter written by Attorney-General Blackwell and read at a meeting of the Toronto District Labor Council (AFL) last night.

More than 100 Toronto union locals were represented at the meeting and various speakers protested against what was termed "the pattern set by our present government to smash the trade union movement."

Resolutions were passed urging a conference of all unions, consumers and other interested parties to consider and protest removal of the Dominion government milk subsidy Oct. 1 and consequent increase in price of milk to consumers.

In order to prove their 100% waterproof qualities Mido Multifort watches were recently subjected to a most gruelling Heat and Cold Temperature test. The six Midos were put through 10 cycles of temperature change. Each cycle consisted of 15 minutes in an oven held at 120°F, followed by immediate transference to a cold chamber held at 40° F below zero for 15 minutes — Equivalent to an IMMEDIATE CHANGE from the blazing Equator to the frigid Stratosphere. RESULT: no condensation was noted under crystals and all 6 Midos were found 100% WATERPROOF!

No wonder service men, as well as civilians, prefer Mido...the 100% waterproof watch that winds itself.

From Coast to Coast

Swiftly the hero of El Alamein and the conqueror of the Axis forces, in north Africa has sped across Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific, visiting many of the great centres of Canadian life. This need not surprise anyone because the great leader made the greatest march in history as he swept along the south shore of the Mediterranean in the exploit which drove the enemy to the sea after a pursuit of many hundreds of miles and forced the Huns' surrender.

He has made a swift conquest of Canadian hearts. A few days ago he landed at Halifax, now he has been on the Pacific at Victoria and has come back to take a rest at Jasper National Park.

His tour of Canada has been of the kind that demonstrates how deep a hold he has upon the hearts and affections of the people of this country. Everywhere he goes he is cheered to the echo as the military leader who won fame for his army and himself, and as the man who was closely associated with Canadian troops under his command in the Mediterranean, in Italy, in Normandy and in the final drive eastward across Northwestern Europe to complete the destruction of the enemy.

Viscount Montgomery is the type of man the Canadian people can understand, a man of inspired word and deed, a man of wisdom and a tried soldier who won fame and honor by the magnificence of the exploits of the armies under his command. He shows himself the man of supreme resourcefulness, practical experience and as an interpreter of the needs of today in the post-war era.

Canadians, Britons and Americans and others have the warmest feeling for the great leadership of Viscount Montgomery and his high sense of duty and other qualities.

All feel with him the anxiety that is natural over the illness of his aged mother who has been devoted to her famous son in his great task as military commander in the most trying days of history leading up to victory.

Ration Book Distribution

Ration Book No. 6 will be distributed next week throughout Canada. In Belleville the distribution begins Tuesday afternoon, September 10., and continues for the next three days, closing on the 13th. The hours daily are from two to six p.m. Citizens are advised to be careful as to the dates as indicated in the advertising which has appeared in the local press and not to overlook these dates and so avoid disappointment.

Dates of distribution in other communities in this area were also announced in the advertising in the press.

Holders of ration books are asked to follow the instructions as to filling in the green application card in the old Book No. 5 now in their possession and use, giving name and address, printed, serial number as shown on the front cover of the Ration Book No. 5, and the age if the applicant is under sixteen years and the regular signature of the ration book owner. Holders are advised not to tear the green application out of Ration Book No. 5 for this must be done at the distribution centre.

Once again volunteer workers are to carry out the distribution. Kiwanis Women's Auxiliary will take on this task in Belleville.

Such work has been a real contribution made by the women in the national cause and has saved the country a good deal of expense.

Hitler's Errors

Many errors and inhumanities and brutalities were committed by Adolf Hitler, one of the errors being that he began almost from the start to purge Germany's scientists from racial and political grounds say the Montreal Star, thereby causing an exodus of important men whose loss to Germany must have been great and whose help to the Allies was of great value. "A small group of British intellectuals took note of the possibilities of the situation" for a group headed by Lord Beveridge reports "something of the success it had in rescuing these scientists and eventually, using their talents against the evil genius who was their own personal foe."

Since early in 1939 more than two thousand such scholars had been in touch with the British society, six hundred finding posts in Britain, nearly as many in the United States and others in the British Dominions and Middle East. Among these were men who assisted with contributions to atomic energy research in the United States and three others were named in the British Honors List.

A number of these are returning to their native countries, Belgians, Dutch and those of other overrun lands who had found their way to Britain as a place of refuge. Others have acquired British citizenship and have no intention to return to Germany or Austria.

Evil as represented by Hitler could not fail to err as he strove to found an empire on everything that was destructive of humanity and the noblest aspirations. It was natural that a man of so great evil as the onetime Fuehrer should do the things that would react greatly against Nazism.

Seats in the Park

Owing to shortage of timber and canvas in Britain, the number of deck chairs in the London parks has fallen from a pre-war figure of 40,000 to 3,000. This is an unfortunate state of affairs for those who like to combine the maximum of comfort and of dignity when they relax in public, for the deck chair is without a rival as a means to this end, says Christian Science Monitor.

There is no reasonable alternative. To occupy an iron garden chair is to be disciplined to sit up and take notice; while to cast oneself full length on the sward is to incur at once the suspicion that sleep and not contemplation is one's object. Unless, of course, the elbow is used as a prop — a method not unbecoming, but calling for a stamina that only the ancient Roman, reclining at a banquet, seems to have possessed. Nor is there much comfort to be found in Wordsworth's attitude as set forth in the lines:

> Oft on the dappled turf at ease
> I sit, and play with similes.

But while the Londoner may not be sufficient of a poet to content himself thus, something of a poet's enthusiasm will be his as he looks forward to the spring — though, let it be understood,

> The flowers that bloom in the spring,
> Tra la,
> Have nothing to do with the case.

It is only that more deck chairs will then be available.

All eyes are turned just now to the Fraser Rover sockeye salmon run. This is a year of great expectations. Four years ago, the cycle year, there was a phenomenal run. Fishery officials declare that large numbers of fish reached the spawning grounds. Unless unknown mishaps have occurred to confound all predictions, there ought to be an equally good sockeye season in 1946, says the Vancouver News Herald.

Most British Columbians benefit directly or indirectly when there is a good run; most suffer in some way or other when there is a poor run.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1946, Edgar A. Guest)

BIOGRAPHY

Do you doubt yourself, my brother, when the odds against you lie?
When you're halted by a failure, do you think it vain to try?
Are you easily disheartened? Seems your load too great to bear?
Do you fear a few more bruises? Do you call the Fates unfair?
Then take up some great man's story,
read his early struggles through,
And you'll find he braved more hardships than the ones that trouble you.

You'll discover in the stories of our best and bravest men,
Just as you, they were disheartened and discouraged now and then.
They faced failure after failure, but they never once despaired.
They believed they'd come to triumph
if to try once more they dared.
They met grief and disappointment
as they trudged the upward way,
But their spirits never faltered; They kept working night and day.

When you're feeling low in spirit, and you think that hope is vain,
Read how men of faith and courage,
beaten back, began again.
You face nothing new in trouble, or in sorrow or despair.
Of the self-same hurts and set-backs
every great man had his share,
He was tried and tried by failure; he was stopped, as now are you,
But he faced the odds against him and he dared to fight them through.

Washington Spotlight

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Sept. 6 — (CP) — Observers of this week's Washington scene had spots before their eyes — red, blue, black spots — and there was not much an optician could do about it.

Red predominated in this color scheme and it was not just administrative red tape.

Newspapers and radios screamed the warnings of the extremists against a mounting threat of trouble with Russia and her satellites.

Black markets continued to be a problem in connection with virtually everything in short supply, from automobiles to nails.

The blue motif was supplied by the stock market reports from New York where a combination of circumstances, variously interpreted, put many issues on a $4,000,000,000 skid.

There was another and more pleasant color — the golden sunlight of the most perfect summer Washington has enjoyed in years. Ironically enough this was the first summer in years that the bulk of Washingtonians were able to get away from the city's heat and they went in droves, including President Truman.

The president and other holidaying administrators returned this week to a maze of political and international uncertainties that will tax the best brains available if a way is to be found to peace and comparative security.

A New York Herald Tribune reporter, possibly bored with the bickering in the United Nations Security Council at Lake Success, interim headquarters of the U.N., in Long Island, set out to find the lake if there was one. A local schoolboy took him to it—a mile north of the U. N. building near New Hyde Park, surrounded by shielding trees and a high fence with signs warning against trespassing, swimming and fishing. It is a half-mile-wide, circular pond, spring-fed, and was well-populated by boys and girls swimming fishing and otherwise trespassing — apparently unable to read the warnings or not believing in signs.

Britain and U.S. Accept Challenge Over Occupation

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
A.P. Foreign Affairs Analyst

The Byrnes speech and other developments in Germany indicate that the British and Americans have accepted the challenge of the Russian refusal to co-operate either politically or economically, and that there will now be a relatively open contest for the support of the Germans themselves.

Economic pressure and Russia's efforts to spread into the American zone the political "unity" which she has forced in eastern Germany, has led to counter-measures.

Russian talk about ultimately unifying Germany has been met by actual economic unification in the Anglo-American zones. Although this was done as a part of a general policy calling for control of Germany as an economic unit, Mr. Byrnes' phraseology makes it obvious that we also intend to reap such German gratitude as we can.

It is expected to reduce the costs of occupation and speed the Germans toward a self-supporting status. But an automatic corollary is to put us right into a political campaign.

Months ago, when Russia's attitude toward Germany's future was still in doubt, some western diplomats felt it would take shape according to Moscow's beliefs on one issue. If Russia felt Communist control of a unified Germany, after occupation ended, was possible, then she would favor such unification. If not, she was expected to widen the breach between western and eastern occupation zones and attempt to solidify the position she already occupied.

The Russians finally came out for a whole Germany in the future, but blocked efforts to administer the country as an economic unit now.

Such statements as those of Mr. Byrnes and Gen. McNarney, holding out to the Germans the hope of some measure of self-government soon, a respected place in the society of nations, and in the United Nations organization, have their part in this developing picture. So does establishment of an American radio station offering equal facilities to all political parties, after the Russians blocked American efforts to gain a share of control over radio Berlin.

The issue, obvious but unofficial heretofore, now seems fairly drawn. It is whether Germany is to be developed along what westerners call democratic lines, or whether the Russian "sphere of influence" will eventually be advanced to the Rhine.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

GRAVY ON HIS VEST

Man holding a responsible position in a mercantile corporation began to deteriorate mentally and could no longer do his work so his chief persuaded him to have a thorough medical examination. The man went through the mill, you know, all the tests and everything, which American sophomoronic wiseacres love so much, and none of the tests showed anything on which the head machinist could base a "diagnosis".

Not just one such going over, but several—I suppose the man went from one "clinic" to another, as so many Wiseacres do nowadays—that's what "clinics" are for, isn't it?—and I hope his company footed the bill for all the "laboratory" monkeyshines—and still nobody could find out what, if anything, ailed him.

Up to this point I'm telling the story in my own peculiar way. You know me, fellows. But I'll let Dr. W. C. Alvarez, tell the rest of it in his own inimitable way:

> "As soon as I saw the man I had a hunch that he had had one or more small strokes, and I became satisfied of this after talking to him for a while. I then telegraphed his chief, advising that he be retired ... the chief asking eagerly what I had found. I said 'Gravy on his vest' and the president said, 'You're right; that's enough'". ......

Now I wonder whether he had all those earlier tests and examinations. If he wore no vest then the laboratory boys didn't have a fair break.

Unfortunately, observes Dr. Alvarez, textbooks on physical diagnosis do not list grease stains on the clothes or (other stains) as important signs of disease of the brain. Obviously this sign holds true only in the case of the person who previously valued good grooming.

These days, it seems to me (Brady), that the very fact that the patient wears a vest, gravy or no gravy, indicates that he is (a) a quaint kind of fop, (b) pathetically eager for publicity or (c) crippled in judgment and taste.

There is a lesson to all this—when a man or woman either, who has always been neat in habits and passable in conduct or manners begin to be noticeably careless about these things, it is time to stop bumbling about age, overwork, nervous exhaustion, indigestion and the like—the patient may complain of any and all of these things but they are all symptoms or effects, not causes of the patients trouble. I do not imply or believe that such changes in one of mature age point toward small unrecognized apoplexies in most instances, but they do warrant at least a general medical examination to determine what ails the poor geek.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Dread Damp Cold of Winter

We expect our first child... necessary to live in a new basement apartment this winter... husband thinks baby should sleep with me for warmth on extremely cold nights... I believe there is more danger of injuring or smothering baby in sleep unless baby has own crib, and also that grownup is certain to give baby any infection grownup has. (Mrs. S. P. S.)

Answer—Husband loses, two to one. In this column, before the snow flies, we'll tell how to keep the baby nice and warm on cold winter nights.

ASTHMA

I got a lot of relief taking the calcium and vitamin D for ten weeks as you suggested. But now, after several months of freedom, I am beginning to wheeze again— would it be all right to repeat.

(F.D.J.)

Answer—Read the pamphlet again — it tells you what to do, Any reader may have copy of the pamphlet on written request, If he inclose stamped self addressed envelope. A clipping will not bring an answer.

MORE ULTRAVIOLET

Many people say they feel better in Arizona than in this climate (middle west). As the main difference seems to be that Arizona has less relative humidity, wouldn't it be desirable to dehumidify the atmosphere in the home to make it healthier right here? (G. D. M.) ....

Answer—Relative humidity outdoors is insignificant in my opinion. The main difference, I believe, is that Arizona has more sunshine, clearer air, and hence more ultraviolet per square inch of body surface exposed. What the indoor air or climate needs everywhere that artificial heating is necessary, is more water vapor instead of less.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is the smallest hoofed animal?

The "mouse deer" or chevrontain (literally "little goat"), which is native to the East Indies and western Africa, is believed to be the smallest hoofed animal as well as the smallest ruminant in the world.

Adults of "Gragulus kanchil" have bodies no larger than a jackrabbit, weigh only about five or six pounds, have legs scarcely larger than lead pencils and stand only nine to twelve inches at the shoulders.

These tiny animals, which represent a stage in evolution between the swine and the true deer, are hornless and look more like hoofed rodents than ruminants.

They walk on the tips of their toes and sleep with their eyes open.

The chevrontain is rivalled in smallest of stature among hoofed animals by another ruminant, the dik-dik, or dig-dig, a tiny antelope native to Ethiopia, the Sudan and other parts of northeastern Africa.

Scientifically it is known as "Madoqua rhynchotragus" and popularly it is sometimes called the "royal antelope."

Members of this and allied species of the genus "Madoqua" range from twelve to fifteen inches in height. They scarcely look like true antelopes because of their inflated proboscis-like noses.

There are several other species of very small African antelopes.

"Oreotragus oreotragus," found from Cape Colony to Somaliland, is called klipspringer (literally "cliff springer" in Dutch) because it is somewhat like the chamois in habits and has such small feet that it can stand on a quarter.

Another small African antelope, "Cephalphus," is known as the duikerbok (literally "diver buck" in Dutch) from its habit of "diving" into the brush. It stands 12 to 24 inches at the shoulders and can leap four or five feet when hard pressed.

All these diminutive deer are noted for their fleetness and their craftiness in avoiding capture.

ALL OVER SOAP FLAKES

Galt, Sept. 6 (CP)—The word got around quickly—such-and-such a store had a 24-box carton of soap flakes—and the stampede was on. Results: 24 successful housewives, at least 26 unsuccessful housewives, a scattered bin of fruit drink concentrates, a soap carton torn to shreds, uncounted bruises.

"FOREST FIRE"

Based upon a picture painted for Carling's by William Book.

This is one of a series of illustrations on the subject of the Conservation of Canada's natural assets designed to emphasize the fact that the beauties of unspoiled nature that we enjoy today are a precious birthright which we must protect for tomorrow.

† COPYRIGHT BY CARLING'S, 1946

"Forest Fire—The Common Enemy"

The scream of a rabbit pierces the hissing roar of the forest fire as a tall spruce bursts into flame like an oil-soaked rag. A deer, wild-eyed with terror, bursts from the undergrowth and makes for the protecting waters of a small lake where other creatures of the wild, forgetting all lesser fears, stand huddled together, shivering with fear of fire—their common enemy.

Crackling and hissing, its advance-line of windblown sparks reaching far ahead, the forest fire takes its terrible toll of wild life and forest wealth. In its wake nothing is left but blackened tree-trunks and desolation.

A lurid picture? Yes, but a true picture, and one that is seen all too frequently in Canada's forest lands. Statistics show that out of 6,000 forest fires in Canada every year, only one in six owes its origin to natural causes (lightning, etc.) The rest are caused by human agencies, and can be prevented.

As a shareholder in Canada's natural wealth, every Canadian has a vital interest in conservation. And conservation is the concern of all who are interested in the continuance of our national economy and our future prosperity, rather than the concern of a chosen few. The success of conservational measures depends upon the full support of all Canadian citizens.

A Date With Mr. Al Fresco

Film Actress Diana Lynn enjoys the great outdoors.

By HELEN FOLLETT

JITTERY women who have lived intensely during the war years, who find that the lady in the looking glass appears considerably older because of wartime anxieties, will gain strength and a certain amount of restored youthfulness if they will flirt with Mr. Al Fresco.

Getting out in the open, lapping up fresh air, is one way of finding peace and contentment.

Be a Walker

If outdoor sports do not appeal, then be a Mrs. Walker. American women have been so accustomed to hopping into the family car, it is a wonder they haven't lost the use of their legs.

Doctors insist upon fresh air for the baby. Baby must be out of doors every day. What's good for the Family Nuisance is also good for his mama.

Desk workers, especially, need to walk, a more interesting exercise than calesthenics because it appeals to the mind and the spirits. Too much sitting will eventually bring on spread amidships and, after that, the svelte shape cannot be restored without effort.

Activity is a law of life. By expending muscular energy, more energy is created. Muscles become strong and resilient.

Pull up the back bone, lift the chest, draw in the abdominal muscles when you put on your seven league boots. Let the arms swing easily at the sides.

This is the time to get in some lung washing. Inhale for four steps, drawing in the air through the nostrils. Exhale for four steps. You will be conscious of a glow.

Birthstones for Engagement Rings

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please publish in your column the list of birthstones. I have recently become engaged, but my engagement isn't to be announced until I receive my ring. My fiance and I have talked over together what kind of ring I'd like, and he says I may have either a diamond solitaire or, if I prefer, my birthstones. It so happens that two of my girl friends are also contemplating having their birthstones in their engagement rings, so we'll be grateful for the list.

Peg

Here's the list, Peg:

January—Garnet. February—Amethyst. March —Aquamarine or Bloodstone. April —Diamond or White Zircon. May—Emerald. June—Pearl or Moonstone. July—Ruby. August—Carnelian, Sardonyx, or Peridot. September—Sapphire. October— Tourmaline or Opal. November—Topaz. December— Turquoise or Lapis-Lazuli or Blue Zircon.

Some of these birthstones are in high fashion because of their lovely sparkling color. And in the precious-stone group, there is, of course, a wide price range, depending on the purity of the stone.

Guest Shouldn't Tip the Waiter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have been invited to the wedding of the daughter of my husband's employer. We have been wondering if, at the wedding breakfast which is to take place in a large metropolitan hotel, we should leave a tip for the waiter. Should we?

M. B.

No. All tips are taken care of by the bride's family.

Wedding Attendants—Married or Unmarried

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My best girl friend is planning to have a church wedding and wishes me to be one of her bridesmaids. But some say that since I am married it isn't correct for me to be a bridesmaid. Is this true?

A. N.Y.

No. this is not true. It makes no difference whether the attendants are married or not.

Use of Names on Formal Party-Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—In the small town in which we are now living, it seems to be the fashionable thing for three or four women to get together and give a luncheon-bridge in a suite of a hotel in a nearby city. For these occasions they send out engraved invitations. On such cards would it be correct for a hostess to write her name, for example, "Mrs. Louis Smith" or "Mrs. Louis L. Smith"; in other words, should the initial be use dor omitted?

2. And (to ask a question for a friend of mine), if a widow is a hostess, should she use her name as "Mrs. Ida Smith" or as "Mrs. John R. Smith?"

H. C. C.

1. For such formal use . . .as on her visiting-cards. . .it is best form for the hostess not to use the initial in her name. She may choose (1) to omit the initial and use "Mrs. Louis Smith", or (2) use "Mrs. Louis Lane Smith".

2.—The widow should continue to use her husband's name, particularly when she is using her name formally. . . ."Mrs. John Rowland Smith".

When the Bride's Mother is Divorced

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have been divorced several years, and he has since remarried and lives in a different town. Our daughter is to be married next month and he is going to come her to give her in marriage. In view of the fact that he has remarried and also that he is to be "on the scene" at the wedding, how should the wedding invitations be worded?

G. G.

The wedding invitations are issued in your name:

Mrs. Smith Graham
requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her daughter
Marie
etc.

AIKENS' W.M.S.

The September meeting of Aikens' W.M.S. was held at the church with an attendance of thirteen.

Mrs. M. Jeffrey, as leader of the Program Committee, introduced the India Study, which will be followed for some months. Mrs. Jeffrey was assisted by Mrs. U. Perry, impersonating India, and Mrs. E. Kells as the church.

The program was opened by a quiz designed to lead those present to think of different aspects of India: and to evaluate their present knowledge of the country.

The story of an Indian Christian was given by Mrs. S. Westover.

Four reasons were given for the study of India at this time:

"(1) It is the study used by 40 of the churches on the North American continent. In Canada, Anglican, Baptist, Presbyterirn and United. The author of the text book, India at the Threshold, is Dr. Winnifred Bryce, a United Church missionary in India.

(2) We study of India because we have a mission there.

(3) India is in the headlines of world news. We want to know, so that we will understand the national movement in India.

(4) There are Indian Christians and we want to come into closer fellowship with them by learning more about them."

Mrs. E. Hubble, president, conducted a short business session.

The closing worship service recalled India and the habit of quiet meditation common to many of the people of that country.

AIKENS' W.A.

3rd Sidney.—The Aikens' W.A. meeting was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Allan Latta and was well attended. The President, Mrs. Ken Jones was in charge of an interesting program which had been prepared by Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton. The Scripture was read by Mrs. George Denike and the lesson on the Scripture given by Mrs. Cyril McMullen. Readings were given by Mrs. Wellman and Mrs. Pearson. Appreciation was expressed by Mrs. Denike for flowers sent to Mrs. Harold Denike while a patient in the Belleville Hospital. Rev. Mr. Hillis closed the meeting with prayer, after which the Woman's Missionary meeting was held. Mrs. Latta served delicious refreshments to the ladies present which was much appreciated by the members of the two societies.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Influence of Color on Appearance

Your appearance is under standard. You are not your best self

In the Spring and Autumn, when new styles are displayed, dress dictators tell us what colors are fashionable. Some of the new offerings have fancy names that bewilder us somewhat. Fortunately designers give their followers a fairly wide choice. No woman with sense in her head is going to select colors that are unbecoming. Some of us, alas, have never gone into the subject deeply enough to have discovered flattering tones. We're missing out on a beauty support. Smartness of attire is created by color and line. Luscious colors, graceful lines, and there you are?

Color has an effect upon moods and spirits, another reason for giving the subject considerable attention. If you have a dingy-looking frock that you have never liked, but wear it because your conscience forces you to do that little thing, you know how frumpy and unhappy you feel. You realize that your appearance is under standard. You are not your best self. Aware that your apparel is no help to your appearance, you may become self-conscious. You are thrown out of form. Your usual line of gay conversation is dampened. You feel like tearing off the hateful thing, throwing it into the rubbish box.

Every woman has had that experience. That is why there are orphan dresses hanging in the clothes closet.

For the sake of the peace of her soul a woman should have a frock of French blue, that lovely, smoky-grey-blue that gives rightness to blue eyes, is equally becoming to brown or grey ones. This color is not as popular as it should be. It imparts calmness, a quiet, serene state of mind It is ideal for the hostess gown.

Red is stimulating and invigorating to the spirit. A red hat can make a woman forget a lot of things that she doesn't want to remember, especially birthdays. On white hair it is striking, especially if it inclines toward a rose shade .Even a pair of red shoes will serve as a prop to the spirits. Makes one want to dance.

There are women who have worn dull, drab, characterless colors all their lives. One wonders if this practice hasn't dulled their lives to a certain degree. They do not contribute to the spectacle that is woman. Usually they are afflicted wth color fear, handed down to us by our Puritan ancestors. It would seem as if they consider bright, gay hues not quite respectable, poor dears.

Rich colors in house furnishings make for cheerfulness. Why hang dismal grey or brown draperies at the windows when you can have chintz or cretonnes, bright with flower patterns? Does not make sense.

Practical and Pretty Lingerie

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Rayon knit jersey has certainly come into its own as a practical lingerie fabric. Once made with a minimum of trimming, it now is detailed with lace, net and ribbon beading. Fine textured rayon knit jersey is used for this well-fitting chemise—perfect for wear under suits. The bodice and hem ruffles are made of lace-trimmed, fine net. The lace insertion below the fitted bustline uses baby ribbon beading in contrasting color.

MORE GREEK INCIDENTS

Athens, Sept. 6 — (AP)—Three sailors aboard a Greek mine sweeper in the Gulf of Volos were killed, the Ministry of Public Order said today, when the vessel was attacked by Communist-operated shore mortars. The ministry said five mortar shells exploded aboard the vessel. In other incidents yesterday, the ministry added, two soldiers were killed in a 10-hour pitched battle near Volos in which a band of 300 attacked a detachment of soldiers.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He Doesn't Notice Her — What Can She Do?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have a great problem.

I am 17, and love a boy of 24 very much He does not ever notice me. What can I do?

"Sad Doddie"

Do you mean what can you do to make him notice you, or what can you do to make yourself stop loving him and begin forgetting him? Because the latter is the only sensible thing to do, you know. It's silly, don't you think, to go mooning around over a young man who never looks your way?

Most young men of 24 consider themselves far too mature to give serious attention to a teen-ager, and, frankly, they ought to be. It's perfectly natural for a teen-ager to admire and look up to men older than she is, but if she's a smart girl, she'll try to realize that his interests and hers are very different, and she won't make herself miserable expecting him to feel the same way about her. It's far more satisfactory to have someone you admire feel that you're a nice kid, than to have that same someone think of you as a silly, love-silk adolescent. Don't you think so?

Her Mother Doesn't Like Her Girl Friends

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl 16 years of age with a very common problem of today.

I have a girl friend whom I consider to be a swell person, but my mother disapproves of her completely, because she thinks she is very cheap and common. By "common", she means girls who are very loud in manners and unladylike

My mother doesn't like the idea of my bringing friends into the house, or my going out with them, as she feels it is a waste of time. Don't you think having friends is just as important as everything else in life? My mother is always comparing me with my next-door neighbors and saying that they are better than us.

"Miss Teen-Ager of 1946"

You seem to have a number of problems here, "Miss Teen-Ager". rather than just one.

In the first place, I quite agree with your mother in feeling that girls with loud and unladylike manners are common. Perhaps, of course, they are just badly brought up, but, in any case, it is quite understandable that your mother would not like your making an intimate friend of a girl of this type. Naturally, she wants her daughter to have the right kind of friends.

On the other hand, if, as you say, your mother doesn't encourage having any of your friends visit your home, that is something else again. Of course having friends is a very important part of life, and I can hardly believe that any mother would want her daughter cut off from normal companionship with boys and girls her own age. Perhaps you have the wrong idea about this, and maybe if you wanted to bring home friends with nice manners, you would find your mother glad to have you do so.

As for your mother feeling that your next-door neighbors are better than you, I don't think I would worry about that. As long as you have good standards of conduct yourself, and follow them, you are just as good as anybody else.

Why not see if you can't get together with your mother on the kind of friends you might bring home!

TIME RUNNING OUT ON BUFFALO OF INT. LEAGUE

Time is running out on Buffalo Bisons, close to elimination in the International League battle for play-off positions.

The fifth-place Bisons dropped a full game behind fourth-place Baltimore last night by taking a 2-1 trimming from Toronto's Maple Laefs while the Orioles were idle.

With only four games left to play before the campaign ends Sunday, the Bisons will just about have to sweep their schedule to stand any kind of a chance since their deficit is in the losing side of the standings.

At the same time the Orioles can virtually sew up matters for themselves tonight when they take on the tail-end Jersey City Giants in a night doubleheader in Baltimore. Buffalo plays at Toronto.

The Orioles also can better their position as Syracuse Chiefs and Newark Bears, tied for second and one game ahead of Baltimore, continue their duel in Newark. The Chiefs moved into the deadlock by outlasting the Bears 15-12 in Newark last night. In the only other game last night, Rochester Red Wings whipped the pennant-winning Montreal Royals 5-1.

Southpaw Herman Besse proved Buffalo's nemesis last night. He gave up nine hits and five walks but was tight in the clutches. Art Houtteman fanned 10 Toronto batsmen but faltered in the third when hits by Don Richmond and Austin Knickerbocker produced both runs.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By GEORGE FORSTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP)—A tennis enthusiast looking at the Canadian net picture today would have little cause for glee. The cream of Canada's court stars took some heavy beatings during this first year of post-war international competition.

Several top titles—Canadian and eastern Canadian men's singles, Canadian ladies' singles, Canadian mixed doubles—left the country; the Davis Cup team failed to win a set and our exports to the American National amateur tournament were blasted from the courts in early rounds.

No immediate improvement can be expected. The current crop of younger players have a long way to go before they will feel at home at Wimbledon or Forest Hills while most of the older players are past their prime.

But amid the weeping and wailing in locker rooms across the country there can be heard one faint, hopeful note: Things are looking up.

The current doldrums can be blamed largely on the war years when some clubs practically went out of business. Greatly increased numbers took the court this year and many more are expected next year. And after this year's shattering defeats old-timers are beginning to realize they must spend more time coaching the juniors in order to raise the Canadian standard of play.

Most promising of the juniors are Lorne Main of Vancouver, the unorthodox-styled winner of this year's junior crown, Bruce Logie of Toronto and Colin Maas of Montreal. These three may yet, with sufficient coaching, hard work and encouragement, make Davis Cup material.

A potential star in the next age bracket is 20-year-old Gaetan Valois of Ottawa, who upset fifth-seeded J. J. Desjardins of Montreal in the Canadian final this year. An opportunity that too few Canadians get — tennis scholarships at William and Mary College at Williamsburg, Va., should improve Canada's top doubles team, Brendan and Jim Macken of Montreal.

But most of the game's sponsors are looking for their tennis talent among younger groups than the juniors. Canadian tennis needs adequate financial support. More and better coaching and hard-working, ambitious players. Current indications are that the first two may be forthcoming.

FRANK BRANCATI BEATS DOCHERTY

Toronto, Sept. 6. (CP) —Frank Brancati, Toronto, won the decision over Bobby Docherty, also of Toronto, in a bantamweight bout that headlined the professional boxing card put on by promoter Playfair Brown last night at Oakwood Stadium.

The crowd of about 3,500 saw Brancati earn a close decision over Docherty, bantam champion of the British army. Brancati weighed 118, Docherty 124.

In the six-round semi-final Wally Hicks of Toronto, 161, knocked out Rocky Wagner of Edmonton, 168, in the fifth round. Wagner suffered seven knock-downs altogether.

In preliminary matches, Joey McPhee, of Oshawa, 131, knocked out Andy Alexander of Port Colborne, 124, in the third round. Kenny Mashino of Honolulu, 132, knocked out Scotty Ramage of Toronto, 128, in the fourth round, and Jack Harding of Toronto, 162, knocked out Billy Evans of Lackawanna, N.Y., 171, in the second round.

Sports Roundup

New York, Sept. 6 —(AP)— Bob Fitch, world discus record holder, has enrolled at Michigan State to study veterinary medicine but isn't eligible for football or track. Come to think of it, that's about the first time this season we've seen the word "ineligible."... last year Maine harness racing tracks held $9,645.80 worth of uncashed mutuel tickets. Summer folks, no doubt.

Labor—Management

When the Florida State baseball league's all-star team was chosen, Ed Levy, was named manager... Ed still is thanking his lucky stars that the team didn't play a game as four other managers would have been in the lineup... Skipper Bill Good of Leesburg was all-star shortstop; Myril Hoag, Palatka, right field; Bill Steinecke, St. Augustine, catcher, and Bill Fuchs, Deland, utility... just imagine the secondguessing.

Locks of Luck

Lennart Bergelin, the Swedish Davis Cupper who has perturbed tennis officials by wearing a hair ribbon to keep his long locks out of his eyes, finally weakened and got a haircut... he saved a tip by having his teammate, Oorsten Johansson, an ex-barber, do the job... and likely he finished with the comment: "I only need a shave and haircut to beat them bums."

Cleaning the Cuff

The Dodgers' Hugh Casey is the first national league pitcher this season to gain a victory over every other team in the loop... Goodman Juniors Play in Toronto On Sept. 14th

Word has been received by Walter Harden, business manager of the Goodman Juniors, eastern Ontario junior softball champions on dates for the next round in the O.A.S.A. playdowns. The Belleville team will play in Toronto on September 14th with the return game in Belleville on the following Wednesday. If the third game is necessary the game will be played on September 21st. It is more than likely that if the teams split even in their first two contests the third game will be played on neutral grounds.

Saco Marines Will Travel By Bus to Oshawa

Saco Marines are all ready to invade the Motor City on Saturday in their second game of the O.A.S.A. Intermediate "A" playdowns with Oshawa Tannery. The local team was defeated 4-0 in its home game but is determined to even the series right in Oshawa. Max Peoples stated today the team was travelling by bus to Oshawa and would be leaving the Gibson Service Station shortly after ten o'clock. There is room for a few supporters to go along to give the team vocal encouragement.

COUNTRY CLUB GOLFING NEWS

The Branscombe Challenge Trophy was won by Tommy Carruthers and Harry Ridley at the Kawartha Golf Club, Peterboro, on Labor Day, in a best ball foursome, when Carruthers sank a 20-footer to win the match on the 18th green. This pair will be called upon to defend the trophy when any challenge is made. Those who attended the match state it was one of the best of the season in the district in some time. The contestants were all-square coming home and both were on with their third shots on the par four hole. Tommy calmly lined up a 20-footer and the ball ran straight and true to the cup. The trophy is a beautiful cup donated by Bill Branscombe of Picton and the matches are creating considerable interest because they can be played for at anytime.

The third round of the Esquire Trophy will be played at Trenton on Sunday according to Ken Reid, games chairman of the Bay of Quinte Country Club.

A mixed ball foursome will be started at the Country Club this weekend and anyone wishing to start his competition on Saturday should get in touch with Miss Marjory Cook.

Harry Ridley, Ken Reid, Tom Carruthers and Mike Acquafredda will journey to Oshawa on Sunday to take part in the fall tournament of the Ontario Golf Association.

HEIRENS PLEADS GUILTY TO THREE MURDERS

William Heirens, 17-year-old Chicago University student, is shown as he left his cell on the way to court with Sheriff Michael Mulcahy. He was arraigned before Chief Justice Harold C. Ward of the Criminal Court and he pleaded guilty to three murders and 29 other indictments, charging burglary and assault with intent to kill, rather than put his fate in the hands of a jury. A board of alienists who examined Heirens found that he is legally sane and did not suffer from any psychosis or mental retardation.

GIRL GRAPPLES WITH ENRAGED BULL TO SAVE FATHER FROM TERRIBLE DEATH

SYLVETTE GAGNON WINS
Dow Award

THE DOW AWARD
is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Victory Bond. Winners are selected by the Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Montreal daily newspapers.

At his St. Bruno, Que. farm, Arthur Gagnon was quietly doing his chores. Suddenly, for some reason, a bull became aroused . . . and before Gagnon knew what was happening, the beast was upon him — head lowered, deadly horns jabbing ferociously.

Cornered, the farmer fought desperately. But it was a losing battle . . . and he was almost ready to give up when his daughter Sylvette rushed in . . . grabbed the bull by the nose-ring and, using every ounce of strength she could muster, held the mad animal's head up until neighbours, hearing her screams, came to the rescue. The bull was killed immediately . . . and, thanks to his daughter's heroic action, Gagnon's life was saved.

We are proud to honour this gallant Canadian girl through the presentation of The Dow Award.

THE VOICE AND THE BODY

That's dashing Billy Watson, otherwise known as the "Whippah" in polite pachydermic circles, listening to "wolds of wisdom" from "The Voice" Phil Lawson, loquacious manager of the Whip. Watson is all attention as the verbal pearls fall from the lips of the "Voice" and well he need be for he takes on a tough customer tonight at the Hume Arena, one known as "Krippler" Karl Davis, he of the vicious cobra hold. Davis spilled plenty of the Watsonian gore at their first meeting last week and Lawson's boy William is not letting that happen again tonight. The Whip has a temper of his own and it will likely flare tonight if the Krippler starts any monkey business with his snake-holds. Looks like a neat evening's entertainment for the boys and the faithful as well. It will be a ninety-minute time limit affair. On the same card is Jim "Goon" Henry and Ben Sharpe. And dashing Frankie Taylor and that old villun of the mat, Bunny Dunlop.

Slump Stalls Bid of Feller For Major League Strikeout Record; Beaten by Detroit

St. Louis Cards Retain Two-Game Lead Over Brooklyn Dodgers

By JOE REICHELER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Time is rapidly running out on Bobby Feller's hopes of setting a new major league strikeout record as the Cleveland Indians' great pitcher wallows in the worst slump of his baseball career.

The speedy righthander, figured a good bet to become the first pitcher since Dizzy Dean of 12 years ago to notch 30 victories when he registered his 20th win last July 31, has hit an amazing decline since then, losing six of his next eight starts, including his last three.

Feller's sudden reversal of form also has practically ruined his chance of overtaking Rube Waddell's 42-year-old listed record of 343 strikeouts. In his last eight starts, Feller has whiffed only 40 batters to increase his season's total to 293.

Bullet Bob suffered his most humiliating defeat yesterday in Detroit when the Tigers clubbed him for eight runs in the fourth inning, the most runs ever scored against Feller in one frame since he joined the majors in 1936. The previous high was five by New York Yankees.

In all Feller was tagged for nine runs and 11 hits in the 3 1-3 innings he worked with the Tigers beating him for the third straight time, 10-0. Fred Hutchinson hurled the shutout for the Tigers.

Heated Race Continues

The heated National League pennant race continues unabated as the front-running St. Louis Cardinals and runner-up Brooklyn Dodgers both won, the Cards shellacking Chicago Cubs in a night game at St. Louis, 10-1, and the Brooks shading the Braves in Boston, 1-0. The Cards retained their two-game bulge over the Dodgers with 22 games remaining on each team's schedule.

Jim Bagby moved Boston Red Sox to within four games of clinching the American League pennant, scattering nine hits to defeat the Senators 1-0 in Washington at night.

The Yankees protected their two-game margin over the Tigers by defeating the Athletics in Philadelphia, 6-2. Dick Fowler of Toronto, was the loser.

After tying the score 3-3 with three runs in the bottom half of the seventh, Chicago White Sox defeated the visiting St. Louis Browns 4-3 in 11 innings.

Jack Graham's second home run of the day, with two mates, aboard in the ninth inning, gave New York Giants a 6-5 victory over Philadelphia Phillies at the Polo Grounds.

Held scoreless for eight innings Pittsburgh Pirates got to Johnny Vander Meer for three hits and two runs to defeat the Reds 2-1 in Cincinnati.

Two Canadian Horses Invited To Race in Stake

(By The Canadian Press)

Two of Canada's top standardbreds, Blue Again, owned by Dr. R. W. Leatherdale of Windsor, Ont., and Guy H., from the stable of Elzear Cournoyer, Sorell, Que. have been invited to compete in the $25,000 National Pacing Derby, Roosevelt Raceway, Westbury, N.Y., Sept. 12. Blue Again copped the featured derby at Hollywood this season while the Sorel seven-year-old holds a mark of 2:00 ¾ for the mile. Twelve horses have been nominated for the coming race.

In the Grand Circuit card at the Indiana State Fair, Indianapolis, yesterday, Hoot Mon won the $17,936 Horseman Stake for two-year-olds in straight heats, trotting the second mile in 2:04¼, the season's record for youngsters.

Both at St. Louis and Washington yesterday there were reports that major-league club owners would abandon the plan to increase the 1947 baseball schedules from 154 to 168 games on the ground that it would be difficult to squeeze in the extra 14 games before late September.

In winning four games for the St. Joseph, Mich., Autos., Roy Henshaw, former Detroit Tigers pitcher, was designated yesterday as the leading hurler of the 12th Annual National Semi-pro Baseball Tournament at Wichita, Kas. The team won the tournament title.

Managing director Conn Smythe of Maple Leaf Gardens last night announced appointment of Ed Fitkin, former Toronto sports reporter, as publicity director of Maple Leaf Gardens succeeding Frank Selke. Selke retired this summer to take over as managing director of the Montreal Forum.

Jerome (Jerry) Witte, Toledo's first baseman who banged out 43 homers this season, today was named the American Association's most valuable player for the 1946 campaign in a vote by the loop's baseball writing fraternity. Previously he was elected the league's "outstanding freshman."

Bob Falkenburg of California provided the greatest upset of the National tennis championships at Forest Hills, N.Y., yesterday with a five-set victory over Billy Talbert of the U.S. Davis Cup team. Falkenburg is drawn to meet Jack Kramer in the semi-final.

Badly beaten by Ike Williams, the American N.B.A. welterweight champion, the night before at Cardiff, Wales, Ronnie James, Welsh challenger, said the Negro ringster was easily the greatest fighter he had ever met. James was knocked out in the ninth round.

Jack (Spider) Armstrong, 130, of Toronto added still another scalp to his fistic collection when he scored a technical knockout in the second round against Honey Boy Villa, 133, of Mexico City last night at Woonsocket, R.I.

The United States National Horse Show, suspended in 1941, will return to New York's Madison Square Garden Nov. 4-9. Two Canadian judges have been appointed, Lt.-Col. S. C. Bate of Toronto and Maj.-Gen. Churchill Mann of Ottawa. Prizes totalling $30,000 will be distributed for 93 events.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Sam Goodman, sponsor of the Goodman junior softball kids who appear to be headed for the Ontario title is doing right well by his proteges. Sam puts up a prize for playoff series for the team. During the recent Oshawa-Goodman second round joust which the locals copped easily, Sam put up a couple of nifty neckties for prizes for the player who had the best batting average and the Joe who scored the most runs. "Moe" Rollins won both of them.

In the next round, which according to the OASA is to be played with a Toronto team, Sambo is putting up two more prizes for the kids. Runs batted in etc, and another target to be named.

The Kiwanis Junior baseballers trek to Peterboro tomorrow where they meet the Oshawa B'Nai B'Rith in the third and deciding game of the second round OBA junior playdowns. The second game won by Oshawa wasn't anything to write home about even the Oshawa people admit that — but the Kiwanis kids feel they have got rid of one bad game, and Saturday will be another story. Coach St. Louis will likely send Bob Bunton against the Motor City kids, and Robert should stop them cold in their tracks. The game is called for 3:30 pip emma, and a lot of local fans are making the trip to Perdue's hamlet to take in the joust.

Claude Tice is accompanying the Kiwanis kids in a threefold capacity, as a city alderman, a newspaperman and a baseball addict. Personally we are going to Oshawa with Maxie People's Sacos who face a stiff proposition in meeting the Robson leather squad, as neat a mushball crew as we've seen—but who can be beaten and likely will, if Sacos get back some semblance of their batting prowess. In any event it should be a mushball classic, if there is such a thing, and the Oshawans will likely be out in force to see their leather tanners in action. Wonder where the third game will be played?

Latest announcement from OBA convener Ernie Summers is to the effect that the Kiwanis juniors will play in Riverside Park, Peterborough at 3.30 Saturday afternoon with neutral umpires officiating. Two mask 'n pad lads from Toronto will do the arbiting. so Ernie informed us late today.

ODDS AND ENDS

Shortly after the first Louis-Conn fight, Joe and Billy met outside the ring. Billy was not a beaten fighter—then. He told Joe he would take him next time. The two men kidded each other for a few minutes, then Conn said, "Joe, I wish I could have had that title for a couple of years."

"Billy" Joe said softly. "I reckon you had that title for twelve rounds, and you didn't know what to do with it."

Anyone who understands Louis knows he was not making a light joke. He was telling the man who might have become the champion of the world that the job of being champ requires keeping your head at all times, that it means a great deal of responsibility anld its a large load to carry.

DIALOGUE BY KLEM

Many good yarns are told about Bill Klem, the veteran major league umpire who claims, "I haven't missed one yet." One hot afternoon Klem called Pepper Martin, then of the Cardinals, out on a close third strike. "G'wan Bill, that one was high! You can't call me out on that!" squawked Pepper. "If you don't think so," came back Klem, "just read tomorrow's morning's paper!"

A sports announcer, so the story goes, once asked National League Umpire Charlie Moran what he considered a hard question for the umps to answer. "What was the best play you ever saw on a baseball field?" queried the radio bug. Instead of being stumped, Moran grinned and answered: — "That's easy. I see the greatest play in baseball every day. It's the last out."

HE COULD PLAY BALL, TOO!

Phil Bedgood was with Cleveland when Tris Speaker was manager. They were having skull practice before a game. "All right, Bedgood," said Tris, "we are playing the Yankees and Babe Ruth is at bat. They take Ruth out and put in a pinch hitter. What should you do?" "I'd throw down my glove and quit," replied Bedgood, "because any league where Babe Ruth is removed for a pinch hitter would be too fast for me!"

"They may get it back again, but they'll know they've been in a golf game before they do," grinned Tommy Carruthers, Belleville's ace golfer, referring to the Branscombe Trophy which he and Harry Ridley grabbed from under the noses of a pair of Kawartha Golf and Country links prides, the other day. The mug was donated by Bill Branscombe, Picton and is a challenge trophy open to any two team of men within the radius of 100 miles from Bill's home town.

Port Hope copped the mug from Picton during June and retained it until last week when the Kawarthas of Peterborough wrested it from the Port of Good Hopers. The mug calls for 18 holes of best-ball golf and the Carruthers-Ridley duo had a score of 74 to win one up, from Les Reid and Stan Widden, of the KGCC. The Petes stated they will challenge for the trophy again and the match will be played on the B. of Q. Country Club links here.

• • •

Last week Carruthers placed fourth in a field of 225 leading golfers from Ontario in the Willow Park Memorial tournament held at the Weston Golf and Country Club. Tommy shot a neat 76 just one stroke behind the three leaders who were tied at 75. Harry Ridley shot an 80 and Mike Acquefredda a 85 to be well up among the leaders.

TORONTO INDIANS AND BALMY BEACH TO OPEN SEASON

East Enders Will Not be Up to Strength but Expect to Win

(By The Canadian Press)

They take the lid off the Eastern Senior Football season tonight with a floodlight game between Balmy Beach and Toronto Indians of the Senior Ontario Union. Both Beaches and Indians wound up the long training season with long workouts and Balmy Beach found that one thing or another will prevent them parading their strongest line-up.

Tonight's game paves the way for Saturday's general opening of Eastern Senior football, when two O.R.F.U. games and two games in the Interprovincial Union are slated.

In the Big Four openings the game attracting most interest is that between Montreal Alouettes and the champion Toronto Argonauts at Toronto. The other Big Four game Saturday sees Ottawa at Hamilton.

Saturday's O.R.F.U. games have Windsor battling at Ottawa, and Hamilton at Sarnia.

One Game In The West

The only senior game in the West Saturday sees Calgary at Regina, a return game for that at Calgary last Saturday when Calgary finished on top of a 9-0 count.

Getting back to tonight's Eastern O.R.F.U. opener, the Balmies found that they'll have to get along without line coach George Meen, out of town on business, and big Cec Foderingham, suffering from sinus. And Len Staughton and Bill Drinkwater aren't eligible because their certificates won't have reached the C.R.U. in time.

The Balmy Beach coach. Bob Cosgrove, isn't downhearted at all, the way he tells it, and is confident that the Indians will get all the opposition they can handle. Indians this year are under Brian Timmis, the old Hamilton Tiger bulwark, and Timmis is relying on a fast, strong backfield to overcome what's generally known as a strong Beach forward line.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

(By The Canadian Press)

Niagara Falls Houcks tied the Niagara District senior A baseball series 3-3, Thursday night when they defeated Welland Atlas 3-0. Worrall of Houcks gave up only three infield hits in nine innings.

Frood Tigers won the "B" series of the Nickel Belt semi-finals when they defeated Creighton Cubs 2-1 to take the series in 3 straight games. The win qualifies the Frood team to meet the winners of the A series for the Nickel Belt championship. Vaillancourt was the winning pitcher.

In the fourth game of the intercourt juvenile finals, Brantford Laurel Crests defeated Guelph Leafs 4-3 to enter the provincial playoffs. Lefty Monahan of Brantford went the rout and pitched six-hit ball.

Preston Vets took their secon straight game from Oakville 7- to move into the fourth round o the O.S.A. intermediate play downs. Verne Debrusk lead th Vets with three hits — two o them doubles.

Delhi Maroons defeated Cale donia 3-2 in the O.B.A. Junior playoffs to take the series in tw straight games.

CANADIANS BEATEN

Wichita, Kas., Sept. 6 — (CP)— Carmichael (Calif.) Firemen scored 12 runs in a wild secon inning and went on to defea Windsor, Canadian semi-pr champions, 25-12, last night in th opening game of the best-of-seven International baseball series. The Firemen pounded four Windso hurlers for 22 hits.

The second game of the series held under the sponsorship of th National Baseball Congress, wil be played tonight.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When you are using good judgment, you are probably following a good rule. It may not be the basic rule. It may be only one of its branches. Like when your opening lead is a trump.

All your other suits may be headed by an ace or a king. Or they may have been bid by opponents. Or a combination of both. That is a time when it is correct to start with the lead of a trump.

At such a time, your trump lead does not announce how many of the trumps are in your hand. You may have started with only one of them or two or three. The size of the card you lead will tell.

The order of choice of leads is tops, longies, shorts. You may not have a top card lead in any suit. And you may have four trumps; a longie. That is when it is correct to start with a trump lead.

There is another time to open with a trump lead. It is when you have reason to know that dummy hand is very short in trumps. A trump lead is good at such a time to cut down dummy's ruffing ability.

Still another time is there when a trump lead is good. When the dummy's help is mostly in trumps. In that case, an early leading of trumps may cut down the number of tricks dummy expected to take.

South opens the bidding with one heart. North jumps at once to four hearts. North shows no biddable suits. The tricks he promises to take are probably depending on short suits he can ruff.

It is your lead from this west hand:

♠A 8 4 2
♥9 6 4
♦Q 7
♣K 6 5 4

Your best bet is to start with an opening lead of a trump. And your pair should keep shooting trumps every chance you get. It will cut down some of north's ruffing possibilities.

From the bidding it is likely that north has only a few big cards in outside suits. Your big cards will act as entries for trump leads.

To reduce a foe's chance, interfere with his plans.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

San Diego, Calif., Sept. 6—(AP)— Movie studios will go gfeat lengths to preiere their pictures; for instance, Columbia came 130 miles.

The occasion was last night's opening of "Gallant Journey" and this jewel of the Pacific was chosen because the picture is about John J. Montgomery, who made a glider flight here in 1883. Armed with documents supporting the claim that Montgomery was the first man to fly, the Columbia publicity department ushered a company of performers and pressmen to mark the event.

High light of the ceremonies was dedication of a new Montgomery park on Otay Mesa, an obscure highland south of San Diego where Montgomery made his flight. It is so obscure that even the official party couldn't find it at first.

After a half hour in the wilds the ceremony cite was found a short distance from the highway.

Many flowery words were said about the physics professor, who was killed in a plane crash in 1911. But the most appropriate comment was delivered by a fleet of Navy bombers that zoom over the spot where, says the movie, man first flew.

"Gallant Journey" was worth coming this far to see. Most film biographies couldn't lure me around the block, but this is a pleasant exception.

The story of John J. Montgomery is told with such restaint and care that the viewer realizes the momentousness of his achievement without being pounded over the head obout it. William Wellman and Glen Ford did a fine job.

Only one discordant note: Why do film heroes always have to fly, march or ride into heavenly clouds at the end of the picture?

Notes to you from Hollywood: Jimmy Cagney, who doesn't smoke, will have to buff a cigar and pipe in "The Stray Lamb" Note that M. G. M. is reissuing "Captain Courageous" and billing Mickey Rooney, who played a bit, over Freddie Bartholomew, the lead. . . Joe Cotten will be sitting on the Washington Redskins' bench this Friday when they meet the Los Angeles football rams. Joe once played pro ball in Washington, D.C., under the name of John Smith.

Dotted Line Honeymoon

CHAPTER 26

Her cold fingers clutching Larry's, Jacqueline stumbled along obediently after him. Their progress was slow owing to the brush and weeds. At the edge of the clearing, her guide paused to reconnoitre. The house loomed up, a darker blot than the rest of the surrounding shadows. No sound broke the intense stillness, a quiet so deep that the girl heard her own blood humming in her ears.

Larry leaned down and placed his lips to the nearest one.

"Listen. We're going to try the outside cellar door. It's in the shadow and will take us where we want to go. Nerves all right?"

She nodded, unable to speak. Larry's lips touched her hair in a swift, light kiss.

"That's the girl. Move fast now ... and easy."

A moment later they paused at the top of a short flight of stone steps which Larry assisted his companion to descend. He felt over the surface of the heavy door that barred their progress, then snapped on the light long enough to reveal the fastening he sought. A heavy padlock, securing a short length of chain. All rusted from disuse.

"Lucky it's still on the outside", Larry whispered. "I've got something that will take care of that. Wait." There was a grating noise; Jacqueline felt Larry's arm heave. Then the sound of something giving way. Door hinges protesting after a rest of years. A musty odor emanating from the black void.

The intruders stood motionless, listening.

Larry led Jacqueline within, placed her with her back to the wall close to the door and signified, with a pressure of his hand, that she was to remain there. He moved a few steps away, then sent the beam from his flashlight on a scurrying trip. Shut it off.

Jacqueline had a vague impression of a large empty room, of overhead beams festooned with cobwebs. A few pieces of discarded furniture, some packing boxes. Then Larry whispering close to her ear.

"Coast seems clear. No signs of anybody having been here. Give me your hand."

He led her across the room.

"This is the workshop my dad had," Jacqueline heard whispered close in her ear. "I told you about it. Just in front of you is an old fireplace. He had a little melting furnace set in it for his experiments. We're standing on the old brick hearth. He had a fire-proof box under it. That's what I've got to look for. Get down on your knees, if you don't mind, and hold the light for me. If you hear a noise....shut it off and make for the door. Here. There's a slip fastener for the light button. Feel it?"

"Yes. Larry....did you bring that gun?"

"No." He chuckled silently. "Didn't dare risk the temptation. Might mean an extra ten years in the hoosegow. Hold the light.... like that."

Larry was on his knees close beside Jacqueline. He had a short steel bar in his hand, one end fashioned into a point. With it he was exploring the joints between the dusky bricks. Looking for loose ones, his confederate conjectured.

"Funny," she heard him mutter. His hand came out and shifted the direction of the light beam. "It's been years since I saw Dad work this stunt," he whispered.

It seemed hours to the girl while the search went on. Her legs cramped; her hand shook so that it was difficult to keep that little circle of friendly light on the spot where Larry's bar was probing.

Once he reached out with a sharp move of his hand and extinguished the torch. Jacqueline knew he was listening for something and strained her ears breathlessly. She could feel her heart pounding.

Nothing happened. And, after a moment, Larry set to work again.

Presently Jacqueline heard the sharp intake of his breath. One of the bricks moved. A grating, prying noise and it was lifted from its place.

"I've got it!"

With rapt attention, Jacqueline watched another brick come out, another..until six were removed. The resulting rectangle showed a layer of smooth yellow sand. Then Larry's two hands, scooping furiously as he dug down. In a moment, he had revealed an iron ring and was tugging at it.

Jacqueline almost fell into the hole from sheer excitement. Gone now was any thought of danger. It was so like the stories of buried treasure she had read that she would not have been in the least surprised to see a glittering hoard of pieces of eight winking up into her face.

Instead, the lifted cover revealed a second container. Sand was drifting down into it partially covering a small wrapped package. Larry caught it up and thrust it at Jack.

"You take it!" he directed sharply. "Hang on to it....it goes to my lawyer....to Ronnie." Larry was intensely excited, but Jacqueline could not help but admire the precision with which he was thinking things out. He was depending upon her! "I'd better try to fix this back in shape," were his next words. "It may give us more time. We're all right now."

It was Jacqueline who heard it first—a slight scraping noise, a creak.

Before she could touch Larry, a harsh voice came out of the blackness.

"Stick 'em up, you two!"

Jacqueline was too nearly paralyzed with fear to remember about turning off the light. She remained motionless clutching the parcel tightly to her breast.

The voice spoke again:

"Get on your feet....and keep that light pointed down. I got you covered."

Larry rose without a word, and Jacqueline did likewise. She remembered the order and allowed the flashlight to hang limply in her hand, making a pool of light on the floor in which she and Larry stood. Trapped.

"Now then, Miss," directed the voice, "throw that package on the floor....over this way. No foolin'. Pitch it!"

Before she could comply, she was conscious of a lightning-like move by Larry. The torch was knocked from her hand. She heard its shattering crash on the floor and the room was in darkness. She knew instinctly that Larry had hurled himself in the direction of that voice.

There was a red stab of flame. A report that almost stunned her with its intensity.

Too frightened to cry out, she listened. There was the sound of scuffling steps, the writhing of bodies. A vile epithet. Men panting. Then Larry's breathless:

"Jack! Run!"

Blindly she groped her way to the door, found it, waited. She could not leave Larry. She must do something!

Before she could collect her wits, she heard a peculiar impact. The sound of a body falling. She gave a scream of fright when she felt a hand clutch her. Then Larry's reassuring:

"All right dear. Hurry. Got that package?"

"Oh, yes!"

"Fine!" He was almost dragging her. Up the steps across the clearing, plunging recklessly through the brush, along the fence. Once through the opening, Larry groped swiftly until he found his pliers, then started for the car. He was pushing Jacqueline ahead of him.

"Larry!" she called breathlessly over her shoulder. "Are you all right?"

"Sure."

Now they were in the car and Larry was backing it slowly into the main road. This time, he did not turn on the lights but drove swiftly through the darkness. At the first turn, he peered through the back curtain.

"Look!" he called excitedly. "We didn't have much time to spare!"

Jacqueline saw the lights of a car topping the distant hill behind them.

"You mean..?" she asked fearfully.

"That guy had some sort of alarm rigged up. He was watching us all the time from the old vegetable room. That's his boss coming." He broke off with a laugh. "I think he'll have to do some first-aid stuff before he gets a report."

Jacqueline's hand came out to find Larry's. She could see it resting on his knee.

"Do you know....Oh, Larry, darling! You're hurt!"

Jacqueline's cry burst out at the touch of Larry's fingers. They were sticky, wet.

"It's nothing," he assured her quickly. "Just a touch in the shoulder. I think it's almost bleeding...just messy."

"Larry, stop the car! Let me see it!"

"I'd rather not, dear. I'm making out all right. I want you to get home....Vince will help me out."

"Stop just a minute," she insisted. "Turn on that little light. I don't care if they do catch up to us. Nothing matters...."

She was so insistent that he pulled over to the side of the road and stopped. He slipped his coat from his shoulder with Jacqueline's help; then she loosened his tie and opened his shirt.

"There's a handkerchief in my pocket," he told her. "Fold it into a pad and we'll try to tie it in place with my other handkerchief." His fingers were exploring. "Just below the top of my shoulder, as I thought. Ploughed the muscle. There. Slip the other handkerchief through and tie it.. like that. Any sort of knot. This isn't the time to do any explaining, if anybody comes along."

"Are you sure you can drive, Larry? I can steer, if you'll do the other things."

"No, indeed. I'm a famous one-arm driver. Let's go."

"Don't talk, dear. Save all your strength."

"Of course I'll talk. I want to get some things out of my shattered system. Don't know when I'll be seeing you...."

"Everything can wait now, Larry."

"I don't want it to. You've been such a....trump. I think you've guessed a good deal about tonight. This will be sketchy. My father spent years in perfecting a manufacturing process....rather technical, but it had to do with textiles. Quite revolutionary. Like most inventors, he wasn't much of a business man. Impractical."

"I know," Jacqueline helped. She was thinking of Vince.

"Well, to make a long story short, he took in a partner. A stock company was formed and a factory started down East. This partner attended to all the details, but most of the stock was unloaded on Dad's friends. He was well known and well liked. As it always happens, a lot of that stock was held by people who put most of their savings into it."

"I know" Jacqueline said again. This time, she was thinking of Vince's daughter.

"I was out of school when the crash came," Larry went on. "Dad had always been rather lavish with money as far as I was concerned, and I never bothered my head where it came from. I was down in South America. Got the idea that I was going to make a big hit on my own, like a Richard Harding Davis hero. As a matter of fact, I was such a flop that I didn't keep in very close touch with home.

"Here's what happened, as nearly as I could piece it together and from what Mother told me after I got back. She didn't live so very long after the old gentleman....died."

Fiery, Itching Toes and Feet

When feet burn, sting, itch and shoes feel as if they were cutting right into the flesh, get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil and rub well on feet and ankles morning and night for a few days.

A real discovery for thousands who have found blessed relief. Moone's Emerald Oil is easy and pleasant to use—it does not stain. Economical—money back if not satisfied—good druggists everywhere.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at the radio page in the paper, saying to pop, I think I'll turn on the Zippergas Hour, William, what do you think?

I think you will, pop said.

Which she did, and a man was saying, Good evening, frends and fellow drivers. I am Clawd Tucker, founder and president of the Voluntary Safety Council. The Zippergas Corporation has graciously allowed me 2 minutes of its precious time to warn you that there will be much reckless driving over the coming week end, so I earnestly appeal to each and every one of you to remember to drive slowly and carefully. People are going to be hert and some are even going to be killed within the coming 36 hours of generel relaxation, so drive slowly and drive carefully and your own record will be clean and your own conscience clear. Frends and fellow drivers, I thank you.

By gollies now that's something to make people wake up and listen, pop said. A talk like that ought to do a lot of good, he said, and ma said, I hope it does, I'm sure.

Which just then the announcer said, And now for the Zippergas hour of laughter and music. But first, a werd of frendly advice from Zippergas. Wherever you drive on your week end holliday, your pleasure will be increased 50 per cent. I'll even go so far as to say a hundred per cent, if you tell the young man in white to fill your tank with Zippergas, the gas that gets you started ferst and keeps you in the leed, the gas that seems to make your car fly like a berd, the gas that sperns the ground. So remember, be wise and buy the gas that flies, he said.

Yee gods, drop your atomic bombs slowly and carefully, pop said. I resign and retire, he said.

As daily way-freight from Toronto to Lindsay passes through Markham, Station Master Herb Snider, who retires tonight, hands train order to Engineer Charlies Sleep (middle), with Fireman Fred Saville looking on.

Central Economic Administration

But Molotov has emphasized strongly the necessity for four-power control over German economic and political life, and indicated it would be years before the Allies could entrust Germany with any real political power. Mr. Byrnes emphasized the need for immediate creation of German central economic administrative agencies and declared: "The American people want to return the government of Germany to the German people."

'Premature' Says French Spokesman

Paris, Sept. 6. (CP) — State Secretary Byrnes' proposal in Stuttgart today for early establishment of a Central German Provisional Government was described as "premature and imprecise" by a French Foreign Office spokesman.

He also criticized Mr. Byrnes' suggestion of Allied demilitarized control over all Germany, including the Ruhr and Rhineland. The latter, the spokesman said, must be under separate control since controls covering all Germany are bound to be ineffective.

In the French view demilitarization of the Ruhr could be assured only by a control agency with independent political powers.

Speaking of Mr. Byrnes' proposal for early creation of a central German government, the spokesman said such a government would only be possible when democratic local governments were established. Only in the United States zone was the local government sufficiently developed to be anywhere nearly ready to take part in a central government.

Mr. Byrnes' statement also insufficiently defined the powers of a central government, he said. The French view was that the bulk of power should reside in the local zonal government with the central government merely acting as a co-ordinating body.

Another official said the speech was "an open bid for popularity with the Germans, and can only lead to competition, in this respect, with Russia."

Gen. De Gaulle may reply to Mr. Byrnes and restate his attitude in a speech at Liege, Belgium, Sunday.

Byrnes' Speech Welcomed

Stuttgart, Sept. 6. (AP)—Three minister-presidents of the American zone states heard State Secretary Byrnes' speech today and welcomed it as "one which will warm the hearts of the German people".

They expressed hope that merger of the British and American zones would be completed quickly and that Germany would not lose the Saar, as Mr. Byrnes said was likely.

Dr. Wilhelm Hoegner of Bavaria, Dr. Reinhold Maier of Wuertemberg-Baden and Dr. Karl Geiler of Gaerter Hesse met Allied and German correspondents after the speech.

Hoegner said Mr. Byrnes was "speaking to us not as a defeated nation but as a friend to whom he wanted to show the right road again."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 6 — (CP)—The industrials were heavy in the early session on the Exchange today, taking an index loss of 2.66. The base metals were down 1.12 and other groups showed only mild weakness. Volume was around the recent average at 930,000 shares for the first 3 hours.

Sullivan spurted to 2.61 at the opening but failed to hold the advance and East Sullivan was down about 20 cents at mid-day. Nickel, Sherritt and Waite-Amulet were some of the weaker base metals. Labrador added 30 cents.

In the industrial section the balance of price changes was on the down side in the paper, food, liquor, steel and utility groups. Hiram Walker lost about two points. Calgary and Edmonton, up 10 cents, was the strongest of the western oils.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 6. (AP) — Stocks, with scattered exceptions, resumed the retreat in today's market although the pace slowed.

An early attempt to extend Thursday's rally failed to attract adherents and the direction soon was downward. Declines of fractions to two points or so predominated near the fourth hour with assorted "thin" issues off as much as six.

Canadian issues softened at midday. Canadian Pacific eased 1-8 and Distillers Seagram 3-8. Dome Mines gained 1-8. Others were unchanged.

HOGS

Toronto, Sept. 6 — (CP) — Grade A, dressed, bacon - hogs were up 25 cents cwt. at Barrie, $21.50 delivered and the market was unsettled at Stratford, early reports today showed.

Brantford later reported prices unchanged $21.60 delivered.

Hull was unchanged at $20.75 delivered.

Young Committed On Murder Charge

Toronto, Sept. 6—(CP)—Angus Young, charged with the axe murder of Miss Georgina Washington Aug. 1, today was committed for trial after a preliminary hearing yesterday.

Young gave himself up to police shortly after the slaying. Miss Washington, unmarried mother of three children, was found lying in a pool of blood at her home and her children had all been attacked with the same weapon and died later in hospital.

At yesterday's hearing evidence was produced that Young went to a hotel room and telephoned Detroit admitting to the killing.

Security Council Meets Secretly

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH

New York, Sept. 6—(AP)—The United Nations Security Council meets here late today (3 p.m. E.S.T). in secret session after two days of heated debate over the Soviet Ukraine's complaints against Greece and Great Britain.

Public discussion of the Ukraine charges that Greece was stirring up incidents on the Albanian frontier with British troops in the background was put over until Monday, when the delegates will return to the U. N. interim headquarters at Lake Success.

The closed session was called for discussion of the councils report to the Sept. 23 meeting of the General Assembly in New York. The secretariat has asked the council to expedite its report, which will include statements on the handling of the unsettled Rusian-Iranian, Spanish and Ukranian cases, all of which were brought before the council since the assembly meeting in London last winter.

Britain strongly indicated in debate on the Ukarinian charges at Lake Success yesterday that she will press for dismissal of the Ukrainian charges on the contention that they amount to no more than propaganda spread over the world from the hearings of the council.

British delegate Sir Alexander Cadogan said Ukrainian Foreign Minister Dmitri Manuilsky had failed entirely to make a case.

He quoted Mr. Manuilsky's own charge that "unbridled propaganda" had arisen over the tense Balkan situation and then said the Ukrainian "must not resent my using the same phrase to characterize his document and statement."

Delegation Given Cordial Reception By Labor Minister

Ottawa, Sept. 6 —(CP)— An eight-man delegation representing workers in the Steel Company of Canada plant at Hamilton, which is involved in the steel strike, Thursday put their case before Labor Minister Mitchell and said they had been given "a cordial reception."

Mr. Mitchell met the delegation while officials of the department were conferring with union officers, representing the men on strike, in another part of the Labor Department offices.

At the conclusion of the meeting with the Hamilton delegation the Minister said the whole situation had been reviewed and the men had put before him the viewpoints of the men who had stayed in the plant when the strike was called.

James Donaldson, who acted as spokesman for the workers, said:

"We came up here to speak for the 2,500 men who will have been in the plant eight weeks tomorrow. "We felt that we had given the government time to make a settlement and that now we wanted to put our position forward. We received a most cordial reception and we are glad we came."

Mr. Donaldson said the delegation had been sponsored by the men themselves with the delegates paying their own fares.

SLIGHT MIXUP ON LOCALITIES

Despite the name on the float, this is not Miss Canada. The aspirant for the title of Miss America here is Marguerite Eileen McClelland who is Miss Louisiana in the parade. A last minute switch in floats accounted for the change. Miss Canada — Marion Saver of Newtonbrook, Ont., has returned home, her plans to enter the Miss America beauty contest upset by a case of jitters and poor train connections.

Rosie, the Rivetter, Wants Easier Job

Vancouver, Sept. 6 (CP) — Rosie, the wartime Rivetter, has deserted the field of manual labor and hied herself off in search of easier, better-paying employment, resulting in one of the most severe shortages of female help ever to strike the Pacific coast.

Miss Eleanor Morley, supervisor of the women's division, National Employment Service, here said that the number of female job-seekers is dropping daily, and that a greater shortage now exists than during war years.

Most unhappy of employers are restaurateurs, laundry and dry-cleaning operators, hotelmen, utility company men, office managers, clothing manufacturers and retail merchants, all of whom are pessimistic about return to normal days when there were two female applicants for every job.

Miss Morley says that the cause is equally divided between wedding bells and the fact that during wartime girls went into industry instead of commercial school, and now expect the war salaries for easier industrial work.

To Find Opportunities For Young Engineers

Port Arthur, Sept. 6 (CP) — Steps were being taken by the Association of Professional Engineers to find job opportunities in Canada for thousands of young men who will be graduating as engineers from Ontario universities in three or four years, Dr. G. Ross Lord, President of the Association and Professor of Engineering at the University of Toronto, said in an address here last night.

Speaking to the Lakehead Branch, Engineering Institute of Canada, Dr. Lord said the association had formed a committee to canvass key industries as to possible openings for young engineers.

"We feel this the time to start so that in three or four years we won't have to see these young men floundering on the engineering market or going to the United States for employment."

Prime Minister Takes Hand In Housing Battle

Ottawa, Sept. 6 — (CP) — The capital's housing battle appeared to be settled down to a rational controversy today, but not before Prime Minister Mackenzie King had a hand in it.

Faced by the "capture" last Tuesday of Kildare Barracks and annex, former C.W.A.C. quarters, by 20 families of the Veterans Housing League, Mayor Stanley Lewis yesterday sought conversations with the prime minister, and following a 45-minute discussion at which acting defence minister Gibson also attended, a statement was issued from defence headquarters.

The statement promised the veterans would "not be put out on the street" but stressed that the premises had been occupied unlawfully and the new tenants "therefore undoubtedly will be required to move out at a later date."

The veterans were assured, however, that the Defence Department was continuing to cooperate "with other government departments and agencies with a view to, wherever possible, making buildings available for emergency housing."

"We won what we fought for—a recognition of our plight and sympathetic treatment on the part of the government," one veteran said.

Later, F. E. Hanratty, organizer of the League, expressed satisfaction with the day's developments but warned: "We will definitely not move out until we are given — not just promised—adequate accommodation."

Hanratty, who planned to visit Mayor Lewis today, said also that "adequate" housing meant housing which cost no more than one-fifth of a veteran's salary, and stressed there must be "no profiteering" in providing veterans with homes.

At the conference with Mr. King it was decided to set up a committee to survey government buildings which can be freed for emergency housing uses.

JULY BIGGEST TOURIST MONTH

Toronto, Sept. 6 —(CP)— Strengthening reports that the tourist business in Canada this year will hit new peaks, the Ontario government last night released figures showing July was the greatest month for tourist business in Ontario's history. In July this year, 187,783 tourists visited Ontario, topping July 1937, previous best period, by 651. "At this rate," an official said, "we shall be ahead of any record set in previous years."

Specialize on Fewer Food Items Restaurant Men Advised at Meeting

Nat. Bailey, Vancouver, president of the Canadian Restaurant Association, was honored by members of the Eastern Ontario branch of the association Thursday evening when an informal dinner was held at the Bay of Quinte Country Club in his honor.

As guest speaker for the evening Mr. Bailey gave an interesting talk on the simplicifaction of restaurant operation, stating that specialization seemed to be the answer to many of the problems facing the restaurateur. By specializing on two or three menu items cooking and service efficiency could be at its best, he stated.

Mr. Bailey gave examples of two of the largest chains of restaurants in the United States who have one item on their menu — "hamburgs." Service in this line ranged from hamburg sandwiches to hamburg dinners.

The trend toward good food in restaurants is attributed to this cimplification process which enables restaurateurs too concentrate on a few menu items.

Pleased at Co-operation.

George DeVuyst, of Belleville, president of the Eastern Ontario branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association, acted as chairman for the evening and complimented the local city council and the Board of Health for the splendid co-operation given the local branch fo the association.

Accompanying Mr. Bailey on his goodwill tour from coast to coast are Mrs. F. G. Montgomery, executive secretary, and Mr. Lennie, field representative of the association. Included among the guests present at the dinner were Mayor Frank S. Follwell, George H. Stokes, M.P., Mackenzie Robertson, James Nickle, warden of the county and Dr. Jack Marshall, chairman of the local Board of Health.

The meeting concluded with an interesting discussion regarding legislation pertaining to the restaurant industry. William Navin local pianist, supplied music during the evening.

GENERAL STRIKE THREATENED IF SHIPS MOVED
WEST FARMERS OPEN 30-DAY DELIVERY STRIKE

Want 'Showdown' With Federal Govt. Over Parity Prices

By Sunrise Pickets Were Appearing on all Roads

Edmonton, Sept. 7. (CP) — Western farmers, estimated at 50,000 by the Alberta Farmers' Union, today moved for a "showdown" with the Dominion government over parity prices by staging a 30-day delivery strike o fall farm produce, including grain, dairy goods and livestock.

The A.F.U. called out its 20,000 members at midnight Friday as the second farm strike in the history of Alberta got underway. R. J. Boutillier, A.F.U. Secretary, reported receipt of word from Saskatoon headquarters of the Saskatchewan branch, United Farmers of Canada, saying the U.F.C. in that province would issue a strike call to its 30,000 members at the same time in support of Alberta farmers.

By sunrise farmer pickets were of all farm produce, including ways. They also were in evidence in front of grain elevators, creameries and stockyards. Edmonton headquarters buzzed with activity as Union officials received early reports from their more than 600 locals throughout Alberta.

A.F.U. officials eagerly awaited an official statement from Saskatoon. Mr. Boutillier said the U.F.C. Saskatchewan branch reported negotiations with the federal government had broken down and members would be called out.

Both organizations have been asking for the establishment of a federal fact-finding board to set prices for farm produce that would be on a par with the prices farmers are required to pay for things they buy.

No Violence

Early reports reaching Edmonton indicated that, the 20,000 A.F.U. farmers who comprise about one-fifth of the province's 97,000 farm families, were adhering to requests from their leaders that no "violence" be used.

The A.F.U.'s tall, heavily built President, Carl J. Stimpfle, was expected to return to the city from his farm Sunday morning to personally supervise the strike.

Assistant Commissioner Herbert Darling, officer command "K" Division, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, said "I am not in any position to say anything at the moment," when asked if the R.C.M.P. would be policing picket lines throughout Alberta, he made the same reply when asked if extra police would be brought to Alberta because of the strike.

Support for the A.F.U. farmers came from the Calgary Trades and Labor Council last night which unanimously endorsed two motions in support of the strike

Alberta Government officials in Edmonton meantime anxiously awaited a reply to an appeal sent to Prime Minister Mackenzie King asking federal action on farmer demands for parity prices.

60,000 Volunteers Will Distribute New Ration Books

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP)—Across Canada next week 60,000 volunteers start circulating 12,000,000 copies of ration book No. 6 to Canadian consumers.

"Although it's more than a year since war ended these men and women have come forward again to assist us, just as they have been doing since rationing began four years ago," said O. W. Rodomar, Montreal, chief rationing administrator for Canada, today.

With their help the Federal Government hopes to cut to a minimum the expense of distribution, probably keeping it within the realm of the $13,000 it cost for book No. 5.

Churches and schools will be used as distribution centres.

Strange vehicles are used in bringing these now familiar "meal tickets" to residents in outlying districts. In some parts of the country they will be brought by canoe. At4 one small centre in Quebec Province they will arrive via the local hearse.

It has taken six months for printing of the books and their distribution—first to the 32 large cities, then the 627 regional centres, and lastly to the some 12,000 distribution spots.

The shiny lemon-colored booklet still contains meat, sugar and butter coupons—and extras too, about which Mr. Rodomar refrained from commenting.

"Who knows what shortages may occur in the future?" he asked.

FOUR MEN ARRESTED

Quebec, Sept. 7—(CP) — The Quebec L'Evenement Journal, French-language daily, said in a newspage story today that four men were arrested in Montreal yesterday at the request of Quebec Provincial Police in connection with a theft last Saturday night of $75,000 in bonds and cash from the New Richmond, Que., branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

The paper said Henri Charland, acting joint director of the Provincial Police here, said the case was "in the bag" and that developments would be made public during the weekend.

Bank Robbery Of $75,000 Probed

Montreal, Sept. 7 —(CP)— Provincial police here disclosed Friday they were investigating a robbery at the New Richmond, Que., branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia last Saturday night in which safety deposit vaults were broken into and an estimated $75,000 in valuables and cash taken.

V. F. Sedgewick, manager of the branch, in Bonaventure county, said over the long distance telephone that the deposit vaults were forced open with acetylene torches and that $50,000 in bonds and an undetermined amount of cash extracted. He said the robbery had been discovered Sunday morning.

Three men were reported arrested by provincial police in Montreal as suspects in the robbery, but Capt.-Det. J. A. Quenneville refused to comment.

Duck Hunters May Have Trouble Finding Guns, Ammunition, Ducks

(By The Canadian Press

Canada's duck hunters will be out in full force this year, but they may have trouble finding guns, ammunition — and ducks.

More hunters than ever before are expected to watch the sun rise over reed-bordered ponds, launch decoys and toot duck calls. But a Canadian Press survey today indicated:

1. Ducks may not be as plentiful as in other years.

2. In some provinces seasons have been shortened and limits curtailed.

3. Guns and ammunition will be generally scarce.

Mallards, canvas backs, teal, and black ducks will be the chief targets and while federal officials claim fewer ducks will be migrating north this year, most provincial game department officials said they expected hunters would have a satisfactory season.

Wood ducks are protected by game laws in some provinces but in Ontario hunters are allowed a quota of one a day.

Licence fees for non-resident hunters range from $10 in Prince Edward Island to $25.50 in Manitoba while in most cases residents pay $1 for a licence. In Nova Scotia, however, residents do not require a licence, in Manitoba they are charged $2.50 and in Saskatchewan $2.

Ammunition is available, but the hunt for it may be as exciting and exacting as the hunt for ducks. The man who wants to buy a new 12-bore pump-action will have to wait another year, but there is no shortage of other types of equipment — decoys, calls or clothing.

Quebec game officials said birds would be plentiful and hunters would have little difficulty reaching the limit of 12 birds a day or 150 for the season. The six-week season opens in various districts between Sept. 1 and Sept. 21.

Conservation plans in Ontario have cut the limit from 15 to 12 birds a day during the season which is Sept. 16 to Nov. 29 in the north and 11 days later in the south. Teal and Mallard are the most prevalent birds but the ammunition shortage will be acute.

TURNING POINT IN NEGOTIATIONS MAY BE EXPECTED

Attention Centred On Meeting Between The Union Leaders And Labor Minister

Ottawa, Sept. 7 — (CP)—Attention in Canada's 55-day steel strike today centred on a meeting to be attended by union leaders and Labor Minister Mitchell.

The conference, postponed from yesterday afternoon, was expected to mark a turning point in negotiations which have been under way for two weeks.

Reports were current that the proposals now under consideration placed the government's wage increase offer at something above 12½ cents while the union stood at 15 cents. Actually, it was understood, the situation was not as clear-cut as the two figures indicate. Each party had a formula which included various factors making up the total increase.

While this appeared to put the parties closer together than they had been before — latest official statement put the government's figure at 10 cents and the union at something over 15½ — yesterday's discussion seemed to indicate little inclination on either side to bridge the gap.

There were indications of behind-the-scenes activity by the government, but their significance was not clear. One of these was a report that the government had been in communication by telephone with the three companies affected by the strike.

Another unexplained development was the sudden postponement of yesterday afternoon's conference. At the scheduled time four union officers walked into Mr. Mitchell's office, headed by C. H. Millard, national director of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.). They were referred to Arthur MacNamara, deputy minister, who told them the meeting had been postponed until today. No reason was given. There was supposition that the government was making further revisions in its proposal.

Following the meeting with Mr. MacNamara, district directors of the three plants — including William Mahoney of the Sault plant — left the capital for their home districts to discuss the situation with their union locals.

60 BELIEVED DROWNED

Benares, India, Sept. 7 (Reuters)—Sixty persons were believed to have been drowned Friday in the river Ganges when a sailing boat was caught in a whirlpool and capsized.

German Responsible For Blowing up Five Rhine Bridges Arrested

Herford, Germany, Sept. 7 — (AP)— British headquarters announced today the arrest of J. Joseph Grohe, former Reich Commissioner for northern France and Belgium, and "the main person responsible for blowing up all five Rhine bridges at Cologne."

Grohe, who had been sought by all occupation powers since VE-Day, was found in bed by a British intelligence officer Aug. 21 at Warburg near the British-American frontier. He was still wearing a bandage to cover a head wound inflicted when he attempted to take his life four months after capitulation.

Grohe, who was gauleiter at Cologne and Aache (Aix-la-Chapelle) in latter days was described by British headquarters as the "last remaining gauleiter who was at liberty."

The headquarters announcement described Grohe as in the "top flight of Nazi officials and major war criminals."

His whereabouts were traced after "intensive interrogation" of his sister-in-law, officials said.

Headquarters declared that under Grohe's rule many atrocities were committed in Belgium and north France. When the Allied advance forced Grohe out of that area, he organized the Volksturm to fight the Americans, the announcement said.

"Failure of the Volksturm to halt American advances did not prevent him from personally ordering the blowing up of all five Rhine bridges at Cologne," headquarters said. "One of these Grohe, with the brutal disregard of human life which so characterized his rule of occupied countries, ordered blown when hundreds of refugees were pouring westward across the Rhine."

GREEKS TO LODGE PROTEST OVER PLANE INCIDENT

Reported Military Plane is Forced Down by Yugoslav Anti-Aircraft Fire

By L. S. CHAKALES

Athens, Sept. 7 (AP)— Political circles said today the Greek government certainly would lodge a protest with Marshal Tito concerning a Greek military plane which the General Staff and Air Ministry reported forced down in Yugoslavia yesterday by Yugoslav anti-aircraft fire.

Reports in Athens last night said crew members of the plane, which the General Staff and Air Ministry announcement said was riddled with anti-aircraft fire, suffered no injuries, but were detained by Yugoslav authorities.

In Belgrade, where United States Ambassador Richard C. Patterson conferred for 45 minutes yesterday with Marshal Tito concerning United States demands for indemnification for 5 Americans killed in a plane shot down over Yugoslav territory on Aug. 19, the government stated only that "the pilot has been interned."

Last night's Greek announcement of the plane incident, which followed by a little more than two weeks the summoning home of the Yugoslav Ambassador to Athens, said:

"This morning one of our planes of the Salonika air base, while flying in the Axionopoulis-Palkon mountain area and due to that fact flying at a low altitude, flew over nearby Yugoslav territory. Having been shot by ack ack fire, it landed in Goergelv, not knowing it was the territory of a neighboring state.

"The aircraft was not carrying a camera. These was no intention of border crossing, and owing to the loss of bearings the aircraft made a forced landing, the pilot being convinced he was over Greek territory. When the plane was overdue, two search planes were sent out above our territory. The Yugoslav military attache here has been kept aware of all above."

BEER SUPPLY HIGHER

Toronto, Sept. 7 —(CP)— The supply of beer has become more adequate in Ontario and the whole question of beer rationing is being discussed, said Col. William Griesinger, Ontario Liquor Control Board commissioner, last night. Neither Col. Griesinger nor other board officials however would comment on various rumors that the rationing system would be terminated shortly.

DREW CASE SCHEDULED

Toronto, Sept. 7(CP)—Among 58 cases listed for a special jury at the fall assizes opening here Monday is the $10,000 libel action brought by Premier Drew of Ontario against the Toronto Daily Star and Joseph E. Atkinson, publisher. The Drew suit is in consequence of editorials published in the Star during the provincial election campaign in June, 1945.

Only 25 Pounds Of Eiderdown Collected in Year

By H. DENT HODGSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Sept. 7 (CP)— One of Canada's lesser-known and more difficult business—the eiderdown industry—is suffering a post-war slump.

Eiderdown, a substance familiar to every northern woodsman, is a fluffy, fawn-colored feather that can reduce the weight of a sleeping bag from 30 to 40 pounds to six or eight. A few ounces of the $6 a pound material is enough for a comforter and the satin it takes to cover it will weigh more than the stuffing, which is unparalleled for warmth.

The eider duck dwells throughout Canada's northland, but the chief producing area is the north coast of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, where the eider has had a hard history.

Dr. O. H. Hewitt of the Resources Department, who recently visited the area, found residents of the district somewhat disinclined to take up the exacting work of collecting and cleaning the down. The position is reversed from the old days of the poorly-paid fishermen, and residents are finding it easier to make a living catching cod.

Production figures? Well, last year, Dr. Hewitt says, the area produced "only about 25 pounds."

"Of course," he added, looking around a fairly spacious office. "That would be enough to fill this room."

The eider enjoys a closed season west of Ontario, but in Northern Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes, is vulnerable to hunters for a one-month season.

The birds, averaging about 10 pounds, build a nest about 1 1-2 feet in diameter. A mother eider, speckled brown in color, lays five eggs several times the size of hen's eggs. She supplies all the down.

"VERY SLIGHT INCREASE" IN PRICE OF DATES

Ottawa, Sept. 7 (CP) — The Prices Board said in a statement "very little increase" in retail prices will result from recent adjustments in the ceiling price on dates.

Over the last few years Canada's supply of dates from the eastern hemisphere has been in bulk purchases made by the government and sold to the Canadian trade. Now, however, this plan has been discontinued and individual importers are bringing in their own supplies at slightly higher costs.

The Board said ceiling prices have been adjusted slightly to cover the importer but the resulting increase in prices to the public will be small.

THINKS WAR IN OFFING

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 7—(CP)— Many indications point directly to a third world war and the conflict may not be too far distant, said Mayor George R. Inglis, newly-elected president of the Ontario Command of the Canadian Corps Association, in an address to the veterans' group here last night.

'COURT OF HUMAN' RIGHTS' URGED BY AUSTRALIANS

Claim this Court Will Fulfill the Promises Made in Atlantic Charter

By ROBERT HEWETT

Paris, Sept. 7 —(AP)— Australian delegate H. F. Whitlam urged the peace conference today to set up an international "court of human rights" to fulfill the promises made in the Atlantic Charter.

The conference's legal and drafting commission took up this proposal at its first meeting in examining a projected Australian amendment to the Finnish treaty which the Finnish committee had shelved for drafting.

"The Atlantic Charter," said Mr. Whitlam, "is the common constitution of all peoples everywhere, we should create organs to make these principles respected."

Mr. Whitlam asserted that in signing the Atlantic Charter, all members of the United Nations pledged jointly and separately to respect the rights proclaimed by the charter.

The Australian amendment would insert clauses in all five treaties obliging each of the former enemy states to write guarantees of fundamental human rights in its constitution.

The international court of human rights would be established on a basis similar to the international court of justice to enforce these guarantees. States, groups, or individuals could file suit before the tribunal in such cases.

Reach an Accord.

Austrian Foreign Minister Dr. Karl Gruber and Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi notified the conference today that their two nations had reached an accord on political and ethnic rights for the German speaking population of the South Tyrol.

Perhaps ending controversy at the conference on the South Tyrol issue, the two statesmen submitted the text of their agreement signed Sept. 5, with the request that it be inserted in the Italian treaty. It annuls the Hitler-Musolini accord of 1939, grants Germans in the South Tyrol a measure of regional autonomy and permits them to maintain the German language, German instruction and German family names.

As they heard the Australian proposal the delegates still were mindful of British Foreign Secretary Bevin's suggestion to the Big Four yesterday that they set a "time table" for the signing of treaties with five former enemy states.

Believes European Economy Will Benefit if Germany Can Export Goods

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

One of the most important points of State Secretary Byrnes' Stuttgart speech on American policy regarding Germany strikes me as resting in this basic truth:

"Germany must be given a chance to export goods in order to import enough to make her economy self-sustaining. Germany is part of Europe, and recovery in Europe, and particularly in the adjoining states, will be slow indeed if Germany, with her great resources of iron and coal, is turned into a poorhouse."

That is indisputable, and it interlocks with all other vital issues. These include the punishment and reform of the Reich, France's claims to the Rhineland and the Ruhr (which Mr. Byrnes rejected), and the boundary between Poland and Germany (which the State Secretary says the United States doesn't consider as settled.)

It's just a matter of every-day horse-sense. Germany long had been the keystone of continental economy, and if you rip the keystone out of a structure there will be a collapse.

The division of Germany into four zones for purpose of Allied occupation was in accordance with the Potsdam agreement among the Bgi Three. But it also was agreed that those zones should be unified for economic purposes so that there might be an exchange of foodstuffs, raw materials, manufactures and other essentials, and thus permit of legitimate recovery of the stricken Reich to apoint where it could take care of itself and not have to be nursed like an invalid by the Allies.

Just such nursing has had to be done by the United States and Britain ever since the occupation began they have had to import large quantities of foodstuffs in order to prevent actual hunger among the Germans. Britain has been exporting grain for this purpose when she herself hasn't had enough for her own needs.

However, neither Russia nor France has been willing to implement the Potsdam pact regarding economic unification. Rich eastern Germany is in an air-tight Soviet compartment, and the French in the Rhineland have no desire to see Germany's great industries in the Ruhr revived.

So Germany has become a symbol of growing dissension between Russia and the Anglo-American Allies.

We can be sure, I believe, that so long as any Red soldiers remain in eastern Germany, just so long will American, British and French troops stay in their zones of occupation.

Great Maritime Fleet Landlocked Behind Picket Line

2,500 Ships Lie in Atlantic, Pacific Ports Without Crews

New York, Sept. 7. (AP)— A union threat to call on all organized labor in the United States for an over-all country-wide general strike if the government moves "any of our ships, as it has threatened to do", was voiced today by a union official as a great Maritime fleet lay landlocked behind a ring of striking, picketing American Federation of Labor seamen.

The threat was voiced by Paul Hall, port agent of the striking Seafarer's International Union (A.F.L.)

"If the government moves any of our ships as it has threatened to do," Hall said, "we will call on all organized labor to come out with us for an over-all national general strike. That means street car conductors, machinists and everybody else."

He said the seamen's strike now was "100 per cent effective in all ports,' 'and added "we are in fine shape and prepared to strike from here on in."

"We believe its effectiveness is beginning to tell and a complete tieup will win our demands," Hall said.

Pier sheds were dark behind closed entrances and cargo rooms were fixed tight as thousands of vessels and 500,000 men were idle in the greatest Maritime strike in history.

This was the picture as the strike of members of the Sailors Union of the Pacific and the Seafarers International Union entered its third day, and the second day of picketing:

Transocean passenger traffic was suspended; import and export of raw materials vital to United States mills and factories were halted; more than 250,000 tons of relief cargo for Europe and Asia were tied up in 125 UNRRA ships.

Officers of the two unions claimed more than 2,500 ships lay in Atlantic, Pacific and gulf ports without crews.

Both American and foreign vessels were hit by the strike — either directly by the striking seamen — seeking a reversal of a wage stabilization board ruling denying them the full wage increase won in recent negotiations — or by members of other unions who have honored the picket lines.

Officials of the S.U.P. said picketing extension to tugboats today would halt all harbor activity in New York except for a few railway barge-tugs. The tugboats, estimated at 2,200, were expected to cease operation by 4 p.m. E.D.T.

Ordered Shutdown

During a tugboat strike last February, fuel oil and coal supplies dwindled to virtual exhaustion, leading Mayor William O'Dwyer to order the shutdown of the city's business and amusement activities, except for certain exempted enterprises directly concerned with maintaining life and health.

Shipping men in New York called the walkout the costliest strike in the history of American shipping.

In Washington the War Department said the strike virtually had paralyzed shipment of American troops and supplies to Germany and Japan. But Harry Lundeberg, head of the S.U.P., declared in San Francisco that the War Department statement was a "falsehood."

"We have an ironclad rule in effect that no ships of the army or navy, either troopships or auxiliary vessels, are to be affected by the strike," he said in a telegram to the War Department. "For your information, we have cleared each day here with the proper authorities."

The A.F.L. seamen, nearly 100,000 in number, have full support of an estimated 400,000 other waterfront workers and the rival C.I.O. National Maritime Union. President Truman has declined to intervene in the strike and has turned the case over to Labor Secretary Schwellenbach.

Strikers leaders reiterated their determination to stay out until the W.S.B. rescinded a ruling which pared down to $17.50 a month an employer-approved pay hike of $22.50 on the West Coast and $27.50 in the East. The present pay scale is $145 a month.

Father Offers Entire Savings To Find Child

Kansas City, Sept. 7 (AP)—The distraught father of tiny Madeline (Tony) Tobias, missing from her home two days with a newly hired maid, today offered his life savings as reward for information while police combed state highways.

Philip Tobias, a loan company salesman who picked up a hitch-hiking girl last Monday and hired her as a maid when she said she was looking for work, appealed to the public for aid in locating three-year-old "Toby."

"The child's mother and I are near collapse," he said. "I know police are doing their best but I beg everyone to help in bringing our baby back safely to us. My entire life's savings are $200 but I offer it as a reward to anyone who can give information on our baby girl."

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Sept. 7—(CP)—Synopsis at 7:30 a.m.—Warm southwesterly winds continue over the lower Great Lakes and southern United States regions but the cold air that has been pushing southeastward across central Canada and northern United States has reached Muskoka and northwestern Haliburton and is expected to spread over the rest of Ontario by early afternoon. A few showers are occurring along the leading edge of the cold air and a little rain and drizzle has been reported during the night in Northern Ontario in the cold air itself.

HOPE TO MAINTAIN RATION

Ottawa, Sept. 7 (CP)—Unless milk production takes a "bad slump" this month and next, there is "every reason" to believe that the present butter ration of roughly six ounces per person per week will be maintained throughout the winter months, Prices Board officials said yesterday.

CROP ESTIMATED AT 90,000 BARRELS

The apple crop of Durham and Ontario counties is estimated at 90,000 barrels. That is more than the five-year average. For Hastings, Northumberland, Prince Edward and the St. Lawrence Valley prospects point to less than the average, but it is likely to be around 95,000 barrels. The total for Eastern Ontario is placed at 185,000 barrels, or 64 per cent of the five-year average.

Wealth of Garden Produce Offered On City Market

Farm and garden produce of almost every conceivable variety was offered on the local produce market Saturday as practically every available stand on the market square was occupied.

On the outside market tomatoes were offered in quantity at prices ranging from 25 to 35 cents the small basket. No. 1 peaches brought from 85 to 90 cents, locally grown prunes were 95 cents, blue damsons 50 cents. Lombardy plums 80 cents and green gages 75 cents the basket. Cooking pears brought 75 cents.

All varieties of seasonal apples were offered at prices ranging from 35 to 45 cents the small basket, while apple cider was offered at 60 cents the gallon.

On the vegetable market potatoes sold at from 50 to 55 cents the peck with bushel lots fetching $1.80 and bag lots at around $2.15. Cauliflower sold up to 40 cents, cucumbers 75 cents to $1 the basket with $1.25 being asked for gherkins. Corn sold at from 25 to 40 cents the dozen ears.

Bunched vegetables brought the usual dime per bunch while of the customer desired they could be produced in bulk lots. Muskmelons sold from 15 cents to 40 cents, while watermelons sold up to 75 cents and $1.

On the inside market first grade eggs held firm at 50 cents the dozen, with pullets selling for 30 cents. Fowl sold at from 40 cents for mature birds, while capons brought up to 48 cents the pound.

Young pigs were plentiful at prices ranging from $9 to $10 each. Hemlock slabwood sold at $3.30 the cord ,while one load of mixed Beech, Birch and Maple blocks was held at $35 for two and one-half cords.

Buffalo Tourist Has Purse Stolen

American tourists still persist in being careless with their wallets and purses according to reports being received at the local police station. Friday afternoon a Buffalo tourist reported leaving her purse in a washroom at a local cafe and when she returned for it the purse had disappeared.

There was little activity at the police station during the past twenty-four hours with two minor accidents involving dented fenders being reported.

Provincial police reported that a 1930 Ford coupe had been stolen some time Thursday night from a Shannonville garage.

NO AMUSEMENT ITEMS

New York, Sept. 7 (AP)— The Daily Mirror appeared today without advertising or amusement news. In a note to its readers the paper said its action was taken because of the truckmen's strike in New York City "and the consequent failure of the Mirror to receive newsprint."

DOG CAN'T BARK

Woodstock, Sept. 7 — (CP) — Woodstock has a dog which will never keep the neighbors awake at night — it can't bark. The dog, owned by Harvey Elliot of Woodstock is a barkless Basengi, whose ancestors were developed in the Belgian Congo for hunting big game.

MAKES LAST RUN

Fort Erie, Sept. 7 — (CP) — The miniature train at Crystal Beach, piloted by Lewis F. Lejeune, engineer for the past 11 years, made its last run on Labor Day. Taken in 1901 from the Pan-American Exposition, where the late President McKinley was its first passenger, ; the little train carried an estimated 3,000 persons a day during the summer season.

Crown's Appeal On Carefoot Case Is Adjourned

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP)—By way of a stated case before Mr. Justice Dalton Wells, the Crown yesterday moved to re-open the case of Ernest M. Carefoot, disqualified Belleville medical practitioner who was acquitted last May on charges of illegal possession of drugs.

At the same time Arthur Slaght, K.C., applied for a motion to quash the stated case.

His Lordship adjourned sine die the Crown's appeal, and reserved judgment on the defence motion.

In the original trial at Belleville Magistrate T. Y. Wills dismissed the drug charge on the gound there was no direct evidence Carefoot knew of five small bottles of morphine being in his physician's bag. The Crown argued the preponderance of evidence was against such finding.

Demorestville Fair Success

Following a lapse of several years due to wartime conditions, Demorestville fair made a successful comeback on Wednesday as under the guidance of the Sophiasburgh agricultural society the fair resumed its place as an important link in agricultural promotion in Prince Edward county.

Featured were the exhibits of school children from the township with prizes being awarded for children's entries in a variety of classes. High point winners in this section were Nancy Ann Gorsline and Clem Calnan. Other features were a program of sports events, a calf club competition and a fine array of exhibits.

President of the fair is C. Doxsee, vice presidents, B. Kotchpaw, B. Richards; secretary treasurer, Harry N. Gorsline and directors, H. Caughey, N. Trumble, Lee Thompson, C. B. Barker, Ernest Thompson, W. Robinson, Fred Hope, Carl Reid, H. Munro. Lady directors are Mrs. Ernest Thompson, Mrs. Ed. Carter, Mrs. R. Richards, Mrs. Huskisson, Mrs. Lee Thompson and Miss Marie Foster.

In the purebred Holstein classes C. Doxsee won five firsts, one second and a third, while Blake Richard had one first, a second and a third. Mr. Doxsee and Harold Munro each won first in the grade cattle division.

E. W. Gorsline and W. Robinson and Son took the sheep prizes, each having four firsts, for second and one special prize.

Harry Pyne of Picton showed two fine roadsters and single driving horses, winning first and second prizes in this class. Mr. Pyne won the best gentleman driver award, while Miss June Lovell, Picton, driving "Tony Grattan" was the best lady driver. Mrs. William White, West Point, won second place in the lady driver competition.

Teddy Aikens Of Sidney Twp. Gets 37½ lb. 'Lunge

At 14 years of age, Teddy Aikens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Aikens, 3rd concession, Sidney Township, is a fisherman with a prowess of which Izaak Waltons many years his senior might well be jealous.

Playing hookey from school last Wednesday afternoon, Teddy was successful in landing a 37 1-2 pound 'lunge in the Bay of Quinte and has since been questioned closely as to the technique of landing the big fellow. Three years ago, Teddy in company with ihs father and uncle, hooked a 40-pound 'lunge in Muscote Bay.

Teddy's latest trophy of the deep measured 49 inches in length and had a girth of 26 inches. It was on display at a Trenton service station, before the Aikens family cut it up for steaks.

New Weatherizing Material May Be Sprayed On

Spraying a new roof on or affixing sidewall materials in the same manner may seem a novel procedure to the builder or contractor accustomed to conventional methods of construction but this is the method used in the application of Insul-Mastic, a comparatively recent innovation to the construction world.

Offering the properties of insulation, waterproofing and of rust-proofing, the new Insul Mastic material can be used with equal success for roofing, for sidewalls and for a cover of all types of metal work calling for protection against the elements.

Procedure calls for a semi-plastic spray mastic applied to the surface to be protected, this material being covered with a slate granule of varied colors. The Slate Granule is available in red, green, brown, gray and in mixed colors, making for an attractive and long-lasting roof or sidewall.

The spray mastic material is composed of mica, gilsonite, ceramic clays and asbestos with a petroleum base and is guaranteed not to crack under stress at temperatures ranging down to 40 degrees below zero. The material is fireproof. It is sprayed on under pressure of 90 pounds with special machines.

R. L. Burrowes and Company, 209 Pinnacle Street, have been awarded the local agency for application of the new material which is gaining in popularity since equipment has been freed following the war. The first contract in the Belleville area will be covering of Reid's Dairy next week.

Much Publicized Wild Goose Victim Of Hunter's Gun

A hunter without a heart, who was breaking the law by shooting out of season, shot and killed the rare Canadian goose, formerly owned by Dayton Murphy, Wellington naturalist and sanctuary owner, the other day. The bird, eleven years old, was one of the most photographed and publicized of its kind on the continent.

The shooting took place on the mainland off Nicholson's Island, near Huycke's Point five miles west of Wellington. The owner of the goose, Mr. Leonard Beebee, who resides on the island, heard the shot that killed his favorite bird and also one of her goslings.

The goose had been purchased by Beebee from Murphy, along with its mate and brood of six goslings. Thirty minutes after the shot was fired the gander and five goslings returned to their home on the island. One of the young birds had been crippled by gunshot.

The early morning shot robbed Mr. Beebee of a bird he prized highly as a pet and a breeder. It was first secured as a gosling by Mr. Murphy in 1935 and became so tame it would eat food placed on his lips. Newspapers and magazines throughout the country have carried several stories and articles about Mr. Murphy and his famous goose.

The hunter is believed to have got in his work on the beach at Pleasant Bay for a band from the dead gosling was later found there and returned to Mr. Murphy. The hunter apparently carried off his dead prize.

BODY RECOVERED

Niagara Falls, Sept. 7 (CP) — The body of L.-Cpl. Charles William Pul of the provost corps at Chippewa barracks was recovered last night from the Welland river at Montrose, a week after the man's disappearance from Chippewa.

THIRTEEN BAILS OUT

Tokyo, Sept. 7 (AP)—Thirteen airmen bailed out of a superfortress which crashed into the water off Nagasaki Friday and at least two of them lost their lives, the United States Pacific Air Command here said today. Ten were rescued and the bodies of two others recovered. A 13th man still is missing.

Bombay's Bloody Week of Rioting Virtually at End

Bombay, Sept. 7 (CP)— Bombay's bloody week of Hindu-Moslem rioting appeared to be virtually at an end today, as revised government casualty lists placed the dead at 220 and injured at least 659 since the communal disturbances erupted last Sunday.

Reuters news agency reported 50,000 people have left Bombay in the last three days.

A communique said only six cases of stabbings or stonings were reported up to 11 a.m today and that mills and factories were operating normally. Trams and buses were running on almost all main roads, the communique said.

Layoffs Threatened In Many Industries

New York, Sept. 7 (AP)—Layoffs were threatened today in a number of New York industries, which can neither receive raw materials nor deliver finished goods because of the city's trucking strike, as the effects of the walkout of A.F.L. drivers spread to a huge section of the industrial cast.

Five thousand employees of 11 book manufacturers will be laid off "in about two days," Emanuel Burr, president of the Edition Bookbinders of New York, a trade association, said. He said the book manufacturers are running out of paper, cloth and other materials.

A spokesman for the cotton textile trade declared that New York's gigantic garment industry was expected to exhaust its supply of materials early next week, resulting in widespread shutdowns.

As the vast trucking tieup — with 30,000 members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters off the job around New York—widened south in New Jersey to Trenton, it brought various store shortages in the metropolitan area including such items as butter, eggs, milk and cigarets.

JUST ANOTHER HOLIDAY

Welland, Sept. 7 (CP)— A kindergarten pupil was rushed to his home the opening day of school here after he calmly announced he had swallwed a needle during a sewing class. After the lad was safely home — with another day of freedom in the offing—his deskmate winked slyly at the rest of the class and produced the missing needle from his pocket.

GREEKS TO LODGE

The Yugoslav announcement said that "for a long time our military authorities have noted military planes from Greece flying over our frontiers. It has been noted that the flying over our frontiers is purely of a military character." It said a Greek military reconnaissance plane was "forced to land by our fighters," and gave the date of the incident as Sept. 5

Account of Incident

Belgrade, Sept. 7 — (AP)—Under the headline, "Brutal offense on Yugoslav territory to Greek war planes," Belgrade's newspapers published on their front pages today an account of the incident in which a Greek plane was forced down by anti-aircraft fire Thursday.

Tanjug, the Yugoslav news agency, gave this account of the incident:

On the morning of Sept. 5 around 5:40 o'clock a Greek Spitfire crossed the Yugoslav-Greek frontier and penetrated 15 kilometres (9.3 miles) into Yugoslav territory. This plane, said Tanjug, dived over the town of Djevdjelija after which Yugoslav anti-aircraft opened fire and brought this plane down two kilometres (1.2 miles) from the frontier at 6 o'clock.

Two other military planes, of which one was a Spitfire and the other a two-motor monoplane, arrived from Greece at 7:45, the Tanjug account continued, and dived, opening fire on the downed plane, where Yugoslav guards were already stationed. The purpose of this attack, said Tanjug, was to attack units which guarded the plane and "destroy the downed plane in order to obliterate evidence of violation of the Yugoslav territory."

Tanjug said Yugoslav anti-aircraft caused the two following planes to flee. It said the downed plane was armed with four machine guns, two cannon and one photo gun and carried 1,200 rounds of cannon ammunition and 4,000 rounds of machine gun ammunition.

The news agency said the pilot was carrying a military map of Yugoslav territory and that statements he made to authorities showed "this plan was made in the aim of provocative reconnaissance."

HAIR-DO CREEPING BACK

Atlantic City, N.J., Sept. 7 (AP) —The hair-do is creeping back to the bob, if styles displayed last night by 48 girls in the Miss America pageant is an indication. Only six girls wore their hair in an up-sweep and 12 wore theirs down to the shoulders.

IN MEMORIAM

DAINARD — In ever loving memory of the late C-4446 Pte. Stan. E. Dainard, of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, killed in action in Italy September 8, 1944.

A good son lost, a dear brother gone,
The fondest fellow and the best.
We mourn you with unspoken grief
And thoughts that cannot be expressed.
But all that men desire in death
Is yours! a good and honored name.
The memory of years well spent,
The knowledge that you played the game.
The part of you we knew and loved
Lies not in cold and crumbling clay
But lives, and in our hearts we know
We'll meet again somewhere, some day.

—Always lovingly remembered by his Mum, Dad, and brothers, Fred and George.

DAINARD — In loving memory of my brother, the late C-4446 Pte. Stan. E. Dainard, killed in action, September 7th., 1944; buried in Draguignan, France.

Deep in the heart lies a picture
Of a loved one laid to rest.
In memory's frame, we shall keep it,
Because he was one of the best.

—Ever remembered and sadly missed by sister Jennie, brother-in-law Gordon, and nephew Bobby Burrell.

Army Officer Acquitted

Bad Nauheim, Germany, Sept. 7 (AP)—Capt. Joseph A. Robertson of Toledo, Ohio, was acquitted by a military court today of charges that he authorized and permitted cruelty to American soldier prisoners in the United States Army's Lichfield England guardhouse. Capt. Robertson, former Commander of a guard company at Lichfield, was the last of six officers and ten guards to be tried in connection with mistreatment of prisoners there during the last year of the war.

RAISES CORN AT 88

Sullivan, Ind., Sept. 7 (AP) — John A. Wilson, 88, has won his bet that he could raise a crop of corn this year, tending it himself. He used a 40-year-old plow and a 50-year-old cultivator in tending the seven-acre crop. He says it is the best corn he ever raised—"and the last."

NEW YORK BROKERS

New York, Sept. 6 —(CP)— Nervousness prevailed in the stock market today as traders eyed with uneasiness developments abroad with "war talk" continuing to be heard in board rooms.

Yesterday's broad recovery movement, when about half of the losses suffered in Tuesday's harp break were regained, continued at the opening today but the market quickly turned irregular as many brokers lightened accounts for safety's sake. Trading was not especially active.

Declines of from $2 to $4 were widely distributed at mid-day.

Bush Ranger Tells of Experiment To Disprove Myth About Black Bears

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto, Sept. 7. (CP)—The legendary ferocity of a mother black bear when someone tries to kidnap one of her cubs seems to be no more than a legend. An experienced Ontario bush ranger says he and a friend have either exploded the myth or come across a remarkably even-tempered bear.

The two men came upon two cubs crying for their mother "like a couple of kids" at the foot of a poplar. At the top of the tree the mother was nonchalantly feeding on leaves. One of the rangers picked up a cub while his companion held his rifle ready and waited for fireworks.

Down came the mother bear, snapping off branches in her haste and anger. She reached the ground snarling and padded a few steps in the ranger's direction. He held his ground, the cub in his arms. Then the bear gave her free cub a nudge with her snout and both made off for the underbush. The second cub followed "on the double" when the ranger set it down.

The ranger says he has never seen a ferocious mother bear in 20 years' experience in the north woods. The black bear, he adds, is "the clown of the woods" and is dangerous to man only when trapped and in agony.

When enemy bombs fractured the water-mains in various sections of London during the blitz emergency tanks were immediately set up. In no time at all ducks from park ponds saw the possibilities of these private swimming pools as home sites. One enthusiastic naturalist tramping the streets of the bomb-torn capital found fifty emergency water tanks that had been taken over by ducks and their families.

But, after a time the lure of the park ponds became strong again. One pair that brought up a family in a Leicester Square tank, pushed the ducklings out of it as soon as they were sturdy enough to do some hiking.

Parent ducks then marched them into the square and straight across Picadilly—where the traffic was thoughtfully held up for them. Then, taking the shortest cut to St. James Park, waddled down Lower Regent street, crossed Palll Mall, past the Athenaeum Club, down the York steps, and brought the family in safety to the little lake in the park.

After many heartbreaking failures, the giant-leaved waterlily of the Amazon, named the Royal Victoria to honor Britain's queen then reigning, was finally grown in 1849 and seen, at Kew Botanical Gardens, London.

Six feet in diameter, the circular leaves of this lily have an upturned rim and when protected with padding will support a man of 150 pounds as on a raft. Its flowers are creamy white with a pineapple fragrance; nocturnal in habit, and bloom for several nights.

More Than 300 Apply To Buy 44 Buildings At Former Army Camp

Brantford, Sept. 7 (CP) —More than 300 applications for the purchase of buildings at the former army camp near Mohawk Park, have been received by the Six Nations Council. At a meeting in Ohsweken yesterday, the council, with Chief Fred J. Hill presiding, began giving consideration to these applications for the 44 available buildings.

A special meeting has been called for Monday, to complete this work. It is expected the majority of the buildings will be used to improve housing conditions on the reservation. Consideration is given only to applications made by Six Nations Indians.

The council will use several of the buildings for school purposes. One will be re-erected at Ohsweken, to be used for manual training classes for the young people.

The Ohsweken fair board is planning to purchase a dining hall which will be moved to the fair grounds and used for a similar purpose.

Suspect Stabbing Apparently Outgrowth Anti-Gambling Drive

New Albany, Ind., Sept. 7. (AP) Dudley Jewell, 30, executive secretary of the New Albany Chamber of Commerce, was in serious condition today after being stabbed in what Police Chief Ben Wolfe said apparently was an outgrowth of a recent campaign against gambling.

The stabbing followed by only a few hours the suicide of Mayor Raymond L. Jaegers, 41.

James Stockdale, 40, was being held in jail on a charge of malicious cutting. Stockdale is a democratic candidate for constable in the November election.

Jewell was a member of a better-government committee which last month demanded enforcement of laws against gambling. Mayor Jaegers, a Republican, was found dead in his office yesterday, a .38-calibre pistol in his hand.

3rd Sidney — Mrs. Harley Hubble and Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Hubble accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gunter of Trenton, who spent the weekend at their home, called on Mr. and Mrs. George Sprackett in Belleville on Sunday afternoon, who were celebrating their sixtieth wedding anniversary.

Mrs. S. W. Spafford and Mrs. Fred Westover have returned home having spent last week in Whitby attending the W. M. S. School for Leaders.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Moon and Carl and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brickman and Marilyn spent a few days last week with relatives in Rochester, N.Y.

Mrs. Geraldine Chamberlain and Mr. Frank Benway of Hillier are visiting their sister and daughter, Mrs. C. W. May.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bush, accompanied by Mr. Gerald McDonald and Mrs. Carrie Allan and daughters of Belleville spent a day recently with Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Carmen at their home, Eldorado.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Grills and daughter Betty, Mrs. McDonald and Mr. and Mrs. Selburn Westover were dinner guests on Sunday evening at the home of Mrs. Grills' cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Noble Brown, Point Anne.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Jones and son Richard and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ethier of Belleville were supper guests on Sunday evening at the home of their brother, Mr. Orval May and their mother, Mrs. C. W. May.

Mr. Donald Hubble who is employed by the Bell Telephone Co. now stationed at Lindsay, spent the Labor Day weekend at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Denike and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Denike, Eudora and Douglas were dinner guests on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brenton, Corbyville.

Friends of Mrs. Douglas McPherson are pleased to learn of her satisfactory progress at the Belleville General Hospital, following an appendectomy on Wednesday where she was taken after an acute attack of appendicitis.

Mrs. Harley Hubble spent Thursday with Mrs. Wm. Hamilton at her home, 2nd line.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot Bailey spent a weekend recently at Stoney Lake with Mrs. Bailey's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. John McPherson of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Westover and Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Hubble accompanied Mr. and Mrs. John Ritz on a trip to the Thousand Islands, Watertown and Clayton, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Walker and family spent the holiday weekend with relatives at Detlor.

Centenary and Hogle School have re-opened with Miss Marion Pound and Miss Evelyn Callaghan as teachers.

FIRE STARTS IN MOW.

Dundalk, Sept. 7 (CP) — While threshing was in progress on the farm tenanted by Gordon McDonald, in Osprey Township, north of here, the barn caught fire and was totally destroyed—with the season's crop.

"Five minutes more would have completed the threshing," McDonald said, explaining he was at a loss to explain the origin of the fire, which started in the mow.

NEVER LIKE THIS IN EGYPT

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP)—Egypt was never like this—even when Rommel's approach jammed the country with refugees—said F. R. Aldercotte of Cairo as he sought to find a Toronto home for his daughter and son-in-law, W. L. Burgess of Regina.

Mr. Burgess—then a flight lieutenant—, was one of several R.C.A.F. fliers entertained in Mr. Aldercotte's Cairo home in the early days of the war.

Army Anklet Regime Ends, Short Puttees Are Preferred

Ottawa, Sept. 7—The army solemnly announced today its discovery of something many a soldier could have told it long ago: short puttees are preferable to the web anklets or gaiters they wore through the war.

Defence headquarters said "extensive research" had led to an end of the anklet regime, one that began with the appearance of the battledress in the Second Great War.

Large stocks of the anklets, however, will mean that only members of the permanent force wear the short puttees with their battledress for the time being. Others still in the army will wear anklets until they leave the service. The research army will get the puttees only for the summer months until present supplies of anklets are exhausted.

Chief Scout Welcomed

Chief Scout of the British Empire and Commonwealth, Lord Rowallan, is another prominent Briton now on visit to Canada. Before him came Viscount Montgomery, Chief of the British Imperial Staff and the Archbishop of Canterbury. These visits of leaders in the life of the Old Land are an inspiration to this Dominion in these important days following the close of a world-wide conflict.

With the visit of Lord Rowallan, Canadian Scouts of other years recall the great founder of the organization which has done so much for youth of not only the Empire but of the world. Lord Baden Powell who was the hero of Mafeking was known to the boyhood and youth of many lands.

Canadian youth and boyhood will leave no reception for the Chief Scout incomplete without the enthusiasm to which these boys are accustomed.

Scouting has done an immense amount of service for the young boys whose impressions have been so effective as to make them absorb and carry out in their lives the ideals of Scouting.

The Chief Scout will see at first hand what Canadian youth is like and his visit will have the effect of building up the organization for more and more service to growing boyhood and manhood in Canada and outside Canada.

The records of Scouting are records of which members of the order and the people are justly proud.

The Fair Season

Belleville Fair which dates back a century or more will this year be an exhibition worthy of the best in the past and will it is hoped achieve new records in attendance and in the quality of the performance program and exhibits.

This institution is a growing concern and is adding this year a new concrete barn for the accommodation of horses, to replace the frame barn which was destroyed some time ago.

The fair has won a reputation throughout the district and therefore the officers and directors have the brightest hopes for the 1946 show. The promise is very bright.

The aim is to add to the appeals and interest — that is the way in which attendance grows and the growth of attendance means larger prize lists and more attractions.

Polish Resettlement Corps

Detailed arrangements have now been completed for the enrolment of Polish servicemen in a resettlement corps in Britain.

Mr. Bevin announced in the House of Commons some months ago that it had been decided to demobilize those members of the Polish armed forces serving under British command who did not wish to return to Poland, and to enrol them temporarily in a resettlement corps in the United Kingdom. The resettlement corps would be a United Kingdom organization and for convenience would be administered by the service ministers. The corps would be essentially a transitional arrangement designed to facilitate passage from military to civil life.

The Polish Second Corps in Italy would be brought back first, followed by those from Germany, the Middle East and elsewhere.

It was necessary for these men to be responsible to the law of the United Kingdom during the transitional period in order to avoid introducing foreign law.

It would be both impracticable and unfair to launch the Poles, on their discharge from the armed forces, wholesale upon the labor market in the United Kingdom and to leave them to their own resources. Those for whom approved jobs could be found would go to them at once. Others would be employed by the United Kingdom Government on useful productive work and at the same time trained for special trades which they could ply on their full return to civil life, whether in the United Kingdom, in the British Commonwealth and Empire or in foreign countries — several other countries were willing to absorb numbers of them.

Mr. Bevin emphasized at the same time that the United Kingdom Government would continue to give every facility to any Poles who wished and were able to return to Poland and would continue to use its influence with them to go back to their own country.

That the United Kingdom Government has kept its word is shown by the fact that Mr. Bevin had given 160,000 as the approximate number of Polish servicemen unwilling to return to Poland. This number has now been reduced to some 130,000 which is estimated to be the total complement of the resettlement corps.

The War Office has now issued a brochure to all prospective members of the resettlement corps setting out the conditions of service. Service will be for two years, within which time it is reckoned the men will have completed their training for civil employment. Any Poles who wish may at any time during this period return to Poland, their passage will be provided and they will receive a war gratuity and an issue of civilian clothing. In the resettlement corps the Poles will be under British military law. They will not carry arms and will not have armed military police. All military exercises will be forbidden. Their pay will be paid by the United Kingdom Government and will be the same as in the Polish army and there will be family allowances. When a job is found for him in civil life a man will be placed on the reserve, but will be liable to be recalled to the resettlement corps if his civil employment comes to an end. Provision will be made for the men's wives and families to be accommodated as near as possible to the camps or centres where the members of the corps are housed.

The Polish Government recently sent a note to the United Kingdom Government expressing concern regarding the arrangements being made for the resettlement of the Poles who are not returning to Poland. The Polish Government is understood to take exception to the military or semi-military character of the resettlement corps as likely to be prejudicial to friendly Anglo-Polish relations. The note also points out that the Poles joining the resettlement corps will lose their Polish citizenship under Polish law.

The United Kingdom Government is preparing a reply to the Polish note. While it is premature to anticipate the terms of the United Kingdom Government's reply, the arguments adduced by Mr. Bevin on the 22nd of May afford a reasoned justification of the measures by which the United Kingdom Government is solving an admittedly difficult problem. The detailed arrangements now issued by the War Office are in comformity with the principles which Mr. Bevin enunciated.

Newspaper Facts

Despite 548 alerts and 76 actual raids, one British daily newspaper never failed to come out regularly and on time.

Former Field Marshal von Manstein was highly indignant at Nuernberg the other day when his statement that his wife was working on a farm searching for potato beetles was greeted with laughter in court. He appears to have misunderstood the amusement. To the French at the trial the hunt for the Colorado beetle (la chasse au doryphore) was during the occupation the code-phrase for all secret activities against the Germans or their collaborators, says the Manchester Guardian.

FAMILY FISHING TRIP

Now when it comes to fishing there are various ways to go:
The lonesome likes to steal to spots
he fancies none may know.
The thoughtful fellow wants a friend to chat with now and then.
The women think, for baiting hooks, a fishing trip needs men;
But best of all is hire a boat, a sturdy one and strong,
And tell the children they may go and take them all along.

Some men would wade the rapid streams, and that is lonely fun.
Some choose to cast the lily pads, fine
sport when neatly done.
On silence other men insist. They argue fish can hear
And will not come to take the bait
when chatterers are near.
But give me laughter in the boat, and shrieks of pure delight,
And children shouting back and forth:
"I think I've got a bite!"

The youngsters will be up at dawn
when such a day is planned,
You'll find them waiting at the car with fishing gear in hand.
Their eyes will dance with ectasy; and this you may be sure,
The memory of that fishing trip forever will endure.
For best of all the fishing joys the ancient sport bestows
Is that particular summer day when all the family goes.

"A plane's too fast for me — I'd rather take a leisurely trip and drive from New York to the Coast in three days!"

Canada's Spy Trials Will be Back in News In the Near Future

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 7 (CP) — Canada's spy trials will be back in the news again next week.

Delayed by the summer vacation period, they will be renewed in three cities, Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa, but chiefly in the national capital. Indications are however, that it will be late September if not early October before they really begin to roll.

Key to the progress in Ottawa is Monday's hearing in Toronto of the appeal of Edward Wilfred Mazerall, 30, former National Research Council engineer, against a four-year sentence for activities on behalf of Russian espionage. It is hoped that the Ontario Court of Appeals will hand down its decision within a week.

Although five accused are due to appear in Ontario Supreme Court and two others before a county court judge here Monday, it is expected the first group will be set over until possibly October 1 and the others until later.

Here is a boxscore of the 17 men and women so far detained:

To face Ontario Supreme Court:

H. S. Gerson, 43, Montreal and Ottawa, former Munitions Department official.

J. S. Benning, 38, Montreal and Ottawa, Munitions and Reconstruction Department official and Gerson's brother-in-law.

Sqdn. Ldr. M. S. Nightingale, 40, Montreal, ex-RCAF communications expert.

Eric Adams, Ottawa and Montreal, former Industrial Development Bank and Bank of Canada official.

Sqdn. Ldr. F. W. Poland, 38, Ottawa and Montreal, RCAF Intelligence officer.

To Face Speedy Trial by Judge Alone:

Capt. G. D. Lunan, 30, Ottawa, Canadian Information Service official.

Durnford Smith, 35, Hull, Que., National Research Council engineer.

Prof. Israel Halperin, 35, Queen's University mathematician and former army ballistics major.

Of these two groups, Luan, Nightingale, Gerson and Adams are serving three months in a Montreal jail for contempt of court in refusing to testify in the Rose case. The others are free on bail.

Sentenced and serving terms:

Mrs. Emma Woikin, 26, Blaine Lake, Sask., former cipher clerk in the External Affairs Department, now serving 2½ years for espionage plus six months for contempt of court in the Rose case.

Miss Kathleen Willsher, 40, Ottawa, deputy Registrar in the office of the British High Commissioner, now serving three years.

Sentenced and Appealing:

Fred Rose, 38, Montreal, Labor-Progressive member of Parliament for Montreal-Cartier, sentenced to six years in prison, whose date of appeal will be set in Montreal next week. Detained in jail.

E. W. Mazerall, 30, Ottawa and Fredericton, Ex-National Research Council engineer, sentenced to four years. His appeal will be heard Monday in Toronto. Free on bail.

To face King's Court Bench in Montreal:

Dr. Raymond Boyer, 40, McGill University Professor, and expert on the super explosive RDX. Now free on bail. Date of his trial will be set next week.

In Ottawa Magistrate's Court:

Dr. David Shugar, 30, Ottawa and Montreal, ex-naval anti submarine expert, detained a second time on a charge of conspiracy.

W. M. Pappin, Ottawa, Passport Office clerk, facing three charges arising from attempt to get a false passport for a Russian agent.

Dr. Henry Harris, Toronto optometrist, charged with conspiracy in connection with the same incident.

All three are out on bail and are due to appear again Sept. 16.

In Toronto court:

Dr. John Soboloff, Toronto medical practitioner, due to appear again September 13 on charge of making "untrue or misleading statement in writing" in connection with passport case. Free on bail.

Capital Closeups

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 7. (CP)— The first legal offshoot to reach the Supreme Court of Canada as a result of the spy probe found the two judges who comprised the Royal Commission on Espionage absent from their places on the bench. They are Mr. Justices R. L. Kellock and Robert Taschereau.

The case was the appeal of H. S. Gerson, former Munitions Department official, against the refusal by Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret to issue a writ of habeas corpus to get him out of Montreal's Bordeaux jail. Gerson was sentenced to jail for three months for refusing to testify in another espionage case in Montreal.

The decision of the Chief Justice was upheld by four members of the Supreme Court Bench, Thursday.

Technically, there was no legal barrier to either Mr. Justice Kellock or Mr. Justice Taschereau particpating in that hearing and that decision. But it is one of those cases where the rules of the court make it possible for them to escape the embarrassment of again passing judgment on a man who appeared before them as commissioners.

Their absence in this first case, then, can probably be taken as an indication that when any future appeals in the espionage trials reach Canada's highest court the two ex-commissioners will leave the judgments to their five colleagues.

Confessions of a Thwarted Critic

Senator G. G. McGeer (L-British Columbia), reminded in the Senate last week that he had mistakenly called Government Leader Wishart Robertson the Leader of the Opposition, confided —"I have always been on the side of the government in politics, and so for 35 years I have been referring to the Leader of the Opposition. I always wanted to be in opposition."

By-play in a Commons' debate unexpectedly involving Communism—Stanley Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre) to Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) who had just said he would not give a plugged nickel to the Communist cause: "And where did you get that red bowtie?"

Mr. Graydon: "I wore it for the occasion."

Labor Front

Labor Minister Mitchell offered his hand and his sympathies the other day to a prospective and fretful father. Said he: "You have my humble condolences. I understand you, too, are having labor problems."

Tourist Tales

The tourists have asked a lot of weird questions again this year but the boys of the protective staff still like the one about the American woman who showed up at the main entrance early one Sunday morning, wondering what kind of religion this church dealt out.

"She oughta heat some of the sermons they get off in here," one of them chuckled the other day.

Branch Planning Material Aid To Whitney Hospital

A meeting of the executive committee of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held on Sept. 5 in the Court House with Mrs. M. P. Duff presiding.

Many reports of committees were received reviewing the work of the past four month.

Loan Cupboard Supplies are in use by the V.O.N.

A visit to the Whitney Outpost Hospital was made early in July by four members of the Belleville executive. They found a village of 750 people is served by one nurse in a three-bed hospital, with little equipment. Because of the shortage of nursing help only emergency cases are taken into the hospital and the nurse visits the homes caring for the women and some 250 children. There is no doctor. Belleville Branch is planning some material aid to Whitney but the greatest need is for more nurses.

Treasurer's Report

The treasurer reported all accounts had been kept up to date. For the month of August—Bills were $273.08; Receipts, $130.

Two rooms upstairs in the County Court House are to be made serviceable for Women's Work and store rooms. A peacetime program is to fill a demand for civilian clothing, layettes, supplies for hospitals, sanitoria and the new blood transfusion service.

Just under 1,000 war brides have detrained at the Belleville Station to date. The canteen and rest room are the scenes of great activity in the early morning hours when the frequent groups are arriving and being met here or changing trains for district points.

A very appreciative letter was received concerning honey sent to Britain last year.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

NO, NO, NO POP, CHILDREN

Some so-called carbonated fountain beverages are harmful to persons under sixteen years of age, in my opinion, because they contain the drug caffeine or a similar alkaloid having a stimulating effect on brain, nerves, heart, kidneys. However, these beverages are not more injurious to the child than a comparable amount of tea or coffe would be. If you imagine tea and coffee are wholesome beverages for persons under sixteen years of age, my quaint notion need not disturb you.

Children or youths who indulge in pop frequently or daily derive an immediate lift or a brief spurt of refreshment or relief of fatigue from the sugar in the beverage. This gives a false sense of repletion or satisfaction —and natural appetite disappears. The youngster thus cheated out of his or her natural or normal appetite doesn't care for this or that food at mealtime and very likely the sophomeronic parents, aunts, grandmas and neighbors worry about the child going into decline or getting anemic or needing a tonic or something.

The pop cheats the young person out of not only the food — that is, the fat, protein and carbohydrate—a growing youngster requires to supply the daily calories—more calories a day are used by growing children than by the grown-up parents — but it cheats the poor kid out of the minerals and vitamins that he or she might get if the pop did not spoil natural appetite.

I'm sorry, kids, if you don't like me any more.

For an occasional treat, refreshing drink or cooling beverage, if just plain drinking water is not enough, I recommend as healthful beverages orangeade, lemonade, tomato juice or any fruit juice, milk, buttermilk or any of the lactic cultured milks (Bulgarian, Acidophius, etc.) but not chocolate or cocoa or coffee flavored milk. Ice cream soda or ice cream straight or sundae is all right, but only after meals as a dessert.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Lefthandedness

Our company wants to ascertain the percentage of lefthandedness in the general population of the United States.

(P. V., Librarian)

Answer—Approximately 4 in every hundred persons are born left-handed. Only authoritative work I have on the subject is B. S. Parson's "Lefthandedness," published by The Macmillan Co., in 1924—it is probably available in the public library.

Doping the Unborn Child

I say it is harmful both to the expectant mother and her unborn child if she drinks alcoholic liquor. My sister laughs at me as an old fogy. (Mrs. K. C.)

Answer—I say you are right.

Bathe Your Receptaculum Chyli In It

Some of my friends say that bathing your face in milk gives you a nice complexion. Please advise. (Miss D. M.)

Answer—Your complexion will benefit a good deal more if you bathe your receptaculum chyli in it. If you don't know how to do that, I'll tell you: Drink the milk. Bathing your face with water will do everything milk could possibly do for the complexion. You may learn something from the booklet "Save Your Skin" — for copy send 25c and stamped self addressed envelope. Complexion blemishes are dealt with in another booklet "Cosmetic Blemishes" — for copy send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope. No clippings, please. Ask in writing for what you want.

How to Dry Up

Son, 14, wets the bed nearly every night. This threatens to bar him from taking a possible scholarship. (D.O.W.)

Answer—A good many healthy young men had to be treated for bed-wetting when they entered the army. It is generally just a habit. Pamphlet on subject mailed on written request if you inclose stamped self-addressed envelope.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Do fish live at the bottom of the ocean?

Fish and other forms of marine life are found at all depths of the sea, even on the ocean floor in the deepest places known to man, although the number of marine animals and plants diminishes as the water gets deeper and farther from the land.

Species that live at the greatest depths in the ocean away from the coasts are known as "abyssal" fishes. They are especially adapted to withstand the great pressures encountered at the bottom of the sea. This does not mean that the bodies of deep-sea fish are especially strong. On the contrary the muscles and bones of such species are poorly developed. Their tissues are so uniformly permeated with fluids that the pressure is the same from all directions, both inside and out. When such fish are suddenly brought up from great depths it often happens that their air bladders burst and some of their tissues rupture, because the pressure of the air and gases within them is greater than the pressure without. Deep-sea fish feed on one another and on animal plant life that falls from above.

What is meant by the "bed of Procrustes"?

A person is placed on the "bed of Procrastes" or given the "Procrustean treatment" when he is compelled to conform to a situation by arbitrary or harsh methods.

Procrustes (pronounced "pro-KRUSS-tees"), according to Greek mythology, was a notorious robber and highway man of Attica, who adopted the cruel practice of tying his victims on an iron bed, cutting off the legs if the person was too long or stretching the body to the required length if it was too short. The fiend was finally slain by Theseus, who was the son of King Aegeus of Athens and who afterward conquered the Amazons and married their queen. Some versions of the legend say that Theseus treated Procrustes as he had treated his victims and made him fit his bed.

"Procrustes" appears to be from a Greek verb signifying "to beat out" or "to stretch."

In the "Talmud" the rabbis relate a similar method of torture employed by the inhabitants of Sodon on strangers who sought lodging in the city.

ONE KILLED, TWO MISSING IN COAL MINE EXPLOSION

Martins Ferry, O., Sept 7 — (AP)—One man was killed and two others were missing Friday after an explosion in the Youghiogheny and Ohio Coal Company's mine at Glen Robbins, 10 miles west of Martins Ferry.

The explosion was confined to one section in which men were working, officials said. There was no fire.

About 200 miners were in the shaft mine at the time, officials reported.

CHIEF 113 YEARS OLD, FOUND FATALLY INJURED BY FALL

Victoria, Sept. 7 (CP)—Chief John Peter, who claimed to be 113 years old, of the Penelekut Indians, Galiano Island, was found fatally injured at the foot of a 60-foot cliff below his cabin home at Porlier Pass. Almost blind, he is believed to have missed his footing. At one time he was gardener for Sir James Douglas, first governor of British Columbia

VANCOUVER ARTISTS SPUR MODERN HOME DESIGN

"Homes — not just houses!" is the cry of Vancouver's "Art In Living" group of artists, looking forward to the estimated 500,000 Canadian homes to be built in the next five years. The Group, made up of students, graduates and teachers from Vancouver School of Arts, believe this can be accomplished through six basic elements of design: light, view, space, shape, color and surface. Drawings for community centres have been studied by Group Leader Fred Amess and Secretary Jean Cooper (upper left) on vacant land in suburban Vancouver. Group is now busy with its autumn architectural display, a work which won such popularity when first exhibited in the Vancouver Art Gallery that it is now an annual event. From miniatures built in basement workshop Jack Newman (centre), aided by Ron Hamilton and Joyce Butler designs additions to own home. Below, Bert Binning's bright, airy home, built at cost of only $5,000, combining all six architectural elements stressed by Group, is one of Canada's most discussed examples of modern housing.—(Photos by Jack Long.)

State of Germany Greatly Improved Says U.S. Report

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Berlin, Sept. 7. (CP)—Although conditions in Germany are "most difficult", they are "better than the state of Germany at the end of the war gave the Germans any right to expect," said a United States intelligence report reviewing administration in the Allied zones of occupation.

The report said the British zone has shown "a high degree of stability "despite the fact it was the most difficult to administer and contained the Ruhr and most of the heavily-bombed cities.

Of other zones, it noted the development of Communism under Russian administration; the emergence of a definite scheme of occupation in the United States zone, and a steady overcoming of Germany antipathy in the French zone.

The British zone, the report continued, suffers from food shortage fundamentally much worse than in other zones which "naturally has cost the British some of their popularity with the German civilian population."

"The occupying authorities have been under constant pressure from both Great Britain and other countries to intensify their denazification drives and they have thus lost progressively more skilled German technicians who might have helped them in the reconstruction of their zone"

Pays Tribute to British

The report pays tribute to the British occupation forces saying "they present an impressive picture of an army that had learned to be firm, strong and at the same time well-behaved and courteous."

In the United States zone, the report said, the last year to the average German has seemed like a year of disconnected incidents but a definite pattern now is emerging.

The denazification program in the United States zone is described as more complete than anywhere else in Germany.

Three major developments are mentioned in the appraisal of the Russian zone. They are:

1. The handing over to Poland of all territories east of the Oder-Neisse Line, "accompanied by the expulsion of millions of Germans from those areas—an expulsion which often has been inhumanely carried out."

2. Rigorously advanced land reform, involving the expropriation of large estates and subdividing them among peasants and workers.

3. The successful drive to force the merger of the Communist Party and the Social Democratic Party into the new Socialist Unity Party, dominated by Communists.

Discussing the French zone, the summary said that because only a small part was captured by French troops during the war an attitude of disrespect developed among the Germans there. This caused the French a difficulty which now was being ironed out, due to the good discipline of the French troops.

Synod to Consider Creation of Dept. Of Public Relations

By SHANE MacKAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Sept. 7—(CP)—The Anglican Synod today will consider the creation of a department of public relations "for the purpose of informing members of the church and the public generally" on Anglican activities in Canada and aboard.

The resolution, which will be proposed by the Synod's executive council, asks for the establishment of a church news service through secular an dchurch periodicals, newspapers, radio broadcasts and motion pictures.

Most Rev. P. Carrington, Archbishop of Quebec, last night moved that the General Synod record its appreciation of the Federal Indian Affairs Branch. He said the report of the Indian works investigation commission gave the impression that the Synod did not appreciate the government's work, and press reports had emphasized this aspect. The motion was passed.

Yesterday, delegates heard Dr. H. A. Alderwood, secretary of the Indian and Eskimo residential schools commission, report a severe shortage of teachers and money for Indian work. He said the commission could offer only $52 a month to teachers, and its net overdraft since 1923 now exceeded $90,000.

The Synod also heard proposals for the establishment of a fund to aid new communities in the construction of churches. The appeal came from Rt. Rev. Renison of Schumacher, Bishop of Moosonee.

"I live in the north in a place where there are a lot of small towns just getting on their feet," he said. "There is no loan company which will lend them money to build churches. When the Roman Catholic church goes into a community they have no trouble getting the money. The people know that the credit of that great church is behind every priest and every bishop. That is what we lack."

TWEED

Cheese Business Will be Opened By C.H. LaBarge

Tweed — Mr. C. H. LaBarge, a prominent Ottawa man, born in Hungerford Township not far from Tweed, has just announced this week the purchase of the old C.N.R. roundhouse.

The building has been vacant for some years since this end of the line was abandoned north from Napanee.

Mr. LaBarge has organized a new company which will be known as "The Hastings Cheese Company Limited" and will have associated with him, his son, Edward, general manager, and Mr. Armand Turpin, assistant general manager.

Alterations and improvements will be necessary to the building, which is of cement blocks, 120 feet long, forty feet wide and adjoins the C.P.R. tracks, property includes two and one-half acres of land, previously owned by Emerson Hodgins, proprietor of Tweed Feed Mills.

Mr. LaBarge is the originator and former president of the Chateau Cheese Company of Ottawa, and he and his associates have been developing several new types of cheese at the experimental station at Otter Creek, and with their intentions of expansion they chose Tweed for their new establishment.

It is the hope of the new company to commence operations next spring if all equipment and machinery are available.

Baby Survivor Wins Hearts Of Hospital Nurses

Elko, Nev., Sept. 7 —(AP)— The blue-eyed, blond two-year-who survived the wreck of a trans-luxury airliner that orphaned him and killed 21 persons has won the hearts of everyone in this northeastern Nevada city.

"It's going to be hard to give him up," said a nurse at the hospital where Peter Link of Brooklyn is resting. "Everyone in the hospital — in fact, everybody in Elko — has fallen in love with him."

Peter, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Edward Link, were killed in the crash along with his two-month-old sister, Ellen, cried for a time but began to enjoy himself as toys arrived and photographers played with him.

At New York, meantime, the child's grandmother, Mrs. Elen Brisco, said that "with the help of God" she would care for the child.

THE ORIOLE'S FAREWELL

Faintly I heard his whistle—
Echo of verdant June—
Oh! how my pulses quickened
My heart with his song atune;
And then on a swawing tree-top
I saw his plumage bright,
And memories of happy summers
Awoke at the thrilling sight.

But his song held a touch of sadness,
He sang in a minor key,
A farewell song to the summer,
To his summer-home and me,
For today he is flying southward,
And in spite of the spirit's yearn,
The joys of a long-lost summer
Will never with him return.

Mrs. Warner McFaul Entertains Hillier Guild

The members of Hillier Guild were very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Warner McFaul on Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was well attended, and with the president, Mrs. C. L. Jones in the chair opened with singing a hymn followed by responsive reading of a Psalm. Rev. E. N. Grant offered prayer. The minutes of the August meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Merritt McFaul, and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Fred Morton. Plans were discussed for the holding of a bazaar in November. Two new members, Mrs. Eggleton and Mrs. Ralph Margetson were gladly welcomed.

A program followed consisting of readings by Mrs. Warner McFaul, Miss Helen Smith and Mrs. C. L. Jones. A vehicle contest put on by Mrs. Fred Morton was won by Mrs. W. H. Anderson, who received a prize. Mrs. Hickey was heard in a pleasing address in which she expressed her enjoyment of the meeting. At the close the hostess and her assistants served dainty refreshments.

'Big City' Girls Like Farm Life

Clarkson, Ont., Sept. 7 (CP)—The nucleus of a new "back-to-the-land" movement might be found among a group of "big city" girls who have been spending their summer months on the farms in this district about 20 miles west of Toronto.

Comprising university and high school students, typists, stenographers and secretaries, the group generally is well disposed to farming as a career. In fact, some of the girls said they would prefer to marry farmers rather than city men.

"I'd love to live on a farm all my life," was the enthusiastic comment made by petite Claire St. Pierre of Quebec City. Claire, just turned 19, could only say 'yes' and 'no' in English before she came here and now has a large vocabulary at her command.

Valerie Charlebois of Fort William is seriously considering giving up her chosen profession as a stenographer because "farming is a lot more fun." And 18-year-old Margaret Willis, a student majoring in psychology at the University of Toronto, said she was quite willing to trade her degree "for a few acres of ground any time."

WEDDINGS

SPEARMAN—BELL

A pretty wedding was solemnized Thursday, Sept. 5, at two o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, when Annie Phyliss, youngest daughter of Mrs. Mabel Bell and the late John E. Bell, became the bride of Lloyd Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Spearman, Inkerman.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. S. A. Spearman, brother of the groom, beneath an arch of evergreen and pink and white streamers.

The bride was lovely in a floor length gown of ivory brocaded chiffon. Her fingertip veil was caught to her hair with a halo headdress and she carried a bouquet of deep red roses.

The bride's sister, Vivian was bridesmaid, wearing a floor length gown of turquoise chiffon and matching headdress and she carried a bouquet of peach gladioli.

Little Mary Spearman was sweet as flower girl, wearing white silk and carried a nosegay of sweetpeas.

Ira Spearman, brother of the groom, was best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held, the bride's mother wore a Queen's blue frock and a corsage of pink gladioli, and the groom's mother wearing a black and white bengaline suit and corsage of mauve gladioli.

The happy couple left by motor for Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls ,the bride travelling in a navy crepe suit with white accessories and a corsage of roses. On their return they will reside at Inkerman.

Questions and Answers

Readers may direct their questions, giving their name and address and mentioning the name of this paper to Information Branch, WPTB, 490 Sussex St., Ottawa, Ontario.

Q.—I would like to know if there is a ceiling price on walnut bedroom suites, and if so, how much?

A.—Under Wartime Prices and Trade Board Order, 642, bedroom furniture is still subject to price ceiling. However, prices vary on this furniture and as you did not mention the model number of the suite you had in mind it would be impossible to furnish you with the exact ceiling price.

Q.—We rented our flat .. three large rooms .. for $28 about four years ago to a very nice lady. We were very satisfied with this arrangement until her son came home from overseas and brought his wife here to live. This young woman is untidy and very unpleasant to have in the house. Our own sons are home now and we would like to get these people out. What can we do about it?

A.—There has been a recent change in WPTB Rentals Regulations and you may now give these tenants six months' notice to vacate. This regulation applies only to those tenants who occupy shared accommodation such as the flat in your home.

Q.—My husband returned from overseas a week ago and received a priority to purchase his civilian suit. They did not give him one to purchase shirts and I understand he should have received this as shirts are hard to get. Is this correct?

A.—Sorry .. there are no priority certificates issued for the purchase of shirts. Retailers have been extremely fair about saving available supplies for returned men and we think if your husband presents his discharge papers at a men's wear store he will be able to purchase a shirt.

Q—When will the first coupons in the new ration book become valid?

A—On September 19, sugar-preserves coupons, S-26 to S-30 and meat coupon M.51 are valid and on September 26 butter coupons B-26 and meat coupon M-52 are good.

Big Breakfast—A Better Day

Radiant Marguerite Chapman starts the day with a good breakfast

By HELEN FOLLETT

DO YOU know that it is your duty to yourself to eat a maintenance breakfast? It has been a long time since dinner the night before; every cell of your body is crying out for nourishment. The wife and mother will see that Daddy and the children get their fill of chow, then she'll toss off a cup of coffee, nibble a piece of toast, and on with the day's job.

The career girl does the same, dashing out of the door with toast in her hand, maybe That's no way to treat oneself. How can you expect to look your prettiest if you don't keep strong and highly energized?

Bigger Breakfasts

Bigger and better breakfasts! That's what the doctor orders. Each meal must do an equal share to bring the day's intake of food elements, vitamins and minerals to the set standard.

Many a woman feels gloomy all morning because her poor tummy is crying out for groceries. Let her include fruit, a beverage, cereal and an egg and it will be top o' the morning to the world.

A substantial breakfast makes for efficiency whether one is doing the house chores, holding down an executive's job or standing behind a counter. And don't forget that a cereal, warm or cold, is the breakfast's backbone.

Thin girls often have a dislike for starchy foods! that is one reason why they are thin. Starch creates energy. Put cream and sugar on your cereal.

Whole Grain Cereals

Whole grain cereals attend to vitamin B-1 requirements. They also aid digestion, are said to take the knots out of nervous systems that are always acting up. They provide roughage which is a requirement if one has little or no exercise.

Luncheon should include a sandwich, a glass of milk, a green or fruit salad. That combination will tide one over until dinner time. If you're a wage earner and come home tired, be sure to rest before you eat. Hit-and-run meals aren't good for you. Not if your want to keep healthy and good-looking.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Excessive Perspiration

When a pulchritude preacher believes that it is time to say something about the baneful BO, she feels like skirting all around the subject. It just doesn't seem polite to infer that any passengers riding on this beauty wagon can be so afflicted, or be unmindful of the matter if they are. There's no sense in beating around the bush. The harsh truth is that many otherwise fastidious women—and men, too—are walking around in an aura that is a strain on the public nose.

Go to a movie for relaxation and amusement, and you may have to change your seat because your nearest neighbor does not seem to realize that the daily bath is a national institution, that cosmetic counters offer countless remedies for skin moisture.

Dress and corset fitters find life a burden because of this hygienic lapse. They report that many a patron —dressed to kill in expensive dry goods— will wear soiled undies and smell to heaven because she has an unclean skin surface. Doesn't speak well for some of us. Physicians who make medical examinations for insurance companies will tell you that men are more frequent bathers than women. We feel like a traitor to the sisterhood, making these revelations. But some slack sisters may reform.

We won't say that the daily bath and the free use of a deterrent in the armpits will cure all cases, but they will cure most of them .There may be a glandular disturbance, or the excessive sweating may be a disease sympton, in which event one should have the attention of a physician.

The bath should not be a casual one. The skin is forever shedding dead scales, revealing new ones. Because the exudations of sweat glands cling to the dead cells, they must be removed. That cannot be accomplished by going over the body surface with a washcloth. A well-soaped, heavy-bristled brush should be used with plenty of friction. There should be a warm, thorough rinsing, followed by a quick cold shower and a brisk rubgown.

As far as skin moisture is concerned, the effects of the bath last only for a few hours. Hence the need of an anti-perspirant.

An individual who gets an ordinary amount of exercise during a summer day, may give off as much as a quart of liquid through the pores of the skin. Sometimes there is little evidence of the moisture, but chemicals are deposited on the epidermal coat, and soon become offensive.

The girl who is cursed with a jittery nervous system is likely to suffer from B.O, Sweating palms are traced directly to nervousness. She would do well to have a salt glow every morning, standing in the bath tub, rubbing moistened salt all over the body, finishing with an alternating hot and cold shower.

Sweating palms are traced directly to nervousness

LIFE'S MASQUERADE

I watched the maskers in their merriment,
Identity concealed in varied guise,
And as to music's sway their footsteps bent
I tried to fathom each assumed disguise;
But, all unknown, the maskers passed me by,
As strangers pass upon an unknown strand,
Save, now and then, I gladly could descry,
A well-known gesture, or familiar hand.

The human race like maskers on parade,
Conceal sad hearts by cloaks of cheer and jest,
Hide souls of spite, with masks of smiles, afraid
To show this hate among earth's good and best;
Some hide their troubles 'neath their merry words,
And some with masks of joy conceal life's carking care;
And oft unseen, the hearts of men are stirred
To rise to heights that but the brave would dare.

Some day, when life's deep secrets are revealed
And earthly masks are one by one laid down,
The gold, beneath the mask of dross, concealed,
Will shine as jewels in a kingly crown;
And, maybe, too, we'll find the gayest soul,
The one with ready smile and happy heart,
Wore but joy's mask to cheer us to our goal
And with sad heart played well the jester's part.

MARMORA I.O.D.E.

Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. held its September meeting on 3rd September, at the home of Mrs. Gregor Murray, with the Regent, Mrs. J. Aitchison, presiding

On motion duly seconded it was resolved that the number of members constituting a quorum be set at eight. It was unanimously decided that the proceeds from the booth operated at the Marmora Street Dance be forwarded to the Second War Memorial Fund.

The Regent read a letter from headquarters stating that greater efforts were needed to provide knitting and sewing for various overseas relief agencies. Members were divided into groups to take charge of entertainment and money-raising endeavors during the balance of the year.

Application for membership from Mrs. I. F. McIntosh was received and accepted.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. A. M. Jones with Mrs. M. H. Borland and Mrs. Hugh Brady as hostess.

Following the meeting, 20 personal property bags were packed and made ready for shipment to British Women Army personnel in England.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Mother-in-Law is Making Her Miserable

Among the many things for which the current housing situation must be blamed is the boost it has given to the "mother-in-law problem".

Many a young wife who would make out very well indeed with her mother-in-law, if she were living at a reasonable distance from her, now finds acute friction developing between the two of them because they are obliged to live in the same house.

And, of course, it isn't confined to a wife. Many a present-day husband is faced with problems he never dreamed of, because he and his wife have had to move in with her mother.

It is a wife's story, however, that is told in the following letter:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am living with my in-laws, due to the housing shortage.

"What I can't understand is the complete indifference and almost hostile attitude my mother-in-law shows toward me. She criticizes almost everything I do, never even allowing me to prepare a meal for my husband, which I always did before. She also criticizes the way I iron his shirts, among other things. She frequently disregards any privacy, walking into our room without so much as a knock on the door. She also excludes me from conversations with my husband, as though I didn't exist, whenever we are present as a family group. My father-in-law, however, appears to like me and is very cordial to me, which I can see she also resents.

"Recently, her dog bit me on the hand. Luckily, it was nothing serious but I heard her say to the dog, 'You know who is wanted around here and who is not, don't you?' This was the last straw.

"I have tried to get an apartment but to no avail. I have talked this over with my husband, but he says I am just imagining things. What should I do—tell her how I feel, pack up and go home (which I think she would like), or stay here and go crazy?

"Connie"

Obviously, here is a case where a mother's jealousy of her son's wife has come to a head when the two found themselves in the same house. No doubt, this mother has always resented the fact of her son's marriage and the fact that another woman has, so she imagines, taken her place in her son's affections.

As for the son, either he is trying to avoid as much trouble as he can when he says that his wife is "just imagining things"—perhaps he is afraid they might find themselves without a home in case of an open break between the two families—or he is so much under his mother's thumb that he doesn't dare stand up for himself or his wife against her.

If the situation is as thoroughly disagreeable as it seems, then it is certainly time for this young couple to get out on their own. Even though it may not be possible to find the type of living quarters they would like, a furnished room, it seems to me, would be better than to go on living under such conditions.

I would suggest that this wife tell her husband, as quietly as possible, and trying to avoid quarrelling or criticizing his mother, that she feels they should have some place of their own, no matter how small; that, as his wife, she should be in a position to do all the little things for her husband that she is unable to do at present, and that she is going out to make a systematic hunt for some place to live.

Then, when she finds it, I think that she should move into it, whether her husband agrees to come or not. If he is a worthwhile short of person, he will certainly agree with her on the necessity of their living alone, and will be happy to go with her to any place she has found. If he really loves her, he will want to be alone with her and have a home of his own, even though that home may temporarily be only a furnished room. Moreover, despite how he might feel about living with his mother, he would want his wife to be happy. It seems to me that the time has definitely come when this man should make a choice between his wife and mother.

FOXBORO W.M.S.

Foxboro— A large number of W.M.S. ladies from Holloway, Marsh Hill and Foxboro were very nicely entertained by Mrs. Shorten and Mrs. Hamilton on the lawn at the parsonage on Thursday afternoon, when the September W.M.S. meeting was held. The devotional period was taken by Mrs. Shorten on the theme of "India" and the new study book "India at the Threshold" was nicely introduced by Mrs. E. G. Bailey, Mrs. Macklin and Mrs. (Rev.) Armstrong, of Stirling. A solo "My Task", was given by Rev. L. Shorten, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. K. Hamilton and the Mission Band Leader, Mrs. C. Finkle and Literature Secretary, Mrs. B. Rombough, gave most interesting reports about their work, after which Mrs. J. G. Sills gave some interesting thoughts on "The Work of the School for Leaders", at Whitby.

At the close of the meeting the hostesses served refreshments.

MOIRA W.I.

Moira.—The August meeting of the Women's Institute for Huntingdon East was held at the home of Mrs. Percy Cooney on Thursday.

The meeting was opened in the usual manner. Some business was discussed. It was decided to invite Mr. Fair to speak at the next meeting.

Roll call was answered by "an event in Canadian History, which makes me proud to be a Canadian".

The topic "Pioneer Days in Moira", was thoroughly dealt with by Mrs. George Foster and proved very interesting.

Mrs. Cooney gave a reading "Canning Time", and another reading "Century-old Memories" by Mrs. Wesley Farrell

The serving of refreshments concluded the meeting.

Clyde Beatty, Famous Trainer, Heads His Own Circus

EXEMPLIFYING man's dominance over the most savage, cruel, blood-thirsty, man-killing beasts ever assembled, Clyde Beatty appears twice daily with his jungle performers at the Clyde Beatty Railroad Circus.

Forty wild, ferocious Nubian lions and Bengal tigers, male and female, comprise the vast group of snarling, treacherous, man-eating beasts which Clyde Beatty, king of the steel arena, will face when the Clyde Beatty Trained Wild Animal Circus comes to Belleville, for one day only, Thursday, September 12th at the Station and Cemetery Street Grounds.

Although still a young man, Beatty is unchallenged as the greatest wild animal trainer the world has ever known. He has been bitten, clawed, and mauled by the most vicious animals on earth, but this nerveless man of slight build still defies his ferocious charges twice daily.

Once Nero, a huge Nubian black-maner lion, beat off an enraged tiger which was mauling Beatty during a performance. Strange to say, just one year later Nero himself leaped from his perch, attacked Beatty, and sent the famous trainer to the hospital with a body ripped and shredded by claws and fangs.

Continually augmenting his startling arenic exhibition with new features and thrills, Beatty has this season added to his display King and Kitty, huge lion and tiger, which sit up on their haunches at his command and wave their big front paws to the circus crowds. He also presents the world-famous "Nigger", a Bengal tiger which rolls over and over like a kitten, then flies into a tornadic spin.

The Clyde Beatty Circus embraces many additional trained animal features, including Mrs. Harriett Beatty's renowned elephant-riding tiger, famous high school horses, and highly trained troupes of performing dogs, ponies, chimpanees and elephants.

Performances are presented twice daily at 2.30 and 8 p.m., with doors to the menagerie opening at 1.30 and 7 o'clock.

Reserved seat tickets including general admission on sale Circus Day, 10 a.m., till 5 p.m. at Pauley's Drug Store.

Whipper Watson Has Davis, Referee Bert Maxwell Out For Count But Foe Awarded Bout

Bedlam Reigns as Crowd Vigorously Protests Decision; Pair Rematched Next Week With Toar Morgan as Referee

You can't use a wrestling referee as a buffer between ring post and the opponent's noggin when you are using the latter as a battering ram, even if you are the British Empire wrestling champion. No sirree, it just can't be done.

So champion Whipper Billy Watson found out to his intense surprise Friday night at the Hume Arena. He had whipped Karl "Krippler" Davis into submission, then tucking the Krippler's head underneath his arm charged across the ring to cause great dents to appeair in various ring dents to appear in various ring

But the third time, the Whipper caught Referee Bert Maxwell between the Davis cranium and the post. Came a great gush of air from the Maxwellian lips, and the chubby referee folded up like a deflated accordian. Whipper fell across the prostrate Davis, then looked around for the familiar victory pat on the back.

Staggered to Feet

Then came the surprise. Maxwell staggered to his feet, dragged Davis into an upright position and raised his arm in token of victory. Both had won a fall prexiously and the large crowd was noisily waiting for the "kill".

Watson got fighting mad when he discovered that Maxwell had awarded the third fall to the "Krippler". So did the crowd. Bedlam broke loose and yelling, shrieking fans, both men and women, bobby-soxers and high-schoolers milled about the ring in protest against what they thought was an unfair decision. They pounded the canvas. They jumped and shouted. Then Watson attacked Davis. with solid slugs to the chin. Davis wrapped his towel around Watson's neck and sent several smashes to the champion's jaw. Then Watson reversed the proceedings. It was several minutes before the enraged faithful decided to call it a day, and trooped noisily out of the building.

Demand Rematch

Several demanded a rematch of the pair—and a late report today stated that the request will be granted. Watson and Davis will meet again next Friday night in a no-time limit main bout with none other than Toar Morgan the dashing marine as referee.

There is no love lost between Davis and Watson: That was plain to be seen in Friday's jamboree of flailing fists, cobra holds, "whips" and husky punches to the opposing jaws.

Watson won the first fall after 18 minutes of milling in which he showed remarkable agility in keeping out of the deadly hands of the Krippler. But he took plenty of punishment as the crafty Davis sent short vicious punches to the Watson profile at close quarters.

Davis came back to take the second fall in thirteen minutes with body slams and his famous cobra hold. He drove the champion out of the ring on several occasions, and kept him there while the crowd hooted its derision at his tactics. Finally he hoisted the champion aloft and sent him crashing to the canvas. Watson was out but the Krippler slung him aloft twice more for good measure before taking the fall.

Never Left Ring

Watson did not leave the ring after this fall, and swung into a vicious attack at the resumption of hostilities. After taking plenty of what Davis had to offer the pride of East York's temper flared and he pounded and slugged and "whipped" Davis into Davis definitely beaten, then used the battering ram attacks with the above-mentioned results.

After the bout, the incensed fans milled around both wrestlers and Referee Maxwell as they went to the dressing rooms. A few fans started private feuds among themselves but no serious damage resulted.

Handsome Ben Sharpe of Hamilton was given the referee's decision over Jim "Goon" Henry in the semi-final after the two had staged a torrid time limit battle.

Dunlop Injures Hand

The preliminary between Al. "Bunny" Dunlop and Toar Morgan was one of the shortest bouts ever seen here. It lasted just four minutes and ended abruptly when the "Bunny" injured his hand while throwing punches at the Marine. He had Morgan against the ring-post and was throwing haymakers at his chin when the marine ducked and the "Bunny" socked the rope turnbuckle—but hard. A bone in his hand was painfully injured and Referee Cliff Fox awarded the bout to Morgan when Dunlop was unable to continue.

BUFFALO BISONS VIRTUALLY OUT OF THE PLAYOFFS

Defeated by Joe Coleman of the Leafs by 6 to 3 Count

(By The Associated Press)

The International League campaign winds up this weekend with the order of the last three playoff positions still to be determined.

Buffalo Bisons virtually eliminated themselves from the playoffs by losing 6-3 to the Maple Leafs in Toronto last night while Baltimore was winning a doubleheader from Jersey City, 4-3 and 5-3.

The sweep moved the crowd-pleasing Orioles from fourth to third place as Newark fell back to fourth by dropping a 4-3 decision to the runner-up Syracuse Chiefs. In the other game on the program Rochester Red Wings whipped the pennant-winning Montreal Royals, 12-8.

Buffalo now trails Newark by two full games with each team having only three contests left to play.

Toronto's Joe Coleman proved Buffalo's undoing. He held the Bisons to seven hits and fanned as many in chalking up his 14th triumph.

The Red Wings clubbed out 17 safeties in humbling the Royals for the third time in the last four games.

OAKWOOD INDIANS CRUSH BEACHES BY 28-4 COUNT

Passing and Running Attack Sparked by the Stukus Brothers, Margin of Win

Toronto, Sept. 7 — (CP)—For a man renowned as one of the better bone-crushers of the "two-bucks and a kick" era, burly Brian Timmis had his Toronto Indians off to a flying start today in the Ontario Rugby Football Union with a repertoire of wide-open plays that stamped them the team to beat.

Indians beat Balmy Beach 28-4 in a floodlight game last night that opened the O.R.F.U. schedule, and in trouncing the 1945 league champions, the Indians used the forward-passing skill of Annis and Bill Stukus to the full. The Stukus brothers completed 15 of 20 forwards attempted, and these set up half of the Indians' four touchdowns, with stocky Doug Pyzer the receiver on both.

"It's all a matter of shaking the receivers loose with a couple of boys like the Stukus' throwing them," said Timmis, who's coaching the big red team for the first time after a lengthy career as Hamilton Tiger player and coach. Despite the lop-sided score Timmis wasn't completely satisfied with the team.

Missed Some Chances

In the first half, when Indians led 14-3, Timmis said they missed "at least two chances" for other majors. Both times the Beach line hurled back three Indians' plays within their 10-yard line, but after that, with big Doug Turner of Beaches injured just before the half, Indians seemed to go through at will.

Coach Bobby Porter whose Balmies could get only a second quarter placement by Johnny Luke and a last period rouge by Ralph Larue, was disappointed, of course. But he said "The Beach will still show them a thing or two." He pointed out that two regular linesmen, Cec Foderingham and George Meen, were on the ailing list and said Beaches are "still a good two weeks away from being in shape."

Won't Release Kijk

Indians were without Fred Kijk, a regular last season, but big Don Crowe fitted in at his kicking job. Kijk, who signed with Lew Hayman's Montreal Alouettes earlier in the season, said Hayman has refused to come through with a promised release from the Big Four team.

Besides the forward-pass offensive Indians showed a tricky display of running plays that brought one touchdown when Fred Brown crashed over from 3 yards. The other major came after a Balmy Beach kick had been blocked by Ted Gray, with Harry Brown carrying the ball over and falling on it.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

The Kiwanis Juniors baseballers left today for Peterborough where they take on the classy Oshawa B'Nai B'rith youngsters in the third and "creocial" game of their second round OBA junior playdowns. A late report this morning stated that the OBA has appointed neutral umpires to do the officiating—and that should satisfy all concerned. There was plenty of criticism on the part of both squads relative to the various umps both here and at Oshawa, and the mask 'n pad lads from Toronto who will act in today's game should stop a lot of bickering.

While Coach St. Louis made no statement regarding the mound assignment it is quite likely he will use Bunton. The blonde righthander did a good job against the opposing sluggers both here and in Oshawa, and if he is right should stop them in their tracks. The kids feel they have got a bad game out of their system and the squad was full of confidence when they pulled out today.

Max People's Saco Marines also trekked out of town today in search of victory at the expense of the Oshawa Robin Leather squad who tacked a 4-6 shutout on the blue-and-whites last week. Sacos have their backs to the wall, for defeat means elimination from the intermediate 'playdowns'. Halloran, Hunter and Adams all made the trip and it is quite likely the former will get the starting job. Oshawa will likely use their ace, McConkey, for the important fray.

Jolly Jorge, it appears, is a muscular, black-moustached figure of a man, impeccably dressed and groomed and head of a family whose fortune runs well above $60,000,000. And as the nag said when he stuck his nose in the poison ivy, "That ain't hay, brother."

According to one story, Senor Hergay, that's the proper pronunciation for Jorge, has his own private manicurist, a gal that stepped off a magazine cover. He also has a personal barber and tailor. His clothes, shoes, jewellery are made to order. Shirts cost him $60 each. His wardrobe is a room lined with closets filled with wearing apparel. He owns fifty sports jackets and eight automobiles including a jeep and a 1942 customs-made Packard.

The cost of what Jorge wears every day to work would keep a small family in food and lodging for a year or more. In addition to the expensive clothes he wears an eight-carat blue-white diamond ring. His tie-clip is an arrow set solidly with diamonds. His wrist watch is part of a broad corrugated bracelet of hinged platinum and was made to his order in Switzerland. The watch in addition to giving an accurate count of the hours, minutes and seconds also tell the day and the month. A long key chain which hangs from his waistband and finally disappears in a pant's pocket is also gold and looks strong enough to anchor the Queen Mary. A .38 calibre automatic pistol in a waistband holster completes his attire. He doesn't wear a hat.

Ernie Smith, Swaco's tall chucker and Lefty Hall, who throws 'em from the forkside for Latta, hooked up in a neat twirling duel the other night at the Alemite ball orchard. Smitty allowed but four scattered hits while Hall was touched for a measly five clouts, one of them a homer by Dick Fitzpatrick with the sacks unoccupied. Only twenty-four men faced Smith who sent five down via the strikeout route. Hall pitched a masterful game, but his own error in the fourth was responsible for the other run scored against him.

Goodman Juniors will take on a Toronto squad in their next step down the Junior "A" softball championship trail. The first fray takes place in Toronto on Saturday, September 14 with the return game here on Wednesday, September 18, with the third game scheduled for September 21 on neutral grounds. But probably that won't be necessary.

"Red" Carson postcards us from Chicago where he and the brand new wife are doing a spot of honeymooning. But even the new missus couldn't keep Red away from a ball park and he states he has seen a couple of major league brawls. Expects to be home today.

Colorful stories slip across the Rio Grande, south of the border down Mexico way anent colorful gent by the name of Jorge Pasquel, Mahatma of the Mexican "Beisbol" league and who juggles with millions like the boys in the back room do with pennies.

HOMER-A-DAY HABIT KEEPS CARDINALS AHEAD

St. Louis Pitting Slugging Power Against Fine Hurling by Brooklyn

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

It's St. Louis slugging against Brooklyn pitching as the front-running Cardinals and runner-up Dodgers race down the stretch 2½ games apart in a sizzling September drive for the National League pennant.

Each team has won six of seven games since Sept. 1, with the Cards relying upon their punch to offset spotty pitching while the Dodgers have been getting splendid hurling to atone for their ineptitude at the plate.

The Cards gave a perfect example last night of the way they have been playing in recent days when they outslugged Pittsburgh Pirates 7-6 in a free-hitting game at Sportsman's Park. A total of 31 hits were made by both teams, 16 by the Cards including a three-run homer by Terry Moore.

Moore's four-bagger was the seventh hit by the Redbirds in their last seven games which saw St. Louis collect 45 runs on 84 hits. Only two St. Louis pitchers went the route during that time as the opposition garnered 37 runs.

On the other hand, the Dodgers have made but 22 runs on 59 hits in their last seven games, but they've limited the opposition to 14 runs.

In the only other National League game, the Giants, aided by three home runs, overwhelmed Philadelphia Phillies 16-2 at the Polo Grounds. Ernie Lombardi was the big gun for the Giants, the huge catcher poling a grand slam homer in addition to two singles. In all he drove in five runs.

Boastful Bobo Newsom, backing up his talk with some fine pitching, snapped the Boston Red Sox' winning streak at eight by twirling the Senators to an 11-inning, 3-2 victory over the American League leaders under the lights in Washington.

Despite the loss, Boston needs only three more victories to clinch the flag since the second-place New York Yankees bowed to the Athletics in Philadelphia at night 4-3.

Paul (Dizzy) Trout, back in winning stride, fashioned his 13th victory and his fifth shutout by pitching the Tigers to a four-hit 9-0 triumph over Cleveland Indians in Detroit. Hank Greenberg hammered his 31st home run.

'TONY' ACERRA MEETS CHARD IN MAIN BOUT

"Soup" Mondeville Takes on Rugged Customer in "Baldy" Hardsands

The heavyweight bout at Hume Arena next Wednesday night, should be one of the best "heavy" bouts of the current fistic season. It brings together Belleville's popular heavyweight, "Tony" Acerra and Fred Chard, an experienced veteran from Toronto, in a five-round main "go".

In Chard, the local battler will be meeting a hard two-fisted puncher that has quite an enviable record behind him and is rated as one of the leading "heavies" in the province.

For Tony, it will be a test bout. If he can put away the rugged Chard, he'll be able to tangle with any of them including another crack at "Tiny" Ainsworth, who holds two close decisions over him. If he doesn't, he'll have to stick to the light-heavyweights. Judging by the boxing display he staged against Toronto's Don Mogard on the last card, Tony has improved his style considerably and doesn't have to depend solely on his "KO" punch. In any case, next Wednesday's bout will tell the tale. One thing is certain however, when Acerra enters the ring against Chard, he'll have the Belleville and district fight fans rooting for him.

In the semi-final, the Belleville and district 118 lb champ, "Soup" Mondeville, will meet Oshawa's "Baldy" Hardsands. Mondeville has been fighting like a man possessed of late but he will be up against pretty stiff opposition in Hardsands. It should be an excellent bout. Both boyes have good records, fight a good clean fight and are not afraid to mix it up. All this makes for a good bout.

In all, there will be eight good bouts and, on paper, it looks like the best card to be presented hereabouts in a long time.

The first bout will start promptly at 8.30.

SWACOS NIP LATTA 2-0 IN CLOSE BATTLE

Smith and Hall Hook up in Hurling Duel;; Fitzpatrick Clouts Homer

Hurling masterful four-hit baseball big Ernie Smith, Swacos righthander shut out the Latta nine by a 2-0 score in a postponed Belleville Senior Baseball League fixture on Thursday night.

The game developed into a neat hurling duel between Smith and "Lefty" Hall, one that was broken when the Latta southpaw erred in the fourth to send Gerow across the plate with the first run of the game. Dick Fitzpatrick cinched the pastime with a long home run in the sixth with no one on bases.

Smith struck out five Latta batters and walked one while Hall whiffed six and walked none. The best the winners could do with the hickory was 5 hits off the southpaw.

Swacos scored their first run in the fourth when Gerow lashed out a single. Booth sacrificed him along and the first baseman raced home when Hall juggled the ball.

Latta threatened in the last innings when Smith hit Keon with a pitched ball and walked Timmy Williams. Keon was retired and Smith set down the next two batters in order to retire the side and win the game.

Gerow paced the winners with two hits with Fitzpatrick, Elliott and Whitman getting the other three clouts. For Latta, Colden, Rogers, Keon and Shannon hit safely.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By WILF GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP) — If there's anything in the sport line that Toronto lacks—and for that matter a lot of other Canadian cities—it's an adequate stadium for all types of events and which has the capacity to jam-pack, if necessary, fairly large crowds.

Already Winnipeg has plans for a memorial stadium that will accommodate 45,000 and contain a football field, baseball diamond, cinder track, tennis courts, swimming pool and two or three softball areas.

A faint cry for such a stadium—again has arisen in Toronto—this time from Globe and Mail columnist Bobbie (Oh You Kid!) Rosenfeld. And before long it's to be expected that the cry will be much stronger, for probably at no other time in the city's history is the need so acute for a stadium such as Winnipeg is contemplating constructing.

Now that eastern football is on the threshold of its greatest season in history more than ever before Toronto's dearth of suitable playing sites is emphasized. This season there are four Toronto teams playing full schedules but only one of them has no problems about home games.

Since the game hasn't gone in as yet to any degree for fan-drawing doubleheaders, three of the clubs are forced to take a beating insofar as finding a decent spot to play Saturday afternoons—the most ideal time fo football since Varsity Stadium the principal football field, hasn' floodlights.

Surprised

New York columnists wer startled by the $13.30 straight mutuel paid by the Canadian-bre Windfields in a $5,000 allowanc race at Aqueduct Tuesday, considering Windfields ran secon to the mighty Assault two month ago. Toney (Daily Mirror) Bett said the clockers thought the 2-year-old son of Bunty Lawles was lame, but evidently traine Bert Alexandra gave Windfield "the ice-pack treatment."

"Windfields" is owned by E. P Taylor, a Canadian distiller," added Betts. "What Canadian wh owns horses is not a distiller?"

The answer, of course, is E. P Taylor who isn't a distiller — he's a brewer.

Of All Things

It's a wonder the official scorer didn't get tired and give up i disgust in recording what wen on between Stratford and Simco Transits in the first game of thei Ontario Women's Softball Unio playoff.

Stratford won 64-0. Twent runs were scored in the sevent inning and 18 in the eighth. Altogether they had 52 hits. T make matters more embarrassin for themselves the losers falle to get a hit. Oh, yes, they committed 18 errors.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

In a last-minute effort to encourage the participation of Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia in today's inter-Allied field day in the Olympic Stadium at Berlin, the entry lists were held open over-night to enable the eastern group to put teams into the two-day competitions if they desired. Seven countries were ready to compete but Greece sent word of inability to send any athletes.

Polish and Czech military missions could not be reached to ascertain if there was any political motive for the failure of the Slavic bloc to enter soldier-athletes to compete against representatives of other Allied nations.

The International Olympic Committee, in session at Lausanne, Switzerland, yesterday deleted chess, baseball, roller skating, volleyball and ping-pong from the 1948 Olympic card at London. Women's hockel will probably be permitted in the 1952 Olympiad.

The ailing Byron Nelson is r turning to the links today as member of the foursome, including Lloyd Mangrum, Samm Snead and Herman Barron, f the two-day competition at Ch cago for the $10,000 winner-tak all "world championship" pr moted by George S. May.

Harry Fitzpatrick drove bo winners, Dr. Spencer and Kin Counsel, in the two major Gra Circuit races on the final day the Indiana State Fair, Indian polis, yesterday. Each horse too a race in two straight heats.

The touring India cricket tea won their last game in Englan yesterday with a victory ov South of England by 10 runs. I their second innings India declared at 253 for only three wi kets.

The All-America football co ference was launched before crowd of 60,135 fans at Clevelan last night when the Clevelan Browns smothered Miami Se hawks 44-0. The turnout was th largest ever recorded for a pr fessional gridiron fixture.

The Kibitzer

There is a time and a place for almost everything in bridge. Even for the opening lead of a trump. In fact, there are several times and places when an opening trump lead is your best bet.

Lead a trump when you have four of them; when your other suits were bid by opponents or are headed by ace or king; when dummy may be very short or very long in the trump suit.

Get wise to another time when a trump lead is usually good. It is when your partner has shown strength in other suits. Your trump lead will then help to make good some of his big cards.

You may stop me right here to say: "How do I know my partner is strong in suits outside of trump?" If you will quit bothering me at a time like this, I will come to it.

Your partner is likely to open the bidding with one no-trump and the opponents wind up in a suit contract. You know right then and in a jiffy that your partner has at least five high cards.

An opponent may have opened the bidding with one in a suit and your partner doubles for a takeout. The opponents wind up in a suit contract. You know your partner has big cards in several suits.

Your partner in the east started off with an opening bid of one no-trump. South finally became the declarer at a contract of four in the heart zoot. It is your lead from this west hand:

♠9 7 5
♥6 3 2
♦Q 9 4
♣7 6 4 3

Step right out with a lead of a small trump. The reason is easy to run down. Your partner shows big cards in most of the suits. He may be able to take tricks with them if they are not trumped.

Your trump lead reduces the number of ruffing chances by declarer and his dummy. It may not cut off all the trumping chances. But it will peel them down without likelihood of hurting your partner.

Throw them off balance.

True stories of real people in experiences that might be your own. What would YOU do faced by a similar problem?

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 7. (AP)—Movie stars who complain of their goldfish life, and that includes virtually everyone but Lassie and Bugs Bunny, should listen to Loretta Young.

Film personalities and their relations to the clamoring public can be divided into several categories:

1. Those who beef about continual prying eyes, but who accept the situation as an occupational hazard;

2. The Garbo type, rare, who revolts against the system, with subsequent unpopularity;

3. The Van Johnson type, very rare, who apparently likes crowds.

4. In a class by herself, Loretta Young.

The Salt Lake City beauty has developed the knack of preserving her private life from public scrutiny. And yet she will top the list on any Hollywood correspondent's list of nice people. How does she do it? By using common sense.

"For instance," she said on the set of "Katie for Congress", "I am taking a vacation to Honolulu in a short while, and it will really be a vacation."

But what about the press?

"When the reporters come, "I'll politely ask them what they want to know. They'll tell me and I'll tell them. You men don't want to waste time any more than I do."

And all the invitations to social functions?

"That's simple. I'll just tell them I'm on vacation. They wouldn't want me to interrupt their vacation, would they?"

And that's an easy lesson in how to be a movie star and like it.

In Manhattan

By FRANK HINDS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 7 (CP) — When a newspaperman gets bats in his belfry, he doesn't think he's Napoleon—he thinks he's Ben Hecht.

This journalistic hallucination is explained for the few sane men in the business by a quick squint over Broadway marquees this week. In bulbs and neons they display the moniker of the old Chicago crime reporter in connection with five—count 'em — five productions.

They include a revival of "The Front Page," reminiscences of newspaper days which he and Charles MacArthur rattled off back in the '20s; "A Flag is Born," Hecht's literate propaganda piece in support of Zionism, and "Swan Song," the so-so drama which nevertheless kept going through the summer doldrums.

Hecht has done that for the legitimate theatre this season and if the opposite tag has been applied unkindly to that other kind of theatre, a discerning examination of the current Hecht contribution to the celluloid drama absolves him of fault:

His brilliant script for "Notorious" — British Alfred Hitchcock's melodrama—is responsible for a good bit of the popularity of the Ingrid Bergman - Cary Grant vehicle which has run up the longest customer queues you ever did see. "Notorious" is a Radio City Music Hall, just a rockette's flounce away from Broadway; and over the block, back on the main stem, is "The Spectre of the Rose," Hecht's pure art drama about a daft ballet dancer which recalls his earlier tour de force in "The Scoundrel" — a screenplay which won the 1935 Academy Award for him and MacArthur.

Musical Mood: A band nobody ever heard of a few months back is rating the plaudits of radio, jutebox and dancing fans at Manhattan's Hotel Pennsylvania. The 20-piece, 20-months-old outfit is led by 21-year-old Elliott Lawrence, a fresh faced youth who broke in as leader of a high school group in Philadelphia and who specializes in an eerie king of mood music new to dance fans. Oboes, English horns, bassoons and French horns are introduced by the band to a generation of solid citizens who never knew they existed. His radio program "Listen to Lawrence" graduated in short order from a local affair to a coast-to-coast show. Purists jibe that it's not jazz, but they're just as startled as the Schmaltzy Bobby-Soxers at Lawrence's effects.

Mr. Rank Again: Connoisseurs of British films—or any adult films—are applauding J. Arthur Rank's production of "Brief Encounter," an expansion of Noel Coward's "Still Life" which was seen in Canada a few years back as part of a suite of one-acters under the title "Tonight at 8.30". Stars Celia Johnson and Trevor Howard satisfy the customers at an Arty Little Theatre on 57th. Street with their tender portrayal of a middle-aged love affair.

Stratford Nationals defeated London Majors 12-4 Friday night for their third straight game of the best-of-seven series in the Senior Intercounty Baseball finals. Price of Stratford gave up 11 hits as he went the route on the mound.

London Juniors defeated Hamilton Thurston club 17-7 to win the Intercounty group honors and stay in the hunt for the provincial baseball championship. Gillies of London pitched three-hit ball and hit a four-run homer.

HAMILTON PAIR WINS DOUBLES

Toronto, Sept. 7 — (CP)—The crack Hamilton pair of Dr. A. M. MacCormack and James Hannah won the 41st annual Globe and Mail Scotch doubles lawn bowling title last night by defeating A. Lewin and J. Smart of Niagara Falls, 17-10 in the final.

The consolation final went to M. B. Campbell and J. A. Burgess of Toronto Mount Dennis Kodaks, victors by 17-9 over Toronto Withrow's W. Rodger and H. Taylor.

The Hamilton Argyle pair were the only undefeated team in the two-day competition which saw rinks entered from many parts of Ontario.

CHAPTER 27

"I'm making out. The process proved a failure. The company went up. The stockholders .... some of them....thought Dad had fleeced them. They brought suit against him and....I guess he couldn't stand that. Sensitive...."

"I understand."

"Later, I found out through a friend of my father's in the textile business that another concern was using a process similar to Dad's. For some unknown reason, he never had patented it. Somebody else did. I didn't have the money to do any investigating, but I did find out that his former partner was the principal stockholder in the new firm. And that they were making money hand over fist."

"What a shame! It was the same as stealing it!"

"You telling me? I didn't mind the money, but I swore, if I ever had a chance, I'd see to it that my father's name was cleared. If the package we got tonight is what I think it is....it's all we need."

"Do you want to tell me what it is?"

"Of course. My father had a precise way of recording all his experiments. He never destroyed any calculations or results....put them all in a memorandum book, or books. Written so fine that you could hardly read them. Mother told me that he always kept the practice up and cached them where they were safe from fire. I knew where that was, or thought I did."

"Under the hearth."

"Exactly. And I grew more suspicious when I learned that this other fellow had bought our old place and was camping close by. The fact that our house was empty....Well, it gave me a hunch. Maybe this guy knew of those records. He couldn't find them, but he wasn't going to take a chance of some tenant fixing up the place and stumbling on them. If he were playing such a game, the stakes were so high that he wouldn't stop at anything to win. Guess that sounds rather fantastic. It took me a long time to figure it out."

"I'm surprised you didn't try to get them sooner."

"There was a catch there. If anything went wrong, I wanted to be in a position to fight. The other fellow had influence and money."

"But, Larry..there's one thing I can't understand. If your father had those records, couldn't he have cleared himself and not..." She couldn't quite bring herself to say the words.

"That's something that probably will never be explained. He may have been so crushed that it drove him to kill himself rather than be humiliated in court. On the other hand, I'm suspicious that he never had the chance."

"You don't mean....?"

"Yes, I do," was the grim response. "I don't suppose I could ever prove that. But I can't get away from it. The whole thing was hushed up too quickly. I hope it's coming out now. Rannie Hicks and his father are going to handle it. If it takes everything we have...."

Larry ended his sentence abruptly and leaned back wearily.

"Oh, what is it!" Jacqueline clutched at his arm. "You've tried to talk too much. Are you faint, dear?"

"Just a bit woozy."

"Can you make it?"

"Of course. I'll get you home.. get Vince. Must get tht book to Rannie....he's waiting."

"Don't talk, dear. Just drive."

It seemed hours to Jacqueline before the roadster came to a stop in Courtland street. She flew into the house where she found Vince, wild-eyed and pacing restlessly up and down her living room.

"Skipper!" he cried anxiously. "Where in the world...."

"Don't wait to talk, Vince," she panted. "Larry is out in the car. He's hurt. Help me bring him in!"

Larry's weak protests were promptly overruled by his wife.

"You've got to come in a few minutes, dear, and let me see to your shoulder. Help him, Vince.. be careful!"

"I've got to get that book to Rannie," Larry groaned. "He's waiting up for me."

"Vince can take it to him. Come now. I'll help, too."

And in spite of himself, Larry was escorted into the apartment where he stumbled over to the couch and lay still, his eyes closed. But when Vince tried to remove his coat, he roused himself with an effort.

"Cut that package open and let me see those books," he ordered. "All right," was his comment, after he had leafed through a few pages. "Vince, You know where Hicks lives?"

"Sure."

"Take those books to Rannie. Don't let anything stop you. Then wait there for me. You won't fail me, will you, old man?"

"No chance. Shall I take the car?"

"Leave it for me. I don't want to call a cab here. It's pretty dark yet and I don't think anybody'll spot the bus out front. Just as soon as Jack ties me up...." He mustered one of his old-time grins. "Pardon me. Vince, this is my wife....Mrs. Cutter."

Vincent Anthony produced his handkershief and blew his nose loudly.

"Gimme those books," he said gruffly. "You're both of you crazy."

By the time Larry had eased himself painfully out of his coat, Jacqueline was at his side with a basin of hot water and clean clothes.

"Cut the shirt, while I take it easy a minute," Larry suggested. He leaned back with his eyes closed. "It's a load off my mind to get those books away. They've got dates and everything in them. It ought to be clear sailing for us now."

"Don't talk."

"I like to talk to you. Then I'm sure you're here and I'm not dreaming. Don't happen to have a drink, do you?"

"No. I'm sorry. I'll make you some black coffee in a minute. Does that feel more comfortable now?"

"I'll say. You're a regular little campaigner, Jack. Some day we'll go on a real roughing trip.... when I get through being a fugitive."

"Don't say that. You make me feel....ashamed."

"Skip it, dear. I'll have to lie low for a bit, I suppose, until Hicks and Hicks get their lines laid. And I must clear out of here before I get you in any mess, You must be dead for sleep."

"If you weren't hurt, I'd say it was the nicest and most exciting time I ever had," she told him lightly. "Now for coffee." How strange to be tending Larry this way, and how—wonderful!

After sipping his coffee, Larry relaxed again and Jacqueline insisted he must rest a few moments longer. She promised to sit close beside him. And he might hold her hand, too.

The next thing she remembered was hearing a sharp rapping on the apartment door. She sat up with a start, to find Larry on one elbow and staring about in a confused fashion.

"It's only somebody in the house," she whispered.

"Why, Jack. you've let me sleep," Larry was beginning uneasily, when his words were cut short by another rap.

"Open up," said a quiet voice.

Larry motioned to his wife to go to the door. She opened it, stepped back with a faint exclamation of dismay.

Standing there was Lieutenant Frank Staples. And peering sharply over his shoulder...."

Old Martin Jacobs, who sold her the Southern Furnace stock.

"Good morning, Miss Anthony," was Staples bland greeting. "Sorry to bother you so early, but we'd like to talk a minute....Oh, you have company! How are you, Mr. Cutter?"

He entered the room with Jacobs at his heels, closed the door and looked about him.

Larry lay back on his pillow and stared belligerently at Jacobs who was eyeing him with cold interest. Jacqueline felt suddenly faint.

All this was her fault. She must have slept! She glanced at her clock mechanically.

After eight!

Jacobs was the first to break the silence. He pointed at Larry with his stick.

"There's your man, Lieutenant. Take him into custody. I will appear against him."

"Maybe we'd better talk it over," was the calm reply. "Sit down, Mr. Jacobs. This gentleman isn't going to run away." He helped himself to a chair and regarded Larry closely. "You seem to have met with an accident. I hope it isn't serious."

"It isn't."

"Shot, may I ask?"

"Yes."

"That proves it!" Jacobs barked angrily, leaning forward on the chair he had taken near the door. Staples held up his hand.

"Just a minute," he suggested. "We'll go at it from the start, and then we'll know where we stand." He addressed himself directly to Larry.

"Mr. Jacobs called me early this morning and said that some one had broken into a property he owns....forcible entry, in fact. That he had attacked and injured a guard on the premises. Escaped with valuable property. Mr. Jacobs has reason to believe that you were the intruder, Mr. Cutter."

"I was."

"There!" Jacobs cut in.

"As I was saying," the detective went on, paying no heed to the interruption, 'I suggested to Mr. Jacobs that he come to Headquarters. It just happened that I knew your license number, Mr. Cutter, so I had our radio cars notified. Just before I met Mr. Jacobs, I heard that your car was parked here. We came over. When I saw Miss Anthony's name in the vestibule, I thought, maybe, she could help us out. You see, I happened to know she was a friend of yours. And here you are," he finished pleasantly.

'Yes, here I am," Larry observed grimly. "So what?"

All this while Jacqueline had been staring wide-eyed at Mr. Jacobs, trying to use her dazed faculties in an effort to fit him into the picture. There was but one answer. He was the man who had been keeping Lieutenant Staples on Larry's trail. He was the owner of Fairlawn. He was the one-time partner of the elder Cutter. He was the man Larry suspected. She shivered a little.

Jacobs must have sensed her fixed look. He turned to her, one hand toying with his moustache.

"You are the last person in the world, Miss Anthony, whom I would have expected to find in a situation like this...."

"Do you know that man?" Larry cut in sharply, staring at his wife."

She nodded.

"Oh, yes," Jacobs interposed blandly. 'Miss Anthony and I are quite old friends. I...."

"You can leave her out of this," ply, the telephone rang stridentmarks to me."

Before the older man could reply ,the telephone rang stridently.

"Excuse me," Staples said quickly to Jacqueline, and walked to the desk. He lifted the receiver to his ear.

"Yeeah, that's right," the others heard him say. "I'll call her in a minute...."

The officer hung up the receiver and looked regretfully at Jacqueline.

"The gentleman was cagey. Didn't care to talk."

"I think it was my father. I was expecting him to call."

"Well, well. That's something else for us to look into. This doesn't look so good for you, Miss Anthony. I'm sorry. If you are to tell me anything...."

Jacqueline resolutely ignored Larry's warning glance.

"Of course," she agreed sweetly. "In the first place....I am Mr. Cutter's wife. That makes it quite all right for him to be here, doesn't it?"

"Well, I'm....excuse me. Say! Were you married to him when I was giving you that little first degree there in your office?"

"Oh, yes."

"Wish I'd known it. I suppose we can't look for much testimony from you." He rubbed his bald head reflectively.

"We're wasting time!" Jacobs snapped. "This man has been identified, and admits he broke into my property. What more do you want?"

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, and ma said, William, I dont believe in being brutally frank, but I do believe in calling an ace a spade.

Any ace at all? pop said, and ma said, What I mean is, I have no simpathy with people who go around pointing out their best frends' faults and blemishes meerly for their own malicious pleasure, but if I feel that somebody really needs the advice, I dont hesitate to speak out from the right shoulder and let the chips fall where they'll,do the most good.

Are you leeding up to some particuler case in point, by any odd coincidence? pop said, and ma said, Well, yes, I'm thinking of Sally Jarden's maddening habit of allways and forever reeching out for a peece of candy the entire time she's playing bridge. If she wants to play havick with her already ruined figure, that's her own bizzness and I'm sure I wish her the best of luck, but that continual candy eating makes it extreemly difficult to concentrate for whoever happens to be her pardner and this afternoon I told her so with blunt politeness, ma said.

Did she take it like a sport? pop said, and ma said, Quite the contrary my dear. I never saw such callous lack of appriciation. She claimed I was meerly trying to get ahead of her so she wouldn't have a chance to scold me for trumping her ace and losing the contract. As a matter of fact she kept harping on the subject for a solid 5 minutes. I really had to smile at such a display of inconsistency, she said.

Yee gods, pop said, and ma said, I dont wonder you marvel at her.

Being the end of the subject.

CANADIAN AND AMERICAN SERVED JAPAN ROLLS AT TRIBUNAL RECESS

Members of the House Military Affairs Committee attend a buffet luncheon in Tokyo whilst visiting the army installations of the Far East. The luncheon was held in the office of the Chief Justice of the International War Tribunal during a recess of the court. Justice McDougall of Canada, LEFT, and Rep. J. Leroy Johnson of California are served rolls by one of the Japanese waitresses employed at the tribunal.

Optimist Club Hears Three Navy League Officials

"You can tell a Sea Cadet even out of uniform," stated Ross Stiver, secretary of the Navy League for this district, in a stirring address delivered to the Belleville Optimist Club Thursday evening.

It seems that the age from 9-15 is that particular time of life when the tendencies towards the delinquency so publicized in this day, make themselves known and this is the age group accepted by the Sea Cadets. Without fear of contradiction I can safely say that throughout Canada the Sea Cadets have a record without blemish, in fact not one has ever appeared in police court. Mr. Stiver went on to say that the training of the cadets is not for war but is every bit as intensive in peacetime. Youth training is the object of the work.

The speaker thanked the Optimist Club on behalf of the Navy League of Canada for undertaking the task of sponsoring the corps in Belleville and in so doing rendering a yeoman service to the citizens. Not only will the club be furthering the work they are doing but by utilizing their manpower they will bring about better conditions for the boys.

Warren Jones, chairman of the Navy League in Belleville and Mr. Zeran, acting commanding officer of the local Sea Cadets, outlined to the club members the training now in progress in Belleville and their requirements for an efficient expansion of this worthy project.

The speakers were introduced and thanked for their enlightening addresses by President Bob Kidd.

Strikes Reduce Beer Consumption

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP)—A reduction in beer consumption in Ontario due to strikes and consequent increase in supply was seen yesterday by Aard Markle, President of the Toronto Hotelkeepers' Association, as a means of providing a more even distribution to hotels throughout the province. Commenting on a Chatham report that a return to prewar hours of sale might be accomplished in that city within the next two months, Mr. Markle said, "the strikes have had a tremendous effect on the buying power of the beer-drinkers. Many of the hotelkeepers in Wallaceburg, Hamilton and St. Thomas have not needed their full quota of beer. Some of them have not been opening in the evenings because nobody could afford to buy beer."

FLYING BISHOP WILL RESIGN BISHOPRIC

Cairo, Sept. 6 (Reuters)—Dr. Llewelyn Henry Gwynne, 83-year-old "flying bishop" will resign his bishopric Nov. 1 after 48 years' service here and in the Sudan. Dr. Gwynne first went to Khartoum as a missionary soon after the battle of Omdurman in 1898. He was appointed bishop of Egypt and the Sudan in 1920 and as his see was one of the largest in the world he made extensive use of air travel.

Cobourg Weekly Now Under New Management

The Times Publishing Company, owners of the Oshawa Daily Times, the Cobourg Sentinel Star and the Trenton Courier Advocate have dropped the Cobourg paper from their chain with the sale of the Sentinel Star to Foster Russell of Coldwater, Ont., being recently announced.

The new publisher and owner took over the business on September 1st.

Associated with the newspaper business for some time, Mr. Russell served on the printing staff of the Port Hope Guide until eight years ago when he purchased the Coldwater News. It is understood that the business will be carried on in much the same manner as before and that the publication will continue to be printed in Oshawa. No staff changes are contemplated at the present time with Mr. Robt. Corbett to continue as managing-editor.

WILL NOT COMMENT

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP) —Leslie, Blackwell, Ontario Attorney General, said Friday he would not comment on the arrest of Judge J. C. M. German, of Cobourg, on charges of drunk and dangerous driving.

Mr. Blackwell said the "entire incident is under consideration by members of this department."

Sailors Report Chaos In Former Enemy Occupied Harbors

Vancouver, Sept. 6 (CP) — When a sailor refuses shore leave in a foreign port, that's news. But British sailors, manning the tail-end of Britain's wartime fleet of merchant vessels in the Far East, have another name for it—inflation.

Four British ships, the Empire Avoy, Ocean Angel, Fort Lennox and Samflora, are in harbor today, some of the last British merchant vessels on their way home after being caught in far eastern waters by the war.

Sailors report chaos in former enemy-occupied harbors like Singapore, and say that many a skipper has fidgeted outside Calcutta a month or more waiting to discharge his cargo and as for short leave—"you had to be a ruddy millionaire to even buy a cup of tea."

For most of the seamen, Vancouver is the first civilized port they have visited in 18 months of religious riots in India, civil war in China, and strife in Java and Indo-China.

GENERAL STRIKE THREATENED IF SHIPS MOVED HAMILTON STEEL WORKERS REJECT PROPOSALS

Two Other Plants To Decide Today On Same Offer

12½ Cents an Hour Increase Offered to Low Paid Workers

Hamilton, Sept. 9 (CP)—Striking steel workers here yesterday rejected the government's latest proposals for settling the wages-hours strike which hit all three of Canada's basic steel plants on July 15. Steel workers of the two other plants at Sault Ste. Marie and Sydney, N.S., were to decide today on the same proposals.

In Hamilton, some 2,200 striking United Steel Workers (C.I.O.) by a show of hands at two separate meetings rejected the government's latest proposals and were understood to have expressed determination to abide by the modified union strike aims.

The government's latest proposal was understood to provide an increase of 12 1-2 cents an hour for lower-paid workers and 11 cents for workers getting 95 cents or more. The main difference between this proposal and one that had been earlier rejected by the Union's National Committee was said to be a widening of the basis of increases, permitting the increase for more than half of the 15,000 employees of the three plants. Previously the increase would have affected between 25 and 30 per cent of the employees. The union had said it would bargain above 15 cents.

It was stressed that in rejecting the government's latest offer the steel unionists had requested the Union's National Committee to attempt to continue negotiations at Ottawa.

At Sunday's meetings, about 1,500 unionists attended the one called by Loc. 1,005 of the Stelco Hamilton Works and about 700 attended the one called by Loc. 3250 representing the Local Canada Works. C. H. Millard, National Director of the union, did not attend either meetings and the proposals were presented by other union officials, notably Larry Sefton, international representative, and John Mitchell, district representative.

The decision at both meetings was on a show of hands, and union sources said that the decision was virtually unanimous. The meetings were closed.

Ottawa, Sept. 9 — (CP)—Government officials today awaited decision of Sydney, N.S., and Sault Ste. Marie steel strikers on a settlement plan before charting new steps to end the 57-day work stoppage.

Rejection yesterday of the government's proposals by Hamilton strikers appeared to have seriously reduced chances of an early end to the strike which has had widespread effects. A breakdown in latest efforts to end the steel strike would also reduce chances of settling strikes prevalent in rubber, electrical, metal and automobile plants and in British Columbia mines.

Expectations were that if the strikers at all three steel plants rejected the government's offer there would be a cooling-off period before new efforts were made by the government to negotiate a settlement.

As alternative, the government could use police to open picket lines at Hamilton where the Steel Company of Canada plant has been in partial operation since the strike started July 15, or it could use authority provided by an order-in-council announced last week to take a government-conducted ballot among workers on the proposal.

Another possibility was that the government might withdraw and let the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) settle its differences with the employers and War Labor Boards.

Yesterday's action of the Hamilton strikers in turning down the settlement plan recalled the Ford Motor Co. strike at Windsor about 10 months ago when proposals submitted by the government were turned down and after a short period new proposals were made and accepted. This experience lent support to a belief that there would be a period of apparent inactivity before another effort was made to end the steel strike.

Dies of Natural Causes

Brantford, Sept. 9. (CP) — Death from natural causes was the coroner's verdict after John Ashworth Haven, 72, was found dead in a barn Saturday on the farm of his son-in-law, Cemeron Ravens, near Harley.

Death had occurred some hours prior to the body being found. Police said the elderly man had been chasing some livestock earlier in the day, and he is believed to have over-exerted himself.

Squatters Take Possession Of Fashionable Flats

London, Sept. 9—(CP)—British Communists who led a week-end "squatter" invasion of two blocks of luxurious London apartments and eight other vacant dwellings today laid plans for a 10-times-greater housing offensive as part of a new direct action campaign.

The mass move-in was drafted as government officials held emergency meetings to decide what to do about more than 1,000 men, women and children who took over 10 buildings in the fashionable, Kensington section yesterday and announced they would not budge.

"Regardless of any official warning," Communist party headquarters announced, "We are determined to get at least 10,000 of our members into decent houses immediately.

"We are appalled at the large number of flats, houses and hotels which are still empty in London, although they were vacated by government departments and foreign governments some months ago."

Prime Minister Attlee discussed the new development with his cabinet at special meeting today and the whole month-old squatter question was reviewed.

Yesterday, in driving rain, 1,500 persons — mostly war veterans with wives and children—assembled under Communist direction and surged into the government-leased Duchess of Bedford House and the other empty buildings. All but 500 stragglers found accommodation.

Britons None too Happy Over High Water Content of "Strachey Beer"

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 9 (CP) — The funny man said: "My friend here says he mustn't drink anything alcoholic. So I say: 'That's all right, set up a beer for him'."

The funny man laughed, but hardly a smile disturbed the lips of his listeners, who stared more lugubriously than ever into their respective mugs, all of which had a higher water content than ever before in Britain's beer-drinking history.

By government order, millions of gallons of water are being added to brewing-vats throughout the country in an effort to ease the nationwide beer shortage. The weakened wassail went on sale last month.

Public-house frequenters call the diluted drink 'Strachey Beer' after the food minister at whose order the water was added to bring the annual production from 27,000,000 to 29,000,000 barrels.

Britons, celebrating the end of the war, packed the pubs and tossed pots at such a rate that at the beginning of this year consumption was a record 33,000,000 barrels a year and going up. That worked out to three-quarters of a pint a day for every adult in the country. This was also an increase of 8,000,000 barrels over 1939.

The first blow fell last April when Sir Ben Smith, then food minister, ordered a 15 per cent cut, on the basis of 1944-45 production, to make available additional grain supplies for Europe.

Britain's 83,000 pubs immediately felt the pinch. "No beer" signs appeared. Regular customers tried to establish backdoor relations with their publicans.

Now that the beer is being watered down, 560,000,000 additional pints a year are available. But the shortage has not noticeably eased.

"My share of Strachey Beer will enable me to keep open for about another quarter of an hour on one night a week," grumbled one publican.

4 CANADIAN-BORN CHINESE AWARDED MILITARY MEDAL

Parachuted Behind Jap Lines in Dying Days Of War to Help Guerilla Warfare

Ottawa, Sept. 9 —(CP)— Four Canadian-born Chinese soldiers who parachuted behind Japanese lines in the dying days of the war to help organize guerilla fighting in Borneo were cited today in Defence Headquarters notices awarding them the Military Medal.

The recipients are Sgt. Norman Mon Low, R.C.A.C., Vancouver; Sgt. Roy Sin Twe Chan, R.C.A., Victoria; Sgt. Louey King, R.C.A.C., Vancouver, and Sgt. James Shiu, R.C.E., of Berkeley, Calif., and Vancouver.

The four N.C.O.'s, specially selected from volunteers, together with Capt. R. K. Cheng of Lillooet and Vancouver, went to Australia on their special assignment several months before the Japs quit in the Pacific and subsequently joined a force of British and Australian commando and guerilla warfare experts. This combined force was eventually "inserted by air" into the mountain fastnesses and Jap-infested jungles of Borneo, deep in enemy territory.

The particular area in which the force was to operate was inhabited by a savage tribe of headhunters known as Dyaks, but the natives, who had already suffered at the hands of the Japs, welcomed the chance to throw in their lot with the whites to harass and perhaps liquidate a common enemy.

Cunning, Vicious Fighter.

The Dyak headhunter, though small in stature, is a cunning and vicious fighter and great tact and courage was needed in training the natives in the use of firearms. The savages caught on quickly, however, and in turn taught the whites all there was to learn about the jungle, the blow-pipe and the "parang" — a broad curved-blade jungle knife highly lethal in the hands of a Dyak.

By radio the force maintained regular contact with a base set up in Labuan, Borneo, and it was by this means that finally, after five gruelling months of guerilla fighting, they learned of the war's end.

The official citations said Sgt. Low, with "utter disregard" for his safety, organized communications for patrols which gave field headquarters vital information. Sgt. Chan organized and led Dyak headhunters and succeeded in blocking the Rejang River to the enemy, forcing them back on their headquarters near the coast and controlling the river traffic.

Sgt. King played an outstanding part in the recapture of the state of Sarawak, Borneo, by infiltrating the enemy's territory by air and organizing guerilla resistance. Sgt. Shiu established communications with patrols and with the headquarters of 9th Australian Division at Labuan.

SEVEN AMERICANS AND ONE BRITON INJURED IN MELEE

Trieste Declared Off Limits to All Allied Military Personnel

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

Trieste, Sept. 9—(AP)—Allied military police patrolled the streets of troubled Trieste today following an outbreak of violence yesterday during which they opened fire to disperse a pro-Yugoslav demonstration held in defiance of a military government ban. Seven Americans and one Briton were injured during the melee.

Trieste was declared off limits to all Allied military personnel not on duty in the disputed city. All shore leave was cancelled for men of several British and United States ships in the harbor.

Police also patrolled Gorizia, 25 miles north of here, where American troops broke up a similar demonstration yesterday. The crowds were scattered without serious incident.

The Trieste demonstration, staged in defiance of A.M.G. refusal to grant a permit, was scheduled to coincide with the anniversary of the Venzia Giulia uprising Sept. 8, 1943 — and incidentally with the anniversary of Italian surrender. For several days prior to the incident, the Communist press had declared an intention to defy the prohibition.

The seven Americans—six soldiers and Associated Press Photographer Daniel Jacino of New York were wounded when a hand grenade was tossed from a window in the San Giacomo district. A British officer also was reported injured. Jacino suffered a leg wound from a steel fragment.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Sept. 9 —(CP)— Synopsis at 7:30 a.m.: Cool air which is becoming slowly warmer covers northern United States and southern Canada. Warm humid air covers the southern and central United States and is pushing slowly northward in the Lake Erie region and adjacent sections. The warm air is expected to cover the Lake Erie, Lake Ontario, Lake Huron and Georgian Bay regions by Tuesday night. The interaction between the warm and cold air masses is causing overcast skies, with an area of intermittent rain and some thunderstorms from the Great Lakes westward to the Rockies. A few scattered showers have been reported over southern and central Ontario and over New York State.

WEATHER 'MAINLY FAIR' FOLLOWS DAY OF PRAYER

Ray of Hope Brought to Water - Logged British Farms

London, Sept. 9. (CP Cable)—An official Air Ministry weather forecast of "mainly fair" following Sunday's national day of prayer for better weather brought a ray of hope to rain-battered, water-logged British farms today.

Harvesting was resumed in East Yorkshire following fine weather Sunday and Norfolk farmers, cheered by the change in the weather, were hopeful half their crop might be saved.

Many itinerant hop-pickers in Kent who had prepared to return home at the weekend changed their minds and resumed work today.

Suffolk was a black spot in the brightening situation. Farmers there said many acres of grain would be "a total loss". Operations at most farms were at a standstill and no work can be done for several days even if fine weather continues. The wheat already cut is too sodden to be carted and automatic dryers are working at top capacity.

Crop prospects in other areas:

Cambridgeshire— Hopes for a good harvest improved but farmers said this will be "crisis week".

Buckinghamshire — Harvest fields were swept by rain accompanying a heavy thunderstorm Sunday but there was hope for saving hundreds of acres of wheat and barley now in stocks.

Kent— Former home guards have formed a mobile column of 200 men to help the farmers bring in their crops.

Prayers for divine aid continued past midnight in some churches where small groups knelt silently in pews.

At tiny Wichenford in Worcestshire, farmers and land workers turned their back on flooded fields to pray in the local chapel.

Beneath the doomed roof of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, the congregation heard Dean W. R. Matthews pray that "although we for our iniquities have worthily deserved a plague of rain and waters," the weather might be tempered to allow harvesting.

Fined For Damaging Apartment

Hamilton, Sept. 9. (CP) — Charged with throwing a pail of soapy water over the walls of an apartment and punching holes in the plaster with his fist, Dennis St. Armand, 53, was fined $10 in police court Saturday. The complainant said she ejected him from her apartment because he had been drinking but he returned shortly in a destructive mood.

FOUR MINISTERS ASK ASSEMBLY DELAY FOR MONTH

Trygve Lie Summons Staff Men to Take Action on Request Of Council of Ministers

Paris, Sept. 9 —(AP)— The Foreign Ministers Council, agreeing to a Russian proposal, today asked the United Nations General Assembly to postpone for one month its scheduled Sept. 23 meeting in New York to avoid conflict with the Paris Peace Conference.

The ministers also would begin drafting treaties for Germany and Austria at that time, these quarters said.

The United States did not join in the request for postponement of the General Assembly meeting, but did not offer any objection. Britain associated herself "provisionally" with the request, reserving final decision. France joined Russia in supporting the move, also favored by China and Belgium, who were invited to sit in with the Big Four.

The ministers' decision was taken at a five-hour meeting which began last night after State Secretary Byrnes' return from Germany, and continued into the early morning.

Russia has maintained for some time that the General Assembly meeting should be postponed to avoid conflict with the peace parley. Mr. Byrnes from the beginning had taken the position that the Assembly meeting should be held on schedule in order not to detract from the prestige of that organization.

At the peace conference itself, now entering its seventh week, debate over the touchy question of Trieste was expected to continue today when the Italian political and territorial commission convenes.

By LARRY HAUCK

Lake Success, N. Y., Sept. 9 — (AP)—Secretary-General Trygve Lie summoned his top staff men to a conference today to take action on a request from the Foreign Ministers Council that the United Nations consider postponement of the General Assembly from Sept. 23 for one month.

Andrew Cordier, executive assistant to Mr. Lie, said the secretary-general called the meeting after conferring via phone with Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, assembly president, who attended the ministers' meeting in Paris.

Indications were that Mr. Lie would order an early membership poll which, because of distances and communications involved, might require several days.

Arrangements virtually have been completed for the session at the old World's Fair site in nearby Flushing and the U. N. has reserved some 7,000 hotel rooms for the Sept. 23 date.

The assembly already has been postponed once — from Sept. 2. That decision was taken to avoid overlapping with the Paris conference.

Meanwhile, the security council today resumes its 17-hour debate on the Soviet Ukraine's complaint against Greece, while in another part of the sprawling U. N. headquarters the Atomic Energy Commission's scientific committee meets to hear Russia's answer on approval of its report. Both sessions were scheduled for 3 p.m. E.D.T.

Two Muncey Reserve Indians Charged With Murder of Student

London, Ont, Sept. 9. (CP)— Lloyd Nicholas, 25, and Joseph French, 38, two Muncey Reserve Indians, today were charged in county court with the murder of Eldon Leroy Meredith, 23-year-old Wallaceburg medical student whose bullet pierced body was found in the wilds of the Muncey Indian Reservation on August 25.

Preliminary hearing was set by Magistrate Donald Menzies for Wednesday. They were remanded in custody.

Neither Nicholas nor French made any comment when charged and there was no change in their facial expressions as they faced Magistrate Menzies.

Counsel for French, William Henderson, concurred with Crown Attorney Claude Savage on the date for the preliminary. Counsel for Nicholas, Norman E. Lickers, of Brantford, well known Indian lawyer and one time celebrated marathoner, did not appear in court today but agreed by telephone to be prepared for the hearing Wednesday.

Violence Breaks Out in Palestine Two Persons Killed

Coincides With Opening British-Arab Conference

By JOSEPH C. GOODWIN

Jerusalem, Sept. 9—(AP) — A British Information Officer announced today that the Palestine railway had been cut in 50 places, the flow of oil to the port of Haifa disrupted and two persons killed in a series of outbreaks coinciding with the opening of British-Arab talks in London.

Explosions and gunshots broke out in various sections of the Holy Land. The information officer said these incidents were "apparently part of a larger Jewish terror campaign which partially failed because of a break in timing."

The officer said he believed the campaign was planned by either Haga or Irgun Zvai Leumi (Jewish underground groups), probably Irgun, as a demonstration of strength to coincide with the opening of the London conference, which the Jews so far have shunned.

"We believe this morning's blastings of the railway at several points was planned to coincide with yesterday's explosions at the Haifa port area," he said, "but something went wrong."

Series of Incidents

Official reports said the series of incidents included:

Damage to railway lines in 3 areas between Jerusalem and Jaffa. In one zone 30 miles north of Jerusalem the line was cut in "20 to 30 places."

Breaking and firing of port oil lines from the Haifa refinery.

Destruction of a railway signal tower at Haifa and damaging of other signal facilities. An Arab boy was said to have been killed in the tower explosion.

The fatal wounding of a British police corporal, shot in Haifa.

Injury to "several workmen" when a mine blew a street car from the tracks.

An exchange of fire between a military patrol and armed men in the edge of Jerusalem near the scene of a railway blast.

An attack by "a party of between 20 and 25 men" on a freight train halted by a bomb explosion.

Royal engineers reported temporary repairs to the damaged rails would be completed today.

State of Siege.

The country was in a virtual state of siege. The Jerusalem siren sounded an emergency call at 12:47 a.m. and the all clear was still awaited at noon. A strict curfew was maintained all night.

Only military vehicles were permitted on the roads. Roadblocks were manned. Security patrols were doubled.

Rail officials reported tracks damaged near Bittir, near Rehoboth and at four other places north of Lydda.

The railway raids were preceded yesterday by an outburst of violence in the Haifa area, during which three oil pipelines serving the port were cut and set afire and a railway signal box in the British refinery was destroyed by a blast which killed one person.

At the Latrun detention camp 500 Jews began a 24-hour hunger strike yesterday in protest against their continued detention.

Twenty of the 800 odd detainees at Rafah camp were informed yesterday that they had been sentenced administratively to one year further detention. None of them has been brought to trial.

Twenty-nine others were released from Rafah yesterday and 27 from Latrun.

Gloster Meteor Sets Mark Of 616 Miles an Hour

Tangmere, Eng., Sept. 9. (Reuters).—The R.A.F. high-speed flight team which established a world record of 616 miles an hour may make another attempt to improve that speed, it was learned today.

Weather permitting, Group Capt. E. M. Donaldson and Sqdn. Ldr. William A. Waterton of Edmonton, will try to reach 630 miles an hour in their jet-propelled Gloster Meteor aircraft.

Conditions described as "bad" prevailed Saturday when Group Capt. Donaldson recorded an average for four flights of 616 miles an hour, 10 miles an hour faster than the previous standard established last November by Group Capt. H. J. Wilson of the R.A.F.

Sqdn. Ldr. Waterton averaged 614 miles an hour for runs of 620 m. p. h. 606, and 620. Only four of the five runs were used in computing his average.

Air Marshal Sir James Robb, commander of R.A.F. fighter command, told reporters that flights now are extremely close to the sonic barrier—the speed of sound—and that it might be some time before another big jump in top speeds could be expected.

Thomas Ashman, 4-Year-Old Son Drown at Kingston

Kingston, Sept. 9 — (CP) — Drowning of a young father and his four-year-old son yesterday ended a tense struggle off Cedar Island in the St. Lawrence River near here.

Thomas Ashman of Kingston and his son, Raymond, drowned despite the efforts of Arthur Gregg, uncle of Mrs. Ashman. Gregg was pulled from the water semi-conscious.

The tragedy began when Raymond fell into the water. His father immediately jumped in after him. Arthur Gregg heard Mrs. Ashman screaming for help and, without removing his clothing, plunged in after the struggling pair.

He managed to reach the little boy but as he turned to bring him to shore he said the boy's father clutched his legs, pulling him under.

William Gregg, brother of Arthur, unable to swim, hung on to Mrs. Ashman while she waded out and managed to pull Arthur Gregg to safety but in the meantime the father and baby had disappeared. An unidentified man operating a sailboat appeared on the scene within 15 minutes and recovered both bodies by diving.

Mrs. Ashman was brought to hospital here suffering from acute shock and later taken home.

An inquest was ordered by Coroner M. J. Morrison.

Mr. Ashman was a former resident of Belleville and was the son of Thomas A. Ashman, 14 Lattimer St. The funeral date had not been set by press time.

CAR IS/STOLEN FROM VACANT LOT

Thomas Cassidy, 158½ Church Street, over the weekend reported to city police of the theft of his 1935 Chevrolet coupe. The car had been parked on a vacant lot on Pinnacle Street near the police station, he said.

A homing pigeon the property of the R.C.A.F., was brought to the police station on Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Ray of Springbrook. The pigeon was found in an exhausted condition on Ray's milk wagon. Fully recovered the pigeon was released Saturday by local police and was last seen at 600 feet heading west.

WANTS INFORMATION ON OLD FAMILIES OF THE DISTRICT

Mayor Frank Follwell is in receipt of a communication from Mr. Clarence Smart of Salem, N.Y., requesting information regarding a book containing information relative to the older families of this district.

Mr. Smart is anxious to obtain the history of the Ketcheson family and mentions the fact that his grandfather was the late Benjamin Ketcheson who left Belleville in 1841 and settled at Oswego, N.Y. He was a close friend of the late Sir Mackenzie Bowell, and the two learned their trade in the former Intelligencer here.

Anyone having such a book is requested to get in touch with the Mayor or City Comptroller Harold Bateman at the City Hall.

EIGHT NAMED AS DELEGATES

Eight Belleville persons have been named as delegates to the first post-war conference of the Ontario Zionist Region on Sept. 15th, at London, Ontario, it has been announced by the organization headquarters in Toronto.

Delegates from Belleville are I. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ernst I. Lindenberg, Mrs. S. R. Rose, T. Schwab, E. Shapiro, W. Wise and E. Bernstein.

DR. AND MRS. EWING TO VISIT O.S.D.

Dr. A. W. G. Ewing, head of the Department of Education for the Deaf, in Manchester, England, and Mrs. Ewing who are in Canada on the invitation of the Department of Education, to study and give advice on education of the deaf, will arrive at the School for the Deaf here on September 18 ~~and will remain until September 22~~, Superintendent W. J. Morrison announced today.

Dr. and Mrs. Ewing have completed four months study and lecturing in the United States on the educational treatment of deafness. They will lecture here on the afternoons of Sept. 18 and 19 and will give two two-hour lectures on Sept. 20 and 21. At the conclusion of their stay here they will leave for England via New York.

SCHOOL FOR DEAF TO OPEN WEDNESDAY

The Ontario School for the Deaf will open for the fall and winter term on Wednesday of this week, according to Superintendent W. J. Morrison. The student body will number 290 this year, an increase of 20 over 1945's attendance.

Kinsmen Picnic For C.A.S. Wards Greatly Enjoyed

The second annual Kinsmen picnic for the Hastings county wards of the Children's Aid Society and children of Kinsmen members from the Belleville and Tweed clubs was held at Stoco Lake on Sunday and despite threatening weather saw a splendid turnout.

Everything that goes to make a picnic a happy occasion to remember by the kiddies was provided by the two Kinsmen clubs, including races, games, supervised motor boat rides on Stoco Lake with boats donated and operated by Arthur Snare, Albert Sherry, "Giner" Hounslow and Jardine Bros. of Tweed. In addition there was ample ice cream, pop, chocolate and whole milk and a fish pond where the kiddies fished for prizes.

Added to the entertainment offered the children were the antics provided by "Koko" the clown, a boys' and girls' all star band, sing song and a parade of all the kiddies.

Transportation Provided

All children were personally conducted from their homes to the picnic grounds and tired but happy were seen safely home after the day's fun was over. Transportation was provided by Rawson Bus and by Kinsmen in private cars, while the local Diamond Taxi donated two cars and Percy Geen one car. Special prizes of comic books, novelties, candy and suckers were provided for winners of the various events.

Superintendent of the C.A.S., Capt. T. D. Ruston and his staff were on hand to assist in the proceedings and expressed his appreciation to Picnic Chairman Kin Cleo Colling, his committee and members of the Belleville and Tweed Kinsmen Clubs.

Members of the Tweed Kinsmen Club responsible for work there included "Doc" McCue, Jerry Quinn, Chas. Dion, Guy Hughes, Terence Rashotte, Staff Meraw, Sam Curry and Mrs. Bob Wood.

Collision Injures Five Persons Near Air Station

Five persons are in serious collision in Belleville General Hospital as result of a head-on crash between two motor vehicles which occurred early Saturday afternoon two miles east of Trenton on Highway No. 2.

The injured are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wallis of Trenton, occupants of one car, and Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Murell of Toronto and their daughter, Mrs. Helen Farren, also of Toronto. Freddie Farren, small son of Mrs. Farren, miraculously escaped injury.

According to reports of the accident given to police the eastbound car driven by Mrs. Ethel Wallis swung over onto the north side of the highway at a bend in the road just east of the Trenton Air Station, where it crashed head-on into a westbound car driven by Thomas D. Murell. Both cars were completely wrecked.

Provincial Constable Sam Ervine who investigated the accident paid high tribute to personnel at the Trenton Air Station who, with Dr. Bishop of Trenton, rendered first aid at the scene of the accident. The injured were rushed to Belleville hospital by R.C.A.F. ambulance where they were attended by Dr. Bishop and Dr. G. H. Stobie.

Most seriously injured of the five in hospital are Mr. and Mrs. Murell, the former sustaining severe facial and body injuries. Mr. and Mrs. Wallis sustained facial lacerations and leg injuries.

Police declared it was remarkable how the small Farren boy escaped injury. The young lad emerged from the accident without a scratch, it was reported.

Follow Instruction And Save Time Getting R. Books

Distribution of ration books for the city will start in the City Hall Butter Market at 2 p.m. tomorrow (Tuesday) ration board officials pointed out today.

The Market will be open to the public from 2 to 6 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. No books will be issued before or after the times mentioned, it was pointed out.

The board respectively requests the public not to crowd the Market during the hours of distribution. There are plenty of books for all, and a "traffic-jam" will serve merely to delay the issuance of the books.

The following instructions should prove helpful to the public: Use the R.B. 191 card at the back of your present ration book. Do not detach the card. This will be done when you get your new book.

Fill in the name and address in block letters, and the prefix and serial numbers. Prefix and serial number means both letters and numbers that appear on the front of the ration book.

Write the age of a child under 16 in the space marked. A child is under 16 years of age if he or she has not reached the full age of 16 by Sept. 30, 1946. Where a sixteen-year-old presents the books for a family, he or she, should have some proof of age. Books must not be presented by children under 16.

If someone other than member of the family brings in your books, be sure that names, ages, etc., are correctly filled in and that all cards are correctly signed.

Where a new book is requested for an infant, the parent should apply first to the Ration Board, City Hall.

Frankford Men To Answer Charge On Melon Theft

Result of an early morning raid on a melon patch owned by Mr. Charles Smith, 6th concession Sidney township, six Frankford young men will answer charges in county police court on Thursday, it was stated today by provincial police at Belleville.

The young men apprehended by police were Boyce Patrick, Harold Howard, Lorne Wallace, Arnold Revoy, Claude Westlake and Douglas Lawrence.

A call from Mr. Smith at two o'clock Monday morning that his melon patch was being raided brought two officers from the provincial police office. A neighbouring farmer directed the officers west, he inferring that the [illegible] party might be travelling on soft tires.

Following a motor search over township sideroads the officers ended up at Frankford where the attendant of an all-night garage stated a party of young men a short time before had stopped to get air for their tires.

With the names of the party learned, the men were later apprehended and will appear on the melon stealing charge on Thursday.

Shares Circus Spotlight With Famous Husband

MRS. HARRIETT BEATTY and two pets from the nursery department of the great Clyde Beatty Trained Wild Animal Circus coming to Belleville next Thursday, Sept. 12.

Two hostile lords of the jungle, each a natural enemy of the other, are made to perform in the same arena in a featured display with the Clyde Beatty Railroad Circus coming to Belleville, for one day only, this Thursday, Sept. 12th., at the Station and Cemetery Grounds.

This daring and startling exhibition is presented by Mrs. Harriett Beatty, wife of the world-famous wild animal trainer. She commands a man-eating Bengal tiger to ride atop a giant elephant and later jump through a flaming hoop.

"So long as the tiger doesn't make a pass at the elephant, or vice versa, all is well," says Mrs. Beatty.

Mrs. Beatty's act with the Clyde Beatty Circus is said to be almost as thrilling as that of her famous husband in which the noted trainer battles single-handed forty cruel, savage, blood-thirsty, jungle-bred lions and tigers in the same arena.

With a host of other sensational features including the inimitable Flying Concellos Ala Ming, Chinese wizard of the tightwire, a fantastically beautiful cloud ballet; the Joyces, dressage riders without equal; tons of performing elephants, magnificent horses, circusdom's foremost clowns, and scores upon scores of kindred marvels, the Clyde Beatty Railroad Circus will give two performances daily at 2:30 and 8 p.m., with doors to the menagerie and horsefair opening at 1:30 and 7 o'clock.

Reserved seat tickets including general admission, on sale Thursday, 10 a.m. till 5 p.m. at Pauley Drug Store.

Families Given Quarters In Two City Buildings

Temporary housing accommodation in the city police station and in the city hall for two families forced to move from their present home on Highland Ave., because of its being condemned by the Board of Health, was provided by members of the local city council at a special meeting held Saturday evening.

One of the families is composed of a widow with six children, while the other consists of four persons. Temporary accommodation will be provided in three upstairs rooms at the police station, and in the auditorium at the city hall. The families will be permitted to move in on Tuesday.

Speaking with the Ontario Intelligencer Monday morning, Mayor Follwell assured that the above arrangement was only temporary and that every effort would be made to secure the two families other accommodation. Council appointed a special committee to investigate all available space in the city, it being suggested that buildings at the fairground might be transformed into emergency accommodation.

"No family in Belleville will be without shelter if the city council can do anything to prevent it," assured Mayor Follwell. "Considering the shortage of accommodation in the city, the Department of National Defence might make available vacant rooms at the Armouries."

Department of Health officials delayed their order condemning the quarters occupied by the two families who will be provided accommodation by the city. Only when the city acted in providing the emergency shelter were the families forced to vacate.

'Lunge Leaps Into Boat, Grabs For Bait Dangling Over Side

Marmora (Special) — From Round Lake, near Havelock comes the strange story of the "musky" which went after the fishermen.

In a modern setting of the man-bites-dog bromide, Ray Williams and Pete Haig, both of Havelock, battled with a large 'lunge after it had leaped into their boat in an effort to grab loose bait.

It happened like this:

Williams and Haig were fishing for the big fellows, and having only one line took turns at fishing and steering the craft.

After futile efforts to snare a fish, they were about to return home and decided to take another "whack" at it.

Changing positions, they left the line and the bait dangled temptingly over the side of the boat an inch or two from the water.

A hungry "muskie" which happened to be passing at the time, spotted the bait and leaped for it. He landed squarely in the boat. In the ensuing struggle, Haig became entangled in line, hooks and bait, and was almost helpless.

Williams finally subdued the fighting fish by stripping off his sweater, throwing it over the 'lunge and giving the fish the quietus.

WORDS AND MUSIC

A melodrama originally was a dramatic composition in which the actor recited his part while an orchestra played appropriate airs.

Obituary

MRS. HANNAH HITCHINGS (Ameliasburg)

Mrs. Hannah Hitchings, wife of Mr. James Hitchings, died suddenly at her home in the 1st. concession of Ameliasburg township, Prince Edward County, on Saturday afternoon. The death occurred while Mr. Hitchings was attending market in Belleville.

Born in Gloucester County, England, the late Mrs. Hitchings was in her 80th. year, and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Hayward. For a time she lived at Hillier and for the past twenty years she made her home in the first concession of Ameliasburg township. She was a member of the Church of England at Hillier.

Surviving her are her husband; one son, William Henry Hitchings, Dorking, England; one grandson, Kenneth Hitchings, Dorking, England, and one nephew, Harold Hitchings, Oshawa.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

DAVID CARRUTHERS

David Carruthers the one-day-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Carruthers, 42 North Park Street, died in Belleville General Hospital on Saturday evening. Surviving besides the parents are two sisters, Lois age 16 years and Gean age 11 years; one brother, James age 12 years.

The funeral took place Monday morning from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, to Belleville cemetery.

LATE LLOYD OSWALD SOBLE (Belleville-Ameliasburg)

The funeral of Lloyd Oswald Soble, late residence, 25 Grier Street, took place Sunday afternoon from the home of his parents in Ameliasburg to the United Church in that village where service was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. G. Graham, who also conducted the service at the graveside in Burr's cemetery.

During the service a solo, "Good Night and Good Morning," was rendered by Mrs. Milton Wood.

The bearers were Harold Wood, Leo Wood, Morgan Sills, Archie Cannon, Otis Sills and Arthur Colton.

JOHN DONALDSON (Millbridge)

Madoc, Sept. 9 (Special)—After an illness of one month's duration John Donaldson died at his home at Millbridge, Tudor township, on Sunday. He was born 77 years ago at Millbridge and was a son of the late Charles Donaldson and his wife Rosa McCann. He was engaged in farming and all his life was passed in the district where he was born. He was a member of the Church of England.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Emma Marie Huggins; four sons, Charles, Robert and Roy, all of Millbridge and Kenneth of Deloro; five daughters, Mrs. James Simpson, Picton; Mrs. John Howe, Millbridge; Mrs. Elmer Frantz, Maynooth; Mrs. Arnold Deshane, Millbridge and Miss May Donaldson, Millbridge; three sisters, Mrs. Frank Smith, Millbridge; Mrs. Mary Benedict, Belleville, and Mrs. Rose Burmester, Vancouver, B.C.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Drunk, Dangerous Driving Charges Against Judge

Cobourg, Sept. 9 — (CP) — Charges of drunk driving and dangerous driving were read today against County Judge J. C. M. German in Magistrate's Court.

The charges were laid by Ontario Provincial Police after an accident here Sept. 3. Police said that a car driven by Judge German struck Mrs. Cyril Taylor of Cobourg. Mrs. Taylor still is in hospital.

No plea was taken this morning; the charges were laid over until Sept. 30.

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman pointed out that in all likelihood an outside Magistrate and Crown counsel would be assigned to the case "for obvious reasons" and that Defence Counsel Arthur Greer of Oshawa had asked to have the case laid over until Sept. 30.

Judge German was represented by A. R. Willmott, K.C., Cobourg.

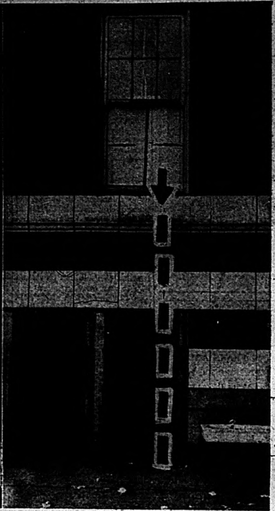
BOY, FOUR, LOCKED IN CLOSET, BREAKS BONES IN LEAP THROUGH WINDOW

Plaster casts encase both legs of the four-year-old Toronto, Ont., school pupil. His parents claim he was locked in a small room, broke a window and leaped to pavement.



Two fractures were suffered by John in his leap. His left heel and right ankle were broken. Principal C. E. Manning says boy was placed in room for disturbing class.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

(By the Ottawa Bureau of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Sept. 9 (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King's transfer of L. B. (Mike) Pearson from the post of Canadian Ambassador to Washington to that of Under-secretary of State for External Affairs in Ottawa set off renewed speculation that Mr. Pearson may be among the men being groomed for Liberal party leadership.

This speculation, however, is treated lightly in most Liberal circles. Liberal party supporters claim that Mr. Pearson is not as well-known in the length and breadth of the country as men who have been active in politics.

Mr. Pearson's career has been confined to the diplomatic service since he left the University of Toronto more than fifteen years ago. While he gained recognition as a diplomat, the Liberal members said, he has not the following or the background which would bring him support at a Liberal party national convention.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Mr. Pearson plans to resign his posts with the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, when he completes his term as Ambassador to Washington, September 17.

Mr. Pearson was Canadian representative on the U.N.R.R.A. Council and was also a member of the executive committee of U.N.R.R.A. It is not known who is likely to succeed him in this post.

Walter Tucker, Liberal member of parliament of Rosthern and parliamentary assistant to Veterans Minister Mackenzie, had headed west by automobile to tackle his major new assignment of leading Saskatchewan's Liberals. He expects to be well into the task before parliament resumes next January.

Mr. Tucker has sold the house he bought here to enable him to bring his wife and nine children east.

Increased activity by the CCF is expected to result from a recent expansion of the party's permanent staff and the acquisition of new office space in Ottawa.

Party headquarters have been centred in a small suite of offices in downtown Ottawa. Now the party has taken over a residence and converted it into more commodious office space. At the same time the permanent staff, which is under David Lewis, national secretary, has been expanded.

The party has always been noted for attempting to conduct its various activities on a permanent basis, rather than in pre-election spurts and expectations are that the latest move will give new emphasis to this policy. Plans include an expansion of educational activities.

ANCIENT SKELETON

Figheldean, England (CP) — Workmen at this Wiltshire town have dug up the skeleton of a man, who, experts say, died 2,000 years ago at the age of 70. He had a complete set of teeth, but one fell out when the skull was being lifted.

Storms Continue In Great Britain

London, Sept. 6. (CP Cable)—Farmers' hopes of reclaiming harvests were further dampened today by continued storms and gales which buffeted crops already beaten into the ground.

In many counties the chances of harvesting a large proportion of the crops were regarded as hopeless. Fields now are generally flooded and even three days of sunshine will not make them pliant to combines and reapers.

In contrast the weather in Russia is reported excellent for harvesting, with Winter crops in the north already ripening.

BRITISH SEEK TO RE-EDUCATE GERMAN PEOPLE

Allow German Editors to Run Own Newspapers Under Licence of Occupying Power

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Berlin, Sept. 9 (CP) —Through the German press, radio, books and entertainment, British control commission leaders are seeking to re-establish democratic thinking and the democratic way of life among 22,000,000 Germans in the British zone.

Stress is laid on the function and importance of newspapers and 34 papers are now running under British control. Allotted 1,250 tons of newsprint a month, these four-page dailies have a total circulation of about 4,500,000, providing approximately one paper for every five Germans.

With the exception of one British daily in Hamburg with a circulation of 250,000 daily, all papers are run by Germans and operate under British licence. The chief difficulty facing the British information organization which handles newspaper problems is to get capable Germans to run German papers.

The largest British licensed German paper is the Berlin Telegraph, a Socialist sheet with circulation of more than 400,000 daily. This is larger than any Russian licensed Communist paper in Germany. The Telegraph wields tremendous influence in Berlin where the current conflict between Communists and Socialists focuses.

Papers operating under British licence include 12 Socialist, seven Chrsitian Democrat and two Communist. The remainder are either non-party or run by small groups.

Check Outspoken Editors.

In explaining the newspaper situation to Empire Press Union delegates here, British officials said licensed papers are not censored when being published but teams of British officers keep an eye on what is printed and check up editors who go too far.

Editors are told not to publish anything severely critical of other Allied powers. Criticism of the British is permitted in some degree but more scope for criticism is allowed in regard to military government.

German-operated papers have not caused the British any serious trouble and no editors have had to be removed so far.

Papers give considerable space to foreign news which they receive by wire from the British-sponsored German news service carrying 30,000 to 40,000 words a day.

In the radio field the main station of the British zone is at Hamburg which has one 100-kilowatt transmitter and three subsidiary ones. This Hamburg station was one from which Lord Haw-Haw broadcast throughout the war.

Broadcasting has not yet been handed over to the Germans and all key positions are in British hands. It will take a long time to eliminate the deep-seated belief imbued by the Nazis that all news and all broadcasts are simply propaganda.

The British hope eventually to open 40 information centres thru'-out the zone and in Berlin where the Germans can get newspapers, magazines and books giving information on democracy and the British Commonwealth.

LANTIGEN 'C'

WHAT CAUSES ARTHRITIS?

In Canada more people suffer from Arthritis than from any other single disease. Many factors working together produce the changes which take place in the joints and give rise to the crippling pains which wreck the lives of so many sufferers. Focal infection from infected teeth, tonsils, sinuses and other organs is considered by many authorities as being largely responsible.

HEALTH RULES FOR ARTHRITICS

The treatment of these conditions is assisted by simple rules of diet and health. An excess of sugar and starchy foods should be avoided. A diet rich in Vitamins is helpful. The affected parts benefit by warmth and gentle massage. Adequate rest is important.

LANTIGEN—A DISSOLVED VACCINE TO BE TAKEN BY MOUTH

To combat this infectious process by building up the natural defenses of the body, a dissolved vaccine which may be taken by mouth has been prepared from the organisms which are commonly found in the centres of infection. This is LANTIGEN "C".

WHAT IS LANTIGEN?

Lantigen is a dissolved Vaccine containing such dissolved Micro-organisms which are peculiar to the particular disease requiring treatment. It contains no live germs. They are all destroyed by dissolving thus releasing the antigens contained therein—the natural antidote.

Lantigen works two ways; firstly, by absorbing into open tissue such as the tongue, throat, and intestinal tracts; secondly, it is operative by means of its distribution through the alimentary—stomach—system.

It is imperative to treat Arthritic, Rheumatic Pains...EARLY!

Ration Book No. 6

Canadians are again receiving a new ration book, No. 6, sixty thousand voluntary workers being engaged in the nationwide task. The distribution while a great job will with the co-operation of the voluntary workers be made very easy. Canadians are by this time used to the procedure and will find no inconvenience and the public can make the task light for the workers by co-operation.

The workers who have come to the call to give their services in distributing the books deserve the thanks of the people everywhere. This voluntary work has been a phase of which Canada should be proud.

Ration book holders should make certain of the dates and hours for their own centres as neglect to secure books will mean delay.

British World Trade

Of interest are sidelights on British trade returns. Britain's overseas trade for July has been most encouraging to the people of the British Isles. The country is sending abroad spark plugs in steadily increasing numbers. In the first seven months of this year nearly two and three quarter million were exported at a value of 188 thousand pounds. One of the manufacturers whose output is three times what it was before the war says "Much of our success is due to the excellent spirit of our workpeople. They know how much depends upon this export drive."

Britain is exporting transmitters as well as radio receiving sets. Sheffield cutlery is in heavy demand says United Kingdom Information Office. Glassware exports are on the increase. Some of the new trends in this product will be shown at the "Britain Can Make It" exhibition to be held this month. The trend in these products made by a 200-year-old technique is toward simplicity, the line of beauty being heightened by avoidance of fussy decorations.

Britain is out after world trade in business among other products.

Britain's "New Towns"

Recently, the United Kingdom Government published the final report of the Reith Committee on New Towns. In view of the importance of this report, a summary of its main proposals will probably be of some interest, says United Kingdom Information Office.

While aiming at the provision of "ideas and guidance for those who will have the responsibility of creating new towns" the committee stresses the necessity for full latitude in variety and experiment.

In the main the committee prefers entirely new towns to extending the existing ones because of the difficulties of interfering with existing interests. In some cases, however, enlargement would benefit the town and in some dispersal areas — this applies to parts of the Greater London area —completely new towns could not be sited without seriously reducing the green belt area.

The size of a new town, says the committee, should be normally 30,000 to 50,000, though within a ten miles radius there might be 80,000. In support of this it quotes the result of a broadcast enquiry, most of the replies to which favored a town between 20,000 and 60,000. One interesting suggestion is the creation of smaller new towns in remoter areas which, by facilitating access to modern amenities, might check the present serious population drift from country to town.

On the problem of achieving "balanced" communities, the committee points out that there is not only an economic problem which can be solved by providing opportunities for employment at all levels but also one of class distinctions. "As long as social classes exist all must be represented" is a watchword, and the report proposes that the new town should include not only factories and shops but also head offices, sections of government departments and research institutions. It should also attract professional and retired people. To strike the needed balance, houses of varying size and type should be constructed from the outset.

The committee goes on to discuss such fundamental needs as an adequate water supply, ease of draining site, the variety of layout possible with undulating terrain and the desirability of siting on a main railway rather than on a branch, and of good access to an arterial road. Under favorable conditions the committee thinks people and industries could be moved up to 40 miles without detriment. In any case, the new town should be at least 15 miles from an existing town (25 in the Greater London area). The ultimate population should be fixed at the outset. For 60,000 the committee suggests acquiring 5,000 acres for a built-up area and 6,000 as a peripheral belt. For the main centre with shops, public buildings, cinemas, hotels, public gardens, etc., about 60 acres would be required. Another 600 acres would be needed for an industrial zone (assuming no heavy industries). The remainder of the built-up area would become a general urban zone with houses, schools, churches, local public buildings, and open spaces, laid out on a "neighborhood" scheme.

The report suggests that individuality in designing buildings can be combined with judicious supervision to achieve consistency of style and materials and commends diversity by the juxtaposition of buildings of different heights. Since the beauty of towns depends not only on its buildings but also on the relation to the surrounding landscape, the committee suggests close attention to topography, e.g. accentuating contours by planting on higher ground and using ribs of high ground to demarcate neighborhoods. Tribute is paid to the success of Britain's pioneer "garden cities" Letchworth and Welwyn in a location of trees, flower beds and lawns. It is suggested that in a peripheral belt farms should be disturbed as little as possible and farmers given due notice of forthcoming developments. The land in this belt might be used to meet a growing need among the town workers for plots larger than allotments.

In public services the committee suggests the full application of great scientific advances of recent years, e.g., effluents of almost any industry can be safely disposed of; gas can be supplied in high pressure mains up to 50 miles, and heat can be most efficiently supplied by "district heating" (that is hot water laid on along the streets) not only for industry but even for domestic areas with only ten houses per acre. The water supply should aim at supplying 50 gallons daily per head. The committee's suggestions for road systems follow the most modern schemes for radial and ring roads, separate cycle tracks, limited access of local traffic to main roads, etc. Each new town should have an adequate internal bus service and for longer journeys there should be a central bus station near the railway station which itself should be "an outstanding feature of the town, externally and internally." Each town should also have reasonable access to air facilities.

On social life and recreation the report says due regard must be paid to the growing interest in theatre, music and other arts among all classes. At least one public library will be required which could house the nucleus of a local museum. In hotels "new towns should seek to revive all that is best in traditional British hospitality while enriching it with much that other countries have to teach about the art of good living." Finally, in recommending open spaces at not less than ten acres per thousand the committee makes a special plea for the children's need to make their own amusements. Besides the traditional swings and seesaws, the designer should provide "a cave or two, a tunnel, some gnarled tree stumps with ample footholds, and some dwarf walls for playing house."

JUST FOLKS

MAMMA!

Little children when distressed
Know to whom to go is best.
Not to strangers in a crowd;
Not to men of riches proud;
Not to neighbors kind, who would
Help in every way they could.
Home they turn; and hastening by,
This world-over is their cry:
"Mamma!"

Hear it time and time again
Some one's little child in pain
Following bruise or scratch or fall,
Comes to one alone the call.
Not for friend who may be near;
Not for grandma's willing ear;
Not for any other nigh,
Always this the tearful cry:
"Mamma!"

May it be, when time has flown
And life's hurts have larger grown,
When comes trouble, as it will,
Homeward they will hasten still—
Passing strangers on the street,
Friends and neighbors they may meet,
Calling out along the way,
Even as they do today:
"Mamma!"

Putting Finger on Crime

(New York Times)

The fingerprint is now so nearly identical with crime detection that it may come as something of a shock to younger readers to learn that an officer who helped initiate its use in New York is still a member of the police force. Capt. Frederick F. E. Zwirz, the department's oldest fingerprint expert, is retiring at 69. He joined the force forty-five years ago, and was the first to be indoctrinated in the new system of identification by the late Deputy Commissioner Joseph A. Faurot, who went to Scotland Yard to study it.

The amazing thing about the fingerprint is that, so old a method of identification, it was so slow in being accepted as a standard police aid. J. Edgar Hoover of the F.B.I., says that Chinese tablets placed at about 200 B.C. show prints apparently intended to identify the author, and even earlier evidence points to criminal identification. A thirteenth century mystery novel in China told of a capture of criminals by that means. In 1880 Dr. Henry Faulds, then working in a Tokyo hospital, developed evidence that patterns remained unchangeable through life. And about the same time some significant experience was reported from India.

Proving the Contract

Sir William Herschel, a young Englishman who was administrator of a district in India, had been having trouble with contracts with the natives, who were commonly making a bargain and forgetting it. He hit upon the plan of having the natives press inked fingers on the contract and observed at the same time that no two fingers made the same print. He did not act hastily on this discovery. Although he first used the plan in 1858, it was eighteen years later that he made a report to the administrator of prisons. It was pigeonholed, but Sir William Herschel deserves our gratitude as being probably the first who devised a feasible method for regular use of the fingerprint, and then put it into practice. He used his system not merely for identifying pensioners, but prisoners committed to jail.

Then Scotland Yard.

Sir Edward Henry of the Indian Civil Service had meanwhile been working on a system of classification, and the solution of this problem is said to have come to him in a flash while he was taking a ride through the jungle. He was called home, later became head of the C.I.D. in Scotland Yard, and at the start of the century installed the system that has now spread to all the civilized world.

We should not, even in hasty summary, neglect to mention the man who established to general satisfaction that no two fingerprints are alike, for this is the vital point. He was Sir Francis Galton, who made a collection of prints while studying heredity. The British government was inspired to appoint a committee to look into the matter, and finally these numerous and scattered individual experiments and findings took on official mold.

Some Beginnings in U.S.

It seems almost an act of God that the ends of men's fingers should leave a mark so distinctive that the chance of there being another person in the world who would leave an identical trace is so small as to be negligible. Add to that the fact that the excretory glands, whose mouths make the papillary ridges of the finger tips, deposit an oily substance that leave at least a latent impression on whatever they touch and the miracle is complete.

Sing Sing made the first official use of fingerprinting in this country, in 1903. A year later at the St. Louis World's Fair some officers from Scotland Yard came over to guard the British crown jewels which were on display, and they became friends with St. Louis police, teaching them what they knew about fingerprinting. In the fall of 1904 that city already had its fingerprint bureau.

Judge Schilling Familiar Prairie Racetrack Figure

By ALAN VICKERY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Sept. 9—(CP)—The "Mr. Racing" of Western Canada tracks is San-Francisco-born Judge George W. Schilling, presiding steward of the Prairie Thoroughbred Breeders and Racing Association for 22 years and racing secretary for the last eight.

No one is quite sure just how old "the Judge" is. But it's a long time since, as a boy of 16, he became interested in horses and horse racing, got a stable job as an exercise boy and finally became a jockey.

His parents were not in favor of their son's chosen profession. They coaxed him into taking a job in a San Francisco shipping firm but they couldn't prevail on him to stay there.

In 1907 he became racing editor of the San Francisco Post, serving in that capacity for a number of years. He gathered all information he could about race horses and later switched to form calling and compiling, and produced his own racing form along the west coast.

His first-rate knowledge of the thoroughbreds gained him early recognition in racing circles, and in 1916 he was appointed racing secretary at the Tijuana track in New Mexico. From 1925 to 1944, he served as presiding stewart at the Agua Caliente oval, which replaced the Tijuana course. Since then he has held the same position at the Bay Meadows track in his native San Francisco.

The Judge has alternated between the Prairie circuit and United States' meets as an official for the last 22 years. His average year consists of 30 days racing in Western Canada, 100 days at Bay Meadows and from two weeks to a month at other North American tracks.

Polo Park P. A.

The public address system — used this year at Polo Park here for the first time — was actually the brain-child of Judge Schilling. He first conceived the idea in 1927, when a movie director, using camera shots of a racetrack crowd for a movie, was giving directions over a loudspeaker to the crowd, as to when he wanted them to shout, to stand up, or to wave their programs.

When the moviemakers had completed their work, the judge asked if he could borrow the loudspeaker system. He hooked up the system in the judge's stand and then gave a running description of the next race. The idea was born, and quickly spread to tracks in both the United States and Canada.

The Judge also introduced the R. James Speers starting gate and the mechanical sprinkler to many tracks throughout the racing world. In October 1945, he made turf history — not on a track but in the sky lanes—when he travelled by plane from Hollywood to Bay Meadows, with El Lobo, a four-year-old belonging to Stuart Hamblen, radio's "Crooning Cowboy" and breeder of note. The horse won his first race shortly after being led off the plane.

To racing fans the Judge's track stories, given in broadcasts between races, have become a legend. In his slow southern drawl, he will tell stories of great and near-great horses, of a thoroughbred who wouldn't run unless his mate was nearby on a horse which wouldn't start unless his favorite jockey was in the saddle. The greatest horse he ever saw, he says, was Phar Lap. The best jockey, Alberta's Johnny Longden.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

HOW TO BEAR THE HEAT

Last summer while doing a great deal of heavy manual labor outdoors daily I took one tablet of 100 milligrams of ascorbic acid daily, writes a reader. Ascorbic acid is vitamin C. The reader says he felt that this enabled him to stand the heat better, and asks what measures medical science offers to enable one to bear extreme summer heat more comfortably and with undiminished vigor.

Aside from the fact that ascorbic acid (vitamin C) has been used along with salt, for the prevention of heat exhaustion, sunstroke or heatstroke and heat cramps in extremely hot weather or where workers are exposed to extreme heat, I can find no convincing evidence that it has such value. Nevertheless vitamin C is harmless enough, and one exposed to extreme heat should be sure to get plenty of it every day, if not in fresh fruits or their juices and fresh green vegetables then in synthetic or tablet form—100 milligrams of vitamin C (ascorbic acid) is the right amount, being about three times the amount nutrition authorities estimate as the daily requirement for the average person.

It is the loss of salt (in the sweat) that is mainly responsible for heat exhaustion. Therefore one exposed to great heat should make it a rule to take some additional salt either with each drink of water or other thirst quencher or, as an ordinary precaution for hot weather comfort, by eating highly salted things once or twice a day during the heat wave.

On a very warm day any one who works or plays hard and becomes very thirsty will find more refreshment in water, lemonade or other thirst quencher if he takes a large pinch of salt along with it—say ten grains. That quantity or salt with every glass of water or other beverage is not at all too much to take for three or four times after such exposure.

It is difficult to judge how much water and salt the body loses in a few hours of exposure to great heat, by the apparent amount of sweat. Constantly in the southwestern part of the country and sometimes even in the northeastern part dryness of the atmosphere favors such rapid evaporation of sweat that one is hardly aware he is sweating, although there may be a loss of many pounds of water and several teaspoonfuls of salt in a few hours.

The former practice of drinking oatmeal water when doing very hard work in hot weather or playing a hard game was a gesture in the right direction. Far better to take the necessary five or ten grains of salt with each drink of water.

It is now the custom in various shops or plants to provide, alongside the drinking fonts, dispensers of salt or salt and vitamin C tablets, so that the worker may halp himself to a tablet every time he takes a drink.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

When was snuff first used?

Snuff made from the leaves of tobacco and other plants originated in the New World in pre-Columbian times. Members of the second Columbus expedition in 1493-96 first noted its use by some of the natives in the West Indies and Central America.

The Spaniards introduced the snuff habit into Spain, whence it gradually spread to Portugal, France and the rest of the world. A pinch of snuff was supposed to be good for colds and to "clear the head" and its use was encouraged among Europeans because of the belief in its medicinal virtue.

In England and her Colonies snuff-taking, particularly among the upper classes, became widespread in the 17th century. Snuff-containers made of the windpipes of cattle were called "weasands." During the latter part of the 18th and the early part of the 19th centuries snuff-taking by both men and women was a mark of gentility. It was fashionable for people of the upper classes to carry beautifully ornamented snuff-boxes, and kings, princes and other notables presented delicately carved wood and ivory snuff-boxes inlaid with gold and silver and inset with diamonds and other jewels as marks of their favor.

Snuff-taking lost its social standing as its use spread from the aristocracy to the common people. The change in the class of users resulted in the virtual disappearance of personal snuff-boxes and the introduction of "moist" snuff. Originally snuff was merely dry tobacco ground fine and was often referred to as "dust." The father of Gilbert Stuart, the portrait painter, was a "snuff-grinder" by trade.

Modern snuff making is a complex process. Sometimes it is made from the scraps, waste pieces and residue of ordinary tobacco, but the best produced is made from the thick, fleshy part and the midribs of the leaves of dark tobacco that has been fire-cured and seasoned for a considerable period. The tobacco is blended, moistened, salted, scented, flavored with licorice, tonka beans or other ingredients, fermented, dried and pulverized. Walter Garrett became a multi-millionaire manufacturing snuff.

Snuff has more "kick" in it than ordinary tobacco because of the free nicotine and ammonia and the aromatic qualities generated by fermentation.

The use of snuff is not dying out and "snuff-dipping" is far from a lost art. In 1880 less than 4,000 pounds of snuff was made in the United States; in 1943 the annual production was 43,000,000 pounds — nearly a third of a pound for every man, woman and child in the country. The Federal tax was 18 cents a pound and the revenue from this source amounted to about $7,000,000. The chief users in the Untied States are Negroes and white laborers and farmers in the South, industrial workers in the Northeast and persons of Scandinavian extraction in the Northwest.

Snuff-taking, like tobacco chewing, increased during the Second World War because smoking was forbidden in many war plants and factories.

"White snuff," which does not "stain the handkerchief,", was put on the market in Britain during the war.

Vegetables Hold the Spotlight

Honest-to-goodness vegetable lovers require no prodding when it comes to eating plenty of vegetables, but they do want them properly cooked, that is, tender but not overcooked. The simple rule for boiling all vegetables, except the starchy potato, is to cook them in the smallest possible amount of boiling salted water. The boiling time required to reach the "tender point" naturally varies to some extent with different vegetables, but in most cases, only a few minutes of actual boiling is necessary. The water should be kept boiling gently, not violently, during the whole cooking period. To say the least, vegetables do not improve with standing, so should be served just as soon as they are cooked and ready for the table.

Some vegetables, tomatoes are an excellent example, are definitely good mixers. In other words they may be served together. At the same time many of the late Summer vegetables, such as corn, squash and eggplant, help to stretch such foods as meat, eggs and cheese.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture suggest the following recipes, which are slightly different from the usual and feature the ever popular tomato and the less well-known eggplant.

Tomatoes and Hamburger With Cream Gravy

1 cup hamburger
3 large ripe tomatoes
1 tablespoon flour
1-2 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 tablespoon fat
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon mustard
1 1-2 cups milk
Salt and pepper to taste

Brown meat slightly in frying pan. Remove meat, cut tomatoes in halves crosswise. Sprinkle with the 1 tablespoon flour, salt and pepper and saute in fat remaining in pan, until golden brown on both sides. Remove tomatoes and keep hot. Blend flour and mustard with fat in frying pan, add milk, salt and pepper and cook, stirring constantly, until gravy thickens. Reheat meat in gravy and pour onto platter. Arrange tomatoes on top. 6 servings.

Note— If hamburger is very lean, 1 tablespoon extra fat will be required for sauteing tomatoes. If hamburger is very fat, 1 tablespoon may be reserved and extra fat will not be required for making gravy.

Tomato Eggplant

2 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 medium eggplant
Salt and pepper to taste
3 large tomatoes
1-2 cup soft stale bread crumbs

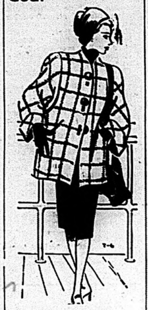
Melt 1 tablespoon of fat in frying pan, add onion and cook until browned slightly. Peel eggplant, cut in half inch slices, and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place slices in a greased casserole in alternate layers with the onion and thickly sliced fresh tomatoes. Melt remaining fat in frying pan, add bread crumbs and mix thoroughly, place on top layer of vegetables. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., until eggplant is tender about 45 minutes. Six servings.

Stuffed Eggplant

3 medium eggplant (about 5 to 6 inches in length)
1-2 lb. sausage meat or link sausage with casing removed.
1 cup soft stale bread crumbs
1-4 cup chopped onion
1-2 teaspoon celery salt, or 1 tablespoon finely chopped celery leaves
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper

Parboil the whole unpeeled eggplants for fifteen minutes. Cook the sausage meat. Cut eggplant in half, scoop out the pulp leaving shells half an inch thick. Chop the pulp, add bread crumbs, onion seasonings and cooked sausage meat. Fill eggplant shells, bake in a hot oven 400 degrees F., for 15 to 20 minutes. Six servings.

Trim Travel Coat



Blanket Plaid Casual Coat

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

NOW THAT travel is back on the agenda a casual coat of the type shown here finds a welcome place in the well-rounded wardrobe. It is fashioned of oyster white woollen plaided in brown and beige, and it is cut to the popular five-eighth length, with deep arm-hole sleeves and turned back cuffs. Collarless, it makes a good foil for scarfs. Three large brown buttons close the front of a topper that is easy to wear over suits.

Autumn's New Tunic Coat

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THIS HANDSOME coat, with its tunic silhouette, its diagonal closing with big, self-fabric buttons, is a trend establisher for the coming change of seasons.

It's an Autumn coat, but with the matching skirt which one may buy separately, it is also a fine cold weather suit. Notice how the belt makes a flattering waistline despite the gathers in the tunic and the great width of construction above the waistline. One can wear a fur scarf, carry a fur muff, or add a brilliant scarf to the dark green model. Its basic simplicity is an hospitable background for accessories.

No fumbling in one bag for the elusive compact. One house has designed a handsome bag in black broadcloth or suede. It is a dressy pouch, the material gathered on a square plastic top into which is set a compact that may be opened or shut without disturbing the bag.

Fashion Flashes

THE RUSTLE of taffeta will blend with dance music come fall, since nearly every shop has chosen taffeta dance frocks for its youthful customers. Black, pink and royal blue surah taffeta is used for a pretty gown with sides of skirt gathered under bouffant side puffs which are cut in one with the front skirt panel. Crushed mid-riff girdle of black satin.

Glitter brightens up new evening sweaters. A black wool hand-knit has midnight blue sequins massed on its tiny Peter Pan collar. The sequin trim is repeated in open lattice-work on the short sleeves.

The beaver is busily engaged as one of the most popular furs for the new season. A really handsome coat has the scallops in its 36-inch hemline correlated with the coat's eleven stripes which tend to merge into the triple-ripple back. Push-up balloon sleeves.

Out of honors in the evening is the little, feather-trimmed hat. Black velvet makes a new model detailed with a soft, rolled-back brim and a moderately high crown, the hat worn back from the face. Aigrettes of black glycerined peacock are placed to give height and width.

If you favor plaid taffeta for an evening frock, you will find that the designers have done right by your favorite. Black, yellow and green plaid silk taffeta is used for an evening frock with a diagonal one-shoulder line. A big self bow, perched on the covered shoulder, is balanced by a larger bow jutting out from the opposite hip. Horizontally striped fabric is pulled taut across the front and draped in back.

The Experts Say

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 7. (CP)—Five thousand years ago grapes were considered so important to national health that their introduction was thought to be supernatural. The Romans credited grapes to Bacchus, the Greeks to Dionysius and with the Egyptians it was Osiris.

Through the years various medicinal values have been attributed to grape juice. Certainly the cool delicious flavor is appreciated in Summer drinks and desserts but it is equally popular in cool weather.

The Agriculture Department Consumer Section suggest a refreshing grape drink, Grape Caps.

Grape Caps require 1 1-2 cups of sweetened grape juice, one cup of water, one egg white and one tablespoon of sugar.

Chill the grape juice and water. Beat the egg white until stiff but not dry. Add sugar gradually beating well, then add the diluted grape juice, beat until blended. Just before serving, mix well.

If unsweetened grape juice is used, add two tablespoons of sugar to the egg white instead of one tablespoon.

Another delicious Summer drink employing orange, lime and grapefruit juice is Honey Punch. For eight servings the punch requires two cups of water, 1-2 cup of honey, two cups of orange juice, 1-4 cup lemon or lime juice, one cup grapefruit juice and one pint of sparkling water.

Mix one cup of water with the honey and heat until the honey has dissolved. Add the remaining cup of water and fruit juices and chill. Pour over ice in tall glasses and add the sparkling (carbonated) water. Garnish with cherries, berries or a slice of orange.

Grapefruit Julep is a delicious drink which also used honey instead of sugar. For six servings you will require two cups of fresh grapefruit juice, two cups of fresh orange juice, one cup of seasonable berries, two tablespoons of honey, two cups of cold water.

Combine the juices with the slightly crushed berries. Add the honey and blend thoroughly, then add water. Serve with cracked ice in tall glasses.

Coffee Frappe is an elegant drink in which either sugar or honey may be used.

Servings for eight require three eggs, slightly beaten, a dash of salt, 2-3 cup of sugar, or 1-2 cup of honey, three cups strong, hot coffee, one cup of cream, crushed ice, one pint of vanilla or coffee ice cream. Mix the eggs, salt, sugar or syrup in top of double boiler. Add coffee, stirring and cook over hot water, stirring constantly until mixture thickens slightly. Cool and add cream. Pour over ice in tall glasses stirring well and garnish each glassful with a spoonful of ice cream.

WEDDINGS

THOMPSON—McCULLOUGH

Tabernacle United Church, in Belleville, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on August 31, at three o'clock, when Tena Isabelle, youngest daughter of Mrs. Annie McCullough, Lonsdale, Ont., became the bride of Wm. T. Thompson, only son of Mrs. Sarah Thompson and the late C. W. Thompson, of Belleville, Ont., the Rev. D. C. Amos officiating.

Mrs. M. P. Duff presided at the organ playing suitable wedding music.

Given in marriage by her brother, J. M. McCullough the bride was lovely in gown of ivory brocaded slipper satin made on princess lines with net yoke and long sleeves. Her fingertip embroidered veil was caught to a Mary Queen of Scots headdress and she carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and baby breath.

Mrs. Kenneth Leavens, matron of honor, for her sister, wore a gown of ice blue embroidered silk jersey, with matching gloves and fingertip veil caught to a high coronet headdress. She carried a bouquet of Johonna Hill roses and baby breath.

Mrs. John McCullough, sister-in-law of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a pink chiffon gown with matching shoulder-length veil caught to a halo of pink gardenias and carrying a bouquet of Talisman roses and baby breath.

Mr. Harry Overend and Mr. E. Hitchon were ushers.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Kenneth Leavens, Corbyville, where her mother received wearing a two-piece dress of midnight blue crepe with grey accessories and corsage of sweetpeas and cornflowers. The groom's mother assisted and wore a lime figured silk jersey with black accessories and similar corsage.

The table was centred with a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake made by the groom's mother, Mrs. Sarah Thompson. Pink and white streamers and candelabra decorated the tables.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful brilliant brooch and to the matron of honor and bridesmaid, plastic compacts, to the groomsman and ushers tie clips and holders.

Out-of-town guests were present from North Bay, Ottawa, Barrie and Toronto.

For their wedding trip to Quebec and United States, the bride donned a fuchsia wool suit with black accessories and black top coat and corsage of Bettertime roses. On their return the happy couple will reside in Belleville.

BATEMAN—TANNER

Marsh Hill United Church, beautifully decorated with ferns and baskets of Autumn flowers in many lovely colors, was the setting for the marriage of Dorothy Eileen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Tanner, Stirling, and Ralph Elwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Bateman, Springbrook, on September 7, at 2.30 p.m. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. L. Shorten, Foxboro, and wedding music was played by Mrs. Roy Brooke, Stirling. Mrs. Harold West, of Stirling, sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony, and Greig's "I Love Thee", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a floor-length gown of white sheer with insertions of Chantilly lace, with sweetheart neckline and long sleeves ending in points over her wrists. Her fingertip veil fell from a Mary Queen of Scots headdress and she carried a shower bouquet of white gladioli and blue forget-me-nots. Pearl earrings and necklace were her only ornaments. Miss Evelyn West, Stirling, was her cousin's maid of honor, wearing a gown of turquoise blue, embroidered organza with matching shoulder-length veil. Miss Shirley Tanner, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, in a floor length gown of pink sheer with matching shoulder length veil. Both attendants carried Colonial nosegays of roses, carnations and baby's breath, the maid of honor's in yellow and the bridesmaid's in pink.

Mr. Gordon Bateman, Springbrook, was groomsman and the ushers were Messrs. Gordon Tanner and Kenneth McCann.

For the reception, held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother received in moss green crepe with black accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore orchid crepe with black accessories. Corsages of cream gladioli were worn by both. About seventy guests were present ,and serviteurs were the Misses Marjorie, Marabelle and Dorothy West, Margaret Groves and Dorothy Mitts, and Mrs. Gordon Gay.

For the wedding trip to Toronto, Hamilton and Windsor, the bride chose a two-piece dress of brown, with brown and green trimmings, matching accessories and a cinnamon brown top coat. On their return, the young couple will reside on the groom's farm at Springbrook.

LITTLE—BUSH

Marion Louise Bush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Bush, Belleville, became the bride of John Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Little, Trenton, in a quiet ceremony performed by the Rev. F. G. Joblin, Port Perry, at the home of the bride's parents, on September 2, at two p.m. Mrs. Verna Waldron sang "O Promise Me" during the signing of the register. Gladioli and asters decorated the home.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a street length dress of robin's egg blue with dark brown accessories and a corsage of red roses. She was attended by Miss Dorothy Boulton, who wore a rose wool dress with a corsage of pink gladioli.

Mr. Bud Little, R.R.4, Trenton, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served. The bride's mother wore black velvet with a corsage of mauve gladioli. The mother of the groom wore brown figured crepe with a corsage of rose gladioli.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Tweed and Trenton.

For the wedding trip to Turriff Lodge and other western points, the bride donned an aqua green ensemble with brown accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Little will take up residence at Trenton.

WILEY—MITCHELL

On August 31, at 2.30 p.m., June Evelyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Mitchell, Wooler, became the bride of Douglas Albert Wiley, Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert L. Wiley, of Frankford. The Rev. W. T. R. Delve, Wooler, performed the ceremony before an altar banked with gladioli and fern. Guest pews were marked with pink and white streamers caught with hydrangea. The bride's cousin, Miss Eleanor Fox, Wooler, played the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Fred Elliott, West Huntingdon, as she sang "The Wedding Hymn" and "I Love You Truly".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore, a floor-length gown of white silk jersey with elbow length sleeves, and sweetheart neckline caught with single pearls. Her full-length veil was caught with a high pearl headdress and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white gladioli. Miss Jean Wiley, of Frankford, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, and wore yellow sheer with a white shoulder length veil and sheaf of gladioli. Miss Ann Nickle, Madoc, cousin of the groom, wore turquoise sheer with matching shoulder length veil and a sheaf of gladioli. Miss Ada Bateman, Toronto, cousin of the bride, wore pink sheer with matching veil and sheaf of gladioli.

Little Miss Betty Anne Pafford, Toronto, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, wearing a floor length gown of pale blue net, trimmed with sprigs of pink velvet flowers, and carrying a cascade bouquet of white flowers. Ring bearer was Master Junior Pafford, Toronto, wearing long white trousers and red jacket, and carrying the ring on a white satin cushion.

The groom was attended by Mr. Douglas P. Vermilyea, Owen Sound, brother of the bride, and ushers were Mr. Presley Nickle, Madoc, cousin of the groom, and Mr. Earl Mitchell, Wooler, cousin of the bride.

Sixty-five guests were present at reception, held at the bride's home, where the bride's mother received in saffron pink bemberg crepe with black accessories. Assisting her was the groom's mother, wearing turquoise bemberg crepe with black accessories. Each wore a corsage of pink roses.

The bride's table was centred with a wedding cake surrounded with pink net candles and gladioli. Pink and white gladioli and paper streamers decorated the room. Other rooms were decorated with multi-colored gladioli and petunias. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful wrist watch: the bride's gift to the groom was a handmade leather wallet and key case. The bridal attendants received shell brooches and earrings, the flower girl, shell hair clasps, the soloist and pianist, shell brooches, the groomsman, cigarette lighter, and the ushers collar and tie sets.

For the wedding trip to the United States and Northern Ontario, the bride chose a turquoise wool suit with brown accessories and Russian fox furs. She wore a corsage of Talisman roses. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Springbrook, Madoc, Victoria Harbor, Bancroft, Corbyville, West Huntingdon.

Quints Don't Mind Latest Addition To Family Being Boy

Callander, Sept. 9. (CP)—Perfect, said the Dionne quintuplets.

They like their six-day-old baby brother.

Marie, one of the famous five, summed it all up: "He's much better than my Shirley doll."

And that's about as far as a 12-year-old girl could go, say Marie's best friends—her Shirley Temple doll is her pride and joy.

The Quints have spent a busy six days since the new brother, 14th child of Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, arrived last Monday. They haven't picked the baby up many times—their parents warned they might "spoil" him—but they've made several visits to their mother's room to look at the newcomer.

Two other brothers—Oliva, Jr., and Victor—were born after the Quints. But the girls were small then and living in their nursery, apart from the rest of the family. It wasn't until last week that they experienced all the excitement that accompanied a new arrival in the family.

Marie, Annette, Cecile, Emilie and Yvonne quickly became a five-woman committee. Excited, yes—but the little brother had "to put himself across" on his own merits.

He's done just that.

Said Annette: "He's the loveliest baby I've ever seen.".

Emilie: "I'm glad he's such a strong boy."

Cecile; "I hope he looks like Victor."

Yvonne: "I'm going to help mother take care of him".

All five girls are looking forward to taking turns holding the baby—"later on when he's bigger."

And being strictly feminine they're already worrying about clothes. They'd thought the baby might be a girl and had planned to clothe him in their own long-discarded baby dresses. But that's out— no self-respecting boy would stand for that, they've decided.

The Quints chorused; "He's a beautiful baby, and we don't mind him being a boy."

'Panic Buying' Is Blamed In Shortages

Ottawa, Sept. 9. —According to a recent statement by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board "panic buying" has created, or made more acute, practically every shortage Canada has had during recent months.

As soon as the word "shortage" is mentioned people all over the country immediately rush to their nearest store and cart away as much as they can carry or the grocer will sell, officials said. Consequently after stores have been "blitzed" on a scale resembling D-Day all that remains are empty shelves and a dejected storekeeper, and when some fair-minded housewife comes into the store to purchase a certain commodity all she receives is a disappointing "Sorry just sold out."

The Board points out that Canada is short of hundreds of essential items. The whole world is short of them. Present day shortages exist where supplies are either temporarily held up because of local strikes, or scarce because of depleted world stocks.

Officials have estimated that in one day retail stores have been cleaned out of several months' supplies of such things as flour, salt, soap and any other item which is in limited supply, through panic buying. They have urged consumers to dispense with the "hoarding fever" and make normal purchases so that there will be a fair share of these items for all.

LOCAL JUNIOR TEAMS PLAY HERE ON SAME DAY

Week From Wednesday Will be Big Day for Sport in This City

Belleville Kiwanis Juniors will go into the Ontario Baseball Association junior semi-finals against the Ottawa Wrightvilles in Ottawa on Saturday, Sept. 14, Convener Ernie Summers announced today. The game is scheduled to start at 3 p.m.

The second game of the series will be played here on Wednesday, Sept. 18 at 3 p.m. at the Alemite Field. Date of the third game if necessary, will be announced later.

Up in the western part of the province the western county juniors and intercounty juniors are battling in their series while Niagara Falls and Toronto played the first game of their junior series over the weekend, ending in a 14-innings tie.

The winners of the western Ontario series will meet the winners of the Niagara Falls-Toronto battle, and the winner in turn will meet the victors of the Ottawa-Belleville series for the Ontario title.

Both Ottawa and Belleville clubs have agreed to local umpires for the first game. Convener Summers stated. But if these prove unsatisfactory, neutral officials will be used for the second and third games.

Ottawa is reported to have a strong junior aggregation and will give the Kiwanis youngsters the battle of their lives.

Tickets will be on sale for the second game to be played here and the Kiwanis team management hopes for all-out support of city and district baseball fans.

The Goodman Juniors, O.A.S.A. Junior "A" representatives here will enter the softball championship semi-finals on the same date. They play in Toronto on Saturday, Sept. 14 and back here on Wed. Sept. 18.

The time of the Belleville-Ottawa game is set for 3 p.m. here while the Goodmans-Toronto tilt will start at 5.45 giving fans a chance to take in both games.

TO QUIT STAGE

Glasgow, Scotland (CP) — Will Fyffe, famous Scottish character comedian, says he will leave the stage after one more pantomime performance here.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS.

Montreal, Sept. 9 (CP) — We doubt whether any of the sport writers are going to be too provoked now that selection of the National Hockey League all-star team has been placed in the hands of the coaches and managers. But if there are any, they have the consolation of knowing they're escaping some very possible, and very annoying, $1,000 headaches.

The new system of selection was announced at the N.H.L. meeting here last week, with a word that each player picked would earn himself a handsome $1,000 cash bonus. Previously, sport writers in the N.H.L. cities named their choices and the consensus produced the Canadian Press all-star teams.

As Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara points out, it's better the coaches and managers should have the say when the thing involves money. He adds: "they can pick up those headaches."

Such a selection, he continues, makes for unpopularity where money is concerned, but "where it is only a case of glory no bones are broken."

Since the club officials will select only from the other five squads, and not from their own men, there won't be any danger of any one trying to throw that thousand smackers in the lap of his favorite player.

Baz thinks it would be a good idea too if the individual selections were published, so the fans can see just who plumps for whom.

How to Succeed.

We wonder what things would have been like around the N.H.L. if Jack Adams hadn't encountered Hooley Smith many long years ago. As Jack told the story to Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll, it was the inimitable Hooley who first gave Adams the notion of becoming a hockey coach.

Jack first ran into Hooley in the 1920's when Adams was finishing his hockey career with the Ottawa Senators and that noted member of the Smith family was starting.

Hooley, always the character even in those early days, decided he didn't want to make a trip to Montreal to play Canadiens.

So Jack fell in with him.

"I wouldn't go if I didn't feel like going. You're right, Hooley, don't go."

At that Hooley flares up and replies: "Nobody's going to tell me what to do. I'm going and that's all there is to it!"

"So I thought to myself," Adams relates, "if I could handle a fellow like Hooley, I could handle any of them."

Windsor isn't doing too well in its semi-pro world baseball series against the Carmichael Firemen from California, but if names mean anything the Canadian club might have done better against the St. Joseph, Mich., team they originally were scheduled to meet at Wichita, Kas. The nickname of the St. Joseph team is "Autos" and Windsor's handle is "Auto Wreckers."

U.S. Army Team Wins Little Olympic Games at Berlin

(By The Canadian Press)

The United States army team won the little Olympic games in the presence of 85,000 spectators in Berlin's Olympic Stadium yesterday but the hero of the meet, judged by the acclaim, was Emil Zapotek, lone entry from Czechoslovakia, who won the 5,000 metres run by almost a half mile in 14:31. The Americans piled up seven firsts to finish 30 points ahead of Danish soldiers, with Belgium, France and Great Britain next in order.

Twenty Allied generals participated in the opening ceremony of the games in which Russia and Poland failed to enter a contest. The Olympic torch was re-lighted after 10 years and other features included a negro jazz orchestra, a large military band and trumpeters.

Jack Kramer of Los Angeles swept to his first National Tennis title in the Forest Hills, N. Y., tournament yesterday with a three-set final victory over Tom Brown of San Francisco, with 15,000 fans yelling for the runner-up. Pauline Betz of Los Angeles won the women's title for the fourth time by defeating Doris Hart of Miami.

Using his foot instead of golf clubs, George J. Heath of Newark, N.J., posted a nine on the 302-yard 18th hole at the Falls Country Club Saturday, thereby winning a wager that he could kick the ball into the hole in 10 or better.

An Ontario all-star cricket team went down to crushing defeat at New York yesterday before a team captained by George Headley of Jamaica. The local team batting first, run up 228 runs for the loss of only two wickets. The Ontario eleven was all out for 83.

The Auto Wreckers of Windsor yesterday defeated the Firemen of Carmichael, Calif., 10-9 for the first Windsor victory in the Canadian-American semi-pro baseball series at Wichita, Kas. Fifth game in the best-of-seven series which Carmichael leads 3-1, will be played tonight.

Windfields, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, looked like the winner in Saturday's $25,000 Discovery Handicap at Aqueduct Park but faded in the stretch to finish fifth. The winner was a 33-1 shot, Mighty Story, while Assault, the triple-crowned champion, could do no better than third.

Sam Snead, British Open champion, walked off with the first prize in carding 138, six under par, in the four-man invitation tournament at Chicago yesterday. Second in the 36-hole contest was Byron Nelson, 140, with Lloyd Mangrum and Herman Barron in the also-ran class.

The All American Football Conference swung into action yesterday at San Francisco when 35,000 fans saw New York Yankees swamp the local Forty-Niners 21-7.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Joe Hatten — Limited the Giants to four hits in his 10th victory 11-3.

Enos Slaughter, Cards — Singled in winning run in 11th inning to beat Pirates 5-4 in first game of a double header.

Ed Wright, Braves and Tom Hughes, Phils — Wright won his own game in opener with a ninth-inning single 4-3; Hughes blanked the Braves with five hits in 4-0 second-game victory.

Stan Spence, Senators — Hit two homers to beat the Yanks 2-1 in 11 innings of the opener of a double header.

Phil Marchildon, Athletics — Limited the Red Sox to five hits with 5-3 victory.

Bob Feller, and Don Ross, Indians — Aided by Ross' homer, Feller won his 23rd victory 3-2 striking out eight.

Frank Papish, White Sox — Shut out the Tigers 6-0 with four hits in the second game of a double header.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 7. (CP) — A Trinidad-born "Streak of Ilnk" is Britain's hope for the 1948 Olympic games in the 100-yard event. For interested countries, his name is E. McDonald Bailey, and he has all the attributes of a great champion, including a stout heart and determination.

The 20-year-old Jamaican equalled Eric Liddell's 23-year-old British record of 9.7 seconds over the distance in three successive starts this year, but, according to officials the first two didn't count. He gained recognition on the third try.

His first record-equalling dash was ruled out because of a "short track"; his second because officials said a "streng wind' helped him. But the British Jesse Owens was not daunted. Sports writers plugged for him, some even hinting the "color line' had something to do with the no-record decisions.

He finally gained recognition before a Bank Holiday crowd of 50,000 at White City Stadium, London, in an England-France track meet. There was no wind: no doubt about the measurement of the track; no snags anywhere.

Off to a slow start, he hurtled into a lead over his three rivals before the halfway-mark and breezed home three yards in front. Ninety minutes later, officials announced the youngster had equalled Liddell's record and the huge crowd gave him thunderout applause.

It was learned later he had pulled a leg muscle in the dash. Sports writer now are optimistic the dusky runner will break his record and it wouldn't surprise anyone who has seen him if he did.

Johnny Morton, England, and West Ham United football winger who in March, 1939, was told be would never play soccer again, is back in training—and hopes to turn out for his old club when the season starts Aug. 31. He suffered a knee injury during the 1938-39 season and he was so sure he would play again that he refused the payment offered him by the Football League to all men put out of the game by injury.

Douglas Smith is to succeed Harry Wragg next season as first jockey to Lord Derby, an engagement long regarded as a "plum" of the profession. Wragg is retiring to take up training.

Smith, 29, will relinquish his retainer to ride the King's horses though he probably will continue to wear the royal colors in some races.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Sept. 9 —(AP)— Maybe Jack Kramer knew what he was talking about the other day when he said he would work like the dickens and hope to get a ride to Australia" after the end of the national tennis championships . . . Young Tom Brown isn't eligible to play against Sweden next weekend, though the Swedes offered to waive the rules since they're due to take a licking anyway . . . But Brown should be very much in the picture when Captain Walter Pate picks the squad to go to Australia his cross-court volleys and backhand passing shots were something to see . . . Kramer admits he "doesn't know much except tennis" and that he probably will "make a career" of the game . . . That probably means he'll lend a willing ear to pro offers in a year or so . . . Jack gave a tip-off to the radio audience yesterday when he said he didn't ever expect to beat Brown that way again.

Headline Headliner.

Headline: "Dodgers Buy Minner, Six-Foot-Five Hurler." . . . Them Bums do things in a big way even when they get gait.

Travel Note.

Cornell's football roster shows a tackle named Tac Hapanowicz and rival schools are wondering if its the same Tac who played at George Washington before the war and who had the hard luck in 1943 to run up against Navy twice as a naval trainee, first at Penn State and then at Penn. . . . Sounds like one guy who gets around more than Bobo Newsom.

Campbell Loans
are Life Insured . . . $20 to $1000

INSURED LOANS

Here's the better, safer way to get ready cash. For your protection, Campbell Loans include Life Insurance to cover the unpaid loan balance. In case of death your family is thus relieved of all obligation for your loan. The complete balance is automatically paid off by the insurance company. Campbell Finance Corporation is the only loan company to provide this valuable protection. And there is NO EXTRA COST for this outstanding feature.

REDUCED RATES

Campbell loan costs are now at the lowest level in our history. Only a few examples are given here, of how practical it is to borrow at Campbell Finance. For details on any amount from $20 to $1000 phone or visit our nearest office. Remember, Life Insurance protection is included in all quotations. It costs you nothing extra. Private interview rooms are always available to allow the greatest freedom for discussion.

LONGER TERMS

For your greater convenience, Campbell Finance allow repayment terms up to 20 and 24 months . . . On loans $300 and up 20 months are allowed, and 24 months for loans $501 and up. This means that you can repay your loan in nominal monthly amounts on a soundly planned basis. With the high level of taxes and increased cost of living, longer Campbell terms are most helpful in systematic debt reduction. From our many repayment plans a qualified Campbell expert can help you to choose just the right one to fit your special needs.

4 LOAN PLANS

Campbell Finance provides a wider choice for borrowers with four different types of loans. Married couples can borrow money quickly without endorsers. Loans on your signature only (up to $100) are fast and simple to get. Also loans on various common types of security require no endorsers. From our four kinds of loans you can easily select a plan that will fill every requirement. Of all the people in Canada who borrow from licensed lenders, 1 out of every 4 uses Campbell Finance—specialists in personal loans for over 18 years.

"I'm sitting pretty"

"I haven't any million but I'm sitting pretty just the same.

"Business cycles and the stock market hold no fears for me. My estate won't have to be carved up either to meet succession duties. I haven't a single financial worry.

"What I've done is to adopt the 'security program' idea which a London Life representative presented to me. Under this plan, everything is definitely arranged. I put aside a few hundred dollars each year to guarantee the thousands later on. I'll be able to retire happily; but if I don't live to retirement there'll be money to pay off the mortgage, clean up my affairs, educate the children and provide my wife with a monthly income as long as she lives.

"What's more, this arrangement enables us to really enjoy life as we travel along.

"Now that I've found the key to successful living, I'm sitting pretty."

Ask a London Life representative to draw up a Security Program for you and your family.

TORONTO ARGOS AND ALOUETTES PLAY 10-10 DRAW

Rough Riders, Calgary, Windsor and Sarnia Winners in Games on Saturday

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa Rough Riders, Calgary Stampeders, Windsor Rockets and Sarnia Imperials opened their 1946 grid wars with convincing wins Saturday but most eyes were turned to Toronto's Oakwood Stadium where Lew Hayman's Montreal Alouettes battled the Dominion champion Toronto Argonauts to a 10-10 standstill.

The Rough Riders led the Interprovincial Union after trouncing Hamilton Tigers 34-17, and Calgary Stampeders were tops in the west with a 6-0 win over Regina Roughriders. In the Ontario Rugby Football Union Sarnia Imperials edged Hamilton Wildcats 16-14 and Windsor Rockets beat Ottawa Trojans 8-1.

The wins for Sarnia and Windsor put them in a three-way tie for O.R.F.U. leadership with Toronto Indians who opened the season Friday with a 28-4 shellacking of Toronto Balmy Beach.

At Toronto Alouettes fought back after Steve Karry's placement gave Argos an early 3-0 lead and battered their way from midfield to shove Virgil Wagner across for a touchdown. After Royal Copeland threw Billy Myers a touchdown pass in the third quarter, they came back again to tie it up with a placement by Ches McCance.

Arthur Kelly, who was knocked unconscious when his mount, Royal Heels, went down at the water jump in the Woodbine Autumn Steeplechase Handicap at the east end course Saturday, receives aid from track' physician Dr. J. L. Uren on the right. Anxious spectators assist the doctor in checking the rider's condition.

With Argos parked on Alouette's four-yard line and three minutes to play, the Montreal wing-line held firm and forced Argos to kick for a single point. Time was their biggest enemy as they took the air with a 30-yard pass that shook McCance loose to the Argo 15.

Hayman's howls of protests almost drowned the crowd on the next play when McCance tried a placement from an awkward angle. Doty caught the ball in the end zone, hesitated, ran a few steps, was tackled, fumbled and Montreal apparently recovered. But the referee ruled the whistle preceded the fumble and called it a rouge.

Sarnia, making their first appearance since before the war, showed some of the old power that made them the most feared team in the O.R.F.U. as a last period drive shoved across two touchdowns in less than five minutes.

The Imperials were trailing 14-4 as the last period opened. Woodcock crashed to Wildcats' one-yard line then plunged across for a touchdown with Mike Meikle converting. As the crowd was leaving the field, Meikle tossed a 35-yard pass to Mattingly, loose in the Hamilton end zone, and Galloway's convert put the game on ice.

Burke Rifles Them

Orville Burke's rifle passes gave Ottawa Roughriders three touchdowns as they walloped the hapless Tigers. Ken Charlton broke loose for two more major scores. Hamilton trailed 14-0 at the end of the first quarter, rallied for three touchdowns in the next two, but a Burke-to-Brennan pass kept Ottawa on top in the final stanza.

Windsor Rockets struck thru the air at the Trojans and completed five of their attempted 12 passes. Mike Hedgewick hit pay dirt in the third quarter when he ran 35 yards for a major score after catching Frank Demarco's pass.

Trojans sole score came from Robillard's punt in the second period when Reid ran into touch. The Rockets scored a single in the second and two more in the third in chalking up their first victory in two, O.R.F.U. seasons.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

(By The Canadian Press)

Kitchener Rangers took a four-run lead in the first inning Saturday afternoon to defeat London juniors 4-2 in a best of five series between the northern and southern group winners of the Inter-County Baseball Association. The second game of the series will be played at Kitchener Monday.

An 8-7 win by Hamilton at home against Toronto Grads advanced them to the second round of the Intermediate "A" Ontario Baseball Association playoffs.

In the softball playoffs Windsor Dayus Roofers advanced into the second round of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association Senior "A" playoffs last night by stopping St. Thomas 4-1. Beal Threads scored a 2-1 triumph over Tip Tops of Toronto and gained the right to represent Ontario in the world championship tourney to be staged in Cleveland this month.

At Peterborough Belleville Kiwanis eliminated Oshawa by a 9-4 count in the deciding game of their O.B.A. junior playdown series.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Oshawa and Belleville split even over the weekend on softball and baseball playdowns, the Oshawa Robson Leathers, who appear headed for the O.A.S.A. Intermediate "A" provincial title eliminating Sacos, Belleville city league champions 10-2, and the Kiwanis Juniors winning the third and payoff game in Peterborough from the highly touted B'nai B'rith junior Baseballers of the Motor City 9-4 forcing that team out of further competition in the O.B.A. playdowns.

• • •

While the Robson Leathers team, in this corner's mind, is one of the best Intermediate "A" squads in Ontario, despite the opinions of some of their home-town fans, in all fairness to Sacos they did not play the calibre of softball in either of the two games of the series, they are capable of. In neither game did they show the hitting, while in the second defeat the fielding was well below par. However, the die is cast, and the Belleville champions were defeated by a team showing clear superiority in all departments.

Their infield is one of the starriest defensive quartets seen in softball in these parts this year. It clicks like Grand-pop's false teeth, and all four players have whips to bases that fairly smoke as they go through the air.

Their hitting was consistent and they showed little respect for the Saco hurlers. They smacked out a couple of homers, a triple and a double as well as nine singles and that's not bad clouting in any man's league.

• • •

That repitition of the tko-out, three-run episode of the first game between the teams, appeared to take the heart out of the Belleville team. They failed to get clicking and such players as Jimmy Barriage, Sword and Wardhaugh bobbled in the early stages in a manner that did not help the morale any. Came the five-run explosion in the fourth and the game was over as far as the series was concerned.

McConkey, "up-shoot" ace hurler of the Leathers, appeared to have the Indian sign on the visitors, but he didn't have to be too good with an infield behind him like he has. He struck three batters and walked two. Blaker and Reid were the only players to register extra base hits off him, the former driving out a home run and a double aind Reid, pinch-hitting for Jimmy Barriage, getting a two baser.

And that is that insofar as Intermediate softball is concerned in our hamlet. The boys can hang up their spikes and gloves for another year, after a season that was a considerable improvement over last, when game appeared to be headed for the boneyard. Next year, it is hoped the loop here will blossom forth stronger than ever and once more bring mushball championships back to the Bay of Quinte.

KIWANIS KUM THROUGH

The Oshawa B'nai B'rith, junior baseball squad which the hometown scribe quoted as "being better balanced, having more power and superior" to the Belleville Kiwanis kids after that sloppy game in Oshawa last week, must have left all their "power, balance and superiority" with the Robson Leather Intermediate "A" softball squad who dunked out Sacos into mushball oblivion on Saturday.

• • •

But the Kiwanis younkers, albeit the game was a free-hitting one showing a return to the form afield that the Oshawans did not know they had, turned back the Oshawa threat by a 9-4 score.

• • •

Coach Speedy St. Louis reshuffled his infield and the result was a combination that clicked like Spanish castanets. He sent Lockyer to first in place of the injured Kelleher, put Dicky Fitzpatrick in shortstop, and Mouse Bush to third. The reliable Verny Green was on second and the quartet paced by the sparkling work of catcher Huck Reeves zoomed through to victory before a surprised Oshawa squad. They played errorless ball afield with the redoubtable Huck assuming the hero's role with five putouts, five assists and three solid clouts on a three-bagger.

Langmaid, reputed to be the Oshawa squad's ace hurler, proved nothing more than a four-spot. He was nicked for 8 hits for seven runs in four innings, and gave way to Michael in that heat. That young gentleman was touched for 5 hits for two runs over the balance of the game — and had the B'nai B'rith started him, the score might have been closer.

• • •

Bobby Bunton, Kiwanis hurler has pitched better ball. He was touched for eleven hits for four runs—but under the circumstances he didn't have to be too good. The team clicked all round with the outfield having a somewhat lazy day, handling all four chances that came their way.

• • •

The Kiwanis face a stern test in their next series against the Ottawa Wrightvilles. The Bytown squad, said to hail from Hull are reported to be one of the starriest junior baseball aggregations to come out of the east in some time. They won the Ottawa City junior championship two years in a row, and boast a trio of hurlers in Laurialt, Bernard and Dupere that are said to be as good as any in senior company down Ottawa way.

There has been no word yet as to the date of the first game of the series. The Wrightvilles have been idle for some time after their elimination of the Kingston Athletics awaiting the outcome of the Belleville-Oshawa series. The Ottawa-Belleville frays should be one of the best baseball jousts seen here in some time and it is expected that some two thousand fans will view the struggle here.

• • •

George "Soup" Campbell, Oshawa, informed us on Saturday that he believes the next junior O.A.S.A. series the Belleville Goodman Juniors play will be the provincial semi-finals. They have copped the Eastern Ontario title, and their next foe will be a Toronto squad. "Soup" informed us, that being the convener for the series, he will send along the identity of the team as soon as received. Dates received here for the jousts are Belleville in Toronto Sept. 14, and Toronto here Sept. 18. Third game if necessary to be played on the 21st on neutral grounds. All of course subject to last minute changes.

• • •

Napanee and Bloomfield, Prince Edward County champions are all tied up in their Intermediate OBA "B" series and play the third game in Napanee, Tuesday, Sept. 9th. The winners are slated to meet Latta, conquerors of Bancroft. Game starts in Gibbardville Tuesday at 5 of the clock.

HARRY BELSON CHESS CHAMPION

By HARRY ECCLES

Toronto, Sept. 9 (CP) The handsome two-foot silver trophy which carries the names of every Canadian chess champion since 1881 is getting a new plate affixed to record the 1946 victory of J. Harry Belson, 40-year-old Toronto veteran of many North American tournaments.

Belson, who won the Canadian title before—in 1934—ploughed through the 1946 title play-off with three victories in three games. He mowed down Maurice Fox of Montreal in 26 moves, defeated Robert E. Martin of Toronto in 51, and wound up with a victory over Joseph E. Rauch of Ottawa in 48.

DODGERS STEAL GAS HOUSE GANG TAG FROM CARDS

Swiped Eight Bases, Three Short of Record, in Drubbing Giants

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Leo Durocher's hustling, fighting crew is displaying the same dash and fire as Frankie Frisch's Cardinals displayed in the early '30s, when Pepper Martin and Co literally stole their way to the World Series.

The Dodgers hit a base-stealing high for one game yesterday when they swiped eight bases—three short of the modern National League record — in drubbing New York Giants 11-3. Despite their victory, the Dodgers dropped a half game to the Cardinals, who swept a double header from Pittsburgh Pirates to increase their lead to two full games.

Pete Reiser was the Dodgers' biggest larcenist yesterday. He stole three bases, including home, to make it 34 for the season.

After eking out a 5-4 decision in 11 innings of the opener, the Cards pummelled five Pittsburgh pitchers for 17 hits to coast to a nightcap victory 12-2.

Nearer the Pennant

Boston Red Sox, despite their defeat by Philadelphia Athletics 5-3 yesterday, came nearer to clinching the American League flag when both the second place New York Yankees and the 3rd place Detroit Tigers dropped twin bills. The Sox now need only one more victory to eleiminate the Yankees.

Washington beat the Yankees twice, 2-1 and 9-8. The first game went 11 innings and was won when Stan Spence poled his second homer of the day.

Chicago White Sox topped the Tigers twice, Ed Lopat out-hurling Hal Newhouser 3-2 in the first game, and Frank Papish shutting out the Tigers 6-0 in the afterpiece. Newhouser's defeat was his seventh against 24 victories.

Feller Wins 23rd

Don Ross' seventh-inning homer enabled Bob Feller and Cleveland Indians to defeat St. Louis Browns 3-2 after St. Louis had won the opener 4-1 behind Jack Kramer. In achieving his 23rd victory, Feller fanned eight to run his strikeout total to 301.

Hank Wyse pitched and batted Chicago Cubs to a 4-1 victory over Cincinnati Reds. Wyse held the Reds to four hits and drove in the first two runs with a double.

Boston Braves and Philadelphia Phils split a doubleheader, the Braves winning the first game 4-3 on pitcher Ed Wright's ninth-inning single. The Phils, behind the five-hit pitching of Tom Hughes, won the second game 4-0.

WISNOCK WINS GOLF TOURNEY

Oshawa, Sept. 9 — (CP) — Smooth-shooting Nick Wisnock of Toronto Scarborough won the annual fall tournament of the Ontario Golf Association here Saturday after edging out E. Bentley of Weston in a two-hole play-off. He and Bentley both led the field of 170 with cards of 70 after the regulation 18 holes.

Veteran Phil Farley of Scarborough and J. G. Adams of Cedar Brae each shot 73. Wisnock was two over par on the turn of his last round and birdied four of the last six holes to catch Bentley. Farley ran into trouble on the 17th when his drive caught in a tree stump.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The favorite lead of Palooka Pete is a singleton. Somehow there is something both daring and hopeful about it. So, he sends it out with a fling and a prayer.

There is no convincing Pete this is usually a poor lead. He is not interested in keeping track of the times it loses tricks for his pair. He thinks only of the thrill when it works.

If you must know, it is also my ambition always to lead forth a singleton. No matter what the odds are against it, I always have the urge. It takes will power to control myself against it.

Not that a singleton lead is necessarily always wrong. But so many better leads are to be found. Only when a better lead is not in sight is a singleton lead an acceptable choice.

Take a hand that seems to contain no desirable lead except a singleton. Even then if you have four trumps, a trump lead is much more to be desired than the lead of a singleton.

Against a four heart contract, lead from this hand:

♠Q 7 5 3
♥8 6 4 3
♦J 6 5 2
♣9

It looks like a hopeful chance to lead your singleton club. You think maybe you can trump a few clubs with your trumps if partner works with you. You can almost feel the glow you will get from it.

But your best lead from that hand is a heart; one of your trumps. Such a lead is likely to interfere with the declarer's plans to take tricks. It is more likely to develop tricks for your partner.

Suppose you are able to trump a club trick by leading singleton. It whittles your trumps down to a size that declarer can control. In such a situation he is given a better chance to manoeuvre.

By leading a trump instead of the singleton, you may not get to trump a club. But it may keep declarer from taking two other tricks.

Make a good swap.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 9 (AP) — Mothers, are you planning a birthday party for Mary or Junior? If so, you will be interested, and no doubt amused, to see how it is done in Hollywood.

Take, for example, Mrs. Johnny Maschio, better known as Constance Moore. She and her agent-husband are two of the town's better party throwers, so a birthday gathering for their five-year-old Gina must necessarily be on a proper scale.

As for her party's personnel, Connie remarked: "There's a particular little group of children in Hollywood that go to every party. Just as we adults see the same faces at each party, so do our children."

So, on the invitation list go these old regulars, Beau Bowman (son of Lee), Jimmy O'Keefe, (Dennis' offspring), Hoagy Carmichael's sons, Hedy Lamarr's little boy, Roy Rogers' two daughters and about 30 more.

When the over-privileged children arrive for the party, they will be ushered into the Maschio back yard. The boys will be given kite frames to assemble and fly in competition. The girls will receive dolls and crepe paper to see who can dress 'em the best. There will be a taffy pull with a new twist of fashioning the stuff into animals.

Then the kids will hunt for box lunches. If a child can't find his, or doesn't want to, he'll get his, or doesn't want to, he'll get cracker sandwiches, colored eggs, carved carrots and celery, cake and ice cream. After this comes a program of short movies in the theatre indoors.

Connie estimates the party will cost only $75, although this seems to be a low figure. That includes refreshments for the nurses. Each child will have a nurse, of course. After all, this is Hollywood.

10 TEAMS ENTER JUNIOR 'A' SERIES

Toronto, Sept. 9 — (CP)—The Ontario Hockey Association's junior "A" circuit will have ten teams next season, two more than last, it was decided at a weekend meeting here of the O.H.A. sub-committee with representatives of the teams.

New entries are Windsor Spitfires and a junior team from the Stratford Nationals. Other teams are the league champion Toronto St. Michaels, and Oshawa Generals, Galt Red Wings, St. Catharines Falcons, Barrie Fliers, Hamilton Lloyds, Toronto Young Rangers and Toronto Marlboros.

The circuit opens play Nov. 2 in one 10-team group, all teams playing a double circuit except Windsor. On account of travel distances Windsor will play only one circuit, each game counting 4 points instead of two.

Play-off arrangements, expected to start early because the Memorial Cup National junior tilt is scheduled for the west next year, call for six of the 10 teams to qualify. In "A" series the 1st and 2nd teams meet in best-of-seven. In "B" the 3rd and 4th teams clash, and in "C" winners then play best-of-three to qualify for the final against the "A" winners, in a best-of-seven series.

Senior "A" representatives will meet the O.H.A. sub-committee here Friday night to discuss senior arrangements for next season.

Oshawa Tannery Eliminates Saco Marines in Second Game Of Int. 'A' OASA Playdowns

Score is 9-4 and Team Will Meet Wrightvilles of Ottawa for Eastern Ontario Crown

(By G. H. C.)

For a second time Belleville Sacos failed to take their batting eyes with them and were eliminated from OASA Intermediate A competition by the starry Robson Leather team, conquerors of Peterborough De Lavals in two straight games and who took our prides in their stride by the same margin. The score was 10-2.

The "Leathers" defeated Sacos here 4-0 in a smart first game, marred from a local standpoint by all the foe's runs being scored in the first innings.

It was a repetition of the story in Oshawa on Saturday. The homesters, before a fair-sized crowd, far from the heralded "3,000," scored three runs in the first chukker, after two were out, off Marty Halloran, Sacos starting hurler — and that was the beginning of the end.

Jack McConkey, ace of the Oshawa squad, had the Saco sluggers, if you can call them that, hogtied over the nine-innings pastime, although why, will never be told, and coasted through to a 10-2 win with more or less ease.

Clustered Clouting.

Saco errors plus some husky clustered clouting on the part of Oshawa not forgetting the smart infield work of the home brews, were the main reasons for the defeat of the Belleville clan, plus the fact that Robson's showed altogether too much class all round than did our heroes.

They, as was mentioned before, scored three in the first; got another in the second and put the game on ice in the fourth with five hits for as many runs. They scored their final counter in the sixth.

Marty Halloran was Max People's choice for starting hurler and the Leathers took kindly to his offerings. He was touched for seven hits for eight runs and was yanked for Jim Hunter in the fourth after a homer and three singles had been good for four runs. Oshawa scored a run off Hunter on Sword's error and the tall righthander retired the side with no more damage.

Oshawa however were not deterred by the new pitcher's shots and garnered six clouts off him for two runs, one a homer by McConkey.

Held to Six Hits.

McConkey, backed by one of the best infields in intermediate Ontario, held the Sacos to six hits, the only extra base clouts off him coming in the latter innings when Lionel Blaker hit a sharp grounding home run through short, in the seventh connected for a double in the ninth while Ray Reid stretched a sharp single to two in the eighth. The other Saco hitters to hit with any semblance of safety were Wardhaugh, Sword and LaBonne.

Sacos scored their two runs in the seventh when Blaker's four-bagger drove in Al Adams ahead of him. Adams had drawn a walk.

Leathers hit thirteen safeties, one the homer of Gilbert which Adams should have caught, another Price's homer and McConkey's triple being the only extra base clouts. Both teams executed a sparkling double play.

The teams:

Belleville—Barriage, lf.; Henn, 3b.; Sword, ss.; LaBonne, cf.; Blaker, 1b.; Wardhaugh, 3b.; Temple, c.; Halloran, p.; Reid, lf. Hunter, p.; Adams, rf.

Oshawa — Branton, lf.; Trimm, 2b.; Stark, 1b.; Jenetos, c.; Gilbert, ss.; McConkey, p.; Price 3b.; McLaughlin, cf.; Trott, rf.

Umpires—Bawden, plate; Bennett, bases.

Score by innings:

Belleville	000 000 200—	2	6	5
Oshawa	310 510 00x—	10	13	1

Denies Charges U.S. Exams Made More Difficult

Toronto, Sept. 9 (CP) — Dr. J. G. Althouse, Chief Director of Education for Ontario, in a statement Friday night denied charges that Upper School examinations had deliberately been made more difficult because of increased university enrollments.

"Efforts were made in setting the examination papers to maintain the same standard that has been in effect for many years in Ontario," he said. "The Department of Education does not consider it to be one of its functions to manipulate the passing list in the examinations in view of the demand for admission to the universities."

PLAYOFF SPOTS IN INT. LEAGUE STILL UNDECIDED

Baltimore and Newark to Play Game to Decide Third and Fourth Place

(By The Associated Press)

Although the International League completed its regular season yesterday, one game remains to be played — tonight's third-place, tie playoff between Baltimore and Newark.

The Orioles went into a tie for third position when they split a final doubleheader with Jersey City Giants while Newark was shading Syracuse 5-4.

Thus Montreal, Syracuse, Baltimore and Newark made the playoff grade but the pairings can not be determined until after tonight's game. Then the first place Royals will open a series with the fourth place club and Syracuse will take on the winner of the Baltimore-Newark tilt.

Montreal hit the 100-victory mark yesterday by taking the second game from Toronto 4-3, after losing the opener 3-2.

Newark rode into the playoffs for the 14th straight season on a closing rally that nipped Syracuse 5-4.

Homers by Soup Campbell and Sherm Lollar enabled Baltimore to down Jersey City in the opener 9-3, but Dick Hoover's four-hit pitching earned an even break for the Little Giants 3-1.

After Johnny Mikan had hurled a six-hitter for Rochester to kill Buffalo's last remaining playoff hope, 2-1, the Bisons came back to wallop the Red Wings 8-3 in a contest that was halted by darkness after five innings.

SMITHS FALLS HOLD EDGE

Smiths Falls, Sept. 9 (CP) — Smiths Falls Railroaders made their base hits count Saturday to take a 3-2 decision from Kingston Locos and earn a 2-1 edge in the Ontario section finals of the Quebec-Ontario Baseball League. Jim Sherwood was tagged for a dozen hits but gave no ground in the pinches while his fellow railroaders made their seven hits count with runs in the first, third and eighth innings. Kingston garnered two runs in the third.

AT THE CAPITOL — Henry Wilcoxon and Loretta Young in the leading roles of Cecil B. DeMille's great spectacle drama, "The Crusades," now showing at the Capitol Theatre.

Seventy Canadian Hockey Players On Way to Scotland

Halifax, Sept. 9 (CP)—Seventy youthful Canadian hockey players, drawn from the ranks of Ontario amateur leagues, embarked on the Aquitania here Saturday night bound for Scotland and jobs in the seven-team Scottish Ice Hockey League.

The group, under the management of Keith Kewley, son of Claude Kewley who signed the players for the Scottish circuit, arrived in Halifax by special train and immediately went aboard the giant Cunarder, all but one from Ontario, were selected for the trip after try-outs held last month in Toronto. Average age was 19. One highly rated player was Art Hodgins, with Timmins last year and others included in the contingent were: Dennis Anderson of Grimsby, Johnny Drummond of Oshawa, Jim Daxis of Galt, Christie Fox of Timmins, Bunn Glass, of Stratford, Bob Leckie of Hamilton, Earl McCrone of Richmond Hill, Bill Melville of Markham, Claire O'Connell of Lindsay, Doug Schultz of Sudbury and Lorne Britton of Newmarket.

CHAPTER 28.

"I guess that does give me pretty good reason to hold him for the county officers. I suppose you've notified them, Mr. Jacobs?"

"I telephoned the sheriff before I left home. He's working from the other end with the help of my man. I've no doubt but that he has gotten in touch with your superiors."

"I see." Staples turned to Larry. "Do you feel up to coming downtown with me and attending to a few formalities? If not, I'm afraid I'll have to put some one here to look after you. Maybe you'd like to go to the hospital."

Larry swung his feet to the floor and took stock of his situation.

"I'll have to have somebody patch me up, I suppose," he admitted. "But it may not be necessary to go downtown. Now then, Mr. Jacobs.."

The latter shook his head. When he spoke, there was a tone of sadness in his voice.

"I'm sorry, Cutter. I was a very close friend of your father .. his best friend, I believe. I should hate to see a son of his get into trouble, if I could avoid it. I fear I am doing wrong, but if you care to return my property .. I might consider withdrawing my charges."

"That's very kind of you." Larry's lip curled. "And just what do you want me to return?"

"Why, the .. what you took from the cellar. The one you were trying to get away with when .."

"When your hired gorilla took a pot shot at me. In other words, you don't know what it was. But you're afraid you do!"

"I haven't time to quibble, Cutter. You may take your choice."

"Well, I'll ease your mind. I found exactly what you think I did. But I can't trade with you just now, because it's in my lawyer's hands at the moment."

A dull red surged into Jacob's face.

"Do your duty, Staples. I'll see this through. This young fool is hinting at blackmail because he knows I have money!"

"Just a minute." Larry perceived that his shot had struck home. He would carry the bluff a little further .. for Jack's sake as well as his own. "I know about your friendship with my father, Jacobs," he said curtly. "I know more than you think. And I have put all my information in the hands of my attorneys. They're Hicks and Hicks .. just in case you're interested. They've been delving into things for me and, with this evidence I've just put into their hands it should furnish grounds for you and me to settle .. a number of things.

Jacobs leaned back in his chair and stared. His small eyes were blinking rapidly. Jacqueline noticed that he wet his lips with his tongue; his moustache, she thought, seemed to droop. She found herself feeling suddenly sorry for him. He didn't look the man whose enthusiasm over Southern Furnace prospects had misled her. He appeared old.

Larry, apparently, did not share her sympathies.

"It's taken me quite a while to get around to this, Mr. Jacobs. But I'm trying to do a good job. You must have had something in mind when you put this sleuth on my trail. You didn't have a thing on me, but you thought it would be nice if the cops could turn me up on their own account, while you stayed in the background.

Lieutenant Staples' eyes lighted a trifle at this suggestion. He listened attentively.

"Just how you happened to find out I was in town wasn't such a piece of pure luck as you supposed, either," Larry went on. He was carrying his bluff to the utmost now, hoping for some sort of collapse on the part of his dapper enemy. "I've been able to turn up a few items of interest through a mutual friend .. Miss Morris."

Jacobs jumped to his feet. His face was fairly purple.

"Do you mean to insinuate .."

"Not at all. Miss Morris has been in my employ, as well as yours. She's a very capable young woman."

"Wait until I see her!" Jacob's voice was shaking.

"I doubt very much if you find her when you get home," Larry ventured. "If you do .. you'll find that she's quite able to look out for herself."

Jacobs made a visible effort to control himself. He turned to Staples with as much dignity as he could command.

"I don't think Mr. Cutter will leave town. I wish to have a talk with him when he is able to come down to my hotel. I will be responsible."

"Suits me," observed the lieutenant urbanely. "But I want our friend to have a doctor." He turned apologetically to Larry. "Would you mind if I called in one of our department surgeons? Just so we may have his report. Doctor Edmunds is first rate."

"Anything you like, lieutenant." Then to Jacobs: "But you and I won't get anywhere in conference. You'll do your talking with my lawyers .. first. And I think that will be all for now."

"Oh, Lieutenant Staples!" Jacqueline broke in. "Will it be all right if I call my father now? He is at Mr. Hicks' home."

"Go as far as you like, Mrs. .. Cutter."

"Thank you. And I'd like to call the hotel. I'm afraid I'm going to be late for work."

"Jack, darling!" Larry called from the couch, as he watched his wife dialing the number of Rannie Hicks, his lawyer and friend.

"Yes?".

"Ask Vince first thing if he gave those books to Rannie. If anybody waylaid him .. well, I'm worse off now than ever. You, too."

"I'll ask. But I know he did."

She confirmed it with a nod and smile after a few words with her father.

"Poor old Vince," she laughed when she turned from the telephone. "He was almost beside himself. He suspected something was wrong when Lieutenant Staples answered, so he hung up."

"Good boy! He's a credit to his daughter."

"He's coming over to see you and find out what you want him to do."

"Well, there's no need for me to run now. In fact, I think I'd better stick here. I wish that doctor would hurry up. I'm wondering how it would do for Vince to take me up to the Brown farm to get some of my traps .. I've got it! Let's all go up for the weekend!"

"But I can't, Larry .. my goodness! I haven't called Mr. Potter! How soon can you spare me, Larry? I'll have to tell him."

"Never," said that gentleman promptly. "I'm not going to let you get away from me. I don't know who Mr. Potter is, but you can tell him for me that you're washed up. I'll hire him a flock of stenogs, if he gets nasty."

"But of course I'm going back to work! I must."

"Very well, then. Explain that your husband has been shot and that you're probing for the bullet. You'll rush down as soon as you find it."

"Silly."

"You can work this afternoon, or until I can get to the hotel myself. I'll settle things in a jiffy."

"You'll do nothing of the kind."

In another minute Jacqueline was speaking to her employer. She explained that she had been unavoidably detained, but that she would be in her office as soon as possible.

"Now what can we do until the doctor gets here?" she inquired blithely. Larry couldn't be very badly hurt. He was so like his old self again.

"Well, there's one thing I'd like to settle before we get down to serious business. I've been expecting you to crack it .. sooner?"

"Whatever do you mean?"

"I want to know what that tobacco vampire down at the Raynear spilled in your ear about Miss Morris. She saw us together."

"Virgie Blake? . Why nothing at all."

"You're a poor liar, Jack. I'll have to take you in hand. I knew she had dished the dirt as soon as I saw you. Come clean now .. what did she say.

"Well, almost nothing at all. Just that you were up there with your wife. That she was a dizzy blonde and that the two of you didn't get along very well any more. In fact, you were having a family quarrel at the time."

"I get it. And you believed her."

"Absolutely. Well .. I did question her story about your being married. I had reason to .. unless you were a bigamist. But I didn't doubt that you were involved with another woman."

"You tell it well. But you were hurt."

"Maybe."

"What a break," Larry groaned. "I saw her going by with one ear hanging out. Well, you know the truth now. Miss Morris works for a Chicago agency. We brought her here so that there wouldn't be any chance of her being recognized. She landed a job with Jacobs as his secretary. It seems he has a weakness for wild women."

"He has. He invited me out to dinner once."

"Go with him?"

"No. I had another engagement. You told that story well. But I still have my suspicions."

"You needn't. She had her orders to beat it, if anything broke. Alma, I mean. No doubt she's gone. Hope so, for her sake."

"So you call her Alma?"

"Professionally. Come here. There's something else to settle."

"Yes, sir?"

"Have you realized that both of us have been disregarding our contract? I mean that it's pretty well noised abroad that we're married .. I'm not mentioning names. But I want to know this. What does it mean?"

Jacqueline stood by the couch, her eyes downcast. Larry reached for her hand and held it. She did not attempt to release herself.

"Jack, dearest?" he asked softly. "What does it mean?"

"I..I don't know exactly."

"I do." He drew her down to him. "It means that you love me .. that I love you. We're through pretending."

With a quick move, she pressed her face against his uninjured shoulder. It was very quiet in the small room.

"Jack," Larry whispered.

There was no answer.

"I want .. your first kiss."

Jack lifted her face. Her dark blue eyes were bright with tears, but she was smiling.

Her cheek rested against Larry's still when the buzzer sounded, a half hour later.

Moira

Moira — Miss Norma Holden is attending the Belleville Collegiate Institute.

Threshing is nearly completed in Moira with an abundance of grain of very good quality.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Grant, of Toronto, spent Labor Day with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Emerson.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Foster and family visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Dickey, on Tuesday evening, to welcome Mrs. Ray Dickey who arrived that morning from England.

Mr. and Mrs. Audrey Maxwell and family of Madoc, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Vanderwater.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Mumby on Sunday included: Mrs. Carrie Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Asselstine and family, of Napanee, and Mr. Ed. Good of Thomasburg.

Mr. Newcomb Bowers, of Watertown, N.Y., visited Moira on Saturday after an absence of many years.

Mr. John Spence spent Thursday in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Hazzard and Shirley and Mr. and Mrs. Ellerby, of Belleville, spent Sunday with Mrs. Hazzard.

School re-opened on Tuesday last with Miss W. Huffman in charge of the senior room and Mrs. Nelson Welsh in the junior room.

Miss Dorothy Thompson is teaching school in Thurlow Township.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Emerson attended the Reid—Williams wedding in Stirling on Wednesday.

Master Harry Hitchon, of Belleville, has been visiting his cousin, Master Douglas Farrell.

Rev. C. M. Hazzard, of Camden, N.J., is visiting with her mother, Mrs. M. Hazzard.

VACATION BEGINS — TEACHERS GO ON STRIKE

Many a schoolchild seeing the sands of vacation time running through the hour glass has made a fervent wish that his school would burn down. The schools of Norwalk, Conn., did not burn down but from the standpoint of freedom and non-ttendance, something happened in Norwalk that answered their prayer. The teachers went on strike. No teachers, no school. Vacation days can begin again. Here Rudy Baxa, custodian of Centre Junior High School, tells the students to go home. Bone of contention for the teachers is that $90,112 be added to the $813,000 school budget for pay raises for the 236 teachers.

Russian Papers Give Short Space to Byrnes' Speech

Moscow, Sept. 7. (AP) — A 200-word Tass account of State Secretary Byrnes' Stuttgart speech was printed today in Izvestia and other Soviet newspapers .

The account said Mr. Byrnes had suggested changes in the Potsdam agreement to bring about economic unity in Germany and "put forward the American viewpoint of the administration of Germany," without specifically telling what Mr. Byrnes proposed.

It added that he "further developed the American viewpoint on other territorial questions touching on Germany and her neighbors."

Passenger Thrown Into Windshield, HydroPoleBroken

James McRoberts, Foxboro, suffered lacerations to his face and hands as he crashed into the windshield of the car in which he was riding as the vehicle collided with a hydro pole at the Dundas and Front street intersection on Saturday afternoon.

McRoberts, owner of the car, was riding as passenger when the driver, Robt. Stoughton of Fort Frontenac, Kingston, attempted to turn around at the intersection. The car swung too wide and crashed into the hydro pole with McRoberts being thrown into the windshield. He was admitted to hospital.

In a second accident occurring over the weekend Dennis G. Joyner of Detroit was proceeding east on Dundas Street when near Albert College his car went into a skid and swung sideways into a large tree. Considerable damage resulted to the automobile but no personal injuries resulted.

Refused Permit to Beat Wife

Boston, Sept. 9 — (AP) — A 30-year-old man sought police permission last night to beat up his wife. His reason: she was misbehaving. "No boy friends, mind you," he said; "just misbehaving." Police advised him they don't issue such permits.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 9 —(CP)— The Toronto market displayed general weakness in the early hours today, the industrials taking a loss of nearly four points, the base metals three points and the golds about two points in the index. Western oils showed little change. Volume was comparatively light at 9,878,000 shares for the first three hours.

Hiram Walker touched 121, off 12 points before it tightened slightly and losses of 2 to 4 points were scattered through the paper, steel, liquor and miscellaneous groups.

In base metals Noranda, Nickel, Hudson Bay and Smelters showed losses of 2 to 3 points at early afternoon.

Most of the golds were lower with the selling concentrated mainly in the junior issues.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Sept. 9 (CP)—Cattle prices were 15 to 25 cents cwt. lower on most killers, veal calves were steady, lambs and sheep firm and no price was established for hogs, in trade on the livestock market here up to mid-session today.

Receipts reported by the Dominion marketing service were: Cattle 5,900, calves 800, hogs, 600, sheep and lambs 2,000. Unsold from last week were 150 head of cattle. The cattle supply included 1,800 stockers.

Prices in the trade included:

Cattle: Weighty steers $11.25-$13.75 with a few at $13.90, butcher steers and heifers mostly $10-$12.25, butcher cows $8-$10.25, canners downward to $5.50, bulls $8.50-$10.50, fed yearlings $12.50-$14.50 with a few up to $15, stockers $9-$11.35.

Calves: $15-$16 choice, plain vealers downward to $10, grassers $9-$10.

Lambs $14.50 good ewes and wethers, $13.50 bucks.

Sheep $3-$7.50 with a few at $8.

Hogs closed previously at dressed, grade A $21.75, grade B1 $21.35.

Delegations Ask For Building Lots In Sidney Twp.

That township property adjoining the city of Belleville and the town of Trenton is in demand for building lots, was indicated at the last meeting of Sidney Township Council when two delegates waited on members relative to opening such property for building purposes.

Mr. Larry and Mr. Kidd of Trenton waited on council regarding the development of a plan for building sites on a certain property north of Highway No. 2 between Trenton and the Trenton Air Station, the property being part of Lot 1, Concession 1. Development of streets and water privileges was asked.

Mrs. (Col.) Ponton, Trent Rd., also waited on the council regarding the opening of Sidney Street between Marshall Road and the highway. Reeve S. M. Nicolson and L. Grills were appointed a committee to deal with this, also to contact city of Belleville officials regarding obtaining water for Sidney Street residents.

The Belleville Agricultural Society was given a grant of $150 for the year 1946, while Reeve Nicolson was instructed to attend the tax sale and adjourned sale to protect the township interests.

LeRoy Woods, ex-officer with the R.C.A.F. and now residing in the township, was appointed as tax collector while by-law 1206 which was passed accepted the assessment roll for 1946 and the rates to be levied on the township for county, schools, township and road purposes.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 9 —(AP)— Stocks again broke sharply in today's market as heavy selling hit all departments and toppled leaders to lows for more than a year.

Commitments were dumped following a fairly active opening and, for a good portion of the first round, the high speed ticker tape was as much as three minutes behind floor transactions. Losses generally ranged from one to five points with a few "thin" issues down eight or so. Dealings tapered before mid-day and near the fourth hour, extreme setbacks were reduced here and there.

Hiram Walker led the downward drift in the Canadian group, at mid-day off five points. Distillers Seagrams dropped two points. Canadian Pacific eased 7-8 and Dome Mines 1-8.

HOGS

Toronto, Sept. 9 —(CP)— Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs, were unchanged at Hull $20.75, delivered, no price established in an unsettled market at Stratford, early reports today showed.

NAZIS IN CHINA ON TRIAL AS JAP AIDES

These 23 Nazis were photographed as they were arraigned in Shanghai on charges of supplying Japan with military intelligence and disseminating propaganda detrimental to the United Nations. All are alleged members of a Nazi spy ring known as the Ehrhardt Bureau, whose head, Ludwig Ehrhardt, is on the left in the front row. At right in the same row, is Ernst Woermann, the German ambassador.

Kiwanis Juniors Win Third And Deciding Game Against Oshawa in Peterborough

Game Played in Oshawa on Saturday Repetition of That Played Here; Score is 10-2

By C. D. T.

Belleville Kiwanis Juniors will continue in the junior O.B.A. playdowns, the result of defeating Oshawa B'nai B'riths in Peterboro on Saturday in the third and deciding game of the series. The locals will now meet Wrightvilles of Ottawa in the next round for the Eastern Ontario crown. The game on Saturday was attended by many from this city and it looked like the olden days of the C.O.B.L. to see fans making the journey to the Liftlock City to cheer for the home squad.

On the afternoon's play the Kiwanis kids had a distinct edge for they staged a three-run rally in the first frame and were never headed. It was a free-hitting contest and not near the class of ball that either team is capable of playing. It is true that Belleville won the contest but Oshawa were seriously handicapped, their brilliant catcher, Tyson, son of the famous Ty Tyson of C.O.B.L. fame was unable to play due to a broken hand sustained in the second game of the series. The field was not of the best and in this department Belleville had a slight edge because the grounded balls took good hops to fielders while several took crazy bounces when Oshawa players were ready to field the ball cleanly. These are the breaks of the game and in this regard, Belleville had the edge.

Langmaid Outhurled

In the matter of hurling, Bunton outpitched his first opponent, Laigmaid but was held even by Michael, who replaced him in the fourth after Belleville had scored seven runs and were on their way to make the game a run-away affair. Bob did not have his usual stuff on the mound and his control was far from perfect but he bore down in the pinches and pulled himself out of several holes, twice with the bases loaded. He walked five, struck out the same number and allowed eleven hits, two of them being for extra bases. On the other hand, Langmaid, who started for the Oshawa crew was badly mauled until he was relieved in the fourth.

In the first frame Vern Green greeted him with a single and before the smoke cleared, three runs were across the platter. He silenced the bats of the Kiwanis kids in the second to one run but in the fourth the parade started again with Vern Green again starting the fireworks and after three straight hits had been registered, Langmaid retired to the showers and Michael took over and before he retired the side 4 counters had crossed the platter and the kids were home free. Oshawa put on a flurry in the 5th when a walk, a double by Michael and a hit by Dell produced two runs but the next two were easy outs. They threatened again in the seventh when they loaded the bases but only scored one run and Belleville got that one back in their half.

Reeves Outstanding

"Huck" Reeves played an outstanding game behind the plate for the winners. He had three hits, one being a triple and the hardest hit ball of the afternoon and was death to would-be base stealers, nipping two who tried to get down to the middle sack. Vern Green, "Mouse" Bush, Fitzpatrick and Strachan each had 2 bingles, Fitzpatrick making three bases on one of his hits to left field when the ball got away from the fielders. For Oshawa "Cy" Dell, also the son of a former C.O.B.L. player, had a perfect day with the willow getting three for three with two walks thrown in. Michael had two hits, one being a double while Morrison and Langmaid also had two bingles. Lockyer played a smart fielding game at first base and Fitzpatrick did all that was expected of him at short, Bush moving over to third in the shakeup, when Al Kelleher was unable to play due to a sore knee.

The umpiring was good, the Toronto men being in complete control of the game and no personalities were allowed to be thrown around. The coaching of "Speedy" St. Louis at third and "Cy" Barriage at first was nearly perfect and the boys got every base they were entitled to. Both teams had a large number stranded on the base paths but St. Louis says this will be corrected after a couple of good batting practices.

School Principal To Give Facts

Toronto, Sept. 9. (CP)—W. R. Cockburn, chairman of the Toronto Board of Education, said Saturday Principal Charles E. Manning, of Wilkinson Public School, where five-year-old John Viger leaped from second storey window after he had been locked alone in the washroom, will present the facts of the case to the Board's management committee Tuesday.

The boy fractured both legs Wednesday when he broke the washroom window and jumped to the pavement below. The incident occurred just 10 minutes after his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Viger, brought the boy to the school's kindergarten for his first day of school.

He began making a disturbance and the teacher, Miss Ruth Wicksey locked him in the washroom.

The boy's father said other students at the school called the room the "crying room".

More Consideration Shown Domestic Help Would Ease Housekeeping Task

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 9 (CP) — Domestic help should no longer be regarded as "inferior beings" but as "co-operators" in the task of making happy, healthy homes — professionals in their own right.

That is the view of Miss Dorothy Elliott, chairman of the newly-formed National Institute of Houseworkers, Ltd., which has been set up by the government on the recommendation of a commission on post-war organization of private domestic employment.

Chief aim of the organization, Miss Elliott said, will be to raise the status of household workers, and, in so doing, attract more workers into "the profession" — as it would henceforth be known.

"We shall at the same time be assisting hospitals and similar institutions where the need for domestic workers is acute. The institute will also have the function of securing training for domestic employment either in technical institutions, government training centres or possibly in its own training centres."

Workers trained in this way would be given certificates of efficiency by the institute and would be placed, in co-operation with employment exchanges, with private employers or with the home helps service, now being developed by local authorities.

"It is hoped that this will open up a new field of labor supply," Miss Elliott said.

Miss Elliott said the institute would establish standards to which employers of domestic workers would be expected to conform and would obtain, in co-operation with education departments, provision of instruction to housewives in the organizing of domestic work.

To raise the status of household workers, she added, it would be necessary to convince employers of the need for treating them with greater respect and recognition than had been customary in the past.

INFLATION is no respecter of persons. Like the rain, it falls on the just and the unjust alike.

If, through free and careless spending, inflation should descend upon Canada as it has upon many other nations, its evil would fall upon everyone.

Upon the shiftless, the thriftless, and the black market patrons . . . Yes . . .

But inflation's evil would fall equally on the "just"—those decent, honest, prudent citizens who observe the law and do not seek to satisfy selfish whims to the detriment of the community.

These, fortunately, are Canada's majority . . . these are Canada's No. 1 citizens. In their hands lies victory over inflation.

Here are their five cardinal points in personal financing:

- Hold on to Victory Bonds and Certificates.
- Buy only those goods which are in fair supply and save money for the day when goods now in short supply will be readily available.
- Avoid black market purchases.
- Keep up insurance.
- Build up savings accounts.

This is conservation—the first requisite of personal security—the first attribute of good citizenship.

THIRD OF PALESTINE JEWS UNDER HOUSE ARREST

British Troops Seek Perpetrators Of Series of Bombings

Three Killed, Several Injured Heavy Damage Reported

By CARTER DAVIDSON

Jerusalem, Sept. 10 — (AP) — More than a third of Palestine's Jewish population was placed under strict house arrest today as British troops sought the perpetrators of a series of bombings which killed three people last night, injured a dozen others and caused widespread property damage.

Approximately 8,000 troops poured into Tel Aviv at dawn to assist police in making a house to house search of that all-Jewish city, where two British officers were listed as killed outright in an explosion which damaged a government building.

Tel Aviv and nearby Ramat Gan, where units of the Sixth Airborne Division moved in, today were placed under a paralyzing curfew as a result of the terrorist acts and British troops at mid-day were staging an inch by inch search of both Jewish communities.

A communique issued here disclosed for the first time that a British sergeant was shot and killed near Petah Tikva when he investigated an explosion there.

It was previously reported that a British major, serving as a Jaffa-Tel Aviv security officer, was killed in a blast which wrecked his home and office and damaged a government building across the street. Also killed was an Arab constable on guard duty at the scene. He was felled by gunfire while trying to prevent the explosion.

Report Number of Blasts

Throughout northern Palestine, authorities reported a number of explosions but details at first were scant as to damage and targets. Definite reports of terrorist acts were received from Nathanya, Caesarea, Tulkarm and Petah Tikva.

Three British soldiers were injured on the road near Givat Brenner and two others were injured near Kfar Vitkin, south of Haifa.

The communique said an army ambulance struck a mine near Hadera and overturned, resulting in a broken arm for the driver.

A British communique said that armed Jews were responsible for the blasts, which followed by 24 hours a widespread series of raids in which Palestine rail lines were cut in more than 50 places. The spreading wave of violence coincided with the opening of British-Arab talks in London on the Palestine problem. All of Palestine was placed under a virtual state of siege and a strict curfew was invoked. Guards were strengthened around all government buildings.

Trapped in Wreckage

Six persons were injured in the explosions in Tel Aviv, which took two lives. The wife of the dead British major was trapped in the wreckage of their home, but was rescued and taken to hospital, where her condition was reported critical.

An official announcement said that another armed band held up a railway crossing guard in Tel Aviv and placed explosives which blew up a signal box.

In almost simultaneous incidents in Tel Aviv a highway bridge was blasted and an attempt was made to blow up the railway crossing barrier on Allenby Road, the city's principal thoroughfare, the announcement said. The crossing was damaged by explosives, but the attempt was termed only partially successful.

Explosions also cut the Tel Aviv-Jaffa railway line in several places.

RUNAWAY KANGAROO KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Chicago, Sept. 10 — (AP) — The perils of civilization caught up Saturday with Humpy, Brookfield Zoo kangaroo. Humpy, about 15, leaped out of her cage at the zoo — her six-months-old baby in her pouch — and bounded away to freedom, leaving little Humpy behind. Two and one-half hours later, after eluding zoo guards and police, Humpy was struck and killed by an automobile a mile from the zoo.

Synod Accepts Report on Union For Study Only

By SHANE MacKAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Sept. 9 —(CP)— Upper and Lower houses of the Anglican General Synod in session here last night accepted a report "for study only" of the church's committee on partial union with the United Church of Canada.

The report, which led to a clash between the two houses, calls for a common ministry of the Anglican and United churches. It does not recommend organic union, but asks that "conversations" with other Protestant churches be continued.

The clash between the two houses came after a joint session heard Primate Derwyn T. Owen, Archbishop of Toronto, read a statement prepared by the House of Bishops. The bishops commended the church union committee report for study by the Lower House.

Asked to approve the bishops' message, several members of the Lower House objected to "hasty" action and requested more time for discussion.

Primate Owen announced that the bishops felt they could not sit in on any further discussion and would be obliged to withdraw. This done, the Lower House commenced a two-hour debate on the significance of the bishops' message and the report itself. Both were approved.

Earlier, a motion by Very Rev. R. H. Waterman of Hamilton that the Lower House endorse the formation of a committee to investigate the field of public relations was passed by the delegates. It will be passed on to the Upper House.

Ven. C. A. Moulton, Archdeacon of Toronto, moved that two church publications, the Anglican Outlook and the Canadian Churchman, be investigated with a view to uniting them. Discussion on the motion was postponed following objections from delegates that the house was not carrying out its scheduled debate on union.

SHILLING IN EGG YOLK

Cobh, Eire, Sept. 10 (AP)— Miss Fachael Binn had her shillings (20 cents) worth when she broke an egg into the frying pan. Hearing a metallic sound, she said, she examined the egg and found the silver coin in the yolk. How the shilling got there is something for the hen to cackle about.

U.S. MEAT BACK UNDER THE O.P.A. CEILINGS TODAY

Butcher Shops in Most American Cities As Residents Go On Buying Spree

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP) — Butcher shops in most cities in the United States were running out of meat today, as office of price administration ceilings went on again.

Weekend buying sprees, in anticipation of short supplies, had left shops in most cities with little except poultry, smoked meats and cold cuts. Sharply reduced receipts of livestock at packing centres gave no hope for immediate relief.

Retail shops were closing for lack of business, and packing houses were laying off workers.

A Chicago retailers' spokesman estimated 1,100 of the city's 2,000 retail markets would be closed by the end of the week. In New York City, 90 per cent of the dealers had no meat of any kind.

After ceilings were removed July 1, livestock producers sent their cattle and hogs to market in unprecedented numbers. During the week immediately preceding re-imposition of ceilings on livestock, the Chicago market, the country's largest, was glutted.

But livestock receipts over the United States now are reported running from eight to 50 per cent of normal.

Almost 5,000 packinghouse workers have been laid off at Omaha alone, and the United States Employment Service said many were applying for different jobs.

Some Atlanta meat handlers predicted no improvement for a "year's time." They said farmers had sold their stock to take advantage of high prices and now will have to wait for hogs and calves to fatten.

U. S. MEAT BACK—Page 3

Farmers to Discuss Milk Delivery As Strike Continues

Edmonton, Sept. 10 —(CP)— Milk was added to the list of commodities being withheld from the market by some 20,000 Alberta farmers as the 30-day delivery strike by the Alberta Farmers' Union, a move to force Federal Government recognition of demands to revise produce prices in accordance with the cost of living, moved into its fourth day.

In a statement last night, the union's central strike committee ordered milk deliveries to cease at midnight tonight, but ratified distribution of milk to children, hospitals and "other needy cases." Farmer pickets have been attempting to stop grain, dairy products and livestock from reaching the market since midnight Friday.

Hospital Staff Nurses Walk Out Over Higher Wage Demand

Last night a group of staff nurses of the Belleville General Hospital left their positions after negotiations with a committee of the Board of Governors for higher wages, straight eight-hour day and other demands broke down.

The nurses are asking for a $25 per month increase which they feel is the minimum they can accept in view of the higher cost of living. At present the hospital pays a basic rate of $105 from which deductions for income tax, maintenance and laundry are made. These deductions total $30 but this sum is reduced if the nurse lives out and only gets a certain number of meals in the hospital.

Hospital authorities state the figure of $105 is on a par with some other hospitals and $10 to $20 lower than other hospitals including some of the largest institutions in Ontario.

It is understood the Board of Governors is sympathetic to the request for more money but asked for further time until the matter could be gone into more fully but this the nurses refused to consider. It is also, understood that if the full request for wage increase was granted a big deficit would result. This could only be covered by a general increase in room and other rates.

Contrary to the general rule the Belleville Hospital is owned and operated by the Women's Christian Association, and not by the city. As a result the city cannot be asked to make good any deficits that might occur. The hospital is also attempting to discharge the balance of a large loan incurred with the building of the new wing and other alterations which were completed some years ago.

Today the hospital is carrying on with reduced staff plus volunteer members of the Women's Auxiliary of the hospital. In a further effort to cope with the situation an order has been issued refusing new admittances, except emergencies, until the situation improves. The student nurses are not involved.

The Administrator, J. G. Barclay, said he was in communication with the Department of Health in Toronto, and expects a representative to arrive today to investigate the whole matter.

Sees Spirit of Canada Poised, 'Hinge of Gold Between Old and New Worlds'

—Montgomery

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, Sept. 10 —(CP)— Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, whose whirlwind 17-day trans-Canada tour ended here today, took away a lusty Canadian thump on the back and left behind a message that spoke of preparedness.

The doughty little fighter in black beret and battle dress said in farewell he had found what he sought — the spirit of Canada. And in his opinion that spirit could be strategically tied to world security.

In a message last night he spoke of an English-speaking partnership which would be a strong shield against any new outbreak of violence in the world. In his conception of the partnership there seemed "to stand poised the spirit of Canada, a hinge between the Old World and the New — a priceless hinge of pure gold."

Urges Preparedness

But in his search for the spirit of the country whose soldiers had fought under his command, the cryptic but certainly far from crusty Field Marshal found time to warn against the possibility of another war, urge preparedness, say that the British Tommy was doing more than his share in world security, hold two off-record talks with senior Canadian officers, collect information on officer training for incorporation into the British program, give airborne operations camps of Shilo and Carberry in flat prairie lands a close aerial scrutiny, and ask many pointed questions on the operation of the Alaskan Highway.

He was studiously shy of controversial political subjects, carefully boxing his speeches and comment, carrying the ball himself at a press conference in Ottawa and refusing to get into an argument on his battle strategy with Ralph Ingersoll, his No. 1 United States critic. He also turned down an invitation to reply to a Russian broadcast that his Canadian trip had a deeper military significance than meets the eye.

Cheered from Coast to Coast

In a tour that took him to federal and provincial capitals and Montreal, Kingston, Calgary and Vancouver, the Field Marshal left without any doubt he was welcome and honored.

He was cheered from coast to coast, was given honorary degrees by three universities, collected innumerable illuminated addresses and silver trays, was made the freeman of half a dozen cities, got a homespun blanket, a college cheer leader's beret and a miniature totem pole.

He also disclosed that he had never been able to visit a casualty clearing station during a battle because he couldn't stand seeing men suffer and he was afraid what he saw might affect his decisions.

Montgomery Ends Tour of Canada Now Visits in U.S.

Quebec, Sept. 10—(CP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, completing his trans-Canada tour took off from nearby Ancienne Lorette Airport at 7:15 a.m., today for West Point, N.Y., where he will begin a tour of United States army installations.

Canada's Governor - General, Lord Alexander, at whose summer home at the Citadel Monty was an overnight guest, was at the airport for the take-off.

The Field Marshal spent his last night in Canada talking shop with Lord Alexander. The two soldiers, after a family dinner with Lady Alexander, retired to a private room to talk over their wartime campaigns in Africa and Italy.

Earlier, Lord Montgomery, in a speech broadcast over a CBC trans-Canada network, declared there could be no stronger factor for peace than the working together of the English-speaking peoples.

"Such a partnership would be a strong shield against the evil things we have fought to overcome. These evil things might well rise up again and spread, unless faced by a union of free and freedom - loving peoples, which could be linked to any peace-loving nations within the framework of the United Nations Organization."

NO CONFIRMATION

London, Sept. 10 (CP)—A foreign office spokesman refused today to confirm or deny that Britain had received any official accounts of alleged "internal difficulties" in the Soviet Union.

A reporter had asked about a New York Herald Tribune report that the British and American governments received such accounts from their official representatives in Russia.

Employment Improved in August 16,000 Fewer Unplaced Idle

Ottawa, Sept. 10 —(CP)— General improvement in employment conditions continued during August, the Labor Department reported today in a review of the manpower situation.

Expansion in seasonal industries such as agriculture, logging and mining offset the "drastic slump" in manufacturing employment resulting from widespread strikes and consequent material shortages.

At Aug. 29, there were 144,000 unplaced applicants registered with the National Employment Service, a decrease of 16,000 during the month. Declines of 19,000 occurred in July and of 32,000 in June.

There were 117,000 unfilled vacancies registered at Aug. 29. Vacancies increased by 11,000 during the month, a reversal of the downward trend which occurred in July when a decrease of 15,000 was reported.

Improvement was evident in all regions but the Maritimes, and was concentrated chiefly in the Prairies and Ontario. Unfilled vacancies in Ontario, however, are below the level of two months ago as strikes have had a more direct effect on this region than on any other.

"Material shortages are growing more severe," the department reported. "Production, particularly in heavy industries, is badly crippled; male workers thus bear the brunt of the employment slump in this field. Female employment conditions have not been as sharply affected by the wave of strikes.

"The thriving tourist trade has been accomplished by heavy demand for female service workers; also, textile workers and qualified clerical workers remain in short supply. However, conditions of work and wage levels form obstacles to placement in many cases."

COMMISSION TO DRAFT STATUTE FOR TRIESTE

Approved by Italian Political, Territorial Commission and Will Be Ready Oct. 5th

By A. I. GOLDBERG

Paris, Sept. 10 (AP)—Establishment of an eight-power subcommission to draft a statute for the free city of Trieste was approved today by the Italian political and territorial commission.

The proposal was advanced by Lief Egeland of South Africa, chairman of the commission, who said the full commission wanted to have all its work done by Oct. 5.

Discussion of his proposal interrupted the series of explanations begun yesterday by Dr. Ales Bebler of Yugoslavia on his nation's demand in altering the "French line" boundary approved by the Big Four foreign ministers council for Italy and Yugoslavia.

Mr. Egeland suggested a subcommission of seven—Yugoslavia, Australia and The Netherlands in addition to the representatives of the Big Four, whose deputy foreign ministers have been unable to agree on a plan for the government of Trieste.

Dr. Bebler said this would give the Big Four a majority on the subcommission. He asked that Poland be added to the group "because of its experience with Danzig."

Russia Thanks U.S.

An indication of Big Four harmony was given in the Balkan Economic Commission when Russian delegate N. S. Geratchenko thanked the United States representative, Willard Thorp, for his "spirit of conciliation" in rallying to the Soviet point of view on one of the minor economic clauses of the Romanian treaty.

Romanian delegate Georges Maurer, Communist Under-Secretary of Communications, pleaded with the commission to ease demands made on Romania for compensation for Allied property in Romania damaged or confiscated during the war.

Maurer said Romania had suffered 112,000 persons killed while fighting on the side of the United Nations after Aug. 12.

The conference's legal and drafting commission, meanwhile, was studying an Australian proposal for a court of human rights to enforce peace treaty provisions governing man's fundamental freedoms."

Last Remaining Hope

An Australian spokesman — terming it "one of the last remaining hopes for a better world" —declared the proposal would ensure that the Atlantic Charter makes its mark on the world of the future and added: "It deserves more attention than it is getting."

The Australian proposal for a court of human rights stems from a United States proposal designed to guarantee the "fundamental freedoms" to every inhabitant of any territory which might be transferred from Italy. Australia wants every peace treaty to include a clause guaranteeing "human righs and fundamental freedoms." To protect the residents of all ceded areas.

The proposal met its first real opposition when it came before a commission on the Romanian treaty. Representatives of the Slavic Bloc insisted that inclusion of such a clause in the treaty would constitute dictation to the Romanian government.

'Million Dollar' Sun Shines Over Britain, Farmers Salvage Crops

London, Sept. 10. (CP Cable) — A "million dollar" sunshine spread out over most of Britain today and farmers were out in the dawn salvaging stocked corn battered by almost continual rains in the last three weeks.

It was the first real break for moisture-saturated fields following the wettest August in 22 years and rain in the first week of September.

Corn was spread to dry in the hope that the good weather would continue, with dry winds that would enable the farmers to rebind it.

Conditions in the southwest were not so good but the Air Ministry's weather section said they would improve during the day.

Latest estimates of losses to corn crops vary between 25 and 40 per cent.

Black Market Operators Stage Sixteen Break-ins

Steps Taken to Prevent Use of Stolen Books

Toronto, Sept 10 (CP)—Black Market operators stole an estimated 25,000 of the new Canadian ration books in overnight break-ins at 16 distributing centres in the Toronto area and police said the final figure on the number stolen may be even higher.

Police reported the arrest of one man after his car, containing a box of 1,000 ration books stolen from the municipal office at nearby Streetsville, was found at Cooksville. There was a break-in at the Cooksville United Church but the books had been taken home by church officers.

Police estimated that with the 25,000 stolen books a black market operation capable of controlling distribution of 2,500,000 pounds of meat, 1,250,000 pounds of sugar and 625,000 pounds of butter could be set up.

The first of the Toronto theft was reported from St. Enoch's United Church on downtown Winchester Street early this morning. There thieves climbed a fire escape and forced a window to gain entry. Other break-ins were at the Synagogue of Adath Israel congregation on Bathurst Street, Crawford Street United Church and Dovercourt Road Presbyterian Church—all in the West-Central section of the city.

Distribution of the ration books began yesterday and continues until tomorrow night in the Toronto area and it was reported that drastic steps are being taken to protect those still to be distributed.

Police said accurate figures on the number of books taken in each break-in were not yet available but they estimated 6,000 were stolen at Adath Israel, 3,650 at St. Enoch's and 3,500 at Crawford Street. At Dovercourt Road the books were locked in a vault and the robbery attempt failed.

Federal government officials at Ottawa have been notified of the theft and steps to prevent the illicit distribution of the books have been taken.

Two Men Escape Capture

Two men who attempted to rob the distributing centre at Dovercourt Road Presbyterian Church narrowly escaped capture. Two patrolling police officers gave chase when the two men jumped 12 feet from a window and ran off.

Police Chief John Chisholm said that the ration centres have been under police supervision since distribution of the books began yesterday. Detective Inspector John Nimmo said constables on ration patrol detail discovered all the break-ins. All the thefts were from cupboards and none was from safes or vaults.

Reports of Toronto break-ins filtered in to police headquarters steadily after the finding of the books in the car at Cooksville. Entry was gained through windows or by forcing doors. In some cases, volunteer ration workers concealed the books and foiled the gang.

London, Ont., Sept. 10—(CP)— Following the theft of thousands of new ration books from issuing depots in Toronto, special precautions were clamped on in London, Nora Toll, city clerk and chief issuing officer announced today.

"Some fear that an attempt would be made has existed," she said, "but we did not want to advertise that fear. We have now taken precautions."

Police protection will be provided during the entire rationing period.

Judge Cameron Appointed To Exchequer Court

Ottawa, Sept. 10—(CP)—Judge Charles A. Cameron of Belleville, Ont., has been appointed as an additional puisne judge of the Exchequer Court of Canada, it was disclosed today.

The appointment brings membership of the Exchequer Court to four. Already serving are Justice J. T. Thorson, president; Justice E. R. Angers, and Justice Gerald O'Connor.

A bill authorizing appointment of an additional puisne judge was passed at the recent session of Parliament. The appointment was considered necessary because of the backlog of cases which have piled up.

Justice Cameron comes to his new post from Ontario's Hastings County Court, although during the war years he handled several assignments in Ottawa for the Justice and Labor Departments.

Next Move In Steel Strike Up to Union

By JACK WILLIAMS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 10—(CP) — The United Steelworkers of America (CIO) today appeared to be holding the ball in Canada's 58-day steel strike. Unanimous rejection of government proposals for ending the tie-up, which affects plants in Sydney, N.S., Hamilton and Sault Ste. Marie, has left union officers charged by the members with the responsibility of making new efforts at negotiations.

Three parties are involved in the dispute — the union, government and employers. The employers were given a secondary position when the government took control of the plants July 10, five days before the strike started. Since then discussions have been between the union and government but the proposals which were rejected by Sydney and Sault Ste. Marie workers yesterday, and by Hamilton workers Sunday, were regarded as the last word from the government, for the time being at least.

Thus the next move appeared to rest with the union, although it was considered unlikely any full-scale negotiations could be launched with the government

JOHNNY BAKER GETS HIS 'LUNGE

It just happened, so Johnny Baker, Front Street fruit merchant says.

Baker, an ardent fisherman, who has patrolled the bay here for weeks with his pals, and never had a "musky" strike, took two of his friends for a ride in his boat.

There was fishing tackle in the boat, so Arthur Brown, one of Baker's friends, tossed a baited line overside.

Then it happened. To the delight of Brown and his friend and to the consternation of Baker, a fifteen pound 'lunge struck savagely at the bait.

They hauled the fish in the boat after a brief but sharp struggle and the Browns are holding their heads high.

"It just happened," sighed Johnny Baker "and we have fished these waters for weeks and nary a nibble." The 'lunge was caught at Cemetery Cove.

Dies of Natural Causes

Brantford, Sept. 10 (CP) — Death from natural causes was the coroner's verdict after John Ashworth Haven, 72, was found dead in a barn Saturday on the farm of his son-in-law, Cemeron Ravens, near Harley.

Death had occurred some hours prior to the body being found. Police said the elderly man had been chasing some livestock earlier in the day, and he is believed to have over-exerted himself.

Buses Loaded Due to Storm But all Happy

Why is it that there is such a remarkable feeling of friendship on an overcrowded bus on a rainy day? This morning we foolishly planned to catch the 8:45 bus down town. Rain was coming down in bucketsful when the bus finally came in sight, and the overcrowded condition of the vehicle was seen at a glance. At the door, completely outside the bus, and only hanging on with his fingertips, was a well-dressed gentleman in a very wet derby. With a sympathetic smile, we waited till the bus stopped. The gentleman called out to squeeze up for one more, and took us on in front of him, while he stood just a little farther out in the rain. As we swept along the overflowing gutters, the water rushed around the poor man's ankles, and at each stop about six of us stepped out into the rain while one or two more got on.

There were no grumblings, no frowns, as we were shoved against one another by the motion of the bus. The only long face was that of the driver, no doubt wondering if his bus would ever be the same again. With sighs of relief, we saw the school corner ahead and waves of movement passed down the car as children started wriggling towards the front, frightened lest the bus should go on before they had reached the door. As we stood in the rain, our tall gentleman with the derby lifted the smaller children over the puddles and lent the older students a helping hand. At one point, we rescued the shing new geometry textbook from the deep water of the gutter where it had fallen.

With the grand exodus of the school children, the number of passengers was reduced to normal and we were able to find seats. But the friendly feeling persisted and we received welcoming smiles from those who had been seated throughout our ordeal.

Board the bus on a quiet sunny day and you will find plenty of seats, with no discomfort of damp clothes or wet umbrellas dripping down into your shoes. But your fellow passengers are cold, disinterested. Climb on board in the pouring rain, when there isn't a seat to be had, and watch the friendly smiles. It will warm your heart even if your feet are wet.

R.C.N. Vessel Springs Leak And is Beached

Ship Harbor, N.S., Sept. 10. (CP)— Second Royal Canadian navy vessel lost within two weeks the 180-ton H.M.C.S. Donnacona II was beached at Owl's head Harbor near here Saturday night after springing a leak seven miles off shore, it was learned last night.

There were no casualties although the last two miles of the nightmarish journey were made with the bow completely submerged.

Donnacona was to have replaced H.M.C.S. Beaverton which was rammed and sunk while travelling to Montreal to attend the Aircraft Carrier, H.M.C.S. Warrior, during her recent visit to that port.

The ship was 30 miles from Halifax when water started to pour into the forward messdeck Within 20 minutes she was out of control while the 14-man crew raced her toward shore and formed a bucket brigade to augment the pumps.

Mariners here credited the Captain, Lieut. I. A. Barclay, R.C.N. (R), Montreal athlete, with an almost impossible feat of seamanship in bringing his ship into shallow water where it was beached.

Holloway Church Scene of Special Baptismal Service

The United Church at Halloway, beautifully adorned with baskets of tall gladioli and other fall blooms, was the setting for a specially arranged baptismal service, which was attended by a large congregation.

During the service, conducted by the minister, Rev. A. Lloyd Shorten, the sacrament of baptism was administered to twelve children. The following children were baptized:

Kenneth Ray Cassidy, Donna Marie Cassidy and Monna Doreen Cassidy, children of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cassidy; Douglas Roy Dafoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dafoe; Raymond Herbert Emerson, William Paul Emerson, Ann Marie Emerson, children of Mr and Mrs. Edward Emerson; Kathryn Jean McMullen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen; John Douglas Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reid; Calvin Wellington Reid, Patricia Joan Reid, children of Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Reid; Donald Allen Francis Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rose.

Following the service of baptism, the Misses Sharon and Haroldene Wilkinson sang as a duet, "Tell Me the Stories of Jesus", and were accompanied by their mother, Mrs. Harold Wilkinson. Mrs. Earl Snider, the church organist, presided for the remaining musical portions of the service.

For his subject the minister chose "God Bless Our Homes", speaking first of the meaning and importance of Christian baptism, then reminding his hearers that the home, divine in origin, and the greatest school in the world, should, above all, be Christian. Stressing the responsibility of mothers and fathers, Mr. Shorten said, "your children will largely reflect what you have taught them in the days of childhood." He then asked, "What of the homes from which we come today?" The people were told that there never had been a time when there was greater need for homes to be Christian, for never had our homes been in so great a danger from forces outside. The sermon concluded with the challenge to the people to make their own the great words of the Israelite leader, Joshua: "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

The congregation at Halloway will join with the members of the Sunday School next Sunday in their combined service during which the annual Rally Day program will be used and a special message given by the minister on the subject "Crusaders All."

60,000 Persons Killed in Four Raids Over Hamburg, Padre Horbeck Tells Kinsmen Club

The four-way division of Germany for occupation by armies of the victorious Allied forces was a mistake insofar as the administration of the defeated country is concerned.

This was the opinion expressed before members of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville at their first dinner meeting of the season when Squadron Leader Horbeck, United Church Padre at Mountain View was the guest speaker. Former Padre with occupational forces in Germany, the speaker told of conditions existent there at the beginning of last winter when food shortages were acute and fuel and transportation were comparatively non-existent.

"Administration of a country divided four ways is impossible without the same co-operation among the occupational forces as that which existed between the Allies during the war," he stated.

Stories Not Exaggerated

Post war stories coming out of Germany as to how that country was blasted by the Allied air forces were not exaggerated, Sqdn. Ldr. Horbeck assured. In four raids over Hamburg, 60,000 persons were killed and at war's end more than half of the city lay in ruins. By comparison German raids over England were mild affairs.

The normal reaction to this is that "they asked for it—they got it," but the speaker stated it was a black mark against "so-called" civilization that one of the world's greatest intellectual nations should be the scene of the world's greatest human slaughter.

In spite of the horrors suffered by the Germans it was doubted by the speaker if the spirit of Nazilsm had been killed. "You just do not kill ideologies and philosophies, and the spirit of hatred and revenge runs deep in the peoples of a defeated nation."

Fail to Solve Problem

In spite of efforts made within the past 25 years, the speaker believed that peace seeking peoples had failed to solve the problems they had set out to solve. The reason was not because they had failed to plan but failure to achieve the universal spirit necessary for living in a unified world.

"We must turn away from the worship of material things and turn toward the consideration of how to build the human spirit to the task of living in a world of nations."

"If we are smart we will turn back to religion and instead of the lip service common today we will really learn to sacrifice. A spiritual advance equal to the technological advance is necessary."

The speaker was introduced by Kin Cleo Colling with club appreciation being expressed by Kin Ross Bailey. Club president Newton Wilbur presided over the meeting.

Kinsmen Club Presents to City Cheque for $2,650 One-Tenth Of Cost of Ice Plant for Arena

Mayor Frank Follwell on Behalf of All Citizens Thanks Service Organization

Setting a fine example in the way of true community effort, the Kinsmen Club of Belleville at their first meeting of the autumn season on Monday evening officially presented to the city of Belleville a cheque covering one-tenth of the cost of the proposed artificial ice plant for the Hume Arena.

With members of the city council and other city officials present, President Newton Wilbur of the Kinsmen Club officially presented Mayor Frank S. Follwell with a cheque for $2,650, representing somewhat more than the proceeds of their annual summer carnival. The face value of the cheque represents one-tenth of the contract price of the ice plant.

"This is one of my happiest experiences as the mayor of the city of Belleville," assured Mayor Follwell when he accepted the cheque from President Wilbur. The Kinsmen Club of Belleville have always been progressive and are constantly thinking in terms of community effort."

"As Mayor I personally appreciate this gesture of the Kinsmen Club and in expressing my appreciation I know I am expressing the feeling of the citizens of this city."

The Mayor assured that the rink had been purchased for the citizens and whenever it was feasible free skating and free admissions for children of the city to hockey games would be provided.

Special Cheque Presented.

A special "over-size" cheque measuring approximately three feet in length was prepared for the official presentation, Kinsmen later indicating the cheque would be placed on display in various store windows in the city.

Although the $2,650 face value of the cheque represents a tenth part of the purchase price of the artificial ice plant, the local Kinsmen Club are hoping to add to this amount and will gladly accept donations ear-marked for this cause.

Donations forwarded to the Kinsmen Club ear-marked as contributions for the ice plant will be eligible for deductions for income tax purposes and the club treasurer will forward an official receipt for this purpose.

Donations toward the fund already started by the Kinsmen Club toward the purchase of the ice plant will be received by the Kinsmen Club treasurer, Frank Lang, Box 397.

Apostolic Delegate to Canada Dines at St. Michael's Rectory

On passing through Belleville, Monday His Excellency the Most Reverend Hildebrand Antoinette, Apostolic delegate to Canada dined at St. Michael's Rectory, the guest of Monsignor Nicholson. He paid a visit to St. Michael's Academy, where the pupils of the Academy and St. Michael's High School, their teachers and members of the School Board were assembled in the auditorium to greet the distinguished visitor.

A bouquet of roses was presented by little Jacqueline Murphy, which young Master Richard Lynch spoke the words of presentation. Jerry Fleury conveyed the welcome of the pupils of the Academy, while Ted Boyle expressed the greetings from St. Michael's High School. Then the students of the High School sang Caesar Franck's "Panis Angelicus" in three parts.

Distributed Diplomas

The delegate distributed the diplomas and prizes of the Diocesan Christian Doctrine examinations. Monsignor Nicholson expressed the deep appreciation of the parish for this visit. His Excellency thanked the children for their welcome and exhorted them to zeal in their studies to the end of becoming good Christians and good citizens.

Death Accident Jury's Verdict

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury at the adjourned inquest looking into the death of Lloyd Soble, 25 Grier Street, who died in Belleville General Hospital on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 5th., following injuries received when the truck he was driving crashed into the abutment of an overhead bridge at Moira Lake.

The adjourned inquest was held at the county court buildings in Belleville, Monday evening, before Coroner Dr. S. Eagleson, of Madoc with Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson acting for the Crown.

The jury found that Lloyd Soble came to his death as result of an accident which occurred on the 4th day of September in the township of Huntingdon three miles south of Madoc. The jury found that the deceased was driving a truck when it struck the abutment of the overhead bridge causing internal injuries which were the cause of his death.

POLICE COURT

That it doesn't pay to mistake some other person's auto for your own despite the fact that it is practically similar in appearance was learned by a local motorist in Magistrate's Court at the city police station Tuesday morning. Following a plea of guilty by the accused, Magistrate T. Y. Wills awarded a six months' suspended sentence and ordered him to pay the costs of the court.

The accused had parked his car and later going back for his vehicle apparently had mistaken another man's car for his own. He was apprehended one hour later on Front Street. Giving evidence at the hearing police stated the man had been drinking.

Careless Driving Charge.

Pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving Ross Lusk had his case enlarged for two weeks when he will re-appear for sentence. Monday night shortly before midnight Lusk was driving on Holloway Street and near the Ponton Street corner his car mounted the curb and after proceeding 66 feet across a vacant lot collided with a house before being brought to a stop. Mr. Lusk's wife and small child were slightly injured in the accident.

To permit the accused an opportunity of securing counsel, Magistrate Wills enlarged a charge of auto theft against Mervin Robbins for one week. Police claim that Robbins took from the market square an auto belonging to William Robinson. The case was reported shortly before six o'clock last night with Robbins being apprehended in charge of the car about one half hour later, according to police.

Robert Stoughton, Fort Frontenac, pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving and will appear in two weeks for sentence. Stoughton was the driver of a car which crashed into a hydro pole at the Front and Dundas streets intersection Saturday, with James McRoberts of Foxboro being injured as he crashed into the windshield.

Urgently Needed 1 Bag of Cement

Urgently needed, one bag of cement.

Such was the unusual advertisement which appeared in Monday's wanted ad. columns in the Ontario Intelligencer. It told briefly just how serious is the current shortage of this essential building material.

Almost two months ago William Thompson, Hillcrest Street, planned to replace a chimney which long ago had served its usefulness. He tore the old chimney down and then undertook to obtain some cement with which to mix the mortar to build a new chimney. He is still looking for that bag of cement.

Mr. Thompson has canvassed hardware stores and building contractors, but always receiving the same answer — no cement. Hardware men assured they had had none for weeks, while builders also were short. In fact one builder stated he had been forced to pay $13 for eight bags of cement with which to finish a certain job.

But autumn weather and consequent cool nights are fast approaching and Mr. Thompson needs his new chimney. But to build the chimney he has to have cement, hence the ad. in Monday's paper.

IN MEMORIAM

STORR — In loving memory of a dear husband, Wilbert G. Storr, who passed away suddenly September 10th., 1945.

We little thought when leaving home
You would no more return,
That you so soon in death would sleep,
And leave us all to mourn.
I have lost my soul's companion,
A life linked with my own,
And day by day I miss him more,
As I walk through life alone.
—Sadly missed by Wife.

STORR — In loving memory of a kind father, Wilbert G. Storr, who departed this life September 10th., 1945.

The blow was great, the shock severe
We little thought the end so near,
And only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.
More each day we miss you father,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within our heart concealed.
—Sadly missed by the Family.

U.S. MEAT BACK

Many Turn to Poultry

Washington, Sept. 10—(AP)—Meat went back under Office of Price Administration ceilings today — and housewives in many United States cities had to turn to poultry and fish markets to round out their menus.

Even the United States Army said it may have to do likewise unless the meat shortage abates.

The new butcher shop prices average 12 per cent higher than on June 30 when meat began its 71-day period in the free market. They are lower than most recent prices, but the ceilings are meaningless in many communities because counters are bare.

Any return to consumer rationing appeared to be out. But one remedy being talked at the agriculture department is a possible price boost to encourage greater production on the farms, ranges and feed lots.

Be Over in Month

But no action appeared imminent. The agriculture department —given the last word over such matters in the price control extension law — was unwilling to concede that a long and severe shortage is in prospect. A spokesman said department meat experts think the meat famine may be over in a month or so.

Today's return of retail ceilings to fresh meats completes the gradual re-application of controls offered by the independent decontrol board on Aug. 20.

Cellings first were imposed Sept. 1 on the live cattle, pigs and lambs and sheep. These prices averaged $2.25 more more beef and $1.40 more for pork than the June 30 levels, but they were far below prices paid by packers and other buyers during the price control holiday.

The new retail ceilings average 3 3/4 cents a pound higher than June 30, an increase which OPA says will add $600,000,000 a year to United States retail food bills.

KIDNEY ACIDS Rob your Rest..

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—blame it on "nerves"—when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons and excess acids from the blood. If they fail and impurities stay in the system—disturbed rest often follows. If you don't rest well get and use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help the kidneys so that you can rest better—and feel better. 136

SEES SPIRIT

call him "the old man" and who are not timid in their dealings with him. The reporter, watching the crowds react from Halifax to Vancouver, heard "good old Monty" as the familiar shout and "He's not as tall as I thought" as the most familiar comment.

All on Schedule

Probably the most amazing thing about this tour was that it never lost five minutes in its whole 9,000-mile schedule and this meant that the 'Monty flight' of two silver R.C.A.F. Dakotas flew through some rough weather to keep on time. The Army's painstaking organization under the direction of sticklers for detail like Col. Harold Cathcart, Lt.-Col. C. A. Morory and Lt.-Col. H. E. T. (Pot) Doucet — who anticipated all problems — saw not a single hitch.

Wounded badly in the First Great War and considerably older than the rest of his party of 25, Monty was more active and less tired than his staff at the end of each busy day.

GOVT. PROPOSALS

Although no immediate new conciliation efforts were anticipated by the government it was considered likely the controllership of the plants might be withdrawn. Actually this would make little difference to the situation. F. B. Kilbourne of Montreal was named controller five days before the strike started on the assumption that government controllership would prevent a stoppage as it had done in other cases.

When the strike took place regardless of the controller the plan lost its effectiveness.

There have been suggestions that the government might use its new strike vote authority in the steel dispute but no decision has been reached on this proposal and there are several arguments against it.

A government-conducted vote would be by secret ballot but in the case of the steel strike — and particularly at the Steel Company of Canada at Hamilton where some 2,500 employees have stayed at work — there would be complications.

Some of the workers have taken other jobs with a few going west on harvest excursions and they would not be available to vote. The union would undoubtedly object to workers in the plant having a vote on a ground that they have been promised triple pay for remaining on the job and so are allegedly prejudiced in favor of the company. Chances are that the union would order a boycott of the vote.

unless the union showed signs of moving from its 15½-cent wage demand — compared with the 11 to 12½ cents proposed by the government's unsuccessful formula.

Soo Plant Rejects Offer

Sault Ste. Marie, Sept. 10 (CP).—Steel workers at the Algoma Steel Corporation's plant here last night rejected the government's latest formula for settling the eight-weeks old wages-hours strike which has affected all three of Canada's basic steel-producing plants. The Sault decision, virtually unanimous, followed similar decisions by strikers at the Hamilton plant of Steel Company of Canada, and the Sydney plant of Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation.

About 3,500 members of the United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.) have been on strike here since July 15 in the strike that started originally for a basic minimum wage of $33.60 for a 40-hour week.

There was some dispute about the number of unionists attending the mass meeting here, called by Loc. 2251 of the U.S.W.A., at which the latest federal proposals offering increases between 11 and 12 1-2 cents were rejected. Union officials said 2,500 attended while one newspaper estimate placed the number at about 500.

Only Few Dissenters

But there was no dispute about the decision. The vote was on a show of hands and all accounts were that there were only a few dissenting votes. William Mahoney of Sault Ste. Marie, international representative of the Union, presented the proposal to the strikers, recommending that it be rejected.

"It is imperative that we stick together until our original demands are met," said Mahoney.

He was supported by John Barker, president of Loc. 2251.

One of these present shouted "we want a ballot vote," and a tense moment arose when one striker denounced those who voted to accept the proposal. Barker, in the chair, said he wanted no trouble and requested the guard to eject disturbers.

The meeting was also asked to vote on a request of the Algoma Steel Corporation that unloading of ore be permitted. The men agreed unanimously to unload ore immediately

Jews and Arabs Asked To Make Concessions For Peace in Holy Land

London, Sept. 10—(CP)—Prime Minister Attlee opened the London conference on Palestine today with the assurance Britain was not committed to the controversial British-American experts' plan to divide Palestine into a federal state of four zones.

Addressing Arab leaders, the prime minister appealed to both Arabs and Jews to "make concessions necessary for peace" in the Holy Land where fresh violence flared.

Jews did not join in the parley, but indications grew that they might participate later, though not at the same table with the Arabs.

An informed Jewish source said the Jewish agency would join the talks later this week if Britain "showed a willingness to concede." A British government official predicted that both the Jewish agency and non - agency Jews would attend later on. British cabinet ministers were reported considering a "certain formula" under which the Jewish agency has offered to participate.

Faris Bey El Khouri, president of the Syrian Chamber of Deputies and official spokesman for the Arab League Delegation, said he would reply formally to the prime minister's address when the onference resumed tomorrow morning.

The first meeting adjourned soon after Khouri made his announcement.

Federalization Plan

Mr. Attlee emphasized that while the federalization plan was "the first item on the agenda," the British government was not committed to it.

"It is a proposal we ask you to consider," said Mr. Attlee. "It is open for any delegation either to suggest amendments to it or to put forward proposals for a settlement on different lines."

The Jewish agency executive met to consider Mr. Attlee's speech.

A draft of Mr. Attlee's speech was sent in advance to Dr. Chaim Weizmann, convalescing outside London from a recent eye operation. A secretary read the Prime Minister's speech to the veteran Jewish politician-scientist.

Jewish agency sources in London declared their position had been strengthened considerably by the maintenance of a "united front" by all non-agency organizations, which after a lengthy meeting last night, announced they could not be represented at the talks alone.

The Anglo-Jewish Association, the Board of Deputies of British Jews and the Agudath Israel informed the government, in effect, that they would participate only if the Jewish agency'h request for making discussions revolve around Jewish "statehood within an adequate area" was accepted.

Mr. Attlee did not mention the absence of Jews from the talks.

The prime minister expressed regret that Palestine Arabs had refused to participate in the talks, but said he thought "the Arab point of view is adequately and effectively represented by the present gathering" — which includes delegates from the Arab states of Saudi Arabia, Trans-Jordan, Egypt, Yemen, Syria, Lebanon and Iraq.

'Federalization' Plan for Holy Land

Mr. Attlee said Britain would open the talks by asking for discussion of a plan for "federalization" of the Holy Land, recently put forward by a commission of Anglo-American experts, but added that Britain was not committed to the proposal and that the Arabs could suggest amendments "or put forward proposals for a settlement of different lines."

"No settlement is possible in Palestine unless each community is prepared to take account of the other's interests and to make the concessions necessary for peace," Mr. Attlee declared.

It was his only reference to Jews who have refused to participate in the London talks.

The prime minister cautioned the delegates against devoting "too much time to past history" and said the Holy Land problem "must be regarded against the wide background of world policy."

"Palestine is a tiny country, but everything that happens in it has reactions in a far wider sphere," he said. "To plan for Palestine while ignoring these reactions would be to shut one's eyes to the realities of the case: the structure might seem worthy but the foundations would be on sand."

The prime minister said the pressure of other duties would prevent him from taking part in the discussions personally.

Hopes for Frankness

Stressing British interest in Arab welfare, Mr. Attlee expressed hope that "we will succeed by frankly explaining our difficulties to one another and searching together for a solution on which you and we can honorably agree."

"I pray that the opening of this conference may also be the opening of a new and happier chapter in the history of Palestine.

"I anticipate great results from the personal contacts which are here being established. The fact that we are thus met together shows you the extent to which His Majesty's government recognizes that Palestine is a subject of legitimate interest and concern to all the Arab peoples."

The Arab delegates — some of them wearing flowing desert robes and native knives—heard Mr. Attlee's address while seated around a large conference table in Lancaster House, near St. James's Palace.

Representing the United Kingdom, in addition to the prime minister, were Foreign Secretary Bevin, Colonial Secretary George Hall and Sir Norman Brooke, cabinet secretary. Mr. Bevin returned to London from the Paris peace conference to attend the talks.

Welcome to Fleet of Planes

During Mr. Attlee's address of welcome a fleet of 50 R.A.F. bombers and fighters roared over the conference building in rehearsal for Saturday's anniversary observance of the Battle of Britain. The prime minister spoke for about half an hour.

Expressing "great interest" in Mr. Attlee's remarks, Faris Bey El Khouri, president of the Syrian Chamber of Deputies, said the Arabs' formal reply would be made at the next session of the conference.

Hope was expressed in some government circles that the Jewish agency might reconsider and send delegates to the conference. Informed quarters close to the agency, however, said no reply had been received from the government to the agency's offer to participate in the discussions under "a certain formula."

"The next move is with the government," an agency spokesman said.

Rain and Crops in Britain

Britain's people who gave so much of their substance in products of the soil to help the cause of overrun Europe in the days of the war and who recently rose to the emergency of the shortage of foodstuffs on the Continent where millions have been hungry and gave freely of what she had, has found in a year when the need of good crops is so important, that nature is revelling in deluging the fields with rain. In their anxiety and need, Britons turned to the comfort and hope of religion and to the efficacy of prayer for sunshine and fair weather. That their prayers may be answered will be the wish of the peoples of other lands, particularly those who have known what shortage of food means.

Observers paint a rather dark picture of the damage caused by rain to the British crops. There are fears that it will have a serious effect upon the supplies of many kinds of food. Grain stands in water in many areas, or may be past use because the rains have delayed harvesting at the proper time.

Fortunately in Canada the weather conditions have been generally propitious, though in parts there has been felt a need of rain. However the crops are being harvested and the grains are making a good showing. In the United States crops are excellent. These facts from the New World should give encouragement that though conditions in Britain may have militated against largest harvests, the riches of the western nations in grains and other produce will help out those who have not been so fortunate in their harvesting this year.

Faster Still and Faster

With a new record set up of an average of 616 miles an hour Saturday, the high speed team of the R.A.F., Group Captain E. M. Donaldson and Squadron Leader William A. Waterton of Edmonton, may make another attempt at the world record by setting their aim at 630 miles an hour in their Gloster Meteor jet-aircraft.

The new record is ten miles above the speed set in November last.

How much faster can planes soon fly? That is problematical, but Air Marshal Sir James Robb made the statement after Saturday's runs that it might be some time before there would be another great jump in the top speed of planes.

616 miles an hour is a speed of over ten miles a minute — fast for this day and far excelling speed of not so long ago.

Man's conquest of the air has been one of the marvels of this age. People are taking this marvel quietly, so accustomed have they become to seeing speed records set and new achievements attained. The world waited many thousands of years for this development but once the first great step was taken when man found he could actually fly, the development has been amazing in not only a generation but in the past decade which has seen the plane furthered by intense development in knowledge of the laws of aviation and of mechanical perfection.

New Wealth in Peat

Britain is looking into what may become a big new industry — her peat beds. The British Isles have known of peat for generations. In Ireland the bogs have become proverbial, occupying one seventh of the area of the country. In Canada a few years after the First World War during a coal shortage, peat was dug out and dried in quantity and sold across the Dominion as a substitute fuel for a time.

The Second World War period brought to light extensive peat beds in the United Kingdom. The discovery came about as the result of an investigation undertaken by the British Department of Scientific and Industrial Research to find a substitute for a special wax, hitherto obtainable only from Germany. The properties of this wax, its hardness and high melting point, make it suitable for use in the making of many polishes and carbon paper, and its dielectric properties make it important as an insulating material. Now it has been discovered that peat is relatively rich in this and other forms of hard ester waxes; from three per cent to twelve per cent of the dry substance can be recovered as crude wax. The extraxtion of the wax does not prevent the use of the peat as fuel either in powdered form to provide power on the site or made into briquettes for use like coal.

The peat deposits in the United Kingdom are considerable and it is likely that peat wax will be closely studied to determine whether it might have industrial applications which would justify its recovery.

A Story of Two Ships

When outfitters at the Clydebank yards of John Brown & Co. heard in April, 1940, that the unfinished Queen Elizabeth was to make a dash across the Atlantic for American waters they rushed aboard the last of thousands of tons of furnishings for staterooms, public rooms and officer quarters. During the war years this furniture, packed in crates and storage boxes, has been stowed ashore in New York, San Francisco, Australian warehouses and hiding places in the New Hebrides and Ceylon, wherever she went at the call of duty. This week, Cunard White Star Line announces workmen at Southampton are unboxing the furnishings and installing them aboard for the "maiden" voyage six years delayed.

For the past six months, as shipping requirements relaxed, small consignments of the furniture have been placed aboard England-bound vessels in scattered and far corners of the world, and in Southampton it was collected, checked against a sheaf of manifests and stored for the 83,672-ton liner's real debut as a commercial liner, now scheduled to begin Oct. 16. With a few exceptions the entire lot was intact, and the fast Queen — she is expected to wrest speed honors from her sister ship, Queen Mary — will be outfitted with luxurious equipment that today cannot be had.

It was a fine foresight, of a quality not duplicated, unfortunately, when this country's premier liner, America, went into war duty. Her store of irreplaceable paintings, furniture and draperies is almost wholly lost, scattered thoughtlessly in far corners of the world. Some paintings turned up the other day in an Army officers' club on Long Island. Pieces of costly furniture were seen in a Navy club in Espiritu Santos, and others in a club in Brooklyn. The America, nearing the end of her reconversion, is also coming out anew in October, and the difficult assembling of furnishings suitable to her queenly stature added appreciably to the high cost of reconditioning.

Newspaper Facts

Joseph Pulitzer once said: "Our Republic (U.S.) and its press will rise and fall together. The power to mould the future of the Republic is in the hands of journalists of future generations."

There are occasions when we find ourselves envying the lot of woman. She can, for example, call her hairdresser a week or so in advance, make an appointment for a definite time, and with little or no loss of time, have her needs attended to. On the other hand, mere man has to sit and wait his turn in the barber shop, chaffing and fretting as he loses precious time. Wonder how a barber would make out if he booked haircuts, shaves, etc., by appointment, says Winchester Press.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

"OUTA BOUNDS!"

I have heard the thousands booing
when the umpire calls a strike,
Or he makes a close decision which the local fans don't like.
There's a note of glee derisive in the jeering of the throng
When a football team is losing to another much too strong.
But, there's nothing quite so gleeful in the list of human sounds
As the caddie's intonation when he's calling: "Outa bounds!"

I have heard it through the springtime and the summer and the fall,
And for absolute derision I would choose that caddie call.
It has bitterness and malice and disgust; and, am I right,
If he doesn't like his player it is filled with pure delight?
He makes up for all he's suffered on a dozen earlier rounds
As he shouts with inward pleasure, the announcement: "Outa bounds!"

There are folks who turn to laughter
when a proud man takes a fall.
Let a lady lose her bonnet and it's fun for one and all.
At another man's misfortune many lookers-on will grin.
At the lake there's always laughter
when somebody tumbles in.
But for unconcealed derision, when his golf ball leaves the grounds,
Give me any player's caddie when he's shouting: "Outa bounds!"

Gold Production Of Half Billion Yearly Urged

Val D'Or, Que., Sept. 10 (CP)—Rodney Adamson, Progressive Conservative member of parliament for York West, told a political rally here Saturday night that the gold for which the Canadian gold mining industry must aim in the first decade after the war, is an annual gold production of $500,000,000. Present production is around $100,000,000.

Mr. Adamson, addressing some 500 persons at a rally in favor of Hector E. Belec, Progressive candidate in the Sept. 16 Pontiac by-election, said: "The ore is there. The gold is there. All that is needed is the production."

"This is the problem facing Canada today with our tremendously-increased bonded debt and our enormously-increased expenditures for social services. We must increase our national income to a corresponding degree or we will have to increase our taxation or default on our national obligations.

"By this I mean pay the holders of Victory Bonds in a currency of doubtful purchasing power," he said.

Mr. Adamson said the most fundamental gauge of real wealth is gold and the government "has done everything possible to destroy the gold-mining industry."

"The gold mines of western Quebec have an average or grade of about $6.50 per ton from which an average profit of 65 cents was won. This was then the Canadian mint paid $38.50 per ounce for gold. Now the costs of mining have gone down and no juggling with the controlled rates of exchange will bring down the cost of mining. Only production, greatly increased production will do this."

Mr. Adamson said practically the entire Malartic area mines find it impossible to produce at $35 an ounce, the present price.

He charged that the department of finance claimed there was no free market or a very small one for Canadian currency but that he was informed by a New York financial firm that about $600,000,000 in Canadian exchange is being traded annually in a New York free market.

Incidents Cited Not Humorous To Council Members

Lake Success, N.Y., Sept. 10. (CP)—Arguments in the United Nations Security Council over the Ukrainian protest against alleged Greek misdeeds sometimes approached the "yes you did—no I didn't" disputes of the school yard, but it was not funny.

If it was necessary to add a ludricous touch, that was done when the Ukrainian and Greek representatives presented written details of "specific" cases.

These involved such incidents as the suspicious disappearances of the odd mule and ox along the Greece-Albanian border, the matter of painting border markers, and pranks among the guards along the frontier. Numerous such accounts were read by the council at its weekend private meetings at which it is planned to prepare a report for the General Assembly, but they were not funny to the men charged with keeping the world's peace.

Nor was it funny when, during the debate on this subject, the grim-visaged Soviet delegate, Andrei Gromyko, over and over, and in three languages, told the Council with all the gravity of making a historic statement that because a thing was distasteful to the British delegation it was not necessarily unacceptable to the Council.

Nor when, a little later, a delegate suggested to Mr. Gromyko that merely because he wanted a certain decision taken was not substantive argument why it should be done, and Mr. Gromyko had no answer.

Nor when shaggy headed Dmitri Manuilski, old time Communist and right hand of Marshal Stalin, presenting the Ukrainian protest, declared the truism that "criticism is always unpleasant to those against whom it is directed."

Nor when the lean, aristocratic Sir Alexander Cadogan of Britain, wearied and alarmed by the nearly seven hours of repetitive oratory from the Ukrainian and Greek spokesmen, used 12 1-2 minutes to describe the protest as "unbridled propaganda" of a type likely to bring the Council into disrepute and defeat the objects of the United Nations charter.

There have been 99 hours of debate since the Council started sessions in the United States last March. Half has been used by the Soviet delegates and 40 per cent of that time has been occupied by translations.

GRANDMOTHER TO CARE FOR SOLE SURVIVOR

Elko, Nev., Sept. 10—(AP) — John D. Brisco of New York arrived Saturday to claim his nephew, three-year-old Peter Link, only survivor of a plane crash that killed 21 persons early Thursday. Brisco brought greetings from the child's grandmother, Mrs. Ellen Brisco of Brooklyn, who said "with the help of God" she would care for the orphan.

TONSILS, INFANTILE PARALYSIS AND RABIPHOBIA

A correspondent from another city writes:

We lost a son and a nephew in an epidemic of infantile paralysis. Each had had his tonsils removed a few months before. Our daughter, too, was sent to the hospital at the time with a temperature of 104 (more about that later) but because her reaction to all polio tests was negative the doctors decided her case was tonsillitis. Thank goodness, she had her tonsils.

Concurrent with the infantile paralysis epidemic there was an epidemic of rabies in dogs and small wild animals. Our children had been at the beach and we thought perhaps small parasites that had bitten rabid animals had bitten the children. . . .

Some of the children with tonsils vomitted or were nauseated, but only children without tonsils died.

I recall that doctors observed that in one metropolitan epidemic only children whose parents had neglected having the tonsils out escaped, while most of the victims had had their tonsils removed.

The popularity of tonsillectomy perhaps explains why poliomyelitis is more prevalent or more dangerous here than in other parts of the civilized world. (Signed ———)

The correspondent's observation concerning the relation between the tonsil atrocity and infantile paralysis is sound enough. Even the health department politician in some communities now publish mild cautions against "unnecessary tonsil operations" when poliomyelitis is epidemic.

The correspondent's notion that children at the beach may have been bitten by parasites (bugs, fleas, lice or flies) that had bitten rabid animals and so been inoculated or infected with something or other—from the letter I can't make out whether it would be infantile paralysis, rabies or something else, seems far-fetched. There is good reason to suspect that the virus or infection of infantile paralysis may be carried by ordinary house flies, on their feet, and of course by any other insects, parasites or domestic animals, fowls, birds or other pets such as cats and dogs that may come in contact with refuse, excrement or infected persons and then in contact with a susceptible child.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Plants in Bedroom

I apologize if, as I suppose, you have already answered this question—but I am writing a story in which the climax revolves around the question. Do plants exhale carbon dioxide at night? (L. L. B.)

Answer— Growing plants absorb carbon dioxide, give off oxygen. This, however, is of no significance so far as the purity of the air in a room may be concerned. Growing plants give off desirable water vapor or moisture, as do the porous pots, and this is generally desirable in sickroom or bedroom during the season of artificial heating.

Yankee Stomach

Husband complains of stomach trouble, but doctor cannot find a thing wrong. We're wondering about "Yankee Stomach". (Mrs. M. W.)

Answer — Functionad disturbance characterized by hyperacidity, hunger pain, heartburn, eructations, waterbrush, uneasiness or fullness after eating, bloating by gas, general impatience or irritability—that's what I call "Yankee Stomach". Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (not with clipping) for pamphlet on "Yankee Stomach".

Saireygamping

Practical nurse told me not to press out a patient's nightgown or undies because the ironing removes the electricity the clothes have taken up while hanging out in the fresh air. (Mrs.G. H.)

Answer—That's just imagi-notion. Iron 'em or not, as the patient prefers.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How were the Utah pioneers saved by gulls?

The first Mormon settlers under the leadership of Brigham Young arrived in Great Salt Lake valley in July, 1847, and the next spring they sowed several hundred acres of wheat. In May vast hordes of "crickets" or flightless grasshoppers appeared in the fields and began to devour every leaf and blade of the grain.

The settlers turned out en masse; men, women and children, to combat the pest, but their efforts to beat back the devouring host were in vain. They were 800 miles from the nearest settlement, all their seed had been planted, and their food supply for the coming winter was threatened with destruction. Many of them, overcome with despair and exhaustion, fell upon the ground and prayed frantically for help.

Suddenly, according to the Mormon chroniclers, a remarkable thing happened. Myriads of gulls emerged from the islands on the lake and setting down upon the fields, began to gorge themselves with the insects. Eye-witnesses testified that the birds continued to swallow the insects after their stomachs were full and great piles of the insects that had been swallowed and regurgitated were later found on the edges of ditches. The gulls kept up their attack on the pests for three days. Thus, "thanks to the beneficial gluttony of the gulls, those beautiful birds of a beautiful God," as Bingham expressed it long afterward, a part of the wheat crop was snatched from destruction and the pioneers were saved from threatened starvation.

The Mormon cricket (Anabrus simplex Hald) is really not a cricket at all but a long-horned, flightless grasshopper or locust. It was called a cricket because it cannot fly. The adults are shiny black in color, but the young have longitudinal, gray-colored stripes until after their last molt. A related species known as the Coulee cricket is common in western Oregon and Washington. The Indians of that region used to gather these large black grasshoppers in great numbers and store them for food in winter. Mormon and Coulee crickets hatch on the hills and mountains and when fully grown frequently form into dense hordes and descend upon the lowlands. They are still a serious pest and the government spends large sums every year to control them in several western states.

The species of white and gray sea gull responsible for the destruction of the plague of Mormon crickets in 1848 is the California gull, a variety or subspecies of the Franklin gull (Larus franklini), which inhabits the interior of North America in summer and breeds in marshes and on islands in lakes and rivers. The California gull, which breeds on the islands in Great Salt Lake is common throughout the valley during the summer. These beautiful, graceful, gregarious, almost wholly beneficial birds, which migrate to the Pacific when cold weather restricts their food supply, are looked upon as harbingers of spring. The Mormons regard them as almost sacred birds, protect them by law and even erected a monument to commemorate their service to the Utah pioneers.

Lott Hell Drivers Main Feature On First Day of Belleville Fair

The "Lucky" Lott Hell Drivers, ranked as one of the greatest auto thrill shows, have been contracted to appear at the Belleville Fair this year. The Hell Drivers are slated to appear on Monday, Sept. 23, Secretary Erle Denyes announced today.

The announcement was made following a conference with the manager of the "Lucky" Lott Hell Drivers unit which will appear here. Marcel Balau, who is a nationally known Canadian radio commentator and M.C., will handle the "mike" in the description of the fast moving events of the 12 event program of thrills, spills and action.

The sensational feats of the Hell Drivers have won return engagements for such important expositions and circuses playing State Fairs and events held in New York at the Polo Grounds, home of the Giants; Soldier Field, Chicago; The Coliseum, Los Angeles, California; The Orange Bowl, Miami, Florida; and annual tours, of South, Central and North America, Cuba and Mexico.

Several Daring Drivers

Unlike other thrill shows that feature one driver, the Hell Drivers have an array of fine test pilots all taken from the crop of returning service men of World War II, all trained personally by the master of them all, "Lucky" Lott, who last Fall returned from the European Theatre of war as a B-24 Bomber Pilot. These men include John Langford, of Corydon, Iowa; Mac Kelly, of Celina, Ohio, of the Marine Corp and he saw action in the South Pacific; Don "Red" Mason of Tipp City, Ohio; Jimmie Cook, of Houston, Texas; Jack Conway suffered injury without even leaving the States, at a Navy base in Conn., consequently he is among the "Lucky" Lott Hell Drivers, as being an ex-service man. All of these men and several others will be among the personnel of the Hell Drivers aggregation as it roars into action two performances on Sept. 23 only.

Because of the many daring stunts, naturally more drivers are required for the execution of these death-defying feats. Each driver has at least two specialties for which he trains daily.

Hair-raising Stunts

The spine tingling program of the Hell Drivers will last an hour and a half, offering a variety of the most dangerous and the most daring stunts ever attempted by automobile daredevils. Such stunts of this 12 event program will include the hazardous "Dive Bomber Crash", regarded as one of the most dangerous automobile stunts; the catapulting of a stock model automobile through the air and smashing and crashing it through a house of solid board lumber previously set afire after being saturated with gasoline; the brickwall crash, wherein one of these neck riskers will climb into an antique jallopy that has been claimed unsafe for the highway, race it around the speedway until he has the necessary momentum to send it tearing through a solid brick wall four feet thick; the crash rolling of an old car right in front of the grand stand.

Many new stunts have been added to this war time thrill show since its introduction into this section of the country after eight years of operations on the west coast and several new stunts may be tried right here at the Belleville fair for the first time.

Due to its popularity, the "Lucky" Lott Hell Drivers show can only perform two times for one day only and that day will be known as "Lucky" Lott Hell Drivers Day.

"TEXTILES?" says Mrs Botts, "I Need Sheets!"

. . . and her husband needs shirts! And the children need underwear!

Why is there still a shortage?

Part of the answer is that Canadians have more money to spend. Then, too, there are the returned service men, many of them starting or re-establishing homes of their own.

Another part of the answer is that many Canadian industries which use cotton in their products are again gathering momentum on civilian supplies and are building up their working inventories. Meanwhile our 10,000 workers are doing their utmost to catch up on both civilian and industrial demands.

As long as the present tremendous demands and relative shortages continue, we shall go on distributing our products on a quota basis.

Veil of Secrecy Surrounds Theft Of $100,000

Vancouver, Sept. 10—(CP) — Police and postal officials Monday maintained a veil of secrecy around theft of a Victoria-bound mail bag reported to have contained $100,000.

The bag and most of its contents were recovered after a two-day police hunt, but authorities refused to disclose further details until investigation is completed.

It disappeared while en route from Vancouver to Victoria last Tuesday, but police here said that the theft was not discovered until Thursday when R.C.M.P. officials were called to assist postal investigators.

The rich money package was mailed here to a Victoria bank and was said to be for the cash wickets at Willows race track there, but whether it was stolen here or in Victoria could not be confirmed.

"There is no direct confirmation that the money ever was placed on board the coastal steamer for Victoria," said Col. A. T. Belcher, R.C.M.P. superintendent directing the police investigation.

At Victoria, postal officials refused to discuss the robbery, saying it was under investigation of Vancouver authorities.

It was indicated the bag contained other registered mail of unknown value.

Errol Flynn's Wife Too Much for Guest Crew

Los Angeles, Sept. 10 (AP)— Several crew members aboard Errol Flynn's auxiliary schooner, Zaca, jumped ship when it put into Acapulco, Mexico, and one of them, Artist John Decker, has returned home with a story that the movie actor's wife, the former Nora Eddington, is in charge of the vessel

"After Nora got her sea legs she kinda took over things, sort of like a Captain Bligh," said Decker, who went along on the Mexican cruise to paint.

"It's getting to be the hurricane season off the Mexican coast now, you know. After all, we were only guest crew members, so a bunch of us just up and left for home. It was a kind of mutiny against our lovely captain, we called it."

Flynn is filming a picture during the expedition.

"We found lots of fish," said the artist. "One of the new ones— a sort of herring——we named for Nora".

Circus Lion Saves Life of His Trainer

Among the group of educated African black-maned lions presented by the world famous Clyde Beatty in this season's performances of the big Clyde Beatty Railroad circus, coming to Belleville, one day only, this Thursday, Sept. 12, at the Station and Cemetery Street grounds, are several star workers, but Clyde's favorite is Louie, whose specialty is long distance leaping.

Louie is the noted trainer's friend because Louie once saved Clyde's life. A few years ago when Clyde was breaking in a new group of lions, and was hard at work on a barrel rolling lion, one of the tigers leaped from his high pedestal onto Beatty's back. The trainer was knocked across the arena, and, as he fell, the lion shifted his attack, sinking his teeth into Beatty's arm.

Then it was that Louie went into action. He leaped from his pedestal onto the attacking beast. Clyde wrenching his mangled arm free, was raked badly in the chest by the lion's claws as it turned on its new enemy. Another tiger leaped into the fray, and Beatty had to separate the battling trio before he could go to a physician. The trainer was in the hospital several months.

Fearless Clyde Beatty is universally acknowledged to be the world's greatest trainer of wild animals. His breath-taking exhibition in which he battles forty of the most ferocious brutes that breathe, lions and tigers of opposite sexes, is the feature of the Clyde Beatty Railroad Circus. Performances will be given at 2.30 and 8 p.m., with doors to the menagerie and horse fair opening at 1:30 and 7 o'clock.

Reserved seat tickets including general admission, on sale Circus Day, 10 a.m., till 5 p.m., at Pauley Drug Store.

HUSBAND HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

Detroit, Sept. 10 — (AP) — Walter Herzfeld, 68, was held on a charge of murder after his wife of 43 years, Minnie, 64, was shot to death Saturday as she prepared breakfast. Police said Herzfeld told them his wife threw a milk bottle at him and seized a knife during a quarrel over money matters.

Eight Accidental Deaths Recorded During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)—

Automobile accidents, one case of over exertion, a gun accident and a fight caused eight accidental deaths in Eastern Canada during the week-end. Car accidents accounted for five.

Near Windsor, two sisters, Myrtle and Margaret Chisholm, were killed when their automobile hit a Canadian Pacific Railways passenger train.

At Oshawa, Steve Melmychuk died in hospital from injuries which police said he suffered in a fight while at Brantford. 72-year-old John A. Haven's body was found in a barn and doctors said he died from having over exerted himself chasing livestock. Near Maniwaki, Ont., 14-year-old Napoleon Levelea was killed by the accidental discharge of a companion's gun while duck hunting..

Injuries suffered in traffic accidents took the lives of Sanford Baker, 70, in St. Thomas, five-year-old Frederick James at Guelph and 19-year-old Bruce Baylis at Toronto.

Denial Given Rumor Of Princess' Romance

London, September 9—(AP)— Rumors of a romance between Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip of Greece spread in Britain Sunday despite official denials, and Britons began sizing up the handsome young Royal Navy officer as a potential Prince Consort, for Britain's next Queen.

Court circles said the Prince was one of Elizabeth's "circle of friends," and now a guest of the Royal Family at Balmoral Castle in Scotland. But they denied that he and the 20-year-old heiress presumptive were engaged to marry.

A flood of rumors was started by the London Star's report Saturday of an impending announcement of an engagement, but Sir Alan Lascelles, private secretary to the King, issued a statement declaring:

"Princess Elizabeth is not engaged to be married. The report published is incorrect."

The Star, saying the engagement would be announced at a "time considered suitable by the King and his advisers," added:— "Until then Buckingham Palace will continue officially to know nothing of the romance."

Prince Philip, a cousin of Greek King George II, is 25 and a lieutenant in the Royal Navy.

My Rheumatic Pains Have Practically Left Me"

Here is a saline treatment for the relief of rheumatic pains, which helped this Liverpool woman so much, that she wrote this letter of thanks:—

"For years I have suffered from rheumatic pains. My general health was gradually failing too, when I was given the tip to try Kruschen Salts. I got a small bottle and after taking it for about a week, the pain, which had often kept me awake at night, gradually subsided. Now—when I am on my second bottle—my health has improved and the rheumatic pain is negligible."—Mrs. H. H.—Liverpool

After obtaining relief from the first bottle of Kruschen, you can imagine how hopefully Mrs. H. H. started on the second. So follow her example if rheumatic pains are bothering you. Start taking the Kruschen saline treatment at once and continue until you give it a fair chance to help you. Like Mrs. H. H. you should soon feel improvement, because Kruschen is a combination of several mineral salts which aid the organs of elimination and in this way leads toward improvement in health and ease from rheumatic pains. Thousands have been benefited by taking Kruschen. Give it a trial in your own case.

Kruschen is 25c. and 75c. at all drug stores.

THE PROVINCE OF PROMISE...

ONTARIO'S growing gold . . . her largest cash crop . . . is tobacco. Its twenty-year development, from nothing to really-something, has been due almost entirely to the phenomenal increase in flue-cured tobacco—the most valuable of the three types grown here. The others are burley and dark-leaf. This year, a fourth type, cigar leaf—one thousand acres of it—opens rich, new Ontario possibilities. Tobacco is a delicate plant and a demanding one, needing utmost watchfulness and even handmade encouragement during its complicated cure. Its cultivation means back-breaking, short-season work with high rewards for all concerned.

Published by THE BREWING INDUSTRY (ONTARIO)

A CORNER ON TOBACCO

The annual Ontario production of tobacco is about 97,000,000 pounds—its value around $30,000,000. In the southwest corner of the province, some 90,000 acres are planted to it and the Ontario crop represents nine-tenths of the Dominion yield. 85% of this is high-grade flue-cured—the less-carefully-treated burley and dark-leaf making up the rest. It is an industry in which a few experts prepare the scene for a sudden inrush by thousands of workers in the crucial harvest weeks.

Redcliffe, district director, poured tea and Mrs. A. Consaul and Mrs. Whitney served the refreshments. Thanks on behalf of the war brides was expressed by Mrs. Gordon Way, the first war bride to come here from England.

NO MORE KISSING AT WEDDINGS IN CHURCH AT BATAVIA

Batavia, Ill., Sept. 10 —AP)—There'll be no more kissing at a Batavia church during weddings, the pastor ordered yesterday, because it causes "giggles and guffaws." He recommended that the bride and groom hold hands. "Kissing in public is never in good taste," said Rev. Walter Schlie of Emmanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church in a statement to the congregation.

WEDDINGS

WARREN—MULLETT

At a double ring ceremony by candelight on Sept. 6, at 7.30 o'clock, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Windsor, the Rev. Dr. H. M. Paulin united in marriage, Miss Fleda Helen Mullett, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Mullet of Moira, and Mr. Robert Ellis Warren, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Warren, of Wescott Road.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white embossed organza featuring a sweetheart neckline and a full skirt which emphasized the fitted waist. The long-torso bodice was fastened with a row of tiny buttons and the sleeves extended into points over her hands. She wore a Queen Victoria fingertip veil and carried a cascade bouquet of Joanna Hill roses.

Miss Doris Mullett, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, wore a pale blue gown, the bodice of satin, styled with elbow-length sleeves, and the full skirt of sheer crepe. Miss Marjorie Bennett, as bridesmaid, wore a yellow embossed satin gown fashioned with a sweetheart neckline puffed sleeves and a full skirt.

Miss Margaret Warren, sister of the bridegroom, as junior bridesmaid, wore a Nile green organza gown fashioned with a full skirt inset with brocaded panels. The attendants wore identical headdresses of matching net and carried fans of pink, blue, green and yellow gladioli and asters. Little Marilyn Keller, as flower girl, wore a pink net-over-taffeta dress with a matching bonnet. She carried a nosegay of flowers similar to the bridesmaids'.

Mr. Russell Warren was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Mr. Edmund Leworthy, cousin of the bride, and Mr. William Warren, brother of the bridegroom. Mr. William Rose played the wedding music, and Mrs. Keith Magrath sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony and "O Promise Me" during the signing of the register.

Mrs. Mullett chose for her daughter's wedding a mauve printed jersey dress with black accessories and Talisman roses. Mrs. Warren, mother of the bridegroom, chose a navy dress trimmed with gold studding, and matching accessories and red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren left later on a motor trip east, where they will attend a reception at the home of the bride's parents in Moira. For travelling, the bride wore a simple frock of blue jersey with a gray flannel three-quarter-length topper, matching accessories and red roses.

They will reside on Walter Road.—Windsor Daily Star.

O'NEILL—MOELAND

Marmora. — Gertrude Myra Moeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Moeland, Musgrave Harbor, Newfoundland, became the bride of Norman S. O'Neill, son of Mr. and Mrs. George O'Neill, Deloro, on August 24, in Runneymede United Church, Toronto. The Rev. Mr. Bishop officiated.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Norman Whitney, the bride wore a white satin gown, cut on princess lines, with tulle neckline and long pointed sleeves, white satin halo headdress with fingertip veil.. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Norma Morrell, her only attendant, wore a gown of pink taffeta with halo hat of flowers and shoulder length pink veil, and carried an old-fashioned nosegay.

Mr. John O'Neill, brother of the groom, was best man.

After the wedding Mrs. Morrell received the guests, wearing turquoise blue with pink roses and fern corsage. The groom's mother wore hunter's green with black accessories and corsage of mixed flowers. For the wedding trip the bride changed to a Madonna blue suit and hat with white accessories.

LONG—McGARVEY

Marmora. — A pretty wedding took place at the Pentecostal Church, Marmora, at three p.m., on Saturday, September 7, when Rev. Oliver MacPherson united in marriage Verna Ann McGarvey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard McGarvey, of Marmora, and Cecil Robert Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Long, of Malone. The church was tastefully decorated with gladioli and fern and a variety of Autumn flowers. Wedding music was played by Mrs. Wesley Cuddy, cousin of the bride. During the signing of the register, Mrs. O. MacPherson sang "I Love You Truly".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floorlength gown of white satin and a fingertip veil with coronet shaped headdress. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. She was attended by her sister, Jeana, as bridesmaid, who was attired in blue sheer, with blue fingertip veil. Her bouquet was of mixed gladioli.

William Long, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Eldon and William McGarvey, brother and cousin of the bride.

Later, a reception and buffet luncheon were held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received, wearing a blue tailored suit and navy blue hat edged with white. She wore corsage of sweetpeas. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a dress of turquoise blue crepe, navy blue hat and corsage of sweetpeas. The drawing room was prettily decorated with pink and white streamers and white wedding bells. The couple were the recipients of many useful and attractive gifts.

For a trip to Ottawa and points east, the bride chose a dress of powder blue jersey with matching coat and accessories. They will take up residence in Marmora.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barriuso, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Van Dusen and Mr. Carleton Van Dusen, Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Humphrey, Dearborn, Mich.; Mr. Mr. and Mrs. John Burkitt, Mr. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Burkitt, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moore, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Van Dusen and family ,Madoc; Mr. and Mrs. W. YOUNIE—GRILLS

Allan Mills.—On Monday, September 2, Gladys Luella Grills, Reg.N., eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grills, became the bride of Cecil Alexander Younie, of Howick, Quebec, in the Tabernacle United Church, English Line, Seymour. The church was decorated with ferns, pink, white and mauve gladioli. Rev. P. L. Lambert performed the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. Theodore Reid, was a lovely figure in her floor-length gown of fine white sheer over satin, cut on princess lines, with lace panels and train, and a three-quarter veil with halo of pearls. . She carried a cascade bouquet of Sweetheart roses. Miss Mary Grills, sister of the bride, wearing a floor-length gown of pink sheer and veil to match and carrying pink roses, was her sister's bridesmaid.

Mr. Kenneth Younie, brother of the groom, was groomsman and the ushers were Douglas Grills, Toronto, and Donald Greig, Howick, Quebec.

Miss Lorraine Grills, sister of the bride, sang "O Perfect Love". Miss Dorothy Grills, cousin of the bride, sang "When the Organ Played O Promise Me", during the signing of the register.

A reception was held at the Villa Trent, Campbellford, where Mrs. Harry Grills, mother of the bride, received the guests, wearing a dahlia dress with grey and black accessories and corsage of yellow roses, and Mrs. Younie, mother of the groom, was attired in black dress and black accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

For travelling the bride donned a turquoise suit with brown accessories. Following a honeymoon in Toronto, St. Catharines, London and Niagara, the couple will reside at Howick, Quebec.

The bride is a graduate of the Belleville General Hospital. The serviteurs were four classmates.

HENDERSON—WHYTOCK

Madoc. (Special.)— After lengthy service overseas as a nursing sister in the R.C.A.M.C., Annie Jean Whytock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Whytock, Madoc, became the bride of Hedley Vicars Henderson, Jr., West Bathurst, N.B., son of Mr. and Mrs. Hedley V. Henderson, on Saturday, September 7, at 2 pm. The groom also served overseas with the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. Poulter, in the home of the bride's parents, and wedding music was played by Mrs. Irene Crawford. Miss Aileen Tanner, soloist, sang "Until" and "I'll Walk Beside You", prior to the ceremony and "Because', during the signing of the register. The ceremony was performed before a bank of multi-colored gladioli and ferns.

Given in marriage by her father ,the bride was charming in a brown dressmaker suit with pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses with white heather sent from Scotland. She was attended by Miss Elizabeth Rathwell, who wore a suit of hunter green with brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mr. Hugh Chalmers, Montreal, was groomsman.

The wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. F. E.. Brown and Mrs. Brown, where the brides mother received in a black crepe ensemble with white embroidery and a corsage of red roses.

Following the wedding trip through Ontario, Mr. and Mrs. Henderson will take up residence in Kingston.

LOMAS—WILSON

Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, decorated with gladioli and ferns, was the setting for one of the prettiest weddings of the season, Saturday, September 7th, when Rev. D. C. Amos joined in marriage Bessie Lorene Wilson, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Edward Wilson, and Mrs. George Edward Wilson, ward Lomas, only son of Mr. and Mountain View, and Leonard Ed- The wedding music was played by Mr. Alec Gordon, and the vocalist, Miss Shirley Wilson, sister of the bride, sang "At Dawning".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin with fitted bodice, lace yoke and peplum, and bouffant skirt sweeping into a long train, the long sleeves coming to points over the wrists. Her full-length tulle veil was arranged from a halo embroidered in seed pearls and she carried a large cascade bouquet of red roses and white gladioli.

Miss Barbara Wilson was her sister's bridesmaid, gowned in lime green crepe styled similar to the bride's with matching headdress and full length gloves. She carried a cascade bouquet of white and mauve gladioli. Miss Linda Kempt, of Lakefield, niece of the bride, was flower girl, wearing a floor-length gown of lilac sheer with flowered headdress and carrying an old-fashioned nosegay of sweetpeas and asters

Mr. Arthur Jeffery, Toronto, attended the groom, and the ushers were Mr. Aubrey Wilson, Peterborough, and Mr. Webster Wilson, Belleville, brothers of the bride

Guests were received at the bride's home, Mountain View, Mrs. Wilson receiving in mauve crepe, corsage of cream roses, and black accessories, and Mrs. Lomas in grey crepe with corsage of pink roses and black accessories. The serviteurs were the Misses Alberta Vermilyea, Sybil Walker, Pauline Sprague, June Woodbeck, Ilene Wilson and Betty Wingett.

For travelling the bride chose a lightweight suit in aqua ice shade, with black accessories.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa, Fergus, Peterborough and London.

ALLAN MILLS

Friends Honor Bride and Groom

Allan Mills—On Friday evening over one hundred friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McKeown in honor of Mr. Ralph McKeown and his bride, from overseas.

Mr. Allan McComb acted as chairman and Mr. W. J. Barlow read the address, followed by addresses by Rev. J. R. Holden, J. F. Baker, W. J. Barlow, Dave Wellman, Ken Bain and Rev. and Mrs. Brownlie, Mrs. J. F. Baker and Mrs. S. Morton, to which the bride and groom graciously replied.

The beautiful gifts testify the high regard in which the bride and groom are held in this community. Refreshments were served by the ladies and dancing was enjoyed

Bowling Party Held By McIntosh Staff

On Monday evening, the Y.M.C.A. was the scene of a bowling party sponsored by the staff of McIntosh Bros., followed by a sumptuous banquet held on the second floor of the store.

The party was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Beecher Doolittle on the occasion of their fortieth wedding anniversary and of Miss Rosalyn Hart, popular member of the staff, on her anniversary of many years of faithful service.

During the course of the evening, a presentation of a leather chair was made to Mr. and Mrs. Doolittle from the staff and a substantial cheque to Miss Hart from the firm. The honored guests made suitable replies in a most gracious manner. Miss Eliza Bell, a guest artist, delighted the staff with her humorous readings.

BRIDGE STREET W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Bridge Street United Church, was held in the ladies' parlors, on Friday at three p.m. Mrs. Davidson presided. The ladies were saddened by the announcement that Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn had just passed away. Mrs. O'Flynn had been for many years a faithful member of the Society. Silent prayer was offered.

Announcement was made that the ladies were to serve luncheon for the presbyterial executive meeting in the church on Monday.

The Mission Circle announced that they were planning to give a tea after the regular October meeting of the Society.

Mrs. Maguire and her group were in charge of the program. Mrs. Amos took the Devotional period.

Mrs. Broad gave an interesting account of the meetings and personnel of the 'School for Leaders' held at Whitby, Aug. 26-30. Mrs. Broad mentioned a very fine poster which was made by Mrs. Davidson and used at the 'School'.

Mrs. Davidson spoke of the new Study Book for this year, 'India at its Threshold' by Dr. Winifred Bryce.

Mrs. Farnsworth introduced the speaker of the afternoon, a friend of long-standing, Mrs. Trumpour of Cannifton, secretary of Christian Stewardship and Finance of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Mrs. Trumpour spoke on Christian Stewardship and made a plea that all use the talents they possess; each one can give of his own personality.

Mrs. Brown sang very pleasingly the solo "I Will Give You Rest". Mrs. Guthridge accompanied her on the piano.

Mrs. Ackerman expressed the appreciation of the ladies for Mrs. Trumpour's earnest address and also for Mrs. Brown's lovely solo.

Mrs. Maguire thanked Mrs. Amos for taking charge of the Devotional and also thanked Mrs. Davidson for coming fifty miles for the meeting.

Mrs. Maguire asked the ladies to stay for tea which was being served by Mrs. Moore, assistant group leader.

ST. PAUL'S LADIES GUILD

Marmora.—With a fair attendance of members the regular monthly meeting of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild was held in the Parish Hall on Thursday evening, the president, Mrs. W. D. Lavender, occupying the chair. The meeting was opened with prayer by the rector, Rev. J. M. Brownlie. Miss Miriam Savage gave the treasurer's report. Although there has been little activity in the Summer months, the revenue has been steadily coming in and the Church Decoration Fund has been increased by donations. It was decided to hold another bake sale in the Legion Room in the Memorial Hall. Parishioners are not being canvassed in the usual way, but will be solicited for contributions as members of the Guild meet them. Letters of appreciation from recipients of fruit baskets, were read. At the conclusion of business the rector gave a talk on the affairs of the General Synod of the Church. The meeting closed with prayer after which refreshments were served.

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

The September meeting of the Marsh Hill W.M.S., was held at the home of Mrs. B. Mitts. The President, Mrs. E. B. Finkle, was in charge of the worship service. Mrs. Bleecker, temperance secretary, gave an interesting reading. Mrs. Bleecker, leader of the Group Three, had the first chapter of the study book, "India at the Threshold". She was assisted by Mrs. Mitts representing India and Mrs. Frank iFnkle representing the church. "What of the future for women in India?" was read by Mrs. Leslie Finkle. After the benediction, Mrs. Mitts served refreshments.

ST. PETER'S W. M. S.

Madoc— The members of St. Peter's Presbyterian W.M.S., Madoc, met at the home of Mrs. John Armstrong for their September meeting. Mrs. F. Curry had charge of the devotional period. The Bible lesson was read by Mrs. Caverly, after which the offering was received and dedicated by Mrs. (Rev.) W. Brown. Mrs. Allan Johnson assisted the leader with the topic for the meeting which was "Looking to the Future of Africa". Mrs. McCaffrey read an article "No resistance to the Lord", and referred to a clipping, "How Little We Know About Africa". A history of the auxiliaries as given at the Presbyterial was read by Miss M. Mackintosh. Mrs. McCaffrey took charge of the business period as the 60th anniversary of the founding of this branch of the W.M.S., is to be held in November, it was decided to combine the thank-offering and this anniversary meeting and the same to be held in mid-November. Regular meeting to be held in October. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. F. Allan in serving afternoon tea.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Caskey, of Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Caskey, of Toronto, visited Mrs. Jas. Caskey recently.

ST. JOHN'S W. M. S.

Tweed —The monthly meeting of St. John's United Church Women's Missionary Society was held in Church parlors on Thursday. Mrs. Lincoln Elliott, president presiding. The meeting opened with hymn and prayer. Mrs. Elliott welcomed Mrs. (Rev.) Sisco back after her long absence through illness and also spoke words of sympathy for the illness of Mrs. Gertrude Way. Mrs. Alfred Davis and Mrs. G. Geraldi. Mrs. Chas. Kerr, secretary, read the minutes of last meeting. District Rally will be held in Tweed some time in October. Mrs. Elliott made a strong appeal for better attendance not only at W.M.S. meetings but for more mothers to attend the Sunday School and bring their children. As India is to be studied this year, the president conducted an India quiz. Three ladies representing Canada, India and the Church, were Mrs. C. Barnett, Mrs. G. Gordon and Mrs. Elliott. Mrs. Gordon gave the story of 'Ananda', who became a great Christian leader because of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Mrs. Elliott told a touching story of a Chinese lady at the 'School for Leaders'. The singing of the new hymn "Prayer to the Heart of Lowly Love" and benediction brought this isteresting meeting to a close.

CHEESE
DEPARTMENT

To the Lady in the Line-up

We know that shopping for almost anything these days can be a headache.

Perhaps you have been disappointed lately when you asked for Chateau Cheese. We feel badly every time you have to do without it. We sincerely want to give you all the Chateau you ask for.

But you see, the production of Canadian cheese (cheddar) has been dropping. And cheddar cheese is needed to make Chateau.

Here's the Reason

This drop is partly due to the scarcity of dairy cattle and partly because there are not enough workers on the farms. In addition, Canada is shipping millions of pounds of cheddar to relieve the critical shortage of food overseas.

On top of everything else, more people are asking for Chateau Cheese than ever before. That rich, tangy Chateau flavor keeps right on making new friends.

We Hope You Understand

All this may give you some idea how difficult things are. And perhaps it will help you understand why your grocer can't always make his Chateau Cheese go 'round.

Meanwhile, we're doing the very best we can. And no matter what happens we make you this promise:—the fine quality, which keeps Chateau Cheese your special favorite, will always be the same.

Score of Reports To be Placed Before Synod

By SHANE MACKAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Sept. 10. (CP)—The 16th General Synod of the Church of England in Canada opened its second week of deliberations Monday with a score of reports, including these of the committees on church re-union and divorce and marriage prominent among matters to be discussed before it prorogues Friday night.

The report of the committee on church union will propose the creation of a joint communion service with the United Church of Canada and the ordination of ministers so that they could conduct the service of either church.

Amendments to the marriage and divorce canons will ask the Synods to approve the marriage in church of "innocent parties" in divorce actions.

Other subjects to be discussed include the establishment of a Public Relations Department, revision of the Prayer Book, amendment of the Anglican declaration of principles, and changes in the Baptismal Service and in Morning and Evening Prayers and the Prayer Book Psalter.

A resolution was passed at Saturday's session expressing appreciation of the work done by Canon A. R. Kelly, Quebec Diocese, R. W. Allin and Canon W. B. Heeney, both of Toronto, and J. P. Bell, of Hamilton, retiring honorary treasurer.

Chairman of the National Laymen's Council, Judge G. W. Morley, of Owen Sound, presented the Council's report which told of efforts to obtain penal reform and to secure adoption of Bible teaching as part of the curriculum in schools throughout the Dominion.

Mrs. M. Moffatt, 58 Rideau St., Kingston, writes: "I've never used a soap that gets clothes cleaner and whiter than EXTRA-SUDSY Super Suds. Yet I find Super Suds so safe. I use it for my colored things and it makes my clothes last longer. Super Suds is a grand soap."

Thank you, Mrs. Moffatt, for your swell letter. You see, Ladies, Super Suds is Concentrated. Super Suds actually gives you far more washing-power, which means sudsier, longer-lasting suds, for easier and quicker washdays. And Super Suds costs no more than ordinary washday soap.

Home Conditions Said 99 Per Cent Cause of Crime

Toronto, Sept. 10.—"The worst criminals in Canada today are between the ages of 16 and 19," according to Lt.-Col. Wallace Bunton, head of The Salvation Army Prison and Police Court Services Department. "The next worst age group is from 19 to 25.

"Veterans of service with the armed forces have not been responsible for even the share of crime that could be attributed to them on a percentage of population basis," he said

It is possible to trace back to the home 99 per cent of the major crime in Canada, Col. Bunton declared. This does not always mean poor homes because some criminals come from prosperous homes. Too much severity by parents in some cases, not enough in others, deception of children by parents, the bad example of low-principled parents and broken homes are the background factors that develop young criminals, according to Col. Bunton.

"The home is frist, the school second and the church third in the proper upbringing of the young," said Col. Bunton. "Home conditions are reflected in school conduct and where school conduct is bad there should be investigation of home conditions. Then, too, there is not enough church work among young children."

The Salvation Army prison department has 92 officers across Canada engaged in full or part-time reclamation work among prisoners. Last year personal work was done with 29,787 of them and more than 2,000 individuals were handed over to The Salvation Army by courts and prison officials. According to Col. Bunton, 87 percent of these are now going straight and efforts continue to reclaim the others.

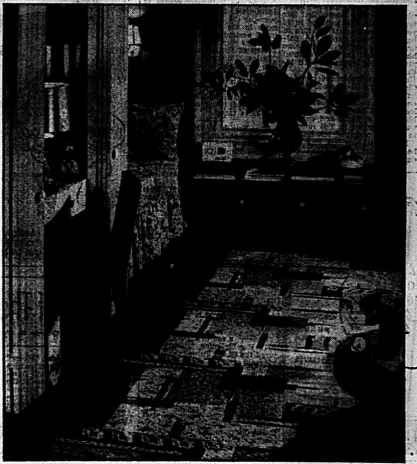
Anniversary Service Observed

The anniversary of Rylestone United Church was fittingly observed with special services on Sunday, Sept. 8. Mr. Kenneth Stewart, of West Huntingdon, who is widely known as an eloquent and vigorous preacher, was the guest preacher for the occasion. Appropriate music was presented at both services by the choir under the direction of Mr. Bruce Barnum.

The present Rylestone Church was first opened for public worship 53 years ago, and was the visible symbol of the faith and devotion of the pioneer Scottish Presbyterian families who settled in the district.

On Monday, Sept. 8, an anniversary social was held. Talking pictures, illustrating the famous Alaska Highway, were shown by Rev. Donald Amos, Bridge St. Church, Belleville, whose work as a chaplain along this great wartime road earned him the title of "parka padre". A varied program and refreshments provided a full evening.



Rented room

It's no trick at all to turn "hopeless" gloomy surroundings into an enchanting, cheerful room. Yes, even on a slim-Jim budget! Try a gay print bedspread . . . wallpaper trim around the windows . . . a cozy writing nook. But be sure you start with a sparkling new Gold Seal Congoleum rug! That's the way to get a floor covering that lends excitement to your whole color scheme . . . that is smooth, easy to clean, comfortable underfoot. Best of all, it's such a good "buy"! For Gold Seal Congoleum — both rugs and by-the-yard — has a wear-layer of heat-toughened paint and baked enamel equal in thickness to 8 coats of best floor paint applied by hand! But remember — without this familiar Gold Seal — it isn't Congoleum! So look for it before you buy! You'll be surprised how much quality you can buy for so little money.

TED WILLIAMS MOST COLORFUL PLAYER IN GAME

Does Not Answer Applause and Pays No Attention to Boos

By JOSEPH B. KELLEY

Boston, Sept. 10 — (AP) — Everyone calls him "the kid" and he glories in that. Some herald him as one of the greatest hitters of all time — and he doesn't disagree.

Others think of him as temperamental. He challenges that.

But above all, Ted Williams, who is sparking Boston Red Sox toward their first pennant in 28 years, is an unusual mixture of boyish self-confidence and natural hitting ability that makes him possibly the most colorful player in big league baseball today.

In a recent doubleheader against Cleveland the 27-year-old hit artist slugged out three home runs, one a grand slam with the bases loaded and another a three-run blast. The applause and cheering was tremendous as Ted returned to his post picketing left field.

Did he tip his hat like most ball players? He didn't even deign to look at the stands. Why?

"I used to tip my cap and the next play they'd give me the bird. I'd get red-necked about it and answer back and that made it worse. I tried to please 'em and couldn't so now let them give me the Indian love call all they want.

"I'll play the best I can and I won't answer their boos or applause."

Henry Martell Likely to Qualify In U.S. Amateur

(By The Canadian Press)

Henry Martell of Edmonton, Canada's lone entry in the National Amateur Golf Championship on the Baltursrol course at Springfield, N.J., posted a two-over-par 74 for the half-way mark in the 36-hole qualifying round yesterday. Leadership with 68 scores was shared by Howard Everitt of Philadelphia and Capt. Charles Middlecoff of Memphis. One shot behind the leaders was Skee Riegel from Glendale, Calif.

After an unsteady start, Martell gained confidence as the field of 149 surged over the course and is expected to be one of the 64 qualifiers today.

The British Boxing Board of Control at London yesterday called on Vince Hawkins of Britain and Marcel Cerdan of France to fight within six weeks after Oct. 19 for recognition of the Europeans middleweight champion.

Jockey Chris Rogers, 21, from Toronto and Hamilton, rode four winners at Narragansett Park, Pawtucket, R.I., yesterday, including the featured $3,500 Glendale Purse in which he was astride Be Brief, owned by Carr Hatch of Toronto.

Familiar heavyweight boxing names have entered the hockey arena in Hollywood. Jack Dempsey (not the ex-champion) yesterday became president of the Hollywood Wolves in the Pacific Coast League. Topping the Los Angeles Monarchs is W. F. Tuney (not Gene Tunney).

Rodney, a son of Spencer Scott, 1941 Hambletonian winner, captured the $2,405 Futurity for two-year-old trotters on yesterday's opening Grand Circuit card at the Reading, Pa., fair.

Saying he had no interest in developing foreign ball clubs, President Jorge Pasquel of the Mexican League announced last night at Mexico City he had rejected offers to buy three major-league clubs in the United States for $6,000,000.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Kiwanis Juniors and "Moose" Matthews' RCAF Flyers resume their Belleville Baseball Association baseball activities at the Alemite Field here on Wednesday evening. The tilt is a play-off of a game postponed from August 21. The game will start at 5.30 p.m. sharp.

• • •

Flyers have been more or less inactive since their elimination from Intermediate "A" competition, but they have been practising faithfully for after all, they have their gunsights levelled on the league championship. Then, too, there is the chance for revenge over the Batawa squad who at present are safely perched on the second rung of the loop ladder. There is a strong possibility that the squads will meet in the league playoffs and that should be a series worth seeing.

• • •

What should a referee do when two fighters connect with simultaneous haymakers and driop each other for the count of ten? There is no rule in boxing covering the double knockout, a rarity that has happened seven times in ring history.

• • •

Some referees maintain that the count should be continued until one of the boys gets to his feet with the verdict going to him on a knockout. But this would be an infraction of the Queensberry Rules, which state that a bout is over when the ten count has been completed. A referee is within his rights in calling the bout a draw or a "no contest". He can also call the fight a double knockout.

• • •

What the third man in the ring shouldn't do is what referee Jack Welch did July 4, 1912 when Lightweight Champion Al Wolgast and Joe Rivers, a twenty-year-old American Indian, faced each other at Vernon, California.

• • •

It was in the thirteenth round that Wolgast and Rivers connected at the same instant with terrific drives — Wolgast to the challanger's groin, Rivers to the champion's chin. Both went down. Rivers hit the canvas first and a split second later Wolgast plunged across the lower rope, his legs entangled with Rivers'. Instead of beginning the count at that moment, Welch crossed the ring and hauled the champion to his feet.

• • •

Holding his erect, the referee with his free arm began his count over Rivers who was floundering about on the ring floor trying to rise. Just as Rivers got to his feet, at Welch's 'eight,' the bell rang ending the round. Welch calmly completed the count and awarded the fight to the helpless champion on a knockout. It was one of the most questioned decisions ever made.

• • •

Many of the 11,000 fans surged to the ringside and threatened to tear the referee apart. Welch quickly retreated under police protection and hid out for several days in a San Francisco hotel. But his decision stood, a KO for Wolgast. Of the three men who were in the ring that long ago July afternoon, only Rivers and Wolgast are alive today.

• • •

Rivers, now 54, still has all of his black hair and looks as trim as the day he was bilked out of the championship. He teaches boxing in Los Angeles and plays occasional bit parts in the films.

• • •

Ad Wolgast, hopelessly insane from paresis, has been confined for the past quarter of a century to an institution. Old and gray, he stares blankly at the walls.

• • •

One of his frequent visitors is Joe Rivers who brings him chocolate bars and small presents. Wolgast doesn't recognize anyone. "A terrible end for a champion," says Rivers. "So maybe I'm lucky I never won the title."

HOLLETT RETIRES FROM THE N.H.L. AFTER 12 YEARS

Played as Left Winger and Defenceman With Ottawa, Toronto, Boston, Detroit

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Sept. 10—(CP)—Bill (Flash) Hollett took note yesterday of the flood of speculative stories about his hockey future and announced from his home at nearby Port Credit that he is retiring from the National Hockey League after 12 seasons as a left wing and defenceman with Ottawa, Toronto, Boston, and Detroit.

"I thought I better quit while I still have my health," said the 34-year-old native of North Sydney, N.S., when he was asked about rumors of his retirement. "I hurt my knee last season and it hasn't healed properly yet. I don't want to fall apart on the ice."

Hollett's announcement aroused speculation about its effect on his recent trade to New York Rangers by Detroit Red Wings for Ab Demarco from North Bay and Hank Goldup of Toronto. Manager Frank Boucher said last Friday at Montreal that if Boucher made his retirement definite "some other arrangement will have to be made with Detroit about Goldup and Demarco."

Yesterday Boucher said at his home at South Mountain near Ottawa that he doesn't know what will come of the deal until he has a talk soon with Jack Adams of the Red Wings.

"It's covered as far as N.H.L. bylaws are concerned," he said. "In the case of a retirement the deal is off. I don't know if the deal can be arranged another way."

There is more to Hollett's retirement than physical condition. "Living conditions possibly have something to do with it," he said. Moreover, he isn't entirely through with hockey. He'd like to play amateur "if that's possible" and he has some coaching activity in mind "but I can't say anything about that just yet."

In any case, fans around the N.H.L. circuit will miss the burly 180-pound defenceman. He was always a colorful performer and scored many an important goal on a headlong dash from his defence spot.

players pool probably will the largest in the history of the st season classic. One cent of ery paid admission during the gular campaign will be tossed to the pool. Canadian Sport Snapshots

By DAVE McINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, Sept. 10. (CP)—Keith Kewley, youthful boss of the contingent of even more youthful Canadian hockeyists making the trip to Scotland, sat in his cabinet aboard the Aquitania just prior to sailing time with head in hands.

Scattered at his feet, on bunks and under them lay piles of duffle bags containing hockey equipment. A steady parade of players and stewards came and went.

Suddenly Keith braced himself pounded a fist on his right knee.

"I'll get them there if it's the last thing I do," he said. "I've got 'em this far and by jiminy crickets I will go on to the end".

Half an hour before, Jimmy Davis, short, stocky and outfitted in a loud green check and pork pie hat pulled well down over the eyes, had tripped in his anxiety to take leave of the train, sprained an ankle badly. He limped in, flourishing a cane.

"Probably be months before I can skate properly," he said, grinning broadly.

Keith slumped noticeably.

Another player, sporting a red and yellow bow tie and coat to march, popped in.

"Some of the luggage is missing. What'll we do?" he asked.

A little later: "Hey, Keith, a couple of the boys went for a walk in town and haven't come back yet and we sail in a few minutes. Shall I go after them?"

Next came the steward: "These golf sticks can't be left in the corridors you know, sir. Shall I put them in here with the rest of the stuff?"

Then: "Where can I get a drink of water?"

"When do we sail, when do we sail?"

"Have you got the tickets?"

"What's Scotland like?"

The queries came fast. Over in one corner some of the boys were harmonizing on Annie Laurie and sharpening up on their Scottish dialects. There were intermittent cries of "hoot mon," and "d'ye ken".

Keith's shoulders shook.

When he finally managed to get a word in, Keith told us the 70 players would form the nucleus of the seven teams in the Scottish ice hockey league—Paisley, Ayr, Falkirk, Dundee, Perth, Dunfermline and Kirknaldy—10 players to a team.

"Well be joined by a few Canadian players already over there and a scattering of home-bred talent. All of our expenses are paid, of course, and we'll get seven pounds a week besides."

After a minute's thought he added: "I think that's $28.14 at the present exchange."

"Most of the boys are junior players and though a few are as old as 24 yars the average is 19."

A plaintive question came from a top bunk: "Hey, Keith, d'you think I'll be sick? D'you, Hugh?"

Keith took his head in his hands again. He seemed to be sobbing as we tiptoed out quietly.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Rules for leads in bridge are one thing. Deceptive leads are something else. When you come right down to it, crafty leads are a breaking of rules at the right times.

Your partner may know the lead rules and abide by them. If so, what you may think are foxy leads may be only foolish frivolous or fundamentally foul. They may steer partner into fatal blunders.

On the other hand, you may be a clever puller of paying hoaxes on opponents. You may have a knack for timing them just right. If you are so deft, you are a rarity in bridge.

However, many of us acquire a certain amount of dexterity in fake leads. Some of these slick tricks are more or less standard and quickly recognized in advanced company.

There is one thing a sound player always considers when putting over a fast one on opponent. He will make the attempt only when it is not likely to mislead his own partner.

North bid spades and south became declarer at a five club bid. West led the spade seven when spades were as shown here:

NORTH

WEST
♠K J 7 3

EAST

SOUTH
♠8 5 4

This lead of the seven by west breaks all the rules in the books. But west knew north was a bidder of sound suits and probably had A Q.

If so, the contract was probably solid with the finesse that would be taken through west in spades. The only hope was getting in a fast one in this desperate situation.

That lead put declarer up against it. The spade seven might be a singleton. If so, a spade finesse would be fatal. So, he went up at once with spade ace and tried to save a trick some other way.

Suppose south had spade queen and let the seven run to it. What would an unimaginative east have said to west? You said it.

Woman-to-Woman, isn't she fascinating?

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 10 (AP)—Chief conversational topic here these days is whether the moody meany of British Films—James Mason—is coming to Hollywood. Insight to the new sensation is offer by an old friend who doubts if Mason will emigrate to these parts.

Hungarian-born Andrew Marton, who recently directed "Gallant Bess" for M.G.M., gave Mason his first lead in "Secret of Stamboul" in 1946 and they still are close friends, corresponding regularly.

"Jimmie will not come here because of his shyness," Marton asserted, even though the rumor mill reports new Hollywood deals for Mason daily. "He would definitely be embarrassed by the bobby soxers. And don't forget he is the top man in English films. That might also discourage him from leaving".

This is a note to proof readers: Billy De Wolfe spells his name with a capital D, Cap W. This is not to be confused with other Paramount personalities, Olivia de Havilland, Cecil B. De Mill, Howard Da Silva, or Don Defore

"Nobody ever gets it right, principally because Miss de Havilland demands a small d", complained De Wolfe. Of course, he could have left well enough alone and stuck to his own name—Bill Jones.

Keep your eye on Charles Trenet, the French Sinatra who will do a picture of Eagle-Lion when he finishes his Ciro's engagament. He looks like Jean Pierre Aumont and sings like Chevalier . . . Lana Turner and Tony Martin were cuddling at Ciro's. I hear Lana will be lighted by infra-red maps to "make her more prominent" in "Green Dolphin Street". She'd better shelve a few of those pounds, then. . -.Jeffrey Lynn leaves tomorrow for New York to marry newspaperwoman Robin Chandler, October 5. Honeymoon in Bermuda.

Odds Reduced To 100 to 8 On Aga Khan's Colt

London, Sept 10 (Reuters)—There was a fair amount of business done at today's call-over on the St. Leger, last flat racing classic of the season, at the Victoria Club.

News that Edward Tudor had been scratched and that Champion Jockey Gordon Richards now would ride Anwar resulted in the odds offered against the Aga Khan's colt being reduced from 20 to 1 at the previous call-over ppto 100 to 8.

Odds Monday were:

10 to 3 against Airborne, victor in the derby
9 to 2 against Gulf Stream.
7 to one against Nir Al
10 to 1 against Fast and Fair.
100 to 9 against White Jacket
100 to 8 against Croupier offered.
100 to 8 against Anwar offered.
25 to 1 against Highland Laddie.
40 to 1 against Murren
50 to 1 against Carassin.
66 to 1 against others.

DO-OR-DIE STAGE REACHED FOR DODGERS, CARDS

Red Birds Open 13-Game Road Trip While Brooks Play at Home

By RALPH RODEN

The do-or-die stage for St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League pennant race gets underway today with the Red Birds beginning a 13-game road trip at Philadelphia while the Dodgers entertain Cincinnati Reds.

The American League's eastern clubs take their last journey thru the west with the pace-setting Boston Red Sox needing only to defeat Detroit Tigers today to clinch their first pennant since 1918.

Leading the Dodgers by two games, the Cards will play the Phils twice and then invade Flatbush for a three-game series.

With the exception of three games at Boston, the Dodgers play the remainder of their 17 games at home. The Cards have only five games left to play at Sportsman's Park in St. Louis.

Brooklyn hurling, paced by rookie Joe Hatten and veteran Kirby Higbe, and the return to form of Pete Reiser, have increased the Brooks' confidence in their chances of overhauling the Red Birds.

The Red Bird pitching staff has fallen off somewhat, with Hamil Pollett and Murry Dickson hit exceptionally hard in their last outings. Pollet, winner of eighteen games, has been ill. The Red Bird hitters are enjoying some of their biggest days of the season at the plate. Enos (Country) Slaughter has taken a commanding lead in the runs-batted-in department, and Stan Musial continues to pace the league in batting.

In the only game in either league yesterday, Philadelphia Phillies nosed out New York Giants, 5-4, under the lights at Philadelphia. Charley Gilbert broke up the game in the ninth by singling in Andy Seminick from second.

Stewart Granger, the much-in-demand romantic English actor, has the important featured role of Apollodorus in the G. C. F. Technicolor version og Bernard Shaw's spectacular play, "Caesar and Cleopatra." Vivien Leigh and Claude Rains are starred in this Gabriel Pascal production.

PLAYOFF SERIES IN INT. LEAGUE ARE ANNOUNCED

Montreal Royals Play Newark and Baltimore Takes on Syracuse

(By The Associated Press)

The International League's 14th Governors' Cup Playoff Series gets underway tomorrow with the pennant winning Montreal Royals playing host to the fourth-place Newark Bears and the runner-up Syracuse Chiefs entertaining the third-place Baltimore Orioles.

Both series will be best-of-seven affairs with the two winners then meeting in another best-of-seven set to determine the circuit's representative in the Junior World Series against the American Association Governors' Cup winner.

The players' pool probably will be the largest in the history of the post season classic. One cent of every paid admission during the regular campaign will be tossed into the pool. No attendance figures as yet have been released but it is known that the loop enjoyed one of its best seasons at the gate. The Royals will receive $5,000 for winning the flag and the Chiefs $2,000 for finishing second. The balance of the amount will be divided 60-40 between the playoff winner and runner-up.

The Orioles and the Bears finished in a tie for third place during the regular season and met last night in Baltimore in a play-off for the third rung with Orioles winning 10-3. Sherman Lollar, the loop's most valuable player in 1945, paced the Orioles to victory by batting in three runs on a homer, double and two singles.

CARRIER'S 73 PLANES SPELL OUT INITIALS F.D.R.

Athens, Sept. 10 — (AP)—The initials FDR were spelled out in bold relief Monday by 73 planes launched from the departing United States carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Thousands lined the streets of ancient Athens to see the demonstration shortly before noon while the 45,000-ton carrier was 40 miles at sea.

The Roosevelt departed for Malta, Algiers, Tangier and Casablanca.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

Niagara Falls Houcks won the Niagara District Senior Baseball finals and the right to meet Toronto Columbos in the first round of the O.B.A. playdowns Monday night when they defeated Welland Atlas 5-0, taking the best-of-seven series 4-3. Refrano of Houcks pitched three-hit ball and handed out only one walk.

Port Hope defeated Lindsay 9-4 in the third game of the series to qualify to meet Batawa in the next O.B.A. Intermediate "A" round. Woods of Port Hope gave up four hits.

Kitchener Rangers took their second straight game from London Juniors 7-4, in the Intercounty Baseball Association Junior Intergroup Finals. Rangers had no trouble until the ninth when Boehmer relieved Simon to squelch a London rally.

Petrolia Young Oilers defeated Bothwell 7-4, to win the W.C.B.A. Juvenile Class "B" championship.

Canadian Furnace of Port Colborne defeated Page-Hersey Tubes of Welland 4-3, to win the third game of the series and advance to the fourth round of the O.A.S.A. intermediate playdowns. Roach was the winning pitcher.

London Supremes eliminated Windsor Esquire ladies from the P.E.S.U. playoffs defeating Windsor 9-1, in the fourth game of their best-of-five series.

Springfield, N.J., Sept. 10.—(AP)—Capt. Cary Middlecoff, think that shooting par is harder think thatshooting par is harder than pulling teeth, doesn't agree with the folks who think he can belt a golf ball a mile . . .After tying for the lead in the United States amateur qualifying round, Middlecoff remarked: "They say I'm a long hitter but Skee Riegel was consistently out-driving me" . . .When Howard Everitt came along late in the day to tie Middlecoff for the lead, Cary grinned "here I thought I was a big operator and you had to come along."

Riegel, an Upper Darby, Pa., boy who went west to attain golfing fame, says that "See" really is his name although it it sounds more like winter sport than the midsummer pastime of golf.

Carruthers and Ridley Retain Branscombe Cup

Sunday afternoon the two top-ranking golfers of the Port Hope Golf Club challenged the Bay of Quinte Club for the Branscombe Cup, now held by the Bay of Quinte Golf Club. The Branscombe Challenge Cup is an 18 hole match, best-ball, to be played on the holder of the cup's course and must be defended within fifteen days. Quinte Club won the trophy on Labor Day at the Kawartha Club in Peterborough.

Opposing Tommy Carruthers and Harry Ridley of the Bay of Quinte Club were Bill Bowden and Lloyd Austin of Port Hope. Port Hope lost the match 3 up and 2 to go.

The match was featured by the long-ball hitting of Lloyd Austin of Port Hope. Austin overdrove the first and seventh greens at the Quinte Club, a distance of over 300 yards. On the difficult eighth dog's leg hole at the Country Club his drive carried the trees, landing well ahead of the big tree in the centre of the fairway, a distance of about 335 yards.

Carruthers and Ridley were one over par for the match.

However, Port Hope have not given up as yet. They are coming up again next week to challenge for the trophy. Golf enthusiasts of this district are well-advised to come out to the Quinte Club and see this match played.

Mimico Mountaineers Beat St. Catharines

Mimico, Sept. 10 — (CP)—The best-of-seven Ontario senior lacrosse final was squared at one victory each last night when Mimico Mountaineers defeated St. Catharines Athletics 24-8. The third game will be at St. Catharines Wednesday.

The Athletics, eastern titleholders who romped away with the first game Friday, were no match for Mimico last night and a crowd of 2,000 saw the home team take the lead and retain it throughout. Despite the score, Doug Favell played a brilliant game in the St. Catharines nets.

The Dixon brothers, Ken and Archie, each rammed in five goals to lead the Mimico attack. Eddie Sandford scored four, B. McDonald three, and Hewitt and Lee each got two. McPhail, L. McDonald and Pritchard got the others.

For St. Catharines W. McMahon and Fitzgerald each had a brace of counters, the others coming from Cheevers, T. Madsen, Cove and Scott.

On the strength of Billie Wusyk's first quarter placement, Calgary Stampeders defeated the Blue Bombers, 3-1, at Winnipeg last night. The victory was Calgary's third straight, putting them well out in front of the Western Canada Football League.

Dotted Line Honeymoon

By Joseph McCord

CHAPTER 29

Her cheek rested against Larry's still when the buzzer sounded, a half hour later.

"It's the doctor; she exclaimed hurriedly getting to her feet and smoothing her hair.

"And how I hate whoever it is," Larry sighed. "I'm not sure that doesn't even go for Vince."

It proved to be Mr. Anthony, but the police surgeon arrived without dressing his patient's wounds.

"You were fortunate to have plenty of meat on your bones, Mr. Cutter. A very nice, clean little hole. About a thirty-two calibre bullet, I'd say."

"I didn't notice particularly," Larry observed, making a wry face. "My attention was elsewhere."

"Centred on your fist, perhaps. I notice your knuckles are bruised."

"So they are." Larry examined his hand with a grim smile of recollection. He was wondering what his antagonist's lower jaw looked like. That last blow had been a very satisfactory one.

"You've lost a little blood," the doctor went on. "It won't hurt you. Let that dressing stay on for a day or so. Maybe you'd better arrange to let me see it again. Your wife did a very good first-aid job." He bowed in her direction.

Vince grinned at his daughter. "Blest if I can get used to that," he confided to her in a low voice.

After a family consultation, it was decided that Jacqueline might report for work. Larry stipulated, however, that she was to give notice that her stenographic days were over. Vince was to take him downtown for a conference with the Hicks firm and, then drive up to the Brown farm for a supply of Larry's clothing. Larry could make out for one night at the hotel. And did Vince mind going out and putting down the roadster's top? Larry would like the sunshine when they started.

As soon as Vince left the room, Larry said soberly to Jacqueline:

"I'm not going to interfere with things too much. But as soon as you shake that job of yours.... next week, to be exact..you're going to start being Mrs. Larrimore H. Cutter in the right fashion. Until we know about this Jacobs affair, we'll find a furnished apartment for the time being. Why don't you begin now by putting on your ring? It will save announcements."

Jack's eyes twinkled wickedly.

"I haven't got it."

"Where is it?"

"Down in the Second National Bank."

"Of all things! Saving it for evidence, were you?"

"Exactly. It's in my hopeless chest along with the contract, our marriage certificate and some beautiful but worthless stock certificates."

"Tear 'em all up...except the ring and the wedding document. The one the clerk wrote....not mine."

"Larry....I'll have to tell you something. I almost forgot. It's about those stock certificates. I bought them at Mr. Jacobs' urging. They were to make me rich."

"What!" Larry almost shouted. "Do you mean to tell me that old curmudgeon got into you! Now I do have it in for him! For how much did he nick you?"

"For about all I had...."

"I'll take it out of his hide," Larry promised. "Don't worry."

"But, Larry...."

"Don't go standing up for him. He isn't worth any pity."

"But, don't you see? I never thought of it myself...." Jacqueline appeared somewhat panic stricken. "If it hadn't been for Mr. Jacobs.."

Comprehension dawned in Larry's dark eyes.

"Ah, I see! You were broke. All through the evil advice of the old villain in the piece. Own up, now! That's why you took me on, wasn't it?"

Jacqueline's cheeks flamed. She had intended to tell Larry all about....everything. But to hear it stated in that bald fashion was almost too much. Her head came up gallantly.

"It had something to do with it, Larry."

"Darling! As if it made any difference! I told you that fate was in it all. I believe it more than ever now. Forget about Jacobs. He never did anyone a good turn intentionally. I'm not going to give him any credit....can't associate my happiness with him. And I don't intend to. Incidentally, he'll pay you back with interest. I think that's Vince out there playing with the horn. He's getting impatient."

"Will you take me down to the hotel?"

"If you insist. You should go to bed instead."

"No thank you. I took one nap today and it got you into dreadful trouble."

"Dreadful happiness, you mean."

"Larry..." She came close to him. "Are you really happy? Do you truly love me?"

"On my sacred honor, Mrs. Cutter. Shall I demonstrate?"

"No! Just wait a minute until I wash my face. We're late now!"

Announcing her intention of leaving the Raynear proved to be a more difficult task than Jacqueline anticipated. She would miss her little office, miss the pleasant acquaintances, the activity of the lobby. Fortunately, she knew a competent stenographer who would like her job. She would recommend the girl to Mr. Potter. That might make him more willing to let her go. Otherwise, it would be just like Larry to take matters into his own hands.

Archibald Potter was genuinely amazed when Jacqueline walked into his office and explained that she must leave the first of the week. She had decided that she would like to rest for a time.... nerves had been bothering her. If Mr. Potter had no one in mind for the place, she was sure that Miss Briscoe would suit nicely. She had substituted during several of Jacqueline's vacations and was quite familiar with the work. So....

Archibald elevated his brows quizzically. "You are extremely fortunate, Miss Anthony, that your investments are allowing you to retire so early. We shall miss you greatly."

"Oh, it isn't that...." She broke off in rosy confusion.

"No?" Archibald queried. His fingers played with the carnation in his buttonhole. "When is the wedding?"

Jacqueline surrendered with a laugh. "I can't tell you the date," she evaded. "It's a secret. But I'd rather no one knew....Not that I'm leaving, even. Do you mind?"

"You can trust me. But you must let me wish you and the fortunate young man every happiness."

"Thank you. And shall I talk with Miss Briscoe?"

"If you will."

That much was settled. The main thing was to keep the Raynear staff, particularly Virgie Blake, in darkness as to the resignation.

Larry's shoulder was doing nicely now. He was very busy, spending much time in conference with his lawyers. He had little to say about the progress they were making only that "things were moving along." That was his excuse for turning the house hunting over to his wife. Larry proposed that she select a furnished apartment for the time being. He didn't care where it was, so long as it was roomy and "nice."

Quite to her consternation, he took her to his own bank and introduced her to a teller who asked her to write her signature on two cards. In her confusion, she signed her name "Anthony" and the cards had to be torn up. Larry chuckled over her shoulder. She was given a small cheque book and a deposit book which indicated that Mrs. Jacqueline Cutter's account was in the amount of ten thousand dollars.

"Thought you could get away with it, didn't you?" Larry jibed. "Well, you might as well get used to the idea that you can't put anything over on the old man....Not much, I mean."

"Try to get any of this," she retorted saucily.

Jacqueline finally selected an apartment with five rooms in a new and lofty building not far from Courtland street. She was quite overawed with its seeming magnificence and rather fearful when she took her husband to inspect it one evening.

"Not very big," was his comment, "but it'll do, if it suits you. I want to get away from the hotel."

"Don't you like it any more?" she asked demurely.

"No. It gives me the willies every time I pass through the lobby and see that other dame in your little office. Makes me feel like throwing her out. And your cigar peddling friend was asking me about you yesterday. She seems all broken up because you disappeared without saying goodbye."

"Poor Virgie. I must run in and say hello to her. You didn't explain?"

"Who? Me? I told her I had been on the point of asking the management where you were. She gave me a dirty look for that.... thinking of Alma, my blonde, of course."

"Are you sure you weren't?"

"No. I was thinking of my wife. You haven't so much to move, have you?"

"Just my clothes....and a few other things."

"Send them over in the morning. Tomorrow night the Cutters will be in their own home. Please ....Jack?"

• • •

The first Sunday afternoon in the new home took the nature of a housewarming, with Vince as guest of honor. He had driven down from the Brown farm for the occasion. After dinner the three sat in the living room enjoying the glow from the open fire.

Vince brought up the topic of Martin Jacobs. He was curious to learn the latest developments.

"We're getting some place, now," Larry admitted. "After the law firm of Hicks and Hicks got through outlining things to the old gentleman he was more than willing to play. Any pay. Of course, you never can tell what will happen when a thing like that drags through the courts, but Jacobs is anxious to settle outside. I think that's the way it will end."

"Did he own up to anything?" Vince wanted to know.

"He didn't have a chance. We pinned it on him. He's a game loser, but he's definitely afraid of an investigation.. about my dad's finish. Old Hicks advised me yesterday to let Jacobs off with a financial settlement.... take him to the cleaner's. He feels that any criminal investigation would be difficult ...getting witnesses and all that. It's been a long time, of course."

"I'd rather it was that way," Jacqueline decided. "I can't help feeling sorry for Mr. Jacobs. He's an old man. Besides, Larry, we owe him something."

"I know it," her husband responded gravely. "It sort of takes the edge off my old vindictiveness. After all, I'm clearing Dad. That means a lot to me, if not to the world. I'm satisfied." He put one arm about Jacqueline, who sat on the couch beside him. He drew her close.

"So am I," she whispered

"And another thing," Larry went on. "The business won't tie me up here. I'm thinking of a vacation. A few weeks loafing on the Riviera won't go bad, about now. What do you say, Jack?"

"Larry!" Jacqueline sat bolt upright, her eyes shining. "Am I going to cross the ocean! Am I"

"Unless you can think of some other place for a honeymoon. We haven't had one yet, you know."

"I can hardly believe it," she breathed. "It's too wonderful!"

"And, after we come back, I think we'll find ourselves owning old Fairlawn. I've always dreamed of living there again....and now, I'll have some one to share it with me. One bad memory won't spoil it for you, will it, dear?"

"Oh, I'd love it, Larry. I've wanted to live there ever since I saw it that first time in the moonlight. I was planting roses around those old pillars when that man scared me."

"Then we'll have roses," Larry declared "Vince, you'd better plan to voyage with us. How about it?"

Vince wriggled uncomfortably in his chair.

"No....I guess not. Thank you, just the same."

"Too busy on the invention? Heard anything?"

"Yes...." Vince cleared his throat. "Hate to tell you, Larry ....but somebody else beat me to that thing.....five years ago."

Larry threw his head back and laughed. "Excuse me, Vince," he apologized. "That sounded so tragic. You'll have to come along now, while you're thinking up another."

Vince shifted his position again. "No. I think I'm through inventing....I've always wanted to take up farming. I guess, maybe, I will."

"Thinking of buying a farm? That's fine."

"Well....not exactly. You see, I...."

"It's Mother Brown, oh?"

"Well...."

"Jack," Larry said with a grin, "Vince and Mrs. Brown have been carrying on a shameless romance ever since I sent him up there from the hospital. That's what he's trying to tell you."

"Oh, Vince!"

"Well, maybe...."

Jacqueline flew to her father's side and flung her arms about him. "I think that's wonderful! Please....please, be very happy!"

"Sure, sure...,and I think I'd better be starting back."

"Car all right, Vince?" Larry inquired.

"Why, yes."

"Then you'd better keep it. You'll need it. We'll pick up another one when we get back."

"Thanks!"

After Vince went, Larry laid more wood on the fire, then drew Jacqueline back to a seat on the couch. They sat for a time, gazing into the flames, busied with their thoughts.

Presently, Larry lifted his wife's left hand to the light.

"That ring gives me a lot of satisfaction, Mrs. Cutter. Now I know I'm not dreaming."

"Are you sure?"

"Positive. Did you do what I told you with that contract?"

"No, Mr. Cutter. It's in my dressing table."

"Get it, will you?"

When she complied, Larry studied it thoughtfully in the flickering light.

You must have thought me mad, didn't you, Jack?"

'No' Wonderful!" She leaned closer to look at the paper. "Do you remember how you made the dotted line with your pen so I could sign, too?"

"Yes, you blessed little trump!"

He held the paper aloft, grasping two corners between thumbs and forefingers.

"Here she goes, Mrs. Cutter. Okay?"

"Okay, darling."

The sound of paper: Torn.

Ault and Wiborg Plant Blaze

Toronto, Sept. 10. (CP)—All available firemen from west end halls were called out today to battle a two-alarm blaze sweeping through the paint plant of the Ault and Wiborg Company of Canada on Royce Avenue in northwest Toronto.

Fifty employees escaped to the street before the fire, believed caused by spontaneous combustion, swept the building. Dense fumes forced firemen to don gas masks.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 10 —(CP)— All four index groups posted new lows for the year at mid-day today on the exchange, the industrials leading the decline with a drop of three points. The golds were down about a point. Volume was comparatively light at 861,000 shares.

The liquor, paper and steel issues worked lower. Hiram Walker lost 2 points, Canadian Breweries a point and point losses were showing for Harding Carpets, Steel of Canada, Minnesota and Ontario Paper, Modern Containers and a few others.

Giant, down 45 cents to 5.80, was about the weakest of the gold issues. Madsen lost 15. In the base metals Sherritt was down to 2.50 but recovered the loss. Labrador was off to $6, down 25 cents.

Home Oil and Roxana, down 10 to 20 cents were the weakest of the Western oils.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 10 (AP)— Stocks dipped, rallied smartly and flopped again today in another one of the most active sessions of the last year.

The decline was extended at the start. A flood of bids then stemmed the slide, reduced or cancelled early losses and brought numerous recoveries with the ticker tape late for an interval. There was a slowdown until another burst of selling around mid-day again caused the recording machinery to lag. Activity once more slackened but minus signs of fractions to nine points or so predominated near the fourth hour.

HOGS

Toronto, Sept. 10 — (CP) — Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs, were down 50 cents cwt. at Peterboro $20.40 plus transportation, unchanged at Hull 20.75 delivered, Stratford was unsettled with no price established, in markets reporting early today.

Coal Shortage Loses Britain Foreign Exchange

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 10. (CP)—Britain's perious coal shortage is resulting in loss of foreign exchange, boosting tramp shipping rates on imports and speeding conversion of British vessels from coal to oil fuelling

"Grain in and coal out" has always been the stand-fleets. Now inbound cargoes must carry the cost of round trips because vessels cannot get loads of coal at British ports and are forced to sail in ballast.

Coal exports in 1938 were 40,000,000 tons, bringing in almost 10 per cent of total revenues from sales abroad. For the year ending next May 1 the maximum is 8,200,000 tons, including foreign bunkers.

No early improvement can be expected. Fuel Minister Shinwell has reported a 5,000,000-ton deficit in the country's coal supplies, threatening large-scale industrial stoppages this winter.

The situation is so bad that many ships are coaling only for outward voyages, refuelling where possible abroad. United States and Canadian coal bought in this way has cost Britain about £1,000,000 ($14,000,000) in six months.

The annual report of the Bristol Channel District Association of chartered shipbrokers said ports in South Wales have been reduced practically to idleness because of the fall in coal exports, despite a gradual improvement in general traffic.

Shipbuilding returns show that owners are looking almost exclusively to oil fuelling. The result will be a further drain on foreign exchange resources.

Says Free Churches In England Declining, Not Sure of Message

London, Sept. 10 .(CP)—Lt.-Col. S. F. Maine, a former Canadian army chaplain, told the London Ministerial Association of the United Church of Canada here Monday that though England shows signs of a religious life beneath the surface "the Free Churches are declining and are not so sure of themselves or their message."

"The non-conformist view does not give enough attention to modern world problems," he said.

Describing the pessimistic view he said was taken by chaplains, English clergy and church publications, Mr. Maine said that because of the war England suffered tremendous disruptions from normal life which he said resulted in increased moral and sexual laxity and a decrease in church attendance.

"From 55 to 70 per cent to the English people are either indifferent to or hostile to the Christian Church," he declared, quoting from Church of England survey.

Top o'the Morning-

TO OUR U.S. VISITORS!

A windy hill at sunrise . . . a woodland trail at noon . . . Ontario's bridlepaths invite horsemen from far and near. Time and again riders from south of the border come to enjoy the beauty spots of our Province. These visitors help us. We can help them by being good hosts . . . making them welcome . . . giving them a grand time!

WHAT CAN I DO? The answer is plenty! Here are some of the things anyone can do. The suggestions come from an Ontario hotelman, famous for his hospitality.

1. Know the places of interest and beauty spots in your district and tell people about them.
2. When you write your friends in the States tell them about the places they would enjoy visiting.
3. Try to make any visitor really glad he came.
4. Take time to give requested information fully and graciously.
5. In business dealings, remember Canada's reputation for courtesy and fairness depends on you.
6. To sum it all up, follow the "Golden Rule."

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS . . . it's good business!

Worth his weight in gold! The province of Ontario profits to almost the same extent from tourist business as it does from the gold mining industry. It is up to each of us to see that it goes on growing.

This diagram, shows how everyone benefits from the Ontario tourist income. Every dollar is shared in this way . . . 1. Hotels; 2. Stores; 3. Restaurants; 4. Taxes, etc.; 5. Amusements; 6. Garages.

It works both ways! They treat us royally when we visit them . . . we can't do less than return the compliment. Remember that it costs money to take a holiday . . . so let's see they get a good return for every penny they spend.

"Let's make them want to come back!"

For a second time facing a charge of murdering Mrs. Audrey Lyons of Ajax, Nov. 10, Lorne Cecil Harris (left) is lead out of the Whitby jail by Jail Governor J. D. G. Sutherland. Ontario County residents flocked to the opening of the Fall Assizes to hear details of three murder charges against Harris and George Norman Bilton, 25-year-old welder. Bilton is charged with murdering Mrs. Theresa Laurie, 34, and her four-year-old daughter, Patricia, whose bodies were found beside the Queen Elizabeth Way east of Ajax.

Skeleton Believed That of Girl, 17, Missing 2 Years

Baltimore, Sept. 10.—(AP)—A pair of moccasins found near the armless skeleton of a girl lent conviction Monday to the belief of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Hildreth that the skeleton was that of their 17-year-old daughter, who disappeared from her Baltimore home nearly two years ago.

The skeleton was found in a tangle of vines on a suburban estate near here Friday.

Jane Hildreth, on vacation from a Northampton, Mass., finishing school, disappeared from her Baltimore home the week before Christmas, 1944.

Police, meanwhile, still were at a loss to account for the manner in which the girl met her death.

Refuse to Load Relief Supplies For Yugoslavia.

New York, Sept. 10 (AP)—Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association (A.F.L.), said Monday longshoremen would not load any relief supplies for Yugoslavia "until proper action is taken against those who were responsible for shooting down our planes" in that country.

Ryan asserted that even if the strike of A.F.L. seamen were to end Monday, there still would be no loading of any vessel with cargoes bound for Yugoslavia.

F. H. La Guardia, general director of U.N.R.R.A., said yesterday that Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union (C.I.O.), had agreed to order his men to sail U.N.R.R.A. relief ships to any country provided they were fully loaded.

480 Quaker Oats Employees Get Wage Increase

Toronto, Sept. 9. (CP)—A contract between the Quaker Oats Company at Peterborough and the United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.) has been signed and provides for wage increases of about 15 cents an hour, the Union here announced last night.

The contract covering 480 production employees was described as granting the highest wage scale for any cereal mill in Canada.

The increase is made up of three cents increase across the Board; nine per cent raise to maintain take-home pay on a reduction of the work week from 48 to 44 hours; afternoon and night shift bonuses of 3 to 9 cents an hour and a minimum hourly production bonus of seven cents. The contract also provides pay for eight statutory holidays.

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows were walking out to the Park, and Sid Hunt said, Hay, watch out for that ladder, nobody better walk under that.

Meening a ladder leening against a wall for painters to go up, and I said, It meens 7 years bad luck to walk under a ladder.

Go on, you meen breaking a looking glass, that's the only thing brings you 7 years bad luck, Puds Simkins said, and I said. Well even one year of bad luck would sattisfy me.

I'll walk under it, Lucky Leroy Shooster said, and us fellows said Hay, you better not, you're crazy, dont do it.

Aw, why not? Lucky Leroy said. I'm such a naturelly lucky guy everything brings me good luck, even if it's bad luck. Why good night once I broke a looking glass on perpose just to prove it, and the very same day I got the mild meezles and didn't have to go to school for a week. Watch me walk under it, he said.

And he went back and delibritly walked under the ladder, saying, I bet I have some good luck before we go 3 more blocks. Heck, what have I got on my shoe? he said.

And he terned his foot up to see, and there was a big hunk of chewing gum sticking on the bottom, and we all started to laugh like anything, saying, Oh boy your bad luck, has started already that'll teech you to walk under ladders you'll probably trip and stump your toe in a minute.

Aw, what's a little hunk of chewing gum? Lucky said: I'm not even going to bother scraping it off, I'll leave it wear off, he said.

And after a couple of more blocks he looked to see if it had wore off yet and it was still there and there was a dime sticking to it, and Leroy bought some new chewing gum with it and gave us each a stick.

Proving it's even lucky just to be with naturelly lucky people.

ONE DEAD, FIVE INJURED IN TRAIN COLLISION

Peace Conference Rules Proposal Belongs in U.N.

Australia Loses Motion For Court of Human Rights

By A. I. GOLDBERG

Paris, Sept. 11 —(AP)— The peace conference legal and drafting commission virtually eliminated Australia's proposal for a world court of human rights today by ruling 14 to 2 that the proposal properly belonged in the United Nations and not in the peace treaties.

Only Australia and New Zealand voted to have the court clause, which would guarantee certain fundamental freedoms, inserted in the treaties. Russia, White Russia, Poland and Ukraine and Greece abstained. The Australian delegation immediately served notice it intended to raise the issue again.

In the Italian political and territorial commission, Dr. Ales Bebler of Yugoslavia moved into the third chapter of his explanation of Yugoslav demands for more territory from Italy with a long statement asserting Yugoslav's historical and ethnic right to complete possession of Venezia Giulia and disputed Trieste.

Ask for Plebiscite.

Delegates from the Ukraine and Czechoslovakia supported the Yugoslav contentions, while the Italian embassy in Paris announced that Italy had asked for a plebiscite in Venezia Guilia to settle the disputed border question, which is scheduled to come before a sub-division holding a night session tonight.

Yesterday the delegates added night sessions to the present two-a-day schedule in an all-out effort to complete their work on five peace treaties by Oct. 20.

Attainment of such a goal would clear the international slate for a possibly delayed session of the United Nations General Assembly in New York on Oct. 23.

Meetings were scheduled for 9:30 tonight by a sub-commission of the Italian economic commission studying reparations and another subcommission dealing with the ticklish question of the future of Trieste.

Target Date Fixed.

The Oct. 20 target date was fixed by Secretary General Jacques Foucque du Parc before the Big Four foreign ministers council recently. If the treaties with Bulgaria, Finland, Hungary, Italy and Romania are drafted by that date — less than three months from the date the conference opened on July 29 — the Paris conference will have lasted only half as long as did the 1919 Versailles conference at which treaties were written for Germany, Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria.

So eager are many delegates from the 21 victor countries to make speed that it was even suggested in one commission yesterday that speakers "think before they speak," remembering that every official statement made, no matter what its length, must be subjected to two time-consuming translations.

FOUND BOY CHAINED

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 11 (AP) —Kinz E. Wiltse faced charges today of contributing to the neglect and delinquency of a minor after police said his 13-year-old son, James Wiltse, was found fastened with a 20-foot chain in his yard.

Police said the boy was found with a log chain locked around his ankle and tied to a sewer pipe. The boy told officers his father "was right because I had left home after mother told me not to." The father was released on bond.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Sept. 11—(CP)—Synopsis at 7:30 a.m.—Temperatures fell sharply in southern Ontario during the night as cold air moved in from the northwest to replace the warm humid weather of Monday and Tuesday. Still cooler weather covers Northern Ontario and the prairie provinces where, minimum, temperatures during the night were in the low thirties. A brief flurry of snow was reported from Porquis Junction just after daybreak. This cold air is moving southward and still cooler weather is in store for Southern Ontario.

1,000 R. Books Of Those Stolen In Toronto Found

Toronto, Sept. 11—(CP)—Close to 2,000,000 pounds of meat, 1,000,000 pounds of sugar and 500,000 pounds of butter are represented in the coupons in the new ration books that were stolen in wholesale lots from Toronto distributing centres in a well-organized series of raids early Tuesday.

Some 75 detectives— City, R.C.M.P. and Prices Board operatives—questioned 30 persons picked up overnight in an intensive police dragnet. An official said police are hopeful of an early break in the case.

One million of the new ration books had been allotted to the Toronto district for distribution this week, and a check-up of the raids on 14 Toronto churches, used as distributing centres, showed that 19,800 of the new books had been stolen. Later 1,000 were recovered in a car at nearby Cooksville. The owner of the car, checked by police, reported his motorcar had been stolen earlier. The man, Walter Camerchuk, was remanded in custody one week on a nominal vagrancy count.

The ration books were taken only from five churches where temporary offices had been set up for distribution to citizens. At the nine other churches where forcible entry was made, no books were taken, for one reason or another — in one instance two men were scared off bv approach of police and jumped 12 feet from a window, disappearing down a lane.

Police last night announced a special reward of $500 for information leading to arrest of the perpetrators of the wholesale thefts. Remaining stocks of new ration books had been removed to police stations for safe-keeping.

Prices Board officials said the stolen books probably will be sold in blocks to merchants who can use the detached coupons to cover purchase of rationed goods far in excess of their quota and, of course, black market sale to customers without coupons.

British Destroy Indian Villages In Order to Keep Inhabitants Busy

By WALTER MASON

New Delhi, India, Sept. 11 —(AP) — The crash of bombs, snarl of strafing Spitfires and the thunder of artillery have been echoing and re-echoing through the rocky defiles and inaccessible valleys of India's wild northwest frontier for more than 3 weeks.

Nearly a dozen villages have been destroyed or greatly damaged as punishment for the abduction of a British political agent. No casualties have been reported, said the reliable New Delhi sources who unfolded the story, but that is because the game is played according to rigid rules.

One is that several days notice by messenger or leaflet must be given villages scheduled for attack so that inhabitants leave with their belongings to watch in safety as their homes are blasted into bits.

New Delhi sources explained the intent is to destroy the habitations and watchtowers, often 50 feet high, of tribesmen whose building materials are extremely scarce.

This is in order "to keep them busy and out of mischief for the next few months."

The India office in London said it had been informed unofficially of three fatalities as a result of the bombing of northwest frontier villages.

The deaths, the spokesman said, occurred as the result of "accidental" bombing outside an area which had been duly warned of the impending "punishment."

The villages, he said, were in unadministered territory between Afghanistan and the Northwest Frontier provinces, inhabited by a race which he said, was "always out for loot and plunder."

The kidnappers demanded 60,000 rupees ($18,000) and some rifles as ransom. When this was refused, the Mahsuds asked for a loan of 110,000 rupees ($33,000) "to settle matters in their own way."

The loan was granted, the spokesman said, and Maj. Donald was released. Then British demands for reparations for the kidnapping were made. These he added, included a fine of 20,000 rupees ($6,000) 250 rifles, and 20 hostages "as surety for future good behavior."

When the tribesmen refused the inhabitants were warned by leaflets on July 31 that their refusal would entail air action. When there was no response, action was started Aug. 1 against six villages.

SURPRISE RAIDS DISCLOSE NUMBER PRECIOUS JEWELS

Carried Out in Germany And Stones Hidden By Nazis Before Country Surrendered

Frankfurt, Sept. 11 — (AP) — Surprise raids throughout the American and British occupation zones of Germany have uncovered millions of dollars worth of precious stones and metals hidden by the Nazis shortly before Germany surrendered, United States Army headquarters announced today.

The diamonds, gold, silver and platinum found in the raids were dispensed in hiding places by the Nazi government agency "Reichsstelle Fuer Edelmetalle" (Reich agency for precious metals) in an attempt to keep them from falling into Allied hands.

A spokesman for the United States Army Intelligence Division said it was "conjectural but conceivable" that the board might have been designed to finance "a resurgence of German Nationalist movements."

A total of 367 different places were raided in the two zones, and a $2,500,000 yield came from the first 79 places to tabulate results.

The army spokesman said the clue to the hiding places came from the typically German detailed records of the "Reich agency for precious metals" which were found last June in Berlin.

Asked why the raids were confined to the British and American zones, he said: "The only records we found pertained to dispersals in those two zones."

9-Pound Jersey Calf is Born Perfectly Formed

La Junta, Colo., Sept. 11 —(AP) — Birth to a Jersey cow of a perfectly-formed calf weighing about nine pounds—less than many human babies — was reported today by Phil K. Hudspeth, La Junta veterinarian.

He said the animal was only 17 inches high and four inches wide but was fully developed and had a good chance of surviving.

Jersey calves usually weight around 50 to 60 pounds.

FATHER BUTLER APPOINTED RECTOR-ADMINISTRATOR

Cobourg, Sept. 11 (CP)—Father P. Butler, who has been in charge of the Roman Catholic parish at Grafton, has been appointed rector-administrator at St. Peter's cathedral, Peterborough.

Ordained in 1923, he was assistant at Peterborough, later going to Cobourg, where he was assistant from 1926 to 1931. He also was 11 years at Kinmount, transferring in 1943 to Grafton.

National 24-hour Work Stoppage Requested By Seamen's Strike in U.S.

New York, Sept. 11 (AP)—The joint strike committee for the A.F.L. seamen's strike today in telegrams to William Green, President of the A.F.L., and Philip Murray, President of the C.I.O., asked for a national 24-hour work stoppage if the wage stabilization board rejects the unions' wage demands.

The committee also sent telegrams to Messrs. Green and Murray asking that they withdraw their representatives from the W.S.B. in the event of an unfavorable decision.

Max Korenblatt, chairman of the joint strike committee, said in New York the group met until early this morning, discussing and drafting the telegrams, which he said were approved by John Hawk, vice-president of the Seafarers International Union.

Earlier the striking unions had agreed to allow tugboats in New York harbor to resume towing barges carrying food, fuel and other commodities vital to life of the city's 7,500,000 residents.

As the greatest maritime strike in United States history tightened its grip on the national economy, Wage Stabilization Board met in Washington to debate behind closed doors whether to accede to union and ship owners' pressure and agree to a higher-than-pattern pay boost, or stand by its August 23 ruling that A.F.L. seamen must be content with the smaller raise won by C.I.O. sailors.

W. Williard Wirtz, Board Chairman, said the decision may come today or tomorrow.

NEGOTIATIONS IN STEEL STRIKE ARE "UP IN THE AIR"

Labor Minister Mitchell and C. H. Millard Have Spirited Exchange

Ottawa, Sept. 11. (CP)—Canada's 59-day steel strike settlement efforts today appeared up in the air after a rapid exchange between C. H. Millard, National Director of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) and Labor Minister Mitchell.

The exchange followed rejection over the weekend by Union members of government proposals for settlement of the strike.

The government had proposed wage increases of from 11 to 12 1-2 cents an hour, while the Union demanded 15 1-2 cents. The government offer was turned down by strikers at Sydney, N.S., Hamilton and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., by a show-of-hands vote.

Then Mr. Millard wired Mr. Mitchell. He said there were three points that stood between the proposal and settlement. They were removal of the differential under which Sydney workers get five cents less an hour than workers in Ontario, payment for statutory holidays and acceptance by the employers of arbitration on other issues. That wire left the inference that if those points were settled the straight wage increase, which had been considered the main issue, could be settled on the government's formula.

Went to Cabinet Meeting

Late yesterday Mr. Mitchell went to a Cabinet meeting. After the session ended he issued a statement saying that the government's proposal had endorsation of the Cabinet and was, in effect, the government's last word and that there should be a ballot vote by the strikers of the proposals.

Mr. Mitchell made public a wire which he had sent Mr. Millard but it made no reference to a ballot vote; that was included in an indirect statement attributed to him by the department. This quoted the minister as saying the government had exceeded its original 10-cent offer as a result of Mr. Millard's contention that steelworkers should be paid on a basis at least equal to that of packinghouse workers.

Would Equalize Rates

"The effect of the sliding scale increases for the lower paid men as now offered would be to equalize the rates between the steel plants and packing houses," Mr. Mitchell said.

Then the statement went on, without quoting the minister, to say:-

"Comment was made by the minister in respect to the published reports of the meetings and he noted that on the basis of the number quoted in the press releases the decisions were made by minority groups. At Hamilton the number at the meetings was stated to be 2,500 and at Sault Ste. Marie less than 1,000 and at Sydney about 1,500.

"Evidently the totals at the meetings were minority groups. On an issue of this kind, important to the nation as a whole, the opinion of the minister is that a more fair method of reaching a decision would be to take a ballot vote of all members of the bargaining unit and the department is willing to co-operate with the parties to the dispute in taking such a vote."

JINNAH BELIEVES INDIA STANDS ON VERGE CIVIL WAR

Says Only Way to Avert Strife by Skilful Diplomacy

Bombay, Sept. 11 —(AP)— Mohammed Ali Jinnah, Moslem League head, believes that India stands on the verge of ruinous civil war, a war to be fought with knives, stones and torches, the only weapons available to the Indian masses.

The only way to avert the coming strife, he declared in an interview last night, is by prompt, sincere and skilful diplomacy.

The recent bloody communal disturbances at Calcutta and Bombay, in which hundreds were killed, said Jinnah, whose league has refused to participate in the interim government charged with bringing independence to India, were "undoubtedly symptoms of the nearness of civil war all over India and of the pattern that such a civil war might follow."

"This," he continued, "is the sort of situation which breeds world wars."

Jinnah repeated his willingness to enter into negotiations for a "fresh start" on settlement of the Indian problem and complained of the way previous negotiations had been handled.

"We dealt with underlings in the negotiations with the cabinet mission and the victory," he said, "and these have led India to the present dangerous position. Now, therefore, our remedy must lie with those at the top of the British government."

He denied that he was negotiating with Russia or that he intended to do so. He branded any such story "nonsense."

Defence Counsel Surprises Witness In Murder Charge

Whitby, Sept. 11. (CP)—A surprise attack by defence counsel on testimony of a Crown witness highlighted yesterday's hearing of the re-trial of Lorne Cecil Harris, 23, charged with murder of Mrs. Audrey Lyons, also 23. The trial went into its third day today

Harris had been convicted previously of the strangle-slaying of the woman whose body was found early on Nov. 10 in her home at nearby Ajax. He had been sentenced to hang, but on appeal the conviction was quashed on a point of law and the second trial ordered.

Yesterday the Crown brought to the stand Carl Linton, 17, to tell of the events in Mrs. Lyons' home on the night of Nov. 9. Both Carl and Donald Linton testified there was dancing and that Harris, also at the party, had made improper remarks about Mrs. Lyons.

On cross-examination, defence counsel W. S. Greer, K.C., of Oshawa, suggested to Carl Linton that he had attacked Mrs. Lyons in her home a week previously, banging her head against the wall after Mrs. Lyons said she wanted Lillian Titus to stay and mind the children.

Linton vigorously denied the accusation. "Don't you think I tell the truth", he demanded. Defence replied "That's not for me to say."

EVICTION NOTICE SERVED ON 1,000 AS SQUATTERS

Barricaded Within Luxury Apartment Block in London's Fashionable West End

London, Sept. 11 — (CP) — A process server in black coat and striped trousers climbed through a ground floor window of Duchess of Bedford House today and served an eviction notice on 1,000 squatters barricaded within the building, a luxury apartment block in London's fashionable West End.

Stanley Henderson, secretary of the squatters' committee and a leader of the movement to commandeer unused dwellings, said he had been summoned to appear in court next Tuesday.

The squatters had posted sentries behind barred doors to resist eviction efforts.

Court action to evict squatters also was taken at Birmingham, where Sam Blackwell, secretary of the Midlands District Communist party, said "we will fight the squatters' case to the last ditch."

The seven-storey Duchess of Bedford House, in a secluded section of genteel Kensington, was vacant when the squatters moved in as a "direct action" move in the British house shortage.

Similar siege conditions were developing at the 25 or more other vacant buildings which squatters seized in widely separated areas of Greater London.

Privately Owned

The Duchess of Bedford House, privately owned but leased by the government, was the headquarters. A scattering of spectators stood across the street from the buildings from which only a single child emerged to walk a dog. A gaunt man in tweeds commented:

"It's revolution, nothing else. Seizing property, defying law and order—I never thought I should see it in England."

When two government employees reached the house seeking to remove furniture, they were refused admission by a sentry who shouted: "Nobody gets in or out." One government man said he was threatened with an iron bar.

Two husky women were posted as sentries in Fountain Court, an eight-storey apartment building on Buckingham Palace road where 60 families swarmed in last night in a Commando - like swoop over an iron fence.

Meanwhile, the Liberal News Chronicle accused the Communist party of exploiting the housing shortage in an effort to embarrass the labor government.

Say "Ghost" Rocket Seen Over Copenhagen

Copenhagen, Sept. 11 (AP)— Several persons said today they saw a "ghost" rocket speeding northwestward over Copenhagen late last night. They said it flew noiselessly at an altitude of about 1,000 yards and gave off a bright light.

FORCED LANDING FATAL

Toronto, Sept. 11 —(CP)— George Stark, Jr., of Beckersville, O., was killed yesterday when the aircraft he was flying crashed in a field near suburban Malton as he tried to make a forced landing during a heavy rainstorm. No decision, was announced concerning an inquest.

Missing Spicer Islands in Arctic Located, Photographed by R.C.A.F.

Ottawa, Sept. 11 — (CP)—The case of the missing islands has been solved at last.

They're just a tiny group, known as the Spicer Islands, lying 100 miles inside the Arctic Circle in Fox Bay, north of Hudson Bay, of no strategic value. But they have bothered northern navigators, off and on, for more than a century.

Yesterday the R.C.A.F. announced its No. 13 (photographic) squadron, based at nearby Rockcliffe, had located the Spicers, photographed them and pinned them down to latitude 68 degrees eight minutes north, longitude 79 degrees 10 minutes west.

Some authorities credit Captain Spicer, a whaling skipper of New Bedford, Mass., with their discovery late in the 19th century; others say they were named by Sir Edward Peary in 1822.

An old Marine Department report under the title "an expedition to Hudson Bay—1897," quoted Spicer as reading from his log: "On Aug. 7, was beset. What I took to be water ahead turned out to be reefs and low-lying land, now called 'Spicer's Island' —hardly seen from the decks at high water."

Captain Bartlett, on the Putnam Expedition to Baffin Island in 1927, sailed over the position and found nothing, but it is quite possible navigation difficulties of the times and of the area resulted in Spicer giving an inaccurate position.

Accident Occurs In West Toronto Yards of C.N.R.

Both Engine Crews Jump, Fireman Dies of Injuries

Toronto, Sept. 11 (CP) — A Canadian National Railways fireman received fatal injuries today in a collision of an eastbound passenger train and a freight engine in the west Toronto C.N.R. yards. Five other persons suffered less serious injuries.

The fireman, 22-year-old Carl S. White of Toronto, received a fractured skull and ribs in the crash. Both locomotives turned on their sides and two cattle cars, two express cars and a baggage car were derailed.

John Graves, 54, Toronto, engineer, undetermined injuries.

John Reed, London, Ont., engineer, possible fractured pelvis, fractured right hip.

Kenneth E. Vaughan, 44, London, Ont., fireman, multiple injuries.

Two other persons, both passengers on the Stratford-Toronto train, suffered minor injuries and were treated at the scene by doctors. Their names were not learned.

C. N. R. officials said the cause of the accident was not immediately known.

Passengers Transferred

All passengers on the 10-coach No. 10 from Stratford were transferred to a Canadian Pacific Railway train and taken to the downtown Union station.

Both main lines were blocked by the wreck and officials said the track to the Brampton subdivision would be blocked at least until tonight. Freight service to and from the sub-division will be suspended indefinitely.

Dozens of cattle were killed in the collision. The bodies of many lay along the tracks, while others kneeled on their forelegs, apparently killed by concussion.

Crews Jump to Safety

Police said the crews of the two engines would have been crushed to death if they had not jumped just before the impact.

One eyewitness said the locomotives "reared up like bucking horses and boxcars flew up in splinters." There was no explosion but small fires broke out. Firemen quickly extinguished them.

Toronto and Hamilton cranes were ordered to the scene to clear the track. Meanwhile, passenger trains between Toronto and Brampton will be routed by way of Burlington and Georgetown.

CONTRACTOR DIES

Stratford, Sept. 11 —(CP)— Thomas A. Pounder, 71, well-known in the contracting business here died in hospital last night. His widow, four sons, three daughters, survive.

SEARCH FOR MOTIVE

St. Louis, Sept. 11 —(AP)— Police searched for a motive today for the murder of Mrs. Irene England Elsing, attractive 27-year-old divorcee and mother of two children, whose trussed and weighted body was found floating in the Mississippi River five days after she disappeared from her home.

Important Issues Before Council Of United Church

Montreal, Sept. 11 (CP)—Important issues facing the United Church of Canada were to be placed before the church's 12th general council meeting in its first postwar session today.

Union with the Anglican Church in Canada, ordination of women, and election of a new moderator were on the agenda of the 250 commissioners gathered for their bi-annual meeting.

The question of joining forces with the Anglicans was described by Dr. Gordon A. Sisco of Toronto, General Secretary of the Church, as a question which would be "watched with great interest by church leaders on this continent and throughout the world." It has been debated also by the current Anglican Synod in Winnipeg, which decided to defer action until after the 1948 Lambeth conference.

Lively interest was shown in the scheduled discussion of ordination of women, placed on the agenda at the request of the Montreal and Ottawa conference of the church.

Dr. Sisco said the difficulties concerning women ministers were practical, rather than a matter of women's rights. First there was the reluctance of congregations to call women to their pulpits. Then marriage often made it impracticable for women to continue as ministers. If ordained women were forbidden to marry, it would result in a celibate ministry not applicable to men.

Election of a new moderator will take place tonight. Rev. T. W. Jones of Calvary United Church, Montreal, was mentioned as a strong possibility to head the church for the next two years.

Police Claim Nato "Taken for Ride"

Welland, Sept. 11 (CP)—Prosecution witnesses were called today as the trial of Mr. and Mrs. George Popowich of Thorold South, charged with the murder of Louis Nato, entered its second day before Mr. Justice W. Schraeder.

Nato, a Thorold township merchant, died in hospital June 22 from injuries received six days before. Police said he had been "taken for a ride" in his own car, beaten, robbed and left on a lonely side road.

Yesterday witnesses said they had seen Nato early June 17, half-dressed, his face bruised and bleeding, a length of rope twisted around his arms and legs and a piece of black cloth around his neck. Chief Constable Dennis Harold of Thorold township said he drove with Nato to the spot where Nato's car had been abandoned and found in the car a button from a woman's coat, similar to the button on a coat later found in the Popowich home.

During 1943 and 1944, the chief said, Mrs. Popowich was employed as Nato's housekeeper and the following year married Popowich. Nato had asked him several times to request the woman not to marry Popowich.

Nick Bugay, a tenant in Nato's home identified a pair of muddied trousers found behind Nato's house, as the pair worn by the deceased the day before the attack. Nato was not wearing trousers when seen by witnesses the night of the attack.

City and District News

INFORMATION SOUGHT ABOUT TWO FAMILIES

Judging from the number of inquiries which are being received the local police department will soon be called upon to establish a missing persons bureau, according to Police Chief Walter Probert. During the past two days two inquiries have been received as to the whereabouts of two families sought by out of town parties.

A Toronto party wanted to know the whereabouts of A. C. Dutton and family who at one time resided in the city and who were thought to have relatives here. The second inquiry was regarding the whereabouts of the Robt. Tarlington family. Mr. Tarlington was thought at one time to have operated a doughnut business on Front Street and was believed to have lived on Dunbar Street.

Any persons knowing the whereabouts of either of the two families are asked to communicate with Police Chief Walter Probert at the police station.

SILO FILLING UNDER WAY IN DISTRICT

With frost of the past week having frozen corn in the low lying areas to the north of Belleville, silo filling is already in progress in Hastings county, according to the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The corn crop generally is below average although there are a few even fields.

Some fall wheat has been sown in the county with farmers in Prince Edward county reporting the same. There is very little threshing still to be done.

Only light runs of tomatoes were reported by district canning factories last week with farmers reporting that continued warm weather is necessary to hasten ripening.

POLICE BLOTTER

Complaints of midnight marauders wrecking equipment at the West Belleville Playgrounds have again been received at the police station with request that officers investigate the matter. Wrecking of property at the playgrounds is a common occurrence, according to the person making the complaint.

The chief of police at Madoc reported that a 1933 Chrysler sedan was stolen in that village.

A slight motor accident was reported just outside the city limits on No. 2 Highway. The motor apparently had gone into the ditch and when police investigated was resting in a vacant field. One person in the car was booked on a drunk charge.

Restaurants Ask Relief From Conditions

Asking for relief from the hardship and discrimination caused by price fixation with respect to restaurant operation, representatives of the Canadian Restaurant Association presented a brief on Monday to Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

The restaurant association members pointed out that the industry was depressed and highly competitive at the time that meal prices were fixed. This was the result of ten years of acute depression and the vast majority of restaurants were operating on 1939 prices when the fixation occurred.

In illustrating their claims, association representatives pointed to a twenty-four per cent, rise in the cost of food from the last pre-war month to the control date and a further rise of another twelve per cent. in the following four and one half years. Added to this increased cost of supplies was the increased cost of help and the rapid labor turnover.

An expected reduction in the volume of restaurant business would quickly entail losses in the industry, it was claimed, with the lower income and borderline members expected to suffer to the point of bankruptcy before the industry as a whole reflected losses.

The present prices of meals are causing menu modifications and diet reductions to such an extent that there is a progressive deterioration in the meals being served to the public, according to the brief.

'World's Fair' At Shannonville To be Big Event

With $1,200 in cash prizes offered in the regular and special classes and with a top-notch program lined up for the entertainment of patrons, the Shannonville "World's Fair" scheduled for Saturday again promises to be one of the ranking fall fair attractions of its class.

Agricultural exhibits will compare favorably with other years, despite the dryness of the weather, according to Sid Fitzgerald, fair president, while there will be the usual livestock exhibit and racing events for the horse lovers.

Special attractions include catching the greasy pig, a tug of war between rural stalwarts representatives of two townships, a ball game between Read and Latta, baby show and the ever popular ladies' nail driving contest.

A parade of township school children, headed by the Trenton Boys' Band and the Belleville Kilties Band will head things off directly after the noon hour. In the evening will be a top-notch variety show featuring the Rhythm Ranch Riders from the Belleville radio station CJBQ and other talent. With the Rhythm Ranch Riders will be Miss Barbara Diment, their talented dancing and vocalist star. Ernie Bruce, well-known Toronto comedian, will also be on hand to delight his audience.

F.W. Campbell, Division Engineer At Terminal Here

F. W. Campbell has been appointed division engineer, Belleville Division, it was announced today. Mr. Campbell was formerly assistant division engineer of that division. He succeeds A. V. Johnston, recently promoted.

Born at Toronto, Mr. Campbell entered railway service as instrumentman at Capreol, in May, 1926, and the following year was promoted to assistant engineer at Hornepayne. In January, 1929, he was transferred to St. Thomas in the same capacity. Mr. Campbell served with the R.C.A.F. in the last war, enlisting in November, 1941, and upon discharge with rank of Flight-Lieutenant, resumed his railway career in January, 1945, as assistant division engineer at Belleville.

Junior Farmers Of Hungerford Make Plans

The September meeting of the Hungerford Junior Farmers was held in the Thomasburg I.O.O.F. Hall on Monday evening, September 9th. President, Don Sills, and Secretary, Carl Bateman, presided over a good attendance of club members.

The minutes of the last meeting, at which plans were being made for the trip to the Junior Farmers' Field Day at Maynooth, were read and approved. A discussion followed in connection with a proposed trip to the Royal Winter Fair, which will be held in Toronto from November 12th to 20th. It was moved by Don Martin, seconded by Stewart Elliott, that the club would sponsor the trip by train and that they would leave on the 15th and return on the 18th of November.

Don Sills announced the Provincial Public Speaking and Amateur Entertainment contest and suggested that there were a few in the club who would participate in the competition. The President also announced that the Junior Day at Belleville Fair was Tuesday, September 24th. Five members signified their intention of competing in the livestock judging competition on that day.

Mr. Harry W. Burns, Assistant Agricultural Representative for Hastings County, was present and gave a demonstration on type judging potatoes of the Irish Cobblers and Rural New Yorker groups. The boys then judged classes of Irish Cobblers and Katahdin, each a representative of the two groups.

Mr. Burns announced the Achievement Day for the Tweed Potato Club would be held at Tweed Fair on September 18th.

It was moved by Harry Martin and seconded by Parkyn Richardson that the meeting be adjourned.

Synod Votes Down Probe Industrial Investments

Winnipeg, Sept. 11.— (CP) — The Anglican Synod yesterday defeated by a vote of 100-56 a motion calling for complete investigation of the church's industrial investments with a view to discovering whether the companies concerned were operating "on Christian principles."

Rev. S. L. Pollard of Montreal, who made the motion said it was "in no sense a proposal of financial puritanism."

"Christian people," he said, "must gain a clear understanding of the principles of Christ and apply them to our social needs. It is merely a question of facing our responsibilities."

The church would have to gain full knowledge of the wages and labor conditions in companies in which it held shares.

The retiring treasurer, J. P. Bell, said he presumed the speaker referred to the Steel Company of Canada, whose employees now are on strike at Hamilton.

"Our list or eligible companies is the same as that of any insurance company," Mr. Bell said, suggesting there would be little reason for the church to investigate a situation "where a small group of employees" might be responsible for a strike.

Jackson Dodds, Montreal banker, said the motion was "the most impractical suggestion I have ever heard. It is absolutely impossible to obtain the information these men demand."

H. J. Keene, Toronto, said people would "resent very much" the church assuming that "a large body of our members" were not actuated by Christian principles.

"We are determined that China is not to be an international cockpit. Our country is no stage for the drama of international conflicts and opposing ideologies. Our mission, in co-operation with the United States, is to make the greatest contribution to world peace," stated China's No. 1 international statesman, Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo. He recently was transferred from his post as ambassador to London to the even weightier responsibility of representing his country at Washington.

Further Effort Made to Negotiate Differences With Nursing Staff

A further effort to negotiate the differences between the nursing staff of the Belleville Hospital and the Board of Governors was made this morning. Vice-President Mrs. Jack Marshall and Mrs. W. C. Mikel, of the Women's Christian Association arranged for a meeting between committees of the nurses and Board.

At the time of going to press there has been no word received as to progress in settling the dispute.

Last night Dr. M. E. Stalker, medical inspector of hospitals, met with the Board of Governors while Miss A. M. Munn, director of the division of nurses and Miss Mastin, president of Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario met with the nurses and later with the Board.

The situation is critical in the hospital with seven obstetric cases admitted during the past day adding to the difficulties. Women with nursing experience are urgently needed stated - the administrator, J. G. Barclay today. He asks that volunteers get in toch with Miss Horton or himself at the earliest possible moment.

At the present 31 nurses are still away from duty which leaves the depleted staff vastly overworked to give patients only the best of care possible under the circumstances.

Deputy Police Chief Harman Honored On Eve of Retirement From Service

Tangible appreciation to a retiring member of the Belleville police force was tendered to Deputy Chief Arthur Harman Tuesday evening by members of the force, city officials and representatives of the local Bar Association when friends and associates gathered at the police station to make him a presentation.

Deputy Chief Harman last evening retired from the police force after serving approximately forty years as a city official. The retiring official was presented with a wallet and purse of money, while Mrs. Harman was the recipient of a bouquet of roses.

Police Chief Walter Probert acted as master of ceremonies for the presentation program which took place in the city court room. Magistrate T. Y. Wills made the presentation to Mr. Harman, while Miss Mary Butler presented the roses to Mrs. Harman. The presentation was arranged largely through the work of Sgt. Clarence Arnott.

Tribute to the retiring police official for his qualities as a police officer and wishes for a happy retirement were paid by Mayor Frank S. Follwell, Robert Pringle, representing the local Bar Association; R. D. Arnott; Acting Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson; Constable Ervine of the Ontario Provincial Police; Miss Mary Lloyd; Harry Stock, city treasurer; T. D. Ruston, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society; Alderman "Twig" Woodley; ex-Alderman Thomas "Derby" Jeffrey, and Cpl. Speers of the R.C.M.P.

Born in London, England, the former deputy chief came to Canada in 1906 and the following year joined the Belleville city police as a constable at the salary of $450 per year.

"This turned out to be a steady position," related Chief Probert. "He worked twelve hours a-day, seven days a week and without a vacation period."

Efficiency as a police constable was readily recognized by the then chief of police and in 1910 Mr. Harman rose to the rank of sergeant, a rank which he held until 1942 when he was promoted to the rank of deputy chief.

Jurors Who Found Man Guilty Now Ask Parole

Stratford, Sept. 11 —(CP)— Members of a jury, which in October, 1940, found James Crawford, Prospect Hill farmer, guilty of manslaughter, yesterday forwarded a signed petition asking that the man be released from prison on parole or ticket-of-leave.

Crawford was sentenced to 15 years in penitentiary when the jury reduced a charge of murder to manslaughter. He was being tried for murder in the shotgun slaying of Amber Carter, Blanchard township farmer.

Eleven members of the jury, headed by foreman Ald. J. H. Rodgers of Stratford, are now living and all have signed the petition which was forwarded to M. F. Gallagher,., K.C Director of Remission Branch, Department of Justice, Ottawa.

A covering letter accompanying the petition said the members of the jury believed the sentence was too stiff as the man was acting "under the greatest provocation."

Crawford, 41, at the time of the trial, said he thought nothing of his wife and Carter being together frequently until he learned that they lied to him about where they had been on one occasion. At his trial he said he befriended Carter when Carter's house burned down in 1939. He gave him clothes and helped him hebuild his house.

One night he returned home to find his wife and Carter in the bedroom of the Crawford children, Crawford testified.

When he passed sentence, Mr. Justice J. C. Makins told Crawford: "We are all sympathetic with you, but I cannot overlook the main fact . . . that you went there deliberately to shoot this man."

Alderman Joseph Rodgers, foreman of the jury, said last May the petition was being prepared in response to a direct appeal fsom Crawford, now a "trusty" at Kingston penitentiary.

Obituary

A. W. TAYLOR
(Gananoque)

Gananoque, Sept. 11—(CP) — A. W. Taylor for many years associated with the industrial life of this town, died suddenly here late Monday night. Born at Corbyville, he was a graduate of Albert College, Belleville.

He came to Gananoque in 1900 as general manager of the Parmenter and Bulloch Company, a position he held for over 38 years. He held an advisory job on the executive for five years after retiring from the firm.

At one time he was president of Leeds Conservative Association.

Burial will be at Belleville Thursday.

LATE MRS. HANNAH HITCHINGS
(Ameliasburg Township)

The funeral of Mrs. Hannah (Hayward) Hitchings, wife of Mr. James Hitchings, 1st concession of Ameliasburg township, was held Tuesday afternoon from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street. The service in the chapel and at Hillier cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Arthur Smith, Rector of St. Thomas' Church.

The bearers were Donald Dempsey, Gordon Dempsey, Haviland Hubbs, Alex. Johnston, Charles Bentley and Ernest Russell.

Says Figures Wrong

(At Hamilton, Eamon Park, Publicity Director of the U.S. W.A., issued a statement saying Mr. Mitchell's figures were wrong and that "approximately 7,000 of the 12,000 on strike participated in the vote at the three mass meetings.")

In effect the minister offered to conduct on a voluntary basis the type of vote which he was authorized to take by an Order-in-Council passed some 10 days ago.

The wire went on to say that the union's demand for payment for statutory holidays not worked, and double pay if they were worked, would be submitted to the companies. The Sydney five-cent differential would be dealt with by the National War Labor Board.

The wire concluded: "On the question of arbitration the government has acceded to your request by recommending and requesting that the parties refer certain questions to arbitration. You are aware that it is not the policy of the Canadian Congress of Labor (with which the steel union is affiliated) nor the policy of the government of Canada to enforce compulsory arbitration."

SEAMAN WINS MEDAL

Canberra, Australia —(CP)— The Governor-General of Australia has awarded the British Empire Medal to an Australian merchant seaman, Jack Sheather, who navigated a 25-foot open boat 2,500 miles across the Indian Ocean with 47 survivors of a torpedoed ship. Sheather said that although 47 began the voyage only 10 were alive when they reached Madagascar on July 28 last.

WOMAN'S LIFE SAVED

Auckland, N.Z. —(CP)—Shortage of coal has resulted in no gas being available for cooking in many towns for several hours a day. An emergency call in Auckland resulted in the supply being turned on for three minutes during an "off" period to save a woman's life. She was admitted to hospital in a critical condition and an immediate blood test requiring an intense gas flame was essential.

IN MEMORIAM

FLUNDER — In loving memory of Edward W. Flunder, dear husband of Nellie Flunder, who passed away suddenly September 11, 1942.

The face I loved is now laid low,
The loving voice is still;
The hand so often clasped in mine
Lies now in death's cold chill.
I often sit and think of him
When I am all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.

—Always remembered by his Wife and Family.

RUSHLOW — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Gunner Arthur Rushlow, who died September 11th., 1944.

God called him home, it was His will,
But in our hearts we love him still.
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.

—Fondly remembered by Father, Brothers and Sisters.

RUSHLOW — In loving memory of a dear brother, Gunner A. S. Rushlow, killed in action in Italy, September 11th., 1944.

War clouds darkened our skies of blue,
Men were needed, you answered, too,
And now you sleep 'neath foreign skies,
Among your comrades who gave their lives.
Sleep on, dear brother, our world is free.
I trust in God, it will always be,
And may you have peaceful sleep,
While I, your sister, your memory keep.

—Lovingly remembered by sister, Nora, and Jack Potts and family.

Kiwanis Camp Director Outlines Future Plans

The opportunities afforded at the Kiwanis Fresh Air Camp at Roblin Lake and the benefits in the years to come were outlined to members of the Club at their weekly luncheon at the Hotel Quinte on Tuesday by Frank Stevens, camp director and who has been engaged to continue his work with the boys and girls that attended the camp through the winter months at Kiwanis Centre. The speaker was introduced by Aubrey Coe, who was chairman of the Camp Committee this season and Kiwanis appreciation was suitably expressed by Jack Wood. Mark Vanner presided at the luncheon, Vic White led the singing and Leo B. Riggs was at his old place at the piano.

Mr. Stevens thanked the club for the opportunity to serve, the merchants who so gratefully helped out when foodstuffs became a problem and to all the Kiwanians for the special help that was given. Praise was bestowed on Mrs. Stevens, who endeared herself to every child who visited the camp and who will assist her husband in the work at the Centre this coming Fall and Winter. In his address Mr. Stevens made certain recommendations to the Board of Directors and also appealed for help in the formation of a Big Brother Movement. More than the required number asked for accepted the challenge and will act as a big brother to some needy child.

In addressing the meeting Mr. Stevens said in part.

"The Camp this year was more successful than last year. Around 500 children passed through this Camp. Over 300 of these were needy children. The reason for a successful Camp was that more workers were provided and so more work could be done. You have an annual investment of around $20,000 in your camp. All that is vitiated unless you provide adequate workers. People who come to camp and do not get paid do just as much as they wish to do and no more and if you bring pressure on them they resent it. But a person who is paid does his work without resentment and more is done.

Wants Adequate Staff

"So I suggest that you secure an adequate staff and pay them an adequate wage and thus your annual investment will be safeguarded and not wasted by a lack of expenditure in the proper place. For $150-$175 a month I can secure an adequate staff, ready and trained for any emergency. If you wish I will engage them now for next year.

With a larger and better staff this year we were able to launch out into new fields of handicraft. We did not neglect the other sides of camp life. We had softball, volleyball, soccer, Borden ball, swimming, boating, races, hikes, wiener roasts, etc. Our new work was in the field of handicraft.

Does Not Exhaust Possibilities

"This does not exhaust the possibilities of handicraft, it only shows what a good staff of counsellors can do in a camp.

"We had less trouble and no homesickness in two camps. So much for the past Summer, now for the coming Winter and its work.

'It is my plan to use the Centre or any other available place to develop the hobbies and talents of the children who were out at camp and any others who are interested. To do this hobby clubs will be formed—clubs where children can learn useful things such as these you have seen, and others such as wood-carving, aircraft modelling, toy making; also sports such as hockey, boxing, bowling, wrestling, badminton. Also such other activities as checker tournaments, chess clubs (for which I already have a patron who is putting up a cup.)

"And that is primarily the reason I came here. Not just to show you what the children have done, but to invest your help that they may do better things than these. I need more sponsors than the above. It is good advertising for you and for the club. I need 18-20 men here and now who will take a personal interest in some boy. I need you men now for the devil finds work for idle hands to do. I already have a ladies' organization lined up which is going to be big sister to some 23 girls who have only one or no parents. All you men who are willing to take on work such as this, and I warn you it will be hard work at times, please sign this sheet I am going to pass around.

300 Needy Children

We had around 300 needy children at camp this year; 23 girls were from broken homes, by which I mean one or both parents dead or divorced or deserted; 15 boys were from broken homes; 9 boys had been in trouble with the police, minor faults usually but showing a bad tendency.

Special Cases

"Four special cases need immediate attention. One boy cannot speak at all. His brother speaks poorly and needs medical attention. One girl needs her eyes looked after and one is a consumptive in need of care and help. These are specials and must be treated as such.

"If I can get the names of 20 men here today who will be a Big Brother to some needy boy we can work together to help these needy unfortunate boys. This work will grow as you put yourselves into it. All to the honor of your Club and the promotion of better citizens in Belleville."

Teamsters Union Asked by Mayor To End Walkout

New York, Sept. 11 — (AP) — Mayor William O'Dwyer, predicting the possibility of violence if the paralyzing strike of 25,000 truck drivers continued, appealed today to Daniel J. Tobin, head of the A.F.L. Teamsters Union, to assume control of the striking local and negotiate an end to the walkout.

The mayor's demand for intervention by Mr. Tobin came as the 11-day old strike affected even greater stricture in the city's economic life, bringing widespread industrial layoffs, emptying many drug stores of supplies, halting all beer deliveries and resulting in an embargo on railway express shipments into New York.

The Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce telegraphed President Truman that there would be an almost complete stoppage of industrial production in that borough by the end of the week if the strike continued. It suggested immediate intervention by John R. Steelman, director of war mobilization and reconversion.

"Hundreds of plants in Brooklyn alone have already been forced to suspend," the Chamber said.

William Mapel, vice-chairman of the Publishers Association of New York City, said that several of the city's newspapers would have to stop publication next week if the strike continued.

Deliveries of coal to the city already were 60 per cent below normal, Herbert F. Pfaff, regional representative of the Solid Fuels Administration, reported, while a spokesman for the giant garment industry said widespread layoffs already had begun.

A wave of buying stripped grocers' shelves of canned goods and other staples.

SHERIFF HAS HOUSING PROBLEM

Keyser, W. Va., Sept. 11—(AP) — Sheriff James Dixon of Mineral County found himself up against a strange problem after he arrested Oscar Cosner last week on a charge of murdering his wife. A flood of telephone calls poured in from citizens eager to rent the Cosner home.

MODERN NAVY CAN SURVIVE ATOMIC BOMB

But Some Adjustments Needed for Protection of Ships and Personnel Against Current Model

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

New York, Sept. 11.—(CP)—Both Bikini bombs, in the air and under water, showed that man has not yet built a warship that cannot be sunk by either kind, and that he is no yet sure of an atomic bomb that certainly can sink one more than a mile away.

Next spring's bomb, about 3,000 feet beneath the surface of the Pacific, may increase the known distance at which warships can be sunk. But even in that case, there may be a knotty engineering problem of how to sink a bomb to that depth before a smart naval captain can run his fast ship out of range.

Unless the depth bomb greatly exceeds present expectations, navies will be able to continue to operate in an atomic war with alterations in designs and tactics. This applies to present size bombs. Some day they will be bigger.

The first protection is distance. The atomic bomb's destructive power falls off very rapidly with distance. There is no mysterious force of nature that amplifies this destructive power.

Dispersion is the first antidote against atomic bombs. Dispersion is far easier at sea than on land. In fact, the normal dispersion of warships in the second Great War, whether in harbors or at sea, would protect most fighting ships from being sunk or put out of action by any one bomb.

Must Meet Three Tests

Future warships will be designed to meet three atomic bomb conditions. One is blast that can twist inch-thick steel of present strength at half-a-mile, but will not crumple present armour plate at that distance. Another is flash heat that melted some of the top structures of ships within a thousand feet at Bikini Lagoon. This melting damage was not serious, but the flash effects on topside personnel would have been crippling with present naval design. The third design problem is to meet radioactive rays, something new in warfare. This probably will involve both design and tactics.

One obvious approach is a structure with somewhat the cigar shape and design of a submarine. Modern submarines essentially are one hull inside another, built to resist pressure. That shape and structure also is well adapted to resist to some extent the enormous pressure put on ships by atomic bomb explosions.

Even if this basic design principle is not adopted, it is likely to be approached in appearance by hoods over the tops of warships to protect personnel. Hoods need not cover the big guns which apparently were unscathed at Bikini. Even small guns down to 20 mm. were not visibly damaged.

What this protection will be made of is problematical. The way that tank tire treds withstood both heat and blast without even slight signs of damage on the Bikini target ships, suggests that for some purposes something besides steel may be used for hooding.

None of the construction problems appears insoluble. But no construction now predictable is expected to save a warship that gets either a direct hit or a near miss from an atomic bomb.

MAY DELAY ACTION OF BRETTON WOODS

Both New Zealand Parties Split on Ratification

Wellington, N.Z., —(CP)— Although only a few weeks remain before the New Zealand House of Representatives adjourns for the general election campaign, no indication has been given by the government that it intends to have the Bretton Woods monetary agreement considered this session. New Zealand is one of the nine nations out of a total of 44 represented at Bretton Woods which still has to ratify the agreement.

To retain the rights of an original member it must join the International Monetary Fund and International Bank by December 31. Prime Minister Peter Fraser has said that nothing will be done to ratify the agreement without consulting parliament, but when asked whether the matter would be brought forward this session he has been non-committal.

Undoubtedly one of the reasons for the delay is that the Labor government is divided within itself on many points in the agreement. Lobbyists think that if the matter was brought forward it would be approved by parliament, but only with the support of some members of the opposition, which is also divided on the subject.

Government leaders are thought by observers in Wellington to favor ratification. Finance Minister Walter Nash said recently that as Britain had accepted the agreement, New Zealand could scarcely stay out. There is, however, a body of Labor members, known commonly as left-wing, or money reformers, who oppose ratification.

Opposition Leader S. G. Holland has said that the Bretton Woods agreement could strangle the economic progress of the country. Several prominent members of the party support him, but a strong and influential group has been campaigning for ratification of the agreement and many observers think they would vote with the government if it tabled a motion in this direction.

Thrilling Elephant Ballet Featured With Circus

JEAN EVANS, alluring queen of the white tops, poses with Old Margaret, matriarch of the Clyde Beatty elephant herd coming to Belleville tomorrow.

A spectacular and thrilling elephant ballet, "Jumbos on Parade," in which a bevy of lithe, lovely, and talented girls present three rings of ponderous pachyderms in new and surprising mass military formations is among the new trained animal features of the Clyde Beatty Trained Wild Animal Circus coming to Belleville tomorrow, the one day only, at the Station and Cemetery street grounds.

Presenting a sharp contrast to the rugged bulk of the performing beasts, the dainty feminine stars exemplify agility and precision as the elephants step with apparent clumsy daintiness and awkward grace to the blare of the circus band.

Symbolizing the circus more than any other animal, the elephants are indispensable in more than one way. They not only entertain with their ever appealing "trunkful of tricks," but earn their daily wages of hay and peanuts in helping raise the big top, spot the heavy baggage wagons, and dismantle the final night performance.

Appearing with some of circusdom's most celebrated features including Clyde Beatty, world's greatest wild animal trainer; Mrs. Harriett Beatty, daring feminine star of the steel arena; the Flying Concellos; Ala Ming, genius of the tight wire; the Great Olveras, and Jack Joyce's display of super horsemanship, the elephants will be seen twice daily at 2:30 and 8 p.m. Doors to the circus menagerie and horsefair open at 1:30 and 7 o'clock.

Reserved seat tickets on sale tomorrow, 10 a.m. till 5 p.m. at Pauley Drug Store.

SILENT APPROACH BEST FOR POLICE

Eynsford, Kent, England, Sept. —(CP)— A stealthy approach is more desirable in a policeman than raucous speed, the Eynsford parish council decided, and recommended that the local constable change his mortorcycle for a bicycle.

In the "good old days" the policeman went silently through the village streets at night on an unlighted bicycle and no one could hear or see him coming but "now you can hear his starting up his machine in the next village and the crooks lie low until they hear him disappearing again," members said.

"A Priceless Hinge of Pure Gold"

Viscount Montgomery, hero of El Alamein, has bidden Canada farewell and is now on a short visit to the United States where he will meet General Eisenhower, who was in command of the Western Allied Armies on the Western Front. Everywhere he went throughout Canada he was cheered to the echo and feted with all the demonstrations of admiration and appreclation by the people of the man who was able to render so great service to his King and the Empire and the world. The General delivered a number of timely addresses on the problems of the post-war age, the question of training in the army and on the great question of the security of peace.

His visit to Canada was a triumphal progress from coast to coast and return and his last stop was appropriately at the famed citadel of Quebec, from the airport near which he left on a flight to West Point to begin a tour of military installations in the United States. No greater honor could be shown this hero of democracy than was shown him by the people of Canada.

He had said on arrival that his aim was to try to catch the spirit of Canada and he was able to make wholesome comments on various questions. He everywhere paid Canada high praise as a strong shield against any possible new outbreak of trouble in the world. In that partnership he saw the spirit of Canada poised, "a hinge between the Old World and the New —a priceless hinge of pure gold." That is a profound tribute to the place that Canada holds in his mind and heart and the reference to Canada as a golden hinge is one that will live in memory of Canadians. To match that expression one has to go back three centuries to the great work of the seventeenth century, "Paradise Lost," by John Milton, who refers to the golden hinges of the gates of Heaven:

> "Heaven open'd wide
> Her ever-during gates, harmonious sound
> On golden hinges moving."

If that was in the leader's mind, and it no doubt was, it surely is one of the most graceful tributes and honors ever bestowed upon a country by a departing guest — the prophecy of so high a destiny. That he saw as the spirit of Canada and that is the ideal to which Canadians must direct their thoughts and actions. When therefore the renowned Field Marshal finds that this is the spirit of Canada, this country must feel greatly honored by these words. Canada can never forget the visit of Viscount Montgomery.

Toll of Diseases

Public attention at this time is focused on poliomyelitis and parents and others are advised of precautions to be observed.

Attention is also called to the toll of life which other diseases, known as preventable, have taken in Canada. For instance whooping cough took the lives of 457 last year, which is more than poliomyelitis which claimed 24 deaths, scarlet fever which took 79 lives and diphtheria which claimed 270. The means of combatting preventable and partially preventable diseases are not taken up one hundred per cent by the people. Toxoid has been given high place for saving lives from diphtheria, there is a whooping cough vaccine said to be effective in 80 cases out of 100 and scarlet fever's immunizing agent is said to be 80 percent effective. In these diseases science has gone far and there are hopes that means of compatting poliomyelitis will be found.

The Security They Fought For

Ten men who went through the American Civil War attended a convention a few days ago. Eighty years ago there were 300,000 of these men who attended the first assembly of the Grand Army of the Republic at the close of the struggle. To have lived to this day means these ten veterans of the long ago in the sixties are now patriarchs. They range in age from 97 to 103 years.

There are veterans of other wars, many thousands of the veterans of the First and Second World Wars. The veterans of the latest war form the largest body of any such group for never in history was it so necessary or possible to have armies as powerful as they were in the war against the aggressive Germans which closed only one year ago.

Veterans of the latest struggle will in their peacetime occupation make a worthwhile contribution to the life of their countries. So did the men of the First World War.

But no times have demanded so great a service as this present post-war age with its vast problems of making the peace endure and of creating a warless world of understanding.

Speaking of the "incalculable national energy of the United States which has gone into the making of war, into the destruction and waste of war — to say nothing of the lives lost and broken," the Ottawa Journal remarks that "if all this manpower and money and energy could have gone into the making the United States a better land for its people, to making life happier and more comfortable and not only the United States but all countries, we should see a different world today."

Democracy is making a great effort today to preserve all the gains won through the sacrifice of the strength and courage of the world to assure the coming ages that there will be no more war with its tragedy and waste. The democracies will keep up their effort tirelessly and relentlessly in this cause of helping to create this understanding world. That this happy culmination will be realized and assured to mankind in the immediate or near future is the hope of democracy so that the great army of war veterans of this latest strugle will see realization of man's assured hope and guaranteed in the laws and codes of all nations.

Puss

It was recently proposed in London to lay out a garden as a memorial to Dick Whittington, thrice Lord Mayor of the city. There is no information as to whether his cat would be commemorated with him, but it surely has claims, as the most eminent British cat in history, to such recognition. It has, indeed, no competitors, unless we acknowledge that anonymous adventurer, who, according to reports current in the Nursery, declared, "I've been to London to see the Queen."

It may be objected that Whittington's cat never existed; but in that case, as a fiction, it is still a rare and distinguished phenomenon, only to be rivalled by the Cheshire Cat or maybe "Puss in Boots." Dogs have been celebrated often enough in fiction, from "The Dog Crusoe" and "Owd Bob" to the canine heroes of Kipling and Jack London. But Puss — though Gray poked fun at her — is relatively unhonored and unsung. Perhaps London may be excused if it neglects this opportunity of paying tribute to Whittington's cat, for it seldom misses its chance when the pantomime season comes round.

Newspaper Facts

The extreme difficulties encountered by the daily newspapers in Shields, when both plants were bombed out within 10 minutes of each other, and circumvented by shifting to another locality without missing an issue, are typical of the behavior of the British press in wartime.

Radar aids used on airborne operations have helped deliver twenty-one million newspapers and nearly fifteen hundred tons of mail and other freight to British forces in Europe in the last six months. In fog or bad visibility bundles of newspapers or mail have been dropped "blind" with perfect accuracy by radar apparatus says Empire Digest.

London Letter

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London Sept. 11 —(CP)— Seeds of firewood floating through the streets remind Londoners that autumn is near and draw their eyes to ragged ruins left by the Blitz.

In the blackened holes of basements and up the slopes of shattered masonry, weeds climb thickly. All August the fireweed glowed, as much at home as among the charred logs of burned-out Canadian forest, and now replenishes itself by loosening its white fluff in the indifferent breeze.

Despite ambitious plans for rebuilding London, few have been put into effect nor will they for some time. The vacant spaces which passersby ignore are likely to remain so for years to come.

"We've no end of plans, all of which fit into an over-all scheme not only for London but for the whole country," said an official of the Ministry of Town and Country planning.

"But the first thing we have to do is to get people housed. Other reconstruction has to stand aside for that."

Some visitors to London express the view that the bomb damage is less than they expected. They might think differently if they became side-street wanderers, piercing the facade of buildings which stands intact or nearly so on most main thorough fares.

Fleet Street is typical, the old and new buildings which house newspaper, periodical and press agency offices coming through the war with no major damage. But step up one of its by-ways, the enrances to which are almost unnoticeable, and you come upon literally acres of devastation.

On the river side of Fleet Street, workmen wend their slow way among the ruins of the imposing new library of the middle temple, completing demolition of its upper parts and preparing for a temporary hall which will accommodate the 80,000 legal volumes kept in the country during the war.

One result of the devastation may be a trend of offices into the western part of London. Many big firms bombed out of the city found temporary accommodation in the Baker street area. Smaller satellite firms followed them. They may choose to perpetuate the new pattern when office building becomes possible, leaving to the weeds the littered sites along Old London's narrow by-ways.

Montgomery Had Frequent Brushes With Canadians

Toronto, Sept. 11—(CP)—The assertion that during operations in both Italy and France Field Marshal Montgomery had "frequent brushes of varying intensity," with both Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar is made in an article in the current issue of Maclean's magazine written by Col. R. S. Malone, who was Canadian liaison officer with Montgomery's staff.

Malone's article mentioned the incident in Sicily when Gen. McNaughton, then Commander of the 1st Canadian Army, was refused permission by Montgomery to land while operations were in progress. Previous reports have been published of this but Malone's article is believed to be the first to make mention of disagreements between Montgomery and Gen. Crerar, who succeeded Gen. McNaughton as Canadian Army commander.

The author declares that from the time of their first meeting in Italy Montgomery and Crerar started off by disagreeing. He charges that the failure of both men to see eye to eye continued throughout the Italian campaign and on into France.

"But there never was a complete rupture between Monty and any of the Canadians who dealt with him at the upper levels," writes Col. Malone. "Often when a blow-up seemed inevitable Monty swallowed his pride, suddenly forgot an offense or undertook to play the diplomat."

"All of these activities were unnatural to him (Montgomery) and the fact that they entered so largely into his relations with Canadians is, I believe, a striking testimonial to his high regard for us."

Col. Malone served in the Canadian Army from 1939 to 1945, leaving an executive post at the Winnipeg Free Press. The article consists of extracts from his forthcoming book entitled "Missing from the Record."

Col. Malone since has returned to the Free Press.

His article says that when Crerar was enroute from Britain to Italy to take command of the 1st Canadian Corps, Montgomery planned to put Crerar temporarily in command of the 1st Division. Montgomery's reasoning was that Crerar could get battle experience by commanding the battle-trained 1st Division and could take over as corps commander later on.

But Crerar arrived in advance of his headquarters to confer with Montgomery and immediately disagreed with him. "Further, Crerar announced that he did not intend to step down as a corps commander and take over command of a division even temporarily. Although I don't believe Gen. Crerar realized it, this stand dropped him badly in Monty's estimation.

"As Crerar was adamant, however, Monty gave way gracefully and for the first time I saw him allow his plans to be discarded. Unquestionably he yielded purely for the sake of continuing a happy relationship with the Canadian forces. His manner of dealing with problems of other nations was generally much different, in fact on many occasions very rude."

Incidentally Malone mentions Defence Minister Ralston's visit to Montgomery's Italian headquarters in 1944 with the claim that when Montgomery first heard of the impending visit, he made disparaging remarks about the defence minister as a "politician" and planned to dismiss him curtly in an hour.

Happily, this did not occur, and the two men quickly got to like each other, says Malone.

COMMON CAUSES OF ANEMIA

Let us hazard a mere guess that one case of weak or "watery" blood, anemia, out of a hundred in everyday practice, is nutritional anemia in the sense of lack of sufficient iron in the diet. The other ninety-nine cases of anemia will include perhaps one case of "primary" anemia such as pernicious anemia and ninety-eight cases of simple secondary anemia, secondary or due to some obvious or hidden cause.

The nature and cause of pernicious anemia is still undetermined although the present consensus of medical opinion is that pernicious anemia occurs when there is deficiency or lack of some substance which is required for maturation or full development of red corpuscles.

Seventy-five years ago physicians generally regarded inadequate assimilation of food as the cause, but that was only an assumption not based on any precise scientific investigation. Fifty years ago most physicians favored the theory that bacterial agents destroyed red corpuscles faster than the blood corpuscle factories in the body could produce them—the bone marrow, spleen. The famous William Hunter in the 80's thought pernicious anemia was due to oral sepsispoisoning of the body by absorption of bacterial products from pus-pockets, infected gums, decayed teeth. In my own early practice I favored that idea too, although I was unaware then that Hunter took that view. Twenty-five years ago physicians were inclined to attribute pernicious anemia to achylia gastrica (excuse it, please, but after all I'm a doctor and we do love to work in a touch of Latin occasionally, you know)—or in English absence or lack of gastric juice and particularly absence or insufficient secretion of hydrocholoric acid in the stomach.

Finally, just twenty years ago, Drs. Minot and Murphy demonstrated the value of liver as a remedy for pernicious anemia.

That was a great discovery for the butchers. Prior to that discovery the butchers had trouble getting rid of liver—you old timers will remember when a person who had the cheek to ask for it could get a pound or two of liver for nothing, and even some of you young squirts will probably remember when choice calf liver cost 10 to 15 cents a pound.

Just what the substance is in liver and in the lining, glands or cells of the healthy stomach, that prevents progress of pernicious anemia is still undetermined. Whatever it is it can be extracted and used in concentrated form to administer by intramuscular (hypodermic) injection or by mouth, if or when the patient will not or cannot eat enough cooked liver or take enough raw liver each week.

One of the best ways for the anemia patient to take liver was described by one of our readers. Buy fresh liver two or three times a week, keep it in refrigerator nearly or quite frozen. Chop into small pieces the amount of raw liver (raw is ten times more effective than cooked) your doctor advises you to take daily, wash it down with ice cold milk, and there you are—never even tasted it.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Alcohol Is a Narcotic

In one of your articles on the cause and teatment of alcoholism you mentioned narcotic alcohol. Our doctor has never heard of this and would appreciate your information as to just what it is and where it may be obtained. (R.S.)

Answer—Probably I said something like "the narcotic alcohol" —for alcoholic liquor, of course, is a narcotic, not a stimulant, in any circumstance.

Milk and Honey

Kindly send literature on the value of honey to a person who is anemic, also the value of milk to a person's health.

(Mrs. W. L.)

Answer—I have no printed matter about honey and milk. Get Dr. Mary Swartz Rose's Book "The Foundations of Nutrition" from your library—you will learn much about the health value of milk. In my opinion honey is as good as so much syrup or sugar for one who is anemic or for one who is not anemic I believe molasses particularly old-fashion molasses, not the stuff commonly called molasses today) is better for one who is anemic.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How are Uruguay and Paraguay pronounced?

Paraguayans pronounce the name of their country PAH-rah-gwy, while English-speaking people generally pronounce it PAIR-a-gwy. Uruguayans pronounce the name of their country OO-roo-gwy, while English-speaking people generally pronounce it YOU-ru-gway. But even in English the third syllable in both names is sometimes given the long i rather than the long a sound.

These republics took their names from rivers, which in turn received their names from native tribes. The exact meaning of the names is uncertain. Some authorities suppose that Uruguay is derived from Guarani Indian "uru," bird, and "guay," tail, and that the Uruguay River was called "bird's tail" in allusion to a falls in the stream that fanned out like a bird's tail. Others think the name literally means "river of birds" in the Charrua language. Paraguay, according to the accepted theory, is a Guarani phrase signifying "river of parrots." Whether the last element in the two names originally meant the same thing is not clear.

When what is now the capital of Paraguay was founded in 1537 by the Spanish it was called Nuestra Senora de la Ascunsion, Our Lady of the Assumption. The capital of Uruguay, founded as a city in 1726, was named San Felipe Y Santiago de Montevideo, St. Philip and St. James of Montevidio. There are two theories as to why the place was called Montevideo, the general meaning of which is "mountain view." According to one, a Portuguese lookout on a ship caught a glimpse of a hill in the vicinity and shouted, Monte vide eu! "I see a mountain!" According to the other, Montevideo originated in a combination of abbreviations in early manuscripts relating to the region. In Spanish the name is pronounced MOAN-tay-vee-THAY-oh; in English it is generally pronounced monn-ta-VIDD-e-oh.

The Jesuits established permanent missions in Paraguay in 1605. They gradually organized and armed the natives and for generations comprised a "super-government" in Paraguay. The last vestiges of the Utopian experiment of a Jesuit free state in Paraguay ended when the Jesuits were expelled from the country in 1769.

In 1814, soon after Paraguay's liberation from Spain, Dr. Jose Gaspar Rodiguez Facia became dictator and ruled the country until his death in 1840. He decreed that all Paraguayan men must wear hats so they could show proper respect to superiors by removing them. The dictator also forbade the utterance of his own name and required his people to refer to him only as "El Supremo" on pain of death.

Francia was succeeded by his nephew Carlos Antonio Lopez, who was succeeded in 1861 by his son Francisco Solano Lopez. Between 1865 and 1870 Lopez fought the combined military and naval forces of Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay. When the war started Paraguay had 1,337,000 inhabitants, when it ended there were only 106,000 women, 86,000 children and 29,000 men left in the country. Of 30,000 Paraguayan army and naval officers General Barnardino Caballero alone survived. The allist lost a million men. Virtually all farming, industry and normal activity in Paraguay was destroyed. This accounts for the fact that Paraguay later encouraged all sorts of immigrants to come to the country. There are some 60 colonies of various foreigners in Paraguay with a large measure of local self-government.

Communists Reject Chiang's Latest Truce Proposals

Nanking, Sept. 11 (AP) — The Communists today rejected Chiang Kai-Shek's latest truce proposal as unsatisfactory, dooming any immediate hopes of a political settlement of China's mounting civil strife.

Gen. Marshall, U.S. special envoy, communicated the Generalissimo's undisclosed terms for a country-wide armistice in a 2 1-2-hour conference with Gen. Ghou En-Lai, No. 2 Chinese Communist. Then Communist spokesman Wang Ping-Nan reported:

"We continue to demand unconditional cease fire. We will not accept any other conditions. The situation remains serious."

Coincidentally there were unconfirmed reports of sizeable air activity at the Communists' hitherto-deserted Yenan airfield, and of a frustrated government plot to seize Harbin, Manchuria, by simultaneous revolt from within and attack from without.

Ta Kang Pao (Strength Daily) dispatches reported 82 unmarked aircraft had landed at Yenan Sept. 4 and that 38 others had taken off from Yenan that day for undisclosed destinations. The Communists have no known air force. Observers here doubted the report.

Front-line dispatches showed government troops advancing steadily through scattered North China Communist zones—and within 40 miles of the Communist regional capital, Kalgan.

Search Spreads For Killer In Butcher-Slaying

San Francisco, Sept 10. (AP)—Tentative identification of the victim of a gruesome butchery-slaying gave police new leads today in their search for the killer and the place where the victim was dismembered.

The wife and brother of Ramon B. Lopez, 52-year-old carnation grower and wholesaler of San Leandro, Calif, viewed those parts of the mutilated body which were found Sunday night in an alley. On the basis of skin coloring, a mole, and peculiarly shaped toe nail, they said they were quite sure the victim was Lopez, whom they had last seen Aug. 29. When he left for San Francisco, a hotel clerk there said he last saw Lopez Wednesday.

Police said the dismemberment appeared to be the work of a sex fiend.

As police proceeded with their search of buildings in the downtown area where the packaged pieces of the corpse were found, they also sought to find the victim's clothes and the missing parts of the body—the head, hands, shoulders and upper legs.

The neatly wrapped packages containing other parts of the body were found by a group of boys leaving a theatre

Authorities said the skilled and painstaking job of dissection indicated a more sinister motive than robbery.

"This was motivated by some deep revenge," said one officer.

A state wide search was underway for a swarthy delivery truck driver, sought as chief suspect. A policeman had seen such a man and truck last Friday afternoon, when the man took two crates out of the truck and put them in the alley at the spot where the packages containing parts of the body later were found.

MARMORA

Large Bear Cub Seen Near Town

Marmora — Almost every day local motorists are afforded the chance of seeing a bear or cub in Marmora or Madoc townships. Evidently the dry season has affected their food supply. Old abandoned orchards show signs of Bruin's visits. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Gray were travelling from Deloro towards Madoc on the old highway on Saturday and when reaching what is termed the "Forty Foot Road" saw a fair-sized cub cross the road in front of them and amble down the side road leading south.

Certificates and Prizes Awarded

As a result of written diocesan cathechetical examinations held in all parishes of archdiocese of Kingston, June 9th., 1946, the following Marmora students of Sacred Heart parish were winners of certificates and prizes which were presented by Rev. H. J. Farrell at Sacred Heart church on Sunday. (Seniors): Theresa Doyle, Leo Forestell, Thomas Hulsmans, Carl Vincent Lynch, Marjorie Maloney, Mary Quinlan, D. Anne Reid. (Juniors): William Auger, Agnes Bedore, Audrey Black, Nita Dikun, William Ethier, Kenneth Hulsmans, Carol Johnston (Hon.), Joseph Maloney, Peter Nicholson (Hon.), Jane O'Neill, Donald Shannon.

Court Order Stops Electric Workers

Pittsburgh, Sept. 10 — (AP)—A court order, stressing the public interest and welfare, brought a quick end today — at least temporarily — to a strike of electric power employees which had threatened paralysis of an 817-square mile area embracing 1,500,000 people.

The order forbade any activities "which will imperil the lives, property, health and well being of the citizens."

Just as strikes were beginning to leave their posts to take up picket stations, Judge Walter P. Smart handed down the order directing the Independent Association of Employees of the Duquesne Light Company, to "rescind and recall any order declaring a strike." It enjoined the union from "interfering with the operation of any auxiliary equipment of Duquesne Light Company, the city of Pittsburgh or any other suppliers of power." It forbade picketing.

The order, directed against the company as well as the union, ordered officers and directors of the utility "to enter into bona fide negotiations with the Independent Association and to work out a sound and permanent labor policy which will prevent the recurrence of disputes between them and their workers." The company was told to "render adequate and continuous power."

The city of Pittsburgh and its health director, Dr. I. Hope Alexander, petitioned for the injunction as business and industry was beginning to curtail operations in preparation for an emergency.

The court's order came dramatically at the hour the strike officially got under way — 12:01 a.m., to enforce union demands for a master contract covering nine operating companies associated with Duquesne, and a 20 per cent wage increase.

Legal Action Will Be Taken to Regain House Possession

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 10 (CP Cable)—The Works Ministry announced today that legal action will be taken to regain possession of the Duchess of Bedford House, seven-storey apartment building occupied Sunday by squatters.

The invasion of private houses and apartments continued to grow, however, as squatters settled in a score of private dwellings and buildings. The movement spread to Ealing, middle class western suburb where the Communist party announced four families, totalling 20 adults and children, moved into the houses.

Summing up resentment of residents in the prosperous neighborhoods invaded in two wards, a well-dressed woman pointed to a washing that dangled from a line outside the stately Duchess of Bedford House, largest of the commandeered buildings, and said in tones of despair: "Look—nappies." (diapers).

All the squatters were cautioned by their leaders, who went scouting for new premises to take over, to do no damage to the "borrowed" lodgings, to live quietly and to sit tight.

WEDDINGS

HILL—MARACLE

Mohawk Reserve.—The Rectory was the setting of the wedding Monday, Sept. 9, of Mavis Kathleen, daughter of Mrs. Jacob Maracle and the late Mr. Maracle, and Clarence, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hill. The bride wore a street length dress of eggshell blue crepe, with shoulder bouquet and small marine blue felt hat. Mrs. Evelyn J. Maracle was matron of honor, wearing a teale blue dressmaker suit of botany wool.

Mr. Maurice Murray was groomsman.

The wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride, followed by a shower later in the evening in Shannonville Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill will make their home in Shannonville

DONNAN—JOHN

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Sept 4, at 10.30 a.m., at Enterprise parsonage by the Rev. K. J. Crawford, a former minister of Dorland charge, when Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hermon John of Dorland, became the bride of William James Donnan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Donnan, West Huntingdon. The young couple were attended by Miss Ruth John, sister of the bride and Mr. Evan Brooks, of Dorland.

The bride was attired in a light blue wool suit with matching accessories and corsage of gladioli. The bridesmaid was attired in a suit of pale green wool with brown accessories and corsage of yellow 'mums.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents to the immediate family. The rooms were tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers and baskets of gladioli. The bride's table was centred with a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake.

The young couple left on a honeymoon to Whitby, Toronto and Niagara. On their return they will take up residence at Dorland.

ROSLIN

Roslin Church Holds Special Services

Roslin—St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church observed their anniversary services on Sunday with services at 1 a.m. and 8 p.m. Plants and flowers adorned the front of the church. Special music for the services was given by the joint choirs of the United and Presbyterian churches.

The Rev. D. C. Hill, B.A., B.D., of Toronto, was the special minister for the day assisted by the Rev. Duncan of Kingston, both former ministers at Roslin.

At the morning service, Rev. D. C. Hill in addressing the large congregation present, took his text from the book of Revelations chapter 1, verse 8, "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending saith the Lord, which is and which was and which is to come the Almighty."

Rev. Hill served overseas in the chaplain services during the last war and was in charge of the Roslin charge for four years 1932-1936 and is at present in Toronto with his wife and family.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Wes. Rombough and family of Kingston spent a recent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Copeland.

The September meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Everett Geen.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gray were honored on the occasion of their thirty-fourth wedding anniversary on Thursday evening at the home of their daughter Mr. and Mrs. Orley Parks where a dinner party had been arranged in their honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg Easton, of Toronto, spent the Labor Day weekend with Mrs. H. Easton and Miss McCormick. Other guests at the same home were Mrs. Sayers and family from Bancroft and Point Anne.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Feted

On Friday evening the Anglican Church hall was the scene of a very happy gathering when friends, relatives and neighbors met in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elliott (nee Jean Howes) who were recently married. When all had assembled, Rev. B. Heywood called the gathering to order. Mrs. S. Colden read an address signed on behalf of the Roslin community and Mr. and Mrs. Elliott were presented with a gift of money for which they both very graciously thanked their many friends. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing with the Tracey orchestra furnishing music.

FINANCE NEW ARENA

London, Ont., Sept. 11—(CP)—City council decided at a meeting Tuesday to submit to the taxpayers the question of financing an all-purpose arena. If voters favor it at forthcoming elections the city will pay five yearly instalments of $75,000 and the federal and provincial governments will bear the remainder of the $1,200,000 cost.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Poetic Complaint from Reader

It may be hard to believe, but I frequently receive letters from girls who complain that their boy friends are too shy to kiss them. In all seriousness, they ask me what they should do to get a little more ardent attention from their escorts.

On the other hand, there are the girls who don't seem to have this trouble at all. Indeed, they seem to find themselves forced to fight off unwanted embraces whenever they go out with a boy.

From a girl who signs herself "A Reader" comes this letter:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I would appreciate it very much if you would print the enclosed poem in your column. I am in hopes that some fellows may read it and take heed.

"My girl friends and I have been discussing the problem and are at a loss to know what to do. Of course we can stop the fellows, but they should know, I think, not to expect to have a girl neck with them on every date.

"A Reader".

And here is the poem:

A Plea

Why does it have to be like this?
Why does a boy just have to kiss?
No matter the face, no matter the name,
Alone with a girl, they're all the same.
When driving along a road that's dark
His strongest impression is to park.
Maybe he likes the lipstick taste,
Or maybe he has some time to waste.
But time like air is warm and free
Whenever a boy's on a necking spree.

After the wrestling match is done,
Yon wonder who has really won.
Your lipstick is gone or smeared a lot,
A neat hair-do is all shot.
In the light he looks so queer
With lipstick smeared from ear to ear.
I'd like just once to meet a boy
Whose company I would enjoy—
A boy who would gain my respect
Just because he doesn't neck!

Well I hope this is going to do the trick for these poor girls. But frankly, my feeling would be that if, as this writer says in her letter, they can "stop the fellows", that approach would be more effective.

There are always going to be boys who like to see how far they can go with a girl. If she objects, they either think she is playing hard-to-get, or they want to see if they can overcome these objections. It makes some of them feel they are being strong "He-Men", amateur Clark Gables or Gary Coopers.

If these girls are serious in their dislike of "necking", it seems they should be able to make the boys understand that when they say no, they mean it. After all, they can always refuse a second invitation from a boy who has made himself obnoxious.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The meeting of the W.M.S. of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Claude Clarke on Thursday p.m., Sept. 5, with an attendance of twenty. The President, Mrs. Sam Elliott, welcomed the members and visitors. A letter of thanks for flowers and decorating the church for her wedding from Mrs. Fraser, the minister's daughter, was read and the donation enclosed thankfully received. After the business was completed Mrs. Saul McFarlane, group leader, took charge and led in the program from the Missionary Monthly, the subject being "India", closing with a worship service and prayer. Mrs. Elliott had charge of a travelling library containing interesting stories of Missionary work and adventure.

The W.A. meeting followed with Mrs. Stanley MacDonald president, in charge. Mrs. Robert McFarlane gave the Bible reading and Mrs. Saul McFarlane read Thoughts on the lesson. Minutes of last meeting were given by the Secretary, Mrs. Clarence Mastin, who offered her home for a sewing meeting. Mrs. Fraser also sent a letter of thanks and a donation to the W.A., which was much appreciated. Several expressed thanks for cards they had received and Mrs. Clarke thanked the W.A. for flowers and sympathy at the time of the death of her father, the late Noble Clarke.

The hostess was thanked by both presidents, for opening her home for the meetings. After the closing hymn refreshmentse were served.

Next meetings of both societies are to be held at the parsonage.

ST. PAUL'S W.M.S.

Stirling.—The Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's United Church held their monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. B. Thompson with a splendid attendance. The President, Mrs. Gordon Bailey, was in the chair. Mrs. Wescott, secretary, read communications received in the past two months. She reported ten cards sent last month and the visiting committee for July and August reported forty calls. Mrs. J. L. Good and Mrs. Wescott were chosen to be the visiting committee for the month of September. The Treasurer, Mrs. J. B. Thompson, presented a very satisfactory financial report and the convener for the 'Friendly Workers' Group' Mrs. Warren Preston, gave an up-to-date report of their work. During the business part of the meeting the W.A. decided to cater for the noonday meal at the Teachers' Convention to be held in October and they also made plans for a bazaar and afternoon tea to be held in December. Due to the absence of some members, only a few canvassers were appointed to look after the selling of Christmas cards. The program opened with singing and Scripture readings by Mrs. R. A. Patterson and Mrs. Preston, followed by prayer offered by Mrs. O. Stapley. The address of the afternoon was given by the pastor, Rev. A. M. Laverty on the 'Famous Men of the Bible'. He stressed daily reading of the Bible, which has proved to be a source of comfort and spiritual guide throughout the ages.

Mrs. R. B. Duffin voiced the appreciation of all to the hostesses, Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Morrow and also to Rev. A. M. Laverty and members of the committee in charge.

Lovely Are Lips That Laugh

Lipstick is a big help in making lips beautiful

By HELEN FOLLETT

WATCH your facial expression, Mrs. Beauty Seeker, because there are featured changes year by year. Do your creaming to keep your complexion smooth, tip-tip to keep the fibres firm, but do as much smiling as you can to retain youthful appearance.

Smiling keeps muscles on the uplift. A good facial exercise is found in smiling and unsmiling. Stretch the lips in a wide grin, then relax them.

The original contour of the mouth, of course, has much to do with its later development. Straight, firm lips on a good square chin, have a better chance to retain youthful lines than a mouth than curves downward over a small bony formation padded with adipose tissue. (That means you must mind your eating habits, if you are inclined to put on weight.)

The lipstick has been a big help in making lips beautiful. It gives accent to good lines and, if used cleverly, disguises those that are not so good. At first, only the faintest film was used, but as the girls got bolder, as the old die hards ceased their war against artifice, more vivid colors came in. They had their day and now the sisters are content with dark, natural tones.

When we learn more about health rules, pay more heed to them, we may no longer rely on the rosy pigment. With good digestion and brisk circulation the lips should cultivate their own lovely coloring.

Lip glow should be removed at bedtime when the celestial countenance gets its soapy washing and creaming and, after the cleansing, a white lipstick should be used or a scentless cream. Raggedly lips are a common trouble, especially in the winter season when they become chapped from cold winds.

It's About Time

IT'S ABOUT TIME to think of making a Fall suit. And if you are tall, it's time to consider this smart fashion. A bright color (blue, red or green) for jacket, hat and gloves. The same material but in black for the skirt.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

When Time Takes a Woman By The Throat

Some necks are more than merely neglected; they are downtrodden. A woman, though she may be an ardent if not hectic beauty quester, will make a pet of her complexion while she kicks her neck around—cosmetically speaking. Evidently she regards it merely as a convenient structure that supports her head. Necks don't get a scrap or a crumb when the creaming feast is on.

What does the back of your neck look like right now, gentle reader? I ask you. After a Summer of outdoor fun, it may carry a colony of freckles or streaks of tan, and it may be as rough as sandpaper. Now and then a family of blackheads may take up residence. At any rate it is a good idea to use a double mirror and take a backward look.

When creams and lotions are used lavishly on the face and the neck is omitted, the complexion can look like peaches and cream and the neck carry the hue of a lemon, if not the ruddier shade of the pumpkin. This color divorce is no beauty bargain.

The neck takes a lot of beatings, what with coat collars frictioning the surface and the sun blistering it in the silly season.

Then there's always old man Time lurking in the offing. He means no good. Fiddle-strings can appear almost overnight. Again, a woman may be at fault. She has made it a habit to carry her chin low, so that the tissues of the throat soften, have no firm muscles. Carry your head in a queenly fashion, even though the woman next door may fancy that you are putting on snooty airs. A well-balanced head— inside and out—is a big help in building attractiveness and personality.

If neck tissues have softened, and the skin is a bit too large and is falling into lines, make it a practice to use a massage cream lavishly. If you desire to put a check on the beauty budget, use toilet lanoline for the purpose. Rub up and down with flattened fingers. Keep fibres relaxed when doing this. A tense condition retards the beneficial effects of massage.

What Does The Back of Your Neck Look Like?

To combat the bronzed tints that Summer has brought, combine two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and the same amount of peroxide. Apply in the morning after the face-washing. Use a pledget of cotton for the purpose; let the lotion dry on. It is a mild and harmless bleach. Strong bleaches should never be used. They belong to that prehistoric period when grandma was a young matron, went in for skin peeling to beat the band Well, they used to say that a woman would sacrifice everything for her complexion, even her complexion. It was the ridiculous truth.

Fashion Flashes

THE UNEVEN HEMLINE is a sure-fire mark of a new Fall frock. Striped blonde satin is used for a handsome cocktail frock made with deep square neckline and short sleeves. A self shoulder bow is fastened by a rhinestone clip. The skirt is softly gathered from sides to front with hemline dipping in front to a sharp point.

Easy fashion to dress up an untrimmed frock for winter wear is via the fur belt route. Made to shine on any frock is a broad belt of snowy ermine fastened with a rhinestone-set gilt metal buckle.

Glorious new scarfs are ready for Autumn wear. A 36-inch sheer silk square is of smoke gray with a design that includes sleeping angels on crescent moons outlined with silver sequins. Multi-colored sequins outline stars. Nice as a headdress or for a blouse—easy with two such scarfs.

The luxury look reappears for the handbag. Rich black or dark brown suede is the medium used for a handsome handbag, a deep-oval flat pouch with a covered sunken frame. Stone-studded gilt metal tiara ornamentation shows just above the top of the bag.

Arms out to show off new dress up gloves. Sixteen-button-length black doeskin gloves are emblazoned all the way up with a scroll design in gold thread and gold sequins combined with amethyst, ruby and emerald colored stones.

There's applause—long and loud—for the return to favor of the casual hat detailed with profile brim. Gray felt makes a hat of this type fashioned with a moderately high, nicely draped crown that is banded with emerald green grosgrain which forms a series of loops on the down-pointing side of the medium brim.

GOOD MANNERS

When Staying at a Hotel

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please guide me in all the details to be observed while I am staying alone in a hotel early next month? I am a widow, sixty years old, and I have never before stayed in a hotel alone. Of course I have my reservation. Thank you for any help you will give me.

C. H.

When you arrive at the hotel the hotel doorman will greet you. Then either he or a porter or a bellboy will take your luggage into the lobby and wait with it near the registry desk. You go to the desk, give your name to the room clerk, and he will look up your reservation. Then the clerk turns towards you, for your signature, either the hotel registry book, or, as is the more general custom nowadays, a leather frame containing individual registration cards. If it is a book, you register your name and city address; if it is a card, there will also be on it a space for your street-address. You sign your formal name: Mrs. Thomas Robinson.

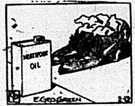
After you have registered, the clerk hands the room key to the bellboy, who, carrying your luggage, leads the way to the elevator. Arriving in your room, the bellboy switches on the light, or adjusts the shades, opens the windows if necessary, brings ice water if you wish. . . receives your tip (a quarter, if he carried one or two bags), and departs.

The hotel room telephone is the at-your-service friend that will bring you every kind of service the hotel provides. Ask the operator for "Room Service" if you wish to have food or beverages sent up to your room; for "Newsstand", for newspapers, magazines, books, stamps, theatre tickets; for "The Porter's Desk" for errands, and for information pertaining to luggage and travel-accommodations; for "Starter" if you wish to order a taxicab or car; for "Hairdressing" or "Beauty Parlor"; for "Valet" (which is, incidentally, pronounced val-let, not val-lay), for clothes pressing, cleaning, repairing; and for "The Desk" for inquiries about mail and any general questions. If you wish to be called at a certain hour, ask the telephone operator to do this.

A woman guest in a city hotel usually wears a hat when in the hotel dining-room. The exception is when she is wearing dinner dress or evening dress and is dining with a companion. A hotel conducted on the American Plan charges a certain amount a day or week. and this amount includes room and meals. The European Plan hotel charges for the room only, each meal being paid for separately, either at the time of the meal, or more usually, signed for and added to the hotel bill. The hotel restaurant procedure and tipping are what they are in any other restaurant.

The time limit for occupancy of a room varies in different hotels, but usually this is posted in the room.

When you are ready to leave, telephone the "Cashier" either to send your bill to your room or to have it ready when you come down. Telephone the porter to send for your luggage. Then you go to the cashier's desk, pay your bill, leave your key, and if you wish, leave a forwarding address.



Wet shoes should be stuffed with paper and coated lightly with neatsfoot oil. Allow to dry slowly at moderate temperature away from the light. Never put them beside a hot radiator or stove.

ST. LOUIS HOLDS TIGHT TO 2-GAME LEAD IN NATIONAL

Cards Defeat Phillies While Brooklyn Dodgers Take Cincinnati Reds

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

All's quiet in the Brooklyn bullpen where the over-worked relief artists have been squatting for a week, watching in wonder as five straight starters have gone the route.

Not since Sept. 3 when Kirby Higbe faltered in the eighth against the Phils has Coach Dressen felt the urge to wig-wag for help.

It couldn't happen at a more opportune time for Manager Leo Durocher who is trying to restore order to his pitching staff with the all-important St. Louis series opening tomorrow.

Rube Melton's three-hit, 8-0 shutout over Cincinnati yesterday may have clinched him a day's work against St. Louis.

The Dodgers drove Ed Heusser from the hill in the second inning.

St. Louis held tight to its two-game lead by mowing down the Phillies, 4-1, in a night game witnessed by 30,085 fans.

Boston Braves took out after the third-place Chicago Cubs and hammered them into submission, 10-2. Johnny Sain's 17th victory left the Braves only 3 1-2 games behind the Bruins.

Pittsburgh took first blood in the cellar series with New York, dumping the Giants, 7-4 to leave them only four points removed from last place.

Boston Red Sox had to postpone their pennant clinching celebration for at least one more day when they fell before Detroit, 9-1. A win over the Tigers today would give Boston its first flag since 1918.

Detroit took over second place by three points over New York when the Yankees were beaten at Cleveland, 4-2. The loss eliminated the Yanks' last mathematical possibility of tying the Red Sox.

Two home runs by Gerry Priddy on successive at bats helped Washington down Chicago 4-2, giving Marino Pieretti a decision in his first starting chore of the season. St. Louis kept alive its hopes of topping the second division by trimming Philadelphia 5-1.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Three of the 12 starters in tomorrow's $25,000 National Pacing Derby at Roosevelt Raceway, N.Y., will be Canadian horses. They are Blue Again, owned by Dr. R. W. Leatherdale of Windsor; Guy H., from Sorel, Que., and Frisky Lee, entered by Ron Rodgham of Chatham.

The sale of right-winger Pete Leswick by Detroit N.H.L. Red Wings to Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League was announced yesterday. He was a leading scorer for Indianapolis Capitals for two seasons.

Former star of St. Louis Cardinals, John (Pepper) Martin was released as manager of the San Diego club in the Pacific Coast League yesterday at his own request. He may take over a Texas club.

Although he did not take on Ray Robinson the other night at New York, Marty Servo of Schenectady, N.Y., is still welterweight champion, it was ruled yesterday by Abe Green's organization. Servo had asked to be excused because of a bruised nose. The N.B.A. said he must fight Robinson or a logical contender by Dec. 1.

After bringing the Philadelphia Phils from eighth to sixth place in the National League standing, Manager Ben Chapman received a two-year contract from owner Bob Carpenter yesterday.

Heavyweight champion Joe Louis weighed 212 pounds and had his usual low blood pressure when he was medically examined yesterday for his title-defence bout Sept. 18 against Tami Mauriello at New York.

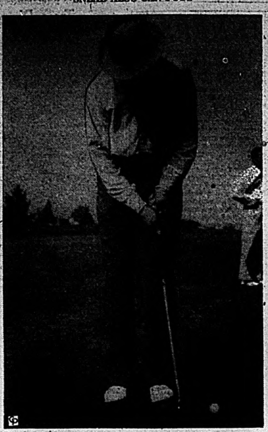
SNEAD ALSO CAN PUTT



Sam Snead demonstrates putting essentials such as keeping arms close to body and clubhead swinging along line toward the hole.

I had just walked off the 18th green when out of the sky behind me suddenly came a rapid whirring sound. Instinctively I ducked, thinking at first that a covey of quail was flying into me. The whirring soon passed and I turned to find my partner, Bill Stokes, in a rage tearing up his score card. For the third time during the round he took four putts on the green. When he saw his ball rolling past the last hole he blew up and threw his putter away to express his feelings. The direction of its flight was purely accidental.

I felt sorry for Bill because his putting was as bad as any I have ever seen. Everything he does outside of golf is done with a high degree of both intelligence and skill, he enjoys the reputation of being among the best in the world. And he takes great pride in doing things well. I did not give him instructions during the game because I do not volunteer advice, and the course is not the place to attempt changes in technique. But after his display of feelings I took Bill over to the practice putting green.

"No wonder you take three and sometimes four putts on a green," I told him. "Your line up practically assures such results. Your arms are much too far away from your body and your clubhead moves across the line of play."

I imitated his positions and movements.

"Well, what should I do?" he asked.

"First of all stand close to the ball so that you can keep both elbows against your body," I said. "This will steady your body as well as your arms and hands when you swing the club. Then in swinging the club try to have the clubhead moving along the line toward the hole especially after it strikes the ball."

Bill did these things and found his ball either dropping into the cup or stopping so close that he never took more than two putts.

150 Canadian-Born Hockey Players Headed for British Assoc. Teams

By HERB JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, Sept. 11 — (CP) — The search for fresh fields in which to expand export of Canadian commodities extends to all of the Dominion's products but one — hockey players.

World's greatest supplier of hockey talent, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has welcomed the opportunity provided young Canadian pucksters in the British Isles, South Africa, the United States and France. But large scale export will have telling effect on the eventual calibre of the game in Canada itself.

This year alone, more than 150 Canadian-born and bred hockey players are headed for British Ice Hockey Association teams. Players also are being sought to play in South Africa and teams in France, too, are looking to Canada for talent to launch their first post-war puck season.

Of the players going to the United Kingdom, about 50 will play for three teams which will operate in England this year. When all 11 franchises in the B.I.H.A. are operating—probably next year—this figure will probably reach the 200 mark.

Only eight of the 12 Scottish teams are to operate this year taking the balance of the Canadians going overseas. When that league gets into full swing the player demand will also reach the 200 mark.

This, in addition to the heavy demand for players from United States' leagues, leaves Canada with the problem of regulating her exports so as not to weaken her own clubs too greatly.

Requests for players from France have not been heavy to date. Only two Paris teams—Les Rapides and Les Volants — are in the field for Canadian talent at the moment. But Paul Lluis of Montreal who is agent for these teams, foresees a greater demand within one year's time.

To assure Canadian teams they will not lose the bulk of their talent, International Ice Hockey Association agreement include a clause which protects any clubs from having more than two of its players signed by clubs outside the Dominion. The players do make their own contracts after I.I.H.A. approval is given the transfer.

Claude Kewley, Scottish League representative in Canada, said that salaries in the British Isles average about $32.50 a week, compared to the average of $50 a week players get in Canada.

But despite the curtailed export, Ice Hockey Associations outside the Dominion still look to Canada for the bulk of their playing talent.

The hockey cry may soon become "Eastward Ho!"

Air Command Softball, Tennis Tourney Thurs.

The Royal Canadian Air Force Station at Trenton will wind up its summer athletic program on Thursday, when No. 1 Air Command softball and tennis championships will be decided.

Teams from Aylmer, Lachine, Clinton, Mountain View, No. 1 Equipment Depot, Toronto, No. 6 Repair Depot, KTS, Toronto, Centralia, and Camp Borden as well as representatives of Trenton will meet in the tournament to decide the championship. An exhibition softball game will be staged by members of the Women's Division at 3:30 p.m.

The tennis tournament will consist of singles and doubles for members of the Women's Division followed by men's championship and mixed sets.

HENRY MARTELL 1 OF QUALIFIERS IN U.S. AMATEUR

Herd to Play Extra Match to Get in and Plays Public Links King in First Round

Springfield, N. J., Sept. 11 — (CP) — Henry Martell, Canadian amateur titlist from Edmonton, who overcame a wobbly start in the 36-hole qualifying round and then survived a 13-man play-off after tying with 152, drew Smiley L. Quick, public links king, today as match play in the United States Amateur Golf championship started on Baltusrol Club's exacting layout.

Martell, one of eight survivors in the play-offs, found the going tough over the rugged course further handicapped by the fact that the 152 needed to qualify was three strokes below previous standards for the tournament last held in 1941. Evidence of the quality of play being run off at Baltusrol was shown when four former winners of the amateur crown were eliminated.

Martell scored a 78 to go with his 74 he shot in the initial qualifying round Monday. He got the needed 152 only after some difficulty when on the outgoing nine yesterday he put together a 41 but in the home stretch he rallied to take 37. He had a chance to qualify outright but missed a putt on the 18th to take a one-over-par six on the hole. His outgoing tally included six fives, two fours and a three.

In the play-off Martell and 3 others qualified with par fours on the second hole while the other four survivors made it on the first hole with birdie fours.

The luck of the draw brought two of the hottest players in the tournament face to face. Skee Riegel, the burly Pennsylvanian who hacked eight strokes off par to win the medal with 136 — a national qualifying record—was down for an 18-hole date with Bob Babbish of Royal Oak, Mich.

Babbish, relying principally on a scorching putter, came through with a 68 yesterday to finish the qualifying round in a second-place tie at 141 with Quick Inglewood, Calif., titlist.

PITCHERS NAMED FOR PLAYOFFS

(By The Associated Press)

Barrel-chested Steve Nagy, ace International League southpaw will toe the hill for the pennant winning Montreal Royals tonight when they clash with Newark Bears in the opening rounds of the league's semi-final Governor's Cup playoff series.

Nagy, who won 17 games and lost only four for the Royals during the regular season, will be opposed by lefthander Herb Karpel. Karpel turned in 14 wins and dropped eight for the Bears, who wound up in fourth place.

The first two games of the best-of-seven affair are at Montreal and the next three at Rupper Stadium, Newark.

In the other semi-final round, manager Jewel Ens of Syracuse Chiefs, who finished second in the race, has nominated Howie Fox to pitch the opener against Baltimore Orioles who wound up third.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

Springfield, N. J., Sept. 11 — (AP) — On the scoreboard in the press room at Baltusrol, there's a printed slip saying: "The legend of Baltusrol; murder on the mountain" . . . Except for the fact that the championship course is down at the foot of the hill, that would describe last night's sudden death playoff with those vicious dive bombers known as Jersey mosquitos attacking contestants and gallery . . . It isn't surprising that such notable golfers as ex-champion Johnny Fischer and 1941 semi-finalist Bobby Riegel were eliminated.

When Chicago Bears had trouble finding a place to work out in Boston before their professional football exhibition against the Yanks, Harvard, a noted stronghold of amateurism, made its whole athletic plant available for three days.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 9 (CP)—Whether it's Britain's well-known propensity for taking it on the chin, or simply the glamor of the name, teams in many countries want to take a crack at the big-time English football clubs.

The Football Association is so flooded with requests for English clubs to travel in the "off" season that the players could be fully occupied on foreign tours. The latest request is from China.

Soccer is the most popular winter game in Shanghai, whose champion side, Tsing Peh, wants any Football Association eleven or better still, a crack League club. If Arsenal or Aston Villa went over, it is almost a cinch they wouldn't lose financially, whatever might be their fate in the playing sense.

All the empire and dominion associations have applied for touring clubs. Liverpool went to Canada and the United States this summer cleaned up on all opposition, and came back full of praise for the treatment they had received.

Other countries on the list are Turkey, Brazil, Egypt, Chile, Argentina, Mexico, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Austria, and Spain.

Jockey Gordon Richards, and bettors were "pained" when Richards' mount, Invasion, placed second in a race at Brighton. Gordon, Britain's top jockey, dismounted and an S.O.S. for a doctor was sounded over the loud-speaker system.

Examination revealed he had been stung by a wasp.

A decision believed unprecedented in modern British boxing was given at Liverpool when Paddy Dowdall of Dublin and Johnny Molley of St. Helens, Hampshire, were disqualified in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-round bout. Both were disqualified for holding and the fight declared "no contest."

Phil Mead, 59, who played in first-class cricket for many years, hit 153 centuries and scored more than 55,000 runs, now is blind and living on a pension at his home in Bournemouth.

He twice toured Australia and South Africa with England's Test team and played his last county game for Hampshire against Essex in 1936. The occasion also marked his last century.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The high cost of blood pressure makes too many foxy leads unworthy of a good bridge player. Among other things, it makes things tough for his partner to fit in the spots that are normal.

However, there are times when it pays to take chances on any result. Not only when there is everything to gain by it and nothing to lose. But also to keep your opponents guessing.

If you are known as a rule player, break a rule now and then. It will cross up an opponent who is too observing. The time to try such a stunt is when it will not fool your partner.

When your partner does not know a rule from a hole in the sky, you can break rules with abandon. The poor sap sitting opposite you will probably never know it happened.

When leading from a suit of four or more cards, the rule is to lead fourth from the highest. Thus, the correct lead is the diamond five from west diamonds shown here:

NORTH
♦A J 7

WEST
♦10 8 6 5 3 2

EAST

SOUTH
♦K Q 9

But declarer in the south was an expert who applied the rule of 11 and east was a dub. So, west led the deuce. It fooled the declarer into thinking that west had four diamonds and east three.

So, instead of pulling trumps in a hurry, south was lulled into letting west get the lead again. West then led another diamond and east captured it with a trump that should have been worthless.

It feels good to put across one like that. But it makes a player reckless when it succeeds. Wise is the player who knows when and how instead of only how.

By telling you these things, I hope you do not take these oddities as your custom. You will play a much better game of bridge if you stick to the rules. That comes straight from the horse's mouth.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 11. Members of the Glenn Miller band, currently breaking records at its old Hollywood stand, still expect their former leader to be back leading them again some day.

The band is now affronted by Tex Beneke, the drawling Fort Worth boy who sang jump tunes and played a mean sax in the original Miller outfit. He expressed the sentiment of the players:

"I truly expect that Glenn will be back leading the band again. I know it's a million to one chance, but I can't get it into my mind that he is gone. I dream about him all the time."

Miller was lost on a fog-bound English Channel flight during the war. No trace was ever found. His widow and many of his friends still believe he will return.

When peace came the band reformed under the leadership of Beneke, with permission for use of the name and library obtained from Mrs. Miller.

The new outfit playing at the Palladium has all the power and precision that the original displayed here four years ago. Five members are back from the old civilian band, and 27 from the army organization. Something new has been added with the 12 strings and one French horn, with which Miller experimented in the army.

Beneke, who leads the band with an assuredness he learned from his mentor, discounted reports that swing is disappearing.

"It's true we're playing more sweet numbers, now that strings have been added. That gives more people a chance to dance, because nearly everyone likes to dance to a slower tempo. But still 90 per cent of the requests are for the swing tunes."

After "Golden Earrings" Marlene Dietrich plans to return to Paris for another picture... Peggy Cummins' mother is coaching Burgess Meredith for an authentic Irish dialect in "Playboy of the Western World" on Broadway.

PRISONERS SERVING SCIENCE

Dr. Karl F. Meyer, director of the Hooper Foundation for Medical Research of the University of California, injects a vaccine made from "Killed" plague bacilli into a San Quentin prison inmate as other volunteers from within the California penal institution who offered themselves as "human guinea pigs" line up to assist science in the battle of the dread "black death," which takes the various forms of bubonic, pneumonic and septisemic plagues. The purpose of the San Quentin tests is to ascertain how much immunity is built up in the bloodstreams of individuals after vaccination and to establish for the first time a numerical index of immunity in human beings.

INDIA DEVELOPS FISHING AREAS

Provinces and States Organize to Develop Industry Along Modern Lines

New Delhi, —(CP)— With a vast expanse of coastal waters and numerous rivers and lakes, India is a plentiful source of fish. The industry has grown considerably during the last 50 years owing to the increasing demand from growing cities which lie adjacent to the fishing areas, but for lack of modern scientific methods much of this potential wealth has been untapped.

Experimental trawlings show that some of the richest fishing areas of the world do not lie far from the Indian coast. To develop the industry steps will be taken to create good fishing fleets able to whether the squalls of the Arabian sea and the Bay of Bengal, to train fishermen both in handling the boats and the catch and to provide facilities for preserving the catch by refrigeration, salting and other processes.

Many provinces and states have organized fishery departments, training of technical staff has been started and some of the provincial governments are making arrangements for the purchase of fishermen's requirements for distribution at controlled rates.

Under a five-year plan prepared by the Zoological Survey of India it is proposed to set up a fishery research institute which will function as an administrative and research centre.

Snake Shortage Hits South Africa

Johannesburg, —(CP)— South Africa's latest shortage is snakes. If this shortage continues more snake breeding may have to be established in various parts of the country for the South African Medical Research Institute is in desperate need of snake venom to produce serum for distribution to hospitals, medical institutions and doctors.

The South African Institute has never before required such great quantities of venom as at present. There is a tremendous demand for snake serum, particularly that produced from cobra venom. Just over two years ago the first experimental snake farm was established near Addo in the Cape Province, one of its main purposes being to breed snakes.

Faroe Islands Will be Air Link With Denmark

Glasgow, Scotland, —(CP)— One of the most hazardous air routes in the northern hemisphere has been inaugurated between nearby Prestwick and the Faroe Islands, 200 miles northwest of the Shetlands.

Intended to link the islands with Denmark, to which they belong, planes making the trip have first to return to Prestwick to refuel as there are no facilities on the islands.

The isles are almost constantly shrouded by cloud and the one airfield is hemmed in by mountains.

Sea Captain's Ashes Are Scattered Over Wreck of His Ship

Auckland, N.Z. —(CP)— The ashes of a mariner well-known on the Canadian West Coast, Captain William Martin, has at his own request been scattered at sea over the wreck of his old ship, the liner Niagara. As one of the senior captains of the Canadian-Australasian Line, Captain Martin made many voyages between Vancouver and Australia and New Zealand in the Niagara and other vessels of the line.

He was in command of the Niagara when in 1940 she struck a German mine off the New Zealand coast while en route from Auckland to Vancouver. She sank two hours later in 438 feet of water. At Captain Martin's request his ashes were taken after his death in Sydney last month and scattered at the scene of the wreck from the freighter Kairanga.

That means we'll have to get out."

Dutch Make Big Aerial Recovery

Amsterdam, —(CP)— Post-war reconstruction in Holland has not only restored Dutch Air services but multiplied them.

The end of the war saw the Royal Dutch Air Lines without a serviceable airdrome, few planes and no trained staffs.

Fourteen months later, K.L.M. (Kloninglijk Luchtvaart Maatschapij, Royal Dutch Air Lines) services are manned by more planes and personnel, fly more miles and bring in more money than at any time before the war.

Temporary wooden huts house offices at Schipol Airport, outside Amsterdam. Twisted skeletons of its hangers indicate all the Germans left of a once-modern station. Even the runways had to be re-surfaced before Allied service planes could use the field after the war.

K.L.M. hires 300 new persons a month as plans progressively reach implementation. Before the end of the war its staff numbered 1,900. Today its 3,000 includes 132 pilots, 65 stewards and 40 stewardesses.

Where, before the war, there were 35 planes there are 55 today and the pre-war total of daily miles flown--21,000--exceeds 55,000.

K.L.M. 's regular services include two weekly flights from Amsterdam to New York, four runs weekly from Amsterdam to Batavia, and daily hops to Malmo, Stockholm, Zurich, Prague, Brussels, Paris, Oslo and London. A new service goes to Madrid and Lisbon, and is to be extended to Buenos Aires.

QUEBEC GOLFER LEADING FIELD

Ottawa, Sept. 11 — (CP) — Golfers looked forward today to a break in the drizzly weather, which yesterday caused scores carded in the first 36 holes of the 72-hole Canadian Professional Golfers' Association Medal play tournament to soar.

Only Jules Huot, the dapper pro from Laval-Sur-La Lac, Que., was able to put together two-par-breaking rounds for the 6,470-yard Rivermead Golf Club course.

Huot combined a snappy 69 with a 71 for the last 18 holes to lead the 46-man field with a 4-under-par 140 for the 36 holes played yesterday.

His closest competitor for the winner's share of the $1,600 prize money and the Cohama Trophy was Bob Gray of Scarboro Club, Toronto, five strokes back with a one-over-par 145.

In third place was Gordie Brydson of Toronto Mississauga with 146.

Bill Kerr of Toronto Thornhill, the defending champion, was well back with a 154.

What proved the nemesis for the majority was the 250 – yard par-three 10th hole.

Contestants were unanimous in declaring the hole's uphill approach, tree-lined fairway and sloping green the most difficult "to get home to with a tee shot."

Wallbridge

Wallbridge — Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Bushill and family, Belleville, spent a day recently with Mr. and Mrs. W. Sine..

Miss Bly, Toronto, is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Chisholm.

Mrs. Jas. Hinchliffe was taken to Belleville hospital last Saturday afternoon for an X-ray but the last report is that she will soon be able to return home.

Mr. John Hogg is spending a few days with friends in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Hendricks, Trenton, called on the latters' father, Mr. John Hogg, one evening last week.

-Miss June Hinchliffe has returned from a weeks' visit with Miss Joy Blackburn, Eldorado.

The threshers have completed their work in this community and ploughing, potato digging and tomato picking are the order of the day.

Two Junior Farmers, Messrs. Donald Sine and Carmen Rikley, are on a trip to Winnipeg and Regina to make a study of advanced farming around Saskatoon and also help with the harvest.

The annual Rally Day service was held here on Sunday morning. The program as sent out by the O.R.E.C. was followed. Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson, superintendent, acted as leader. The Scripture lessons were read by Master Ernie Thompson and Miss Jane Ketcheson. The story, "Truly Brothers," was exceptionally well told by Miss Lorena Sine. Three girls, Misses Gwennie Ketcheson, Helen and Vera Sine, sang the chorus "I Would be True." Rev. Mr. Hillis gave a most appropriate address. As every part of a watch is necessary that it may give the best service, so every one has a part in God's work, and if one fails to do his or her part in this work, the kingdom is delayed.

Miss Lorena Sine, nurse-in-training at Belleville General Hospital, has been enjoying a well-earned holiday at her home here. She expects to go back to work some time this week.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma terned on the radio to the Baffle Hour, being her favorite mystery program, and pop listened to it too on account of being there already reeding his paper, and when it was over ma said, Well, it wasn't so bad.

For Peet sake it was the most I listened to a mystery program, radio, pop said. For once I'm glad I listened t oa mystery program, he said, and ma said, Still, just a same, it leaves me unsatisfied.

But for Peet sake it had everything, action, suspents, love intrist and skullduggery, pop said. Dont tell me you guessed the plot before the end? he said, and ma said, No, I admit I was completely at sea and in the air about the plot. First I thought it was the housekeeper and then I thought it was the butler and then I thought it was that friend of the family, and then I didn't know what to think, she said.

What a plot, that's what I call a humdinger, pop said. The idea of a man keeling over dead from a heart attack just as he's about to commit a merder, and the gun going off when he fell enters his dead body and passes through the heart. It's apparently a clear case of either suicide or merder, but of course it's neither one, because in spite of the bullit hole the man wasn't shot to death at all, he said, and ma said, I still say it leaves me unsattisfied.

But why, for Peet sake, why? pop said, and ma said, Because the plot led you on and on, innocently expecting a merder, and in fact practically promising you one at the end, only to make it come out a mere accident. Everybody expects at least one merder in a mystery program, and I dont approve of plots that cheet the listening audience, she said.

The female of the speshies is more something than the mail, pop said.

Saying it from in back of the sporting page.

JAIL ARSONIST

While watching an auto fire in Hollywood, 23-year-old Joan Falk of New York was arrested for allegedly starting fires in nine autos, two Hollywood night clubs and a hotel in a 24-hour period. She said, "I wanted to embarrass my mother."

CLOSE TO 1,000 STELCO WORKERS 'LEAVE HAMILTON, ONT., PLANT

Several hundred Stelco workers left the Steel Co. of Canada plant in Hamilton, Ont., for a holiday over the weekend, many of whom had not seen their wives and families since the strike began. Scores of loaded cars brought the steel workers through the front gates of the plant and past massed lines of pickets. Cars were allowed to pass without incident except for shouts of strikers. Few police were in evidence. A mass meeting of Stelco workers turned down Ottawa's latest offer for settlement and decided to continue the strike.
